areas, said federal assistance plans would be decided by cabinet this week.

Since Hay River and Fort Simpson are in the federal territories, the whole burden of overcoming flood damage will fall on the federal treasury, since there is no provincial treasury and little is expected to be available from local sources, officials said.

Mr. Laing said no thought is being given to relocating the ravaged communities, which are both built on islands. Rebuilt in future expansion of the towns, use may be made of high mainland grounds near the islands.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

With such familiar names as Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa and Peterborough on the roster, the 1963 edition of the Lakeshore Baseball League could very well be the egg that will eventually hatch a revival of the famous old Central Ontario Baseball League.

Port Hope and Ajax clubs are included in this year's LBL edition rounding out what appears to be a compact six-team circuit.

Kingston, Oshawa and Peterborough are expected to field strong clubs, while the story out of Port Hope says that the local club and Ajax have strengthened considerably and Lakeshore prexy Jim Crombie looks forward to a well-balanced loop.

Heart at heart with visions of an individual sponsorship rapidly fading, a determined Coach Sid Forster is putting upwards of thirty hopefuls through their paces, and expects to come up with a squad that should compare favorably with last year's Kenmore senior champions.

"We have entered the club," Sid said, "and sponsor or no sponsor we are going through with it. We will do our best with what we can get and hope the fans of the city and district will help us out at the gate."

"Baseball is on the way back. That, I think, was indicated last summer when good crowds turned out for the Kenmore games. A number of fans have approached me with offers of help and I think we shall be able to muddle through. We are cutting expenses to a minimum and will play the season with last year's somewhat dilapidated uniforms."

Sid was highly optimistic over the chances of producing a strong contitive club despite the fact some key players of the 1963 club will be missing.

"Our pitching staff looks pretty good," he said. "We have Stan Reid, Billy Latchford, Gordie Vaughan, and Larry Soden back with a strong possibility that Pat Latchford will be on hand for mound as well as other duties.

"We have a few newcomers who look pretty good, particularly two youngsters from Orillia and Ottawa. One looks like a good catcher and may make the grade. However, all positions are open and the occupants will be selected strictly on ability."

Departure of key players made a big hole in the 1962 Kenmore's infield, but Forster has a good nucleus in Jackie Elliott and Pat Asseltine. "I'm not worried too much about first base," he said, "in fact there's a guy named Forster who can play the spot if the need arises."

Second and third base spots are to be filled, but the coach said it doesn't look as bad as it seems. "I am trying out various combinations and I think I'll come up with a good infield defence."

The club doesn't lack for outfielders. In fact there could be quite a race for the three positions. Forster has Ricky Locke, Duffy Falwell, Duguid, Larry Soule, Ted Batchelor and Stu Muirhead chasing flies, in the outer gardens, all of whom are rounding into form.

"I could convert one or more of these players into infielders if needs be. By doing that I would be losing their hitting power," Forster said.

What about batting power?

"We're going to miss Gary Goyer and his .400 clouting," said the coach, "but perhaps I can come up with two good .280 hitters. The club looks good with the hickory but practice sometimes is out of line with actiye playing."

And at the risk of being called a tip-slipper to enemy coaches, Forster told me that at batting practice the other day twenty-two batters took their place at the plate—and all 22 were right-hand hitters.

Forster is highly optimistic over the chances of his club and believes he will show fans a well-balanced team when Oshawa plays here on May 20 staring 2.30 in the opening battle of the season.

The big, likeable guy would be happier still if a sponsor loomed over the horizon or at least some financial help came the club's way.

British Start Probe

Soccer Row Over 'Ome

LONDON (AP)—English soccer administrators probed allegations Monday that players have taken bribes to fix games.

The scandal grew dirring the weekend. Two men named in the rumors — goalkeeper Esmond Million and inside-forward Keith Williams, both of Bristol Rovers—were suspended by their club pending an inquiry.

The scandal broke when Million, 23, told newspaper men he had accepted £50 to lose the Rovers' game against Bradford April 21.

He was quoted as saying that he would have collected another £250 if Bristol had lost. But the plan misfired and the game ended in a 3-2 draw, and he sent the money back. Williams also told newspapers men he had been concerned in accepting a bribe.

Meanwhile, the English Football Association set up a commission to investigate the case.

Reds Tag A's; Yanks Clobber Tigers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The moving finger writes and having writ, moves on."

And so did Jim Brosnan.

Brosnan, the well - known author and well-tagged relief specialist who wrote himself into Cincinnati Reds' doghouse, made his first American League appearance Monday night and preserved Chicago White Sox' 5-1 victory over first place Kansas City Athletics.

Brosnan found himself in trouble with Reds this season whenever he picked up a baseball or a pen. He made six relief appearances for Cincinnati and had been bombed for a 7.20 earned run average in 4⅓ innings.

The author of The Long Season and The Pennant Race also ran into trouble over his writings, although Cincinnati owned Bill DeWitt denied he had put any gag on the 33-year-old righthander who posted a 10-6 record when Reds won the pennant in 1961.

NEEDS PERMISSION

"It's every baseball contract," explained DeWitt, "there's a clause prohibiting players from writing about the club's permission. I merely called this to Brosnan's attention. He promised me he would submit to me for approval anything he wrote. He did not live up to that promise."

Whether that or his lack of success on the mound was the reason for Brosnan's departure, is a guess. But as in the words of Omar Khayyam, Brosnan moved on, Sox shipping him to Chicago Sunday in a waiver deal.

Hours after arriving he was out on the mound, taking over for Gary Peters in the ninth inning. Brosnan struck out two of the three men he faced, preserved Peters' first major league victory and gave himself something to write home about.

The loss put the A's into a first-place tie with New York Yankees, who got home runs from Mickey Mantle and Tom Tresh in a 10-3 walloping of Detroit Tigers.

In the only other American League game Los Angeles Angels edged Minnesota Twins 5-4.

Pittsburgh Pirates retained first place in the National League, beating Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 in the lone game.

IMPRESSION STRONG

Brosnan made a strong impression in his one-inning workout against A's. He struck out Gino Cimoli, got Ed Charles to hit a grounder to third, and finished by striking out Norm Siebern.

Charles had previously stroked two of the four hits off Peters.

Peters and Mike Hershberger each homered for White Sox while Neille Fox and Camilo Carreon each collected three hits to lead the attack.

Mantle, Tresh and Bobby Richardson each stroked three hits as Yankees pounded out 15 against Tigers' starter Hank Aguirre and his successors. Both Mantle and Tresh drove in three runs. The victory went to Whitey Ford, who needed relief help from Jim Bouton to ball his third straight victory.

Albie Pearson, who earlier had battered in two runs with a double, produced another two-run double in the last of the ninth as Angels came from behind to beat Twins and end a four-game losing streak. Minne sota had snapped a 3-3 tie in the top half of the inning on Zoilo Versalles' run-producing single.

Johnny Logan's pinch-hit single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning capped a four-run Pirate explosion against Don Drysdale and the punchless Dodgers, who have lost seven of their last nine games.

MANILA (AP)—World junior welterweight champion Roberto Cruz agreed today to defend his title against Eddie Perkins of Chicago here next month, probably June 15.

Carl Brewer Runner-Up

Hawks' Pilote Wins Norris Trophy

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Pilote, captain of Chicago Black Hawks, has won the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the National Hockey League's outstanding defenceman, it was announced Monday.

Pilote previously was named to the league's first all-star team.

Chicago and Toronto Maple Leafs, the two NHL clubs rated as having the best defence corps, led the voting.

Toronto's Carl Brewer, also named to the first all-star team, was second in the individual honors. Pilote led him by 98 points to 81.

Toronto's Tim Horton, named to the second all-star team, was third in the Norris voting with 37 points and Elmer (Moose) Vasko of Chicago, Horton's second all-star line - mate, was fourth with 22.

The trophy is worth $2,000 to Pilote—$1,000 for being the over-all leader, $500 for leading after the first half of the season's voting and $500 for leading the second-half balloting.

Pilote, a native of Kenogami, Que., has played seven seasons in Chicago. He played his junior hockey with St. Catharines.

Voting for the NHL trophies is done by hockey writers and broadcasters in the NHL cities. Ballots are pro-rated so all cities get the equivalent of three votes.

Sponsors!- Or League May Fold!

All is not well with the Commercial Softball League!

After announcing five definite starters last week, with high hopes for a strike, two of the sponsors have apparently backed out.

are only three sponsors and

So, at present time there the league is on the brink of folding.

A league meeting has been called for the YMCA tomorrow (Wednesday) night, at eight o'clock.

This will be the make or break point for the league.

The league executive has asked that the present team managers and coaches get out between now and then and try and line up a couple more sponsors.

And anyone interested in helping out, sponsor-wise, is urged to attend Wednesday's meeting.

Several Offers Made

Ortiz In No Hurry For Lane

NEW YORK (AP)— Kenny Lane stood in the wings today, an old familiar spot for him, waiting to see if he will get a shot at the lightweight title, while words flew furiously around the boxing beat.

Champion Carlos Ortiz said he had no solid offer for a Lane fight. He added he was thinking of defending against junior lightweight champion Flash Elorde in the Philippines.

Lane said he knew of at least one solid offer, that of Madison Square Garden matchmaker Teddy Brenner.

Brenner said he made the offer last winter, but Ortiz turned it down. Lane said Brenner told him it was still good.

David Gudelsky, Michigan athletic commissioner, said he knew of two offers to promote a Lane-Ortiz fight. Gudelsky also said he would put Michigan out of the World Boxing Association if the WBA doesn't force the fight.

The WBA said it will strip Ortiz of the title if he doesn't sign to fight Lane by June 2.

WANTS NO PART?

Bill Daley, boxing advisor to Ortiz, didn't sound as if he wanted any part of Lane, a southpaw spoiler from Muskegon, Mich.

"Wherever there is the best offer we will fight," Daly said. "The WBA doesn't manage my affairs."

And Ortiz said: "If you have to do what the WBA says, why have managers?"

Lane has never been popular with lightweight champions. Joe Brown ducked him for some time before he finally gave him a shot in 1958, and outpointed him.

Carlos Ortiz in 1958 on a split decision, and Ortiz stopped the southpaw on cuts after two rounds of a junior lightweight title fight in 1959.

Card Hurler Tops With 5-0 Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ray Washburn of the St. Louis Cardinals, who has flirted with no hitters twice this spring, feels "with this start, I think I can win 20 games."

Washburn, 25, in his second year with the Cardinals, is the National League's leading pitcher with five victories and no defeats. He goes after No. 6 tonight against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

He never had a start like this," says the young right-hander from Burbank, Wash., who is giving up fewer hits than many pitchers allow runs. In 34⅓ innings, he has allowed just eight runs and 25 hits and has an earned run average of 1.60. His 40 strikeouts lead the league.

"I've improved my control and gained confidence," said Washburn, who had a 12-9 mark last year with the Cardinals.

In his last start against Chicago, Washburn went six innings before giving up a hit. Before that, facing the Dodgers, he retired the first 20 men and did not allow a hit until the eighth.

Indian Wins Over Japan

TOKYO (AP)—India's Ramanathan Krishnan defeated Japan's Osamu Ishiguro 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 today to clinch the Eastern Zone Davis Cup tennis championship for India with a 3-2 victory over Japan.

The victory gave India the right to meet the American-European zone champion.

Seals Win WHL Title

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Orland Kurtenbach scored in overtime Monday night to give the San Francisco Seals a 4-3 victory over Edmonton Flyers and the Western Hockey League championship.

An all-time record Cow Palace hockey crowd of 12,404 roared their approval as Kurtenbach scored on a knee-high shot at 4:09 and gave the Seals the Lester Patrick Cup.

Other San Francisco scorers were Duke Edmundson, Moe Mantha and Danny Belisle. For Seattle it was Bob Sabourin, with two, and Jim Powers.

The victory gave the Seals the championship four games to three in the best-of-seven series.

Kings Whip Flyers, Lead 2-1

Fourth Game Tonight

EDMONTON (CP)—Prospects of Edmonton Oil Kings winning their first Memorial Cup looked brighter today with the club holding a 3-1 edge over Niagara Falls Flyers in the best-of-seven final for the Canadian junior hockey championship.

Monday night's 5-3 win over Flyers before a near-capacity crowd of 6,434 gave the Edmonton club its first series lead in four consecutive Memorial Cup finals.

Fourth game will be played tonight with the fifth scheduled for Thursday.

Edmonton's forechecking was the deciding factor, the same pattern which helped to produce a 7-3 victory for the Oil Kings last Saturday after absorbing an 8-0 lacing in the first game.

COUNTS TWICE

Centre Butch Paul scored twice for Oil Kings. Max Mestinsek, Bob Falkenburg and Roger Bourbonnais got the others.

Gary Harmer and Bill Glashan scored for Niagara Falls.

Oil Kings took a 4-1 lead after a scoreless first period and the teams split goals in the third period.

As in previous games, ring rooms were closed to reporters. But this didn't stop the Flyers from talking.

Hap Emms, owner-coach of Niagara Falls, said he had no alibis—his club was outskated and beaten fair and square. But he wasn't happy about Edmonton crowds.

Asked how the crowds were treating him on and off the ice, Emms replied: "I'd never like to bring a club back to Edmonton again."

The Flyers coach must shuffle his lineup for tonight's game due to a knee injury to centre Gary Dornhoefer, who might miss the balance of the series.

CARRIED FROM ICE

Dornhoefer was carried from the ice in the third period when checked by defenceman Pat Quinn of Edmonton. Quinn was given a major for charging.

Emms indicated he might move team captain Terry Crisp between Ron Schock and Wayne Maxner.

Edmonton coach Buster Brayshaw said he thought Quinn deserved a penalty, but didn't think he should have received five minutes. Niagara Falls scored while Quinn and defenceman Butch Bazkur were off.

Brayshaw said his club forechecked well but he didn't think Oil Kings had Flyers on the run. Tonight's game will decide that.

Referee Frank Daignault of Montreal gave 10-minute misconduct penalties to Crisp and Dornhoefer in the second period for disputing minor penalties.

George Gardner made 40 saves in Niagara Falls goal compared with 19 by Russ Kirk of Edmonton.

Wants To Play, Not Pinch-Hit

Tribe Player Jumps Club

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Outfielder Gene Green of Cleveland Indians jumped his team Monday and said he has no intention of returning.

"I know I'm not a bad ballplayer and I can't stand not playing," Green said. "I'd rather quit baseball and do something for less money, I can't stand this any more."

Green, who will be 30 next month and said he has no pinch-hitter by the Indians. A native of Los Angeles, he was hoping the Indians would trade him to the Angels during their series here last weekend.

"I'd love to play here," he said. "I think they'd appreciate me."

But no deal came off and Green decided to miss the plane when the Indians took off for Washington Monday morning.

"This is a funny game," he said. "I'm not good enough to play for Cleveland, but I'm too good to be traded. I understand the Indians turned down a chance to trade me to the Angels."

Birdie Tebbetts (Cleveland manager) told me the Angels wanted me as a pinch hitter and he said that's what Cleveland wants me for."

Green batted .280 for the Indians last season. He had only 243 at bats but hit 11 homers and drove in 28 runs.

Frick, Cronin, Giles Go Into Huddle

Balk Barrage Bothers Baseball Brass

NEW YORK (AP)—National League president Warren Giles, whose league leads the American in batting 96-9 at this early stage of the season, huddled with American League president Joseph Cronin and baseball commissioner Ford Frick today over the rash of balk calls.

They will separately try to work out a ruling that will fit both leagues, before the all-star game and World Series come along.

All three men will be in town for the regular meeting of an executive council at Frick's New York office.

The balk talk probably will come up before the meeting.

Giles said earlier, when the balk business broke out through his league like a rash without spreading to the American League, that he would use the opportunity to try to work out a common approach.

Giles ordered his umpires to pay closer attention to the moves of pitchers this season. The result was a balk record in the first three weeks of the season. The old record was 76 in 1950.

NO AL INCREASE

There was little or no sign of an increase in balks in the American League.

Giles later urged his umpires to slow up, but they have not stopped calling balks.

National League umpires first required pitchers to come to a full second stop in their motions, before pitching to the batter. In the AL, only a stop was required.

Giles told his umpires to adopt the AL position, but the wide variance in the number of balks indicated that the two leagues are still far apart.

Medical Drama May Be Played Out in Two Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — In the high network and film studio echelons, executives are quietly considering the feasibility of having Dr. Gillespie of NBC's Dr. Kildare series refer an occasional patient to Psychiatrist Stark of NBC's 11th Hour series next season.

The result of this procedure—a novel in television if not in real life—would be to provide a two-part medical drama played out on different series.

If it works we may well be treated to a whole new cycle of intra-television, interlocking entertainment — Ben Casey sending his neuro-surgery patients to the psychiatrists of the new Breaking Point series or vice-versa; lawyers Lawrence and Kenneth Preston of The Defenders getting their clients acquitted and then sending them on to The Nurses for after-care.

ABC, which has a pair of clashing programs called Arrest and Trial scheduled for next season, is planning something along these lines. These related shows on Sunday nights will tell the story of a man-hunt in the first 45-minute segment, followed by a second 45-minute show about the same man's courtroom experiences.

One can only imagine the possibilities of such a vogue. A fellow who had narrowly escaped hanging on Bonanza could ride off into the sunset — to join Wagon Train three days later. Or Marshal Dillon could bring his desperado, caught during Saturday's Gunsmoke, before The Virginian's Judge Garth the following Wednesday.

ABC's Wagon Train is not only expanding to 90 minutes next season, but is increasing its cast of "regulars" by two co-stars (including Laramie's Robert Fuller) and is going to have two big-name guest-stars each week instead of one.

Leafs Whip Syracuse, Bisons Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings' strong pitching staff prevailed again Monday night as John Miller pitched a five-hit 3-0 shutout over Richmond Virginians in International League action.

It was the fourth straight full-game performance by manager Darrell Johnson's pitching staff—and fourth win in a row. In the four-game stretch, Red Wing pitchers have given up only seven runs.

In other games Monday, Jacksonville Suns rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to defeat Buffalo Bisons 8-6 and slow down the northern division leaders, Indianapolis Indians defeated Arkansas Travelers 4-1, Columbus Jets defeated Atlanta Crackers 3-1, and Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Syracuse Chiefs 9-3.

The Rochester win left them 1½ games behind Buffalo. Sam Bowens doubled in Rochester's first run, then stole third and scored on an infield out for the other run.

WINS IN NINTH

Buddy Barker slammed a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning to wipe out a 5-5 Buffalo lead and give Jacksonville the win. Harry Chiti also hit a three-run homer for Jacksonville. Joe Christopher hit one for Buffalo with Bob Humphreys and Tom Cataline one with the bases full.

Don Buford's homer and Mike Hershberger's single gave Gene Stephens featured a three run eighth inning by Indianapolis and gave the win to Indians starter Frank Kreutzer who survived a shaky start and finished with a strong five-hitter.

Orlando McFarlane triggered both Columbus scoring innings against Atlanta. His single led to the first run in the second inning and successive doubles by McFarland and Pancho Herrera produced the winning run in the fourth.

Toronto jumped on Syracuse pitcher Cliff Adams for four runs in the first inning and collected a total of 11 hits off three pitchers. Neil Chrisley had three hits to lead the assault.

Carl Greene pitched a six-hitter for the win, blanking Syracuse until the sixth inning.

Covington Bat Tops Nats

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Put down Wes Covington's name among the players who found a new lease on life after leaving Milwaukee Braves.

The hard-hitting Philadelphia outfielder has taken over the National League batting lead with a .383 average. He increased his mark 41 points in last week's games while collecting 10 hits in 22 attempts, a .455 pace.

Covington played for the Braves' pennant-winning team of 1957 and 1958. They sold him to Chicago White Sox and he was also with Kansas City before moving to Philadelphia in July, 1961.

Felipe Alou of San Francisco remained in second place despite a 22-point drop to .378. Bill White of St. Louis is third with .353, followed by Frank Howard of Los Angeles and John Edwards, Cincinnati, .352 each. Edwards, the leader a week ago, lost 39 points with only two safeties in 15 tries.

Wayne Causey of Kansas City remained in first place in the American League. He picked up six points to .406 with an eight-for-19 performance during last week.

Carl Yastrzemski of Boston held the runnerup position although he fell 10 points to .355. Leon Wagner of Los Angeles moved up three places to third at .351. Wagner gained 18 points with 10 hits in 25 times at bat. Don Leppert of Washington is fourth at .346.

Davie Nicholson of Chicago White Sox walloped four homers to tie Wagner and New York's Elston Howard for the American League home-run lead. Each has five. Floyd Robinson of the White Sox drove in 10 runs and deadlocked Bob Allison of Minnesota for the RBI lead at 19.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee hit two homers and now paces the National League with nine. Aaron and Ken Boyer of St. Louis are tied for the top spot in runs batted in with 22. Covington is third with 21.

'Divorce' With a Twist — Italian Style!

Mastroianni is Marvelous In Hilarious Spicy Satire

Divorce, honor and "murder" have all come under the camera eye before but never with the success, creativity and top-notch acting exhibited in the hilarious — and hilarious, the comedy is the highly rewarding medium used — satire, "Divorce-Italian Style." Bearing numerous awards the Embassy Pictures release arrived yesterday and thoroughly delighted the audience at the Park Theatre. Marcello Mastroianni stars in the Joseph E. Levine presentation, winner of the Cannes Film Festival "Best Comedy" award and the Italian Silver Ribbon for "Best Screenplay" and "Best Plot." Also winner of two Academy Awards.

Here is an unusual film that is a true rarity . . . a comedy with a strong, serious message. While you find yourself laughing at Mastroianni's attempts, both real and wishful, to "eliminate" his boring, unattractive wife and replace her with a younger, livlier "love," you begin to realize that writer-director Pietro Germi has fashioned a marvelous story attacking the old custom of his country that frowns upon divorce. The hilarious lengths that the star must go through to complete his 5-5 plan and give ways fresh, highly delirious and brilliantly conceived and carried out.

The casting is superb with Mastroianni remembered as the debonair lover of "La Dolce Vita," delineating a totally new type role that is the ideal for veteran comedian. Equipped with mustache, middle-age bulge and a tireless gusto at satitude (except when defending his honor or pursuing "true love"), Marcello gives his most dedicated performance, a measured triumph of movement, delivery and lines and reaction to comic situations. Indeed, his role in Italy boomed him for this characterization with their equivalent of the "Oscar" for Best Actor.

Daniela Rocca, a lovely new star who appeared as the sultry Mina in many advertising spots, plays her first dramatic role expertly. The makeup department distorted one attractive face only by speaking in a sing-song voice Daniela's screen appearance is that of the unattractive, silly wife of Mastroianni. Stefania Sandrelli, a beautiful ingenue-like creature, stands out as the girl of Marcello's dreams. This sixteen year old lovely proves to be a rising young star with grace and talent.

"Divorce-Italian Style" is a sheer joy in this masterful production. It is brilliant cinema, fascinating story and a cast of beautiful talented performers. And the climax of the film is an unexpected and supreme comic situationa that continually develop through out, for this is a film with a twist . . . Italian style! Bravo!

On the same program anotn er hilarious comedy from the producers of (The Mouse That Roared) "A Matter of Who" starring Terry Thomas. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.50 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Last Two Days — Alfred Hitchcock, master producer of shock thrillers in motion pictures gives a few last minute hints to one of his feather stars in "The Birds," the Hitchcock latest, in color. There are 500 or more bird stars plus Rod Taylor, Jessica Tandy and Suzanne Pleshette.

Bob Hope Produces Another Volume of His Memoirs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The noted author, Leslie Townes (Bob Hope), has produced another volume of his memoirs, titled I Owe Russia $1,200.

Few people loves know, Mr. Hope has already penned They Got Me Covered, I Never Left Home, So This is Peace and Have Tux, Will Travel. All have been best-sellers.

He is the acknowledged king of the lone-liners and the latest book is a galling gun of gags. The Hope art, in its many fields, is a product of collaboration, and he is the first to give credit where credit is due: his writers.

That does not mean that he is the creation of his string of anonymous, highly paid gag writers. Not at all. Everything he does bears his own personal style.

The title I Owe Russia $1,200 arises from the comedian's adventures in the Soviet Union. When he finished shooting his own monologues and some Russian circus and theatre acts, he left Moscow with a bill for film clips, laboratory processing and a film crew by Aleksander Davydov, head of Soviet Export Film.

HOPE'S VERSION

Hope's account of their exchange:

"But Mr. Davydov," I pleaded, "this is an educational film. Why, the whole thing is a promotion for your great Russian artists abroad. It's practically a one-hour commercial. Don't you think this would come under the cultural exchange program?

"Mr. Davydov finished his drink. "Mr. Hope," he replied, 'friendship is friendship, but money is separate. It is my understanding that you are strong and robust financially.'

"After taxes," I explained, "we are all peasants."

"Tovarich," he said, shaking his hand. When I looked down, there was a bill in it.

"It's a shame Mr. Davydov is tied up with the party. He'd make a hell of a capitalist.

"We threshed verbally for several rounds and when he finally took his knee out of my chest, I owed Russia $1,200. That was three years ago, and I still do. Two of the film clips I ordered never showed up. When they do, I'll be happy to pay. Not cash, I'll put it on the Diner's Club."

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of tissue in inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even continued in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

Ask your doctor to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H. Hemorrhoids and rectum stimulation less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with applicator special applicator).

Last Total Eclipse of Sun In 20th Century Will Be Seen in Quebec on July 20th

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thousands of professional and amateur astronomers from Canada and other countries are hoping Saturday, July 20, will be a warm, sunny day, especially in Quebec.

The first total eclipse of the sun visible in a populated area of Canada since 1932 will occur that day and it will be the last to be observed in this country during the 20th century.

Malcolm Thomson, chief of the division of positional astronomy at the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa, says weather records over a 10-year period show that July 20 was more often cloudy than not.

"Eclipse observers, however, are perennial optimists who follow their guest under the most dire forebodings," Mr. Thomson says. "It is hoped that the skies will clear and that many of a second revolver from Killins.

ter, Mrs. Pearl Campbell, 19, and told Pearl she thought "Dad shot Mom."

Margaret said "no" when asked by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman if there was any thought in her mind that Major had done any of the shooting.

Margaret said she was in her sister's bedroom when she heard the outside door open, a gun fire and her sister scream. "You killed him. Lordy help me."

She said she recognized her father as being in the room when the shooting occurred.

Brian testified that when he came into the room where his mother died, he saw Major putting one revolver in his pocket and trying to gain possession of a second revolver from Killins.

RUNS TO HOUSE

"Major aimed the firearm at father, but it didn't go off," he said. Brian ran to a neighbor's house where his school teacher, Peter Miller, 20, lived. He told Miller that "Dad shot mother, and Tom and Pearl were fighting."

Miller and Brian went to Pearl's house. A few seconds later, Killins came in and fired a shotgun, hitting Miller, Brian said.

As Miller writhed on the floor, "Dad shot him again," the boy testified. While Killins was loading the gun again, Brian ran from the house and back to the neighbor's home.

Miller is recovering in hospital.

CLAIM 'DEGRADATION'

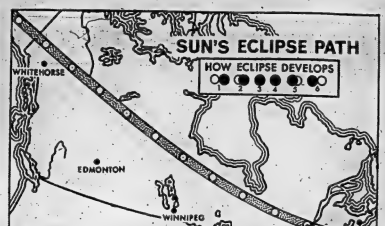
The charge said Penkovsky, a grey-haired man who was deputy head of the foreign department of the state committee for scientific research and co-ordination, became an agent of the Imperialist intelligence service as a result of "moral degradation."

Russian newspapers had already accused him of being a "twist-lover and seducer."

The charge said Chisholm's wife, Janet-Ann, was a member of British intelligence and maintained espionage contacts with Penkovsky through Wynne when the latter came to Moscow.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Meet Here

All the ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses in Napanee, Port Hope, Haliburton and Bancroft areas and points between will converge on Belleville May 17 for their semi-annual circuit assembly. The three-day program carries the theme, "Right Kind of Ministers."



A search for sleeping quarters for visiting ministers and their families is under way.

Mr. William Allon says the large number of delegates attending the convention of Jehovah's Witnesses will probably tax available hotel and motel accommodations to the limit.

"We know for certain that six hundred will be in attendance and the figure may top seven hundred before the final day is reached," Mr. Allon said.

POPE MAY FLY

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John may fly by helicopter May 23 to the Montecastlon Abbey, sources inside the Vatican said Monday night, if his schedule and health permit. He would be the first pope ever to fly if he should make the helicopter trip.

PATH OF ECLIPSE — Thousands of astronomers will be watching Saturday, July 20, when the moon causes a total eclipse of the sun over Canada. Map shows the 60-mile-wide path the eclipse will follow, appearing over the heavily-populated St. Lawrence River area around Trois Rivieres, Que., about 4:30 p.m. EST for one of the Canadian scientists in northern Manitoba and Quebec. In addition a German group from the international union will operate in the Great Slave Lake area of the Northwest Territories, a Danish group will be in the Churchill, Man., area and a Dutch group in northern Quebec.

minute and five seconds. It is in this area that most of the observations will be made. Inset shows the stages of eclipse, with the moon (black) appearing at the edge of the sun (1), moving into partial eclipse (2), through total eclipse (3 and 4), then receding across the face of the sun (5 and 6). (CP Newsmap)

Despite advances in solar astronomy in recent years, an eclipse still presents scientists with the best opportunity to study the composition and characteristics of the solar corona.

The last total eclipse was in 1954 and it created inaccessible country, casting only a brief shadow on the transcontinental railway line in northern Manitoba.

Astronomers dutifully journeyed into Ontario in a special rail car, woke up at the crack of dawn for the early-morning eclipse and stepped out into a downpour. Heavy clouds obscured the eclipse for all but a few airborne observers.

60 MILES WIDE

The path of totality, an area 60 miles wide, will first enter North America in Alaska. From there it will sweep southeast across Canada and northern Maine, concluding at sunset in mid-Atlantic.

Longest duration in Canada—one minute and 40 seconds—will be near the eastern boundary of Yukon where it will occur at noon Yukon time. By the time it reaches the St. Lawrence River in the Trois-Rivieres area about 4:30 p.m. EST, duration will be down to a minute and five seconds. When it reaches the Atlantic coast of Maine a few minutes later it will be 59 seconds.

For the most part the eclipse path crosses areas of northern Canada that are relatively inaccessible. However, in southeastern Canada it crosses a heavily populated area of Quebec and northern Maine. It is in this area that most observations will be made by both amateurs and professionals.

FLY ALONG PATH

The path of totality in Quebec will start just east of Sorel, 40 miles northeast of Montreal, at 4:30 p.m. EST, and end a few miles east of Lotbiniere, 80 miles west of Quebec City. The centre of the path will run through the towns of Beattyville in the northwest, Grand'Mere in central Quebec and St. Samuel near the U.S border.

Some scientists plan to travel by rail and air to remote parts of northwestern Canada to view the eclipse. This will be done just in case bad weather obscures the eclipse in Quebec where most other scientists will be located.

Mr. Thomson is organizing an airborne expedition which will include members of the International Astronomical Union from Britain. This expedition will study the eclipse from an RCAF Yukon turbo-prop aircraft flying in the path of totality southwest of Churchill, Man.

The plane will be equipped with special cameras and other apparatus and will be able to fly above cloud banks. It is expected that the period of totality in which the plane will operate will be about one minute and 50 seconds.

Major Difference Will Face Trade Ministers at Geneva

GENEVA (Reuters)—A major difference between the United States and the European Common Market will face their trade ministers when they meet here in mid-May to launch a mammoth trade liberalization program involving countries throughout the world.

The six-nation market is asking for an approach to tariff-cutting which U.S. negotiators are not empowered to follow under President Kennedy's 1962 tariff-cutting bill.

This bill—allowing the American administration to negotiate up to 50 per cent tariff cuts across the board over a wide range of industrial products—is the basis for the complex bargaining now being prepared, already known as "the Kennedy round."

The Six are anxious to get the biggest possible reductions on high tariffs in the American economy in some instances, including petroleum products, chemicals and textiles, the reductions sought would be about 80 or 90 per cent.

Their desire to cut high tariff rates more than low ones arises because the market tariffs cluster closely around 15 to 20 per cent, while the American range is wider—from 80 per cent to zero.

The difference emerged at preparatory sessions of a 30-nation working group which ended its work recently.

NO COMPROMISE YET

The experts merely recorded the problem in their report to the trade ministers, and no compromise was produced.

Although the U.S. submitted a working paper, no equivalent document was tabled by the Common Market, whose ministerial council has yet to detail its approach to the world-wide trade liberalization move.

The U.S. wants the 50-per-cent cut to be made in five installments over four years. There would be a limited list of exceptions.

If the ministers succeed in giving the green light for the 12 months.

Kennedy round, preparatory negotiations will probably continue for the rest of this year.

The actual tariff negotiations would begin in the first part of next year. Experts think they could be concluded within about

Threat Of War Receding But Tension High

Canada and U.S. May Evacuate Some Citizens

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—The immediate threat of war between the Dominican Republic and Haiti appeared to recede today but tension remained high as Canada and the United States planned to evacuate some of their citizens from Haiti.

The Organization of American States and the UN Security Council called meetings today to discuss the situation between the Caribbean neighbors sharing the island of Hispaniola 35 miles from Cuba.

The Security Council was expected to have the crisis on the stage.

Dominican President Juan Bosch called Haiti's Dictator-President Francois Duvalier "a madman" Tuesday night in a radio - television statement on the crisis, but indicated he is moving cautiously.

Bosch said if the United States withdraws its fleet grave enough to order the evacuation of U.S. citizens from Haiti, "we will be confident that the whole problem is more serious for us."

"We have to be careful and vigilant," he said.

HINTS AT ALERT

This seemed to hint at a state of full-scale military alert short of mobilization or any intention of imminent military action against the Haitian government.

Earlier Tuesday, Bosch demanded that all 22 Duvalier opponents in the Dominican Embassy in Port au Prince be allowed to leave the country. But he set no deadline. Previously, the Dominican government had accepted the Haitian promise that the 15 would be allowed to leave and seven could be transferred to the Dominican Embassy, which has been protecting all 22 since Haiti broke relations with the Bosch regime in public and Dominican diplomats left Port au Prince.

The Organization of American States, which sent investigators to Hispaniola last week, scheduled meetings today in Washington today. Informed sources there said the peace mission would seek broader powers in Haiti to make suggestions for a settlement.

Canada announced it would start evacuations today. Defence Minister Hellyer said government employees were ordered to leave, and other Canadians were advised to do so. More than 600 Canadians—most of them Roman Catholic missionaries—live in Haiti.

MAY REMOVE BRITONS

Britons were not being moved out. The British destroyer Cavalier and the frigate Londonderry were off Haiti to remove them in an emergency.

An airlift to evacuate families of U.S. officials from Haiti was ordered but not started today. The U.S. undersecretary of state for the evacuation had been ordered because the Haitian government "to some extent seems to be falling apart."

Pastor's Term At Church Will Not Be Renewed

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The contract of Rev. Reginald Davidson, Australian minister of Westminster United Church here, will not be renewed when it expires in June.

The congregation voted Monday night in favor of obtaining another minister to replace Dr. Davidson, suspended by the Dufferin-Peel United Church Presbytery last February.

No reason was given for the three-week suspension that lasted while a committee investigated "intimations that his pastoral efficiency might be reasonably questioned."

Pastor of the church for three years, Dr. Davidson came to Canada four years ago. His wife and children have since returned to Australia.

Orangeville is about 45 miles northwest of Toronto.

Dr. Davidson continued as minister when the three-week suspension was finished. The congregation, split since the suspension, voted 262 against renewing his contract and 186 in favor.

Robinson Plans Alabama Visit

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Brooklyn Dodgers star Jackie Robinson said Tuesday he plans to go to Birmingham, Ala., in the next week or two to take part in the mass protest against racial segregation there.

More than 2,000 Negroes have been arrested in Birmingham. Robinson said he did not want to join the protestors in jail but that he would find some way to take part in their movement.

The Negro former baseball star made the statement at a "back our brothers" luncheon attended by more than 100 Negro and white public officials and civic leaders. Robinson made public a telegram he has sent to President Kennedy which said in part:

"It is my sincere belief that your personal intentions are honorable. However, the pace at which our country is moving toward total equality for all peoples is miserably slow, as is being demonstrated in Birmingham, Ala.

"Moderation and gradualism, as far as civil rights are concerned, are antique words, to say the least.

Bird-Loving Emir of Bahawalpur Coming to Aid of Lonesome Pelican

LONDON (AP) — The bird-loving Emir of Bahawalpur is coming to the aid — with any luck — of a lonesome pelican named Paul.

The emir advised the British government Tuesday that he is shipping a Pakistani pelican to relieve Paul's solitude in his pond at St. Jame's Park outside Buckingham Palace.

If the new pelican proves to be a hen, pelican, she will provide lonesome Paul with a mate — and Paul is in fact a male pelican.

But as Works Minister Geoffrey Rippon told the House of Commons:

"It is a difficult matter to find out the sex of pelicans."

Even so, Rippon said, the matter has proved to be a non-contentious question for the ministry, which operates St. Jame's Park.

"Paul's one egg has ever been laid, much less hatched, by any of these birds at St. James's Park," he said. "Paul and Mary have been keeping them since the time of Charles II." King Charles died in 1685.

Until last year there were three pelicans in the park — Paul, from Pakistan, and Wilfrid and Daphne, gifts of the state of Louisiana in 1957.

Paul's sex was pure guesswork, since he showed no affection for either of the others. Wilfrid and Daphne seemed to like each other and it was be-

NO PROMISES WILL BE MADE WITH KENNEDY

- - Pearson Primarily Meeting For Negotiation

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has scheduled another meeting with United States Ambassador Walton Butterworth today in preparation for his flight Friday to Hyannis Port, Mass., for two days of talks with President Kennedy.

Mr. Pearson said Tuesday there are new defence commitments are to be made in the Kennedy meetings, though negotiations on nuclear warheads and other matters may be examined into as a result of the discussion.

"I don't consider it primarily a meeting for negotiation," Mr. Pearson told reporters after detailed plans for the Hyannis Port trip were announced. "It's for an exchange of views, and an exchange of views might indeed lead to the beginning of negotiations when we get back."

Mr. Pearson will be accompanied by C. S. A. Ritchie, Canadian ambassador in Washington who came here last weekend to talk to Mr. Pearson before Mr. Butterworth is expected to be present on the American side to complete the talks. The continued liaison between the two governments heads.

The visit is one of Canada's defence commitments became the subject of fierce Conservative interviews with the prime minister Tuesday after an Ottawa dispatch in the New York Times said that Mr. Pearson was likely to give Mr. Kennedy a commitment for the acceptance of nuclear arms.

HAS NO FOUNDATION

"There is no foundation for that story," the prime minister said. "I haven't indicated anything of that kind . . . nor have I been asked by the president to give such a commitment."

Elaborating later, he said he believes Canada already has nuclear commitments — entered into by former Conservative government—in North American and North Atlantic Treaty defences. What he meant was that he would make no new commitments at Hyannis Port. And later a parliamentary committee has been examining the terms of the existing commitments and how they can best be implemented, he added. It would report to the defence committee of the cabinet and a decision would be made by the whole cabinet.

The defence committee met for 2½ hours Tuesday but, as Mr. Pearson's press secretary explained, there was no announcement afterward.

One subject on which Mr. Pearson has set a deadline for a policy decision and which may involve additional commitments is the question of creating an inter-allied or multinational nuclear force. The prime minister has said he expects the subject will be the subject of meeting of NATO ministers opening here May 22, and he hopes to have decided policy determined on it before then.

The question of defence commitments caused a flurry at three catch-as-catch-can press conferences with the prime minister Tuesday in the corridor outside the stained glass doors of the cabinet council room.

PLEADS GUILTY IN SOVIET SPY TRIAL — Oleg Penkovsky, 43, Soviet scientific official, is flanked by guards at trial before military tribunal in Moscow at which he pleaded guilty to spying for the British and American intelligence services. Greville Wynne, 42, British businessman, also pleaded guilty at the show trial in the Soviet Supreme Court Building. This picture is from Tass, the Soviet news and photo agency.

British Intelligence Service Accused of Trickery in Case

CP from AP-Reuters

MOSCOW—Greville Wynne, a Briton, accused the British intelligence service today of having tricked him into a deal that landed him in a Soviet prison as a spy for his homeland and the United States.

"That's why I am here," Wynne told the three-judge military court in the second day of a Soviet show trial that has put him in the dock with Oleg Penkovsky, a Russian scientific official. Both confessed to spying.

In three hours of testimony, the British businessman said he had delivered packages of film and other matter back and forth between Moscow and London, each time on the pretext he was working as an assistant to Penkovsky.

He said a high agent of the British intelligence service "grew very angry" when he asked what was going on.

Without naming the agent, he said he was told Penkovsky's activities were wholly in accord with the wishes of the Soviet Union. Otherwise Moscow would seek broader powers in Haiti to make suggestions for a settlement.

Canada announced it would start evacuations today. Defence Minister Hellyer said government employees were ordered to leave, and other Canadians were advised to do so. More than 600 Canadians—most of them Roman Catholic missionaries—live in Haiti.

MAY REMOVE BRITONS

Britons were not being moved out. The British destroyer Cavalier and the frigate Londonderry were off Haiti to remove them in an emergency.

An airlift to evacuate families of U.S. officials from Haiti was ordered but not started today. The U.S. undersecretary of state for the evacuation had been ordered because the Haitian government "to some extent seems to be falling apart."

Both pleaded guilty Tuesday at the opening of the trial.

Penkovsky disputed Wynne's claim that he was only a courier for the information the Russian collected for Britain and the United States.

"He was not only a messenger," Penkovsky testified. "Wynne must not minimize his role."

For Westerners it was an unusual spectacle to see the two accused men, glaring at one another from time to time where they sat in opposite corners of the dock.

Where their testimony conflicted, as it did often, the prosecutor would call first one, then the other, to tell his version.

Penkovsky repeatedly testified he told Wynne each time he gave him a package of filmed industrial and military items what was in the package.

"Never" shouted Wynne, when his turn came. "He never explained what was in the packages."

But slowly the feeling began to come to Wynne, he testified, that his business trips to Moscow—four in 1961 and one in 1962—were also concerned with carrying intelligence material.

He said he decided the high intelligence agent:

"I have a feeling I am getting involved in something I don't understand and I don't like it."

Monumental Cleanup Task Faces Hay River Residents

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — Battered buildings, wrenched from their foundations and thrown about in a mixture of mud, ice cakes and debris, presented a monumental cleanup task today for residents of this flood-devastated inland community.

Mayor W. R. McBryan, in a telegram to Frank Cunningham, assistant deputy minister of northern affairs, said 97 of 100 ratepayers interviewed in a special poll favored rebuilding the town on another site.

Hay River, on the south shore of Great Slave Lake is 500 miles north of Edmonton.

It was understood that the new site might be on the mainland on the Mackenzie River upstream from the present town.

The silt - laden Hay River, swollen by the spring thaw wrecked the centre section of the town, flowed swiftly through its dirty ice-bordered channel into Great

Diefenbaker Says Criticism Is Unfounded

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker said Tuesday that criticism by the Liberals of trade with Communist countries—defeated Progressive Conservative government was unfounded and politically purposeful.

At a press conference, Mr. Diefenbaker said that, although the Conservative government recorded the greatest trade in Canadian history, the Liberals said the 1962 trade policies were wrong.

"Now I see our plans for expanded trade will continue," said Mr. Diefenbaker who arrived in his home constituency Monday.

Birmingham Biggest Target Of Desegregationists So Far

Reiman Morin has won two Pulitzer Prizes as an Associated Press Reporter, one for reporting of the Little Rock, Ark., integration crisis. He has served the civil rights campaign from the beginning—Little Rock, Clinton, Tenn., Oxford, Miss. Now, Morin describes Birmingham, the centre of the city's racial battle.

By REIMAN MORIN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Little Rock was one school. Central High, and eight Negro children.

Oxford was one Negro student, James H. Meredith, enrolling in the University of Mississippi.

Birmingham is a whole city, a bright, handsome community of nearly 350,000 in the heart of the deep south—the biggest target, by far, of desegregationists in the anguished and continuing battle over civil rights. This is what gives special meaning to the quiet words of a Negro clergyman:

"If we break through here, we break through everywhere."

And this is the core of the story in Birmingham today, the determined drive for a "breakthrough."

Negro leaders say it means, primarily, desegregation of downtown eating places, equal job opportunities, the hiring of qualified—they stress the adjec-

SUSPECT ARSON IN TORONTO SYNAGOGUE FIRE

Damage Is Million; 15 Flee Building

TORONTO (CP) — Arson squad detectives examined debris at the Beth Tzedec Synagogue today after fire caused damage estimated by officials at $1,000,000.

The fire is believed to have started in a ground-floor cloakroom, but synagogue officials said the room had not been used for 24½ hours before it broke out Tuesday night.

Two teachers, a janitor and four students escaped from a third-floor classroom and a hallway and a third teacher jumped 20 feet from the same floor.

Six other students led by an instructor calmly marched to safety through dense smoke on the ground floor.

About 100 students had left the $2,500,000 building on Bathurst Street near Eglinton Avenue a few minutes before the fire started about 7 p.m.

The flames spread quickly through the wooden roof of the building, but firemen brought them under control in half an hour, preventing the blaze from spreading beyond the building's west wing.

Fire was not immediately known whether scrolls and silver artifacts, many dating back to another century, were destroyed, officials as "priceless," were destroyed or damaged.

SANCTUARY DAMAGED

Some were stored in the museum, but dense smoke prevented officials from reporting it. Others were stored in the 3,000-seat sanctuary which suffered smoke damage.

A 15-by-30-foot mural, valued at more than $40,000, received smoke damage and officials were unable to determine if it could be restored.

Plate-glass windows, some of them 30 feet high, were smashed and ornate corridors on the ground floor were badly charred.

The synagogue held one of the largest conservative Jewish congregations in Canada and had a membership of more than 1,500 families.

Telstar II Sends Back Pictures After Launching

NEW YORK (AP)—The Telstar II communications satellite was launched into orbit Tuesday today after working perfectly in relaying television pictures between the United States and Europe.

The pictures that bounced off the satellite were received at Andover, Mt., Tuesday night were described as "Magnificent indeed, very, very clear."

Tonight, a color television transmission is planned between the continents.

The switchboard-in-the-sky is to be used next Tuesday to try to beam to Europe television pictures of astronaut Gordon Cooper's scheduled 34-hour orbital flight from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

If the 175-pound ball of instrumentation is to propel position over the North Atlantic it could provide the first live television in Europe of an American astronaut's lift-off.

Otherwise, Telstar II will relay a tape recording of what blastoff at the first opportune time. That was done last October after astronaut Walter M. Schirra's flight.

Next year, if all goes well, Telstar III will be used for the 1964 Olympics will be sent from Japan to the United States via the satellite.

Tuesday night's test of the satellite, launched into perfect orbit earlier in the day from Cape Canaveral, was announced a huge success after it relayed a television test program to Europe.

The transmission was reported improved over that of the predecessor satellite, Telstar I, silenced by radiation after a few months in space.

Racial Tension At Boiling Point In Birmingham

State Troopers Rushed In to Aid Officers

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Heavily armed state troopers swarmed into this racial trouble spot today, ready to aid Birmingham officers facing their seventh day of massive Negro demonstrations.

Governor George Wallace, militant segregationist, announced Tuesday he was ordering 250 riot-trained highway patrolmen to Birmingham.

Al Lingo, state public safety director, said early today, however, that the number was being stepped up to 375 troopers, virtually the entire manpower of the state force.

Lingo said the troopers were under direct orders of Wallace. They are equipped with tear gas grenades, riot guns, carbines and sub-machine guns, he said.

The highway patrolmen began moving into the city late Tuesday and continued deploying throughout areas of the state through the night.

SAYS WON'T STOP

In the face of this development, the integration leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said: "This movement will be big-ger and bigger. There'll be no stopping until we move segregation from the city."

Dr. King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, announced a new demonstration was planned during the day.

He said there would be no end to the demonstrations until Negroes had gained these four things they wanted:

Better job opportunities, desegregation of all downtown public facilities, formation of a biracial committee with authority to solve all racial problems, and the dropping of charges against the arrested demonstrators.

The Negro leader spoke at a jammed mass meeting in a Negro church in the wake of a day during which thousands of Negroes infiltrated the downtown business district, defying a ban about the streets in the heart of the city.

Fire hoses again were brought into play to disperse the crowds.

Police appeared almost powerless at times to cope with the surging masses, but there were no serious incidents.

Authorities said at least 10 po-

Local President Of Teamsters Turns in Key

KINGSTON (CP) — The president of Local 31 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters Ind., has turned in the key to the office pending an investigation into the local's financial affairs.

The Hungarian was returned to his home early Wednesday by police officers from Ste. Dorothee who came by car to Ottawa to collect him.

SHOPLIFTERS USE CUNNING RUSES SALESMEN TOLD

Tools of Trade Are Described

TIMMINS (CP) — If you don't want to be taken for a shoplifter, don't carry your overcoat over your arm in a department store.

If you do, it's almost a sure bet the staff will try to sell you something and you'll find a polite, inoffensive man sniffing at your heels.

Dropping an overcoat over a counter and secreting goods in the folds is a favorite ruse of shoplifters, Alex Deans of Toronto, chief investigator officer said: "Fabian Company, told 400 retail salesmen, saleswomen and police officers Tuesday.

The best way to discourage a would-be shoplifter, he said in an address sponsored by the Timmins - Porcupine Chamber of Commerce following a rash of pilfering here, is to direct attention to the suspect by trying to sell him something.

SHOWS TOOLS OF TRADE

Mr. Dean instructed his audience in the ruses used by shoplifting and displayed outsized bloomers, booster coats and pockets and boxes with demon bottoms, wrapped to resemble a parcel — favorite tools of the lifters.

Folded newspapers, large books with their middle pages hollowed out, a clothes peg slung around the neck by string used for concealing flat objects under a skirt or blouse and a shopping bag held below a counter while objects are slipped into it are also used, he said.

Mr. Dean said a shoplifter never keeps his eyes on the object he intends stealing. He constantly looks around to see if the staff or customers are watching him.

If you suspect a person is a shoplifter, watch his hands — they do the stealing. Experienced shoplifters often shke to divert attention by waving one hand above the counter while the other somethe something in their clothing.

Indian Embassy Official Talks To Kiwanis Club

The problems and achievements of India was the theme of Mr. Ajoy Gupta's address to the Belleville Kiwanis Club at its luncheon meeting at the Kiwanis Centre Tuesday. Mr. Gupta is first secretary at the Indian embassy in Ottawa.

Mr. Gupta compared the political situation in India today with that in years gone by. He said India was the second largest country in the world in square miles and was the second largest country in population.

The speaker explained that Hindoism was established over 4,000 years ago and was regarded today as a way of living, rather than a religion, as it was in the early years.

India today has acquired many new ways of life, he said, both politically and socially. In India there are 14 major languages used, not counting English.

The speaker said that in recent years over 24 million dollars had been spent in India on agriculture, irrigation and transportation. Trade between India and Canada had contributed greatly to India's economic growth, he said.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Don Richson and thanked on behalf of those present by Kiwanian John Denton.

About 25 members attended the meeting.

In the southern area, the hazard is lower but still serious. Two small fires are now being patrolled, one near Dunpah and one north of Sharbot Lake. These fires are under control, and are not expected to break out again. No serious fires have occurred so far in the district.

Teacher Writes School History Of This Area

When a school teacher starts writing, the subject is likely to be education, and when a historian writes, history is the predictable subject. It follows then, that when the school teacher is the president of the Hastings County Historical Society, the result would be a history of local education.

Gerald Boyce, one of Belleville's able writers, is also president of the county historical society, a moving force in the county museum, and ahead of the history department at Moira Secondary School. With this background, his latest publication, "Education in the Belleville Area — An Historical Introduction," is just what might have been expected.

The pamphlet, on sale through the museum, is just what it calls itself — an historical introduction not an exposition. In 10 pages, mimeographed on one side of eight-and-a-half by 11-inch paper, it includes three reproductions of pages from the school books of days gone by, and an outline of education in the area from the students, the teachers' and the school inspectors' viewpoints.

EASY READING

The pamphlet makes fast and easy reading, and it gives the lightly-touched outline of the subject. Mr. Boyce's intention with this pamphlet appears to have been to provide basic material, already known to historians, in an easily digestible form for the historical dabbler.

Raised in Hamilton, Mr. Boyce moved to Belleville more than 10 years ago. He left the city to go to university, for an M.A. at McMaster and the MA at the University of Manitoba, and returned to teach at Quinte Secondary School in 1937. He joined the Hastings County Historical Society the same year, and was elected president of the Society in 1958. In 1959-60, he left Q.S.S. to take over as head of the history department at Moira Secondary School.

In addition to the current pamphlet, Mr. Boyce has written, and published several other pamphlets on the history of Hastings County, and he has written a series of articles on the history of Belleville for The Ontario Intelligencer. He is now writing a full length book on the history of Belleville.

Roslin's Daisy Delivers Usual May Bonus

At Harvey Goodfellow's farm at Roslin, Daisy has done it again this year. She has had beautiful twin heifers, about the same size as the ordinary single birth. They are nearly all white and have markings which are similar.

This makes Daisy's record seventeen calves in six years. The last three years: quadruplets on Saturday, May 6; triplets on Saturday, May 5; and twins on Saturday, May 4. The quadruplets are still on the Goodfellow farm, but last year's triplet balls were sold.

Putting Trout In District Lakes Near Completion

The annual restocking of trout in district lakes by the Department of Lands and Forests began early this year, about April 25, and is now nearly completed. Normal starting date for the work is May 1st. About one-third of the lakes in the area are stocked from the air by departmental planes, a part of the project already completed, and the rest are stocked from trucks. The trucks will be working on the project for another week yet, according to Lands and Forests officials in Tweed. The fish are dropped in the lakes as fry, or as ready-to-hatch eggs, from the department's hatchery at White Lake.

In the project this year, a total of 850,000 brook trout, 40,000 rainbow trout and 90,000 lake trout are being released.

Fish stocking projects not yet begun in the Tweed district include experimental stocking of new lakes with pickerel and bass, and the introduction of 500,000 maskinonge to lakes in the area this year.

One of Ways to Prevent Disease Is Immunization

By DR. McCOLL METCALFE
Belleville Health Officer

Health is a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity.

It has been said many times "it is easier to prevent disease in many cases than to cure it." This should be the goal of everyone. The greatest single cause of poverty is illness.

One of the ways of preventing disease is "Immunization." Immunization is the weapon which modern medical science has developed for the eradication of certain types of communicable diseases. Diphtheria, Smallpox and Tetanus are practically 100 percent preventable and Poliomyelitis, and Whooping Cough are nearly so through the use of toxoid and vaccine. However it must be emphasized that the threat of widespread epidemics is not past. There are still many children and adults in this community who have not been immunized and this means the community is still open to the threat of epidemics and until complete immunization is achieved in this community you and your family are not safe. Immunization is available to everyone and it only remains for you to avail yourself and your family of this protection.

Although many have never seen a case of Smallpox it is a killing disease. Against it there is no natural immunity and anyone who has not been vaccinated may catch it, so vaccination is your only protection. In view of the fact that severe reactions and complications are less apt to occur when vaccination is performed during the first year it is best to vaccinate an infant at about the fourth to the six month. Opinions vary as to the required frequency of revaccination—the proper interval between vaccinations may be considered five to seven years.

There has been a spectacular reduction in cases and deaths from Diphtheria in this country, since the widespread use of Toxoid. We must not be complacement as it is a killing disease. Though at times it may be very mild, it may leave serious heart and nerve complications which may cause the individual to be a more or less permanent invalid. It is not a respecter of persons or age.

Whooping Cough of all communicable diseases is the one most likely to affect the youngest members of the family. Many cases occur in infants under six months while the largest number occur between the ages of one to three years. Whooping Cough vaccine provides protection in a large percentage of children but if the disease is contracted it is much milder.

Tetanus commonly known as Lock-jaw is an extremely serious disease, which sometimes follows puncture or other wounds, but a highly protective Toxoid has been developed for immunity against it. It should be used early in life to establish protection from falls and injuries incidental to learning to walk or play occur.

Poliomyelitis is a dreaded disease, and no longer confines itself to the young. It is now not unusual for young adults to be severely stricken. In recent years one third of all paralytic cases and over fifty per cent of all deaths from poliomyelitis occurred in those aged twenty years and over. The vaccine has been effective in greatly reducing the number of paralytic poliomyelitis cases. The main concern now is that everyone receive a course of three doses and a fourth booster dose given all persons at least one year after the complete course.

For infants and young children due to medical research, Diphtheria Toxoid, Tetanus Toxoid, Whooping Cough Vaccine and Poliomyelitis have been combined known as the Quadruple or Quad Vaccine. The series usually consists of three or four doses about a month apart best beginning at the third month and at that age there is no sick reaction. A booster or reinforcing dose about one year later and again just before starting school.

In young adults and older persons Diphtheria Toxoid, Tetanus Toxoid and Poliomyelitis Vaccine can be given separately.

Tuberculosis — Although not nearly as prevalent as it was, there are still over 8,000 new cases being diagnosed yearly in Canada and still 10,000 patients in Sanatoria. An average of 17 new cases of Tuberculosis are diagnosed daily in Canada.

Mental Health — In recent months a branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association has been established in Belleville. Although Mental illness cannot be treated or cured locally, through its disabling effects there are more hospital beds occupied than by patients suffering from all other types of disease taken together. The cost of hospital care of mental patients is astounding and this cost will increase due to the lack of early treatment facilities. There is an urgent necessity for preventative work and for the personnel to improve the mental health of those who may be disturbed but are not yet candidates for admission.

Probably there is no single public health measure which has been so significant in saving the lives of infants and small children as the pasteurization of milk. Milk contains almost all the nutrients essential for life but when raw milk is consumed it can carry the threat of milk borne diseases such as Septic Sore Throat, Acute Diarrhoea, Undulant and Typhoid Fevers, Diphtheria and Bovine Tuberculosis. In Belleville the several dairies are under close supervision of the Department of Health and their products are as good as any in the Province of Canada. The Belleville Health Department holds regular clinics for immunization against Diphtheria, Whooping Cough, Tetanus, Poliomyelitis and Smallpox at the Well Baby Clinics. These clinics are free and it is felt that it is the responsibility of all parents to have their child or children immunized against the above diseases either by their own family physician or at one of the Health Departments' clinics.

The following are the clinics of the Health Department:

Health Department Offices — 266 Pinnacle Street — Every Thursday, 2 to 4 p.m.

Eastminster United Church — Bridge and Herchimer Streets —3rd Tuesday, 2 to 4 p.m.

Fire Hall No. 2 — Moira Street West — 1st Tuesday, 2 to 4 p.m.

Hillcrest United Church — Centre Street — 2nd Tuesday, 2 to 4 p.m.

Prenatal classes are held every Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9 p.m.

Hit-Run Driver Who Struck Boy Given 6 Months

TRENTON—Joseph Valyear, 31 of 20 Bocage St., Trenton, was sentenced to six months in the hospital with a license suspension at the scene of an accident which sent Robert Lisk, eleven, to hospital with a broken left leg Saturday night. Magistrate T. Y. Wills also sentenced Valyear to two years' suspension for driving while his licence was under suspension.

Sgt. Walter Yoemans of Trenton police testified that a car answering the description of the one that struck the boy was traced to the accused's home on Sunday. Upon investigation, it was found to have its left headlight damaged. The accused at first denied the offence, said the policeman, but later signed a statement admitting it.

Valyear, who pleaded guilty to both offences, said he had been drinking before the accident and couldn't remember too much about it.

"Could you recommend treatment," he asked.

"I could," said the magistrate, but added: "This is not a case of hitting another car, but of striking a little boy on a bike. He might have been killed."

Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lisk of 22 Edwards St., suffered lacerations and cuts when he was struck by the car as he rode his bicycle on the gravel portion at the side of Edwards St., about 8 p.m. Saturday. At last report, officials at Trenton Memorial Hospital said he was improving.

GIVEN ONE DAY

Two youths, charged with stealing a wheelbarrow from a building on last October, pleaded guilty to the offence. Thomas M. Ellis, already on suspended sentence, was asked to sign a bond for good behaviour. Raymond D. Nichols was sentenced to one day in jail, and told he would have to be of good behaviour in the future, after he pleaded he was married and had just got a job for the first time in nine months.

Roger Norman Baker, charged with a breach of recognizance, was told he must pay $40 of the $75 he had just received from work, and reappear on May 28 for further payment.

Albert Brooks, 39, of Trenton, appeared before the court for a second time on a charge of intoxication.

Magistrate Wills suggested a month in jail might be the answer. Brooks asked if he could get treatment as an alcoholic.

"It would mean 90 days," warned the magistrate.

"That's alright," said Brooks, and he got his wish.

Council Seeks Streets Made Highway Link

TRENTON — Trenton council took another step Monday night towards having a route, which would include parts of Sidney, Francis and Marmora Streets, declared a connecting link between Highway 401 and Highway 2. Council decided to apply to the Ontario Department of Highways for approval of the application which would mean that 75 percent of reconstruction costs on the streets involved would be paid for by the province. It is planned this year to pave and repair Sidney St., from North Murray St., to the town limits.

Approval of the application would also boost plans for a new town bridge, leading off from Sidney St., via Dixon Dr., and so on across the river to Highway 2 from Dixon Street. The bridge would then be eligible for a 75 percent grant from the province for construction.

At Monday night's meeting, town engineer Eric Aldersley informed council he had billed the company building West-mount subdivision for draining raw sewage from the basement of a new home there. So far the town had not been paid, he said, and he wanted to know what the procedure would be in future, since the subdivision is in Murray township proper that will be annexed by the town on Jan. 1, 1964. The matter has not yet been turned on at the hydrants in the subdivision, and Mr. Aldersley said it would be almost impossible to demand payment before answering an emergency call at any building. The contractor does not have the equipment to do the job.

The matter was left in the hands of clerk comptroller O. W. Larry.

Guest speaker at Monday night's banquet was Jack Devine, sports editor of radio station CJBQ.

Larry Re-appointed To Housing Board

TRENTON — O—W. Larry, clerk-comptroller, was re-appointed to the Trenton Housing Authority at Monday night's council meeting. Mr. Larry has sat on the local board since its inception in 1952. The authority was set up to look after the town's interests in the 23 rental houses in Champlain Heights. Trenton has a 75c. interest in the houses; the provincial government 17 per cent and Central Mortgage and Housing 75 per cent. Other board members are J. C. Gilhan, Ronald Birkett, Clarence Saylor and Ernest Wiggins.

Extend Trenton Cancer Drive

TRENTON — The closing date for the cancer campaign in Trenton and district will be delayed to allow for collection of receipts from the area.

The campaign has now passed the half - way mark toward its objective on $6,000, according to co - chairman Elmer Bonter, who said collections to date were $3,100.

The Brighton, Frankford and Stockdale areas have still to report and according to Harry Foster the final results cannot be expected for another month.

Ontario subscriptions to the cancer fund are said to be down generally but if the Trenton and district objective is reached it will be a feather in the hat for the local unit and a lift for the rest of the province.

Opposes "Protectionism"

Hon. Mitchell Sharp, Canada's new Minister of Trade and Commerce, has outlined the principles which will guide him, and his department, in the months ahead. Speaking at the national industrial production show at Toronto, he provided a blueprint of the kind of economic development the Pearson Government will attempt to foster.

There was little startling in what he said, little that has not been said before and little that is not generally accepted as true by most observers of the economic scene.

Mr. Sharp did, however, provide a useful guidepost to the Liberal regime's probable policies when he observed that "protectionism is no answer to our problems of unemployment and the underutilization of Canadian abilities." Whether he used "protectionism" in the narrow sense of the raising of high tariffs as a barrier against imports, or whether he views it in such a broad manner as to include "Buy Canadian" campaigns remains to be seen.

This, though, is not the biggest question mark which hangs over this question of protectionism. Mr. Sharp said, as many have said before him, that Canada needs to develop her secondary manufacturing industries. She needs to process more of the raw materials with which Nature has so richly endowed her. In this way she will not only provide additional employment for her citizens, but will also be paid more for her exports.

It is problematic, though, whether this expansion of our secondary industries can be achieved, in many fields, without a measure of protection. Fledgling industries generally need a home market in order to get established. If, from the first, they have to compete on even terms with long-established industries abroad, which are enjoying the cost-cutting benefits of mass production, they will face a most difficult task.

Yet, in the long run, if the nation is to reap the full benefits of the establishment here of industries to process our raw materials, these must indeed be efficient enough to operate successfully without the safeguard of a tariff barriers, so they can compete abroad.

It is here that such campaigns as the "Buy Ontario" drive being sponsored by the Ontario's Ministry of Economics and Development might prove invaluable. Critics have pointed out that we must be prepared to buy goods if we expect to sell abroad. But the stimulation of a reasonable measure of preference for Canadian goods, when they can match imports in price and quality, could do much to assist new industries to gain a share quickly of the home market. But if they lack this, tariff protection, which Mr. Sharp sees as "no answer" to our problems, might be avoided, or at least kept to a minimum.

Trade is such an involved process that even the expert would be well advised to avoid dogmatic pronouncement as to the effects of any particular approach. To the layman, it appears that all our leaders can do is to "play it by ear," quickly discarding any theory when the results do not appear to coincide with expectations. Under such circumstances, paradoxically enough, there may be room for both Hon. Mitchell Sharp's anti-protectionism and Hon. Robert Macaulay's "Buy Ontario" convictions.

Scientific Merry-Go-Round

Two U.S. scientists claim to have produced synthetic deoxyribonucleic acid which shows the attributes of life. This acid is the stuff which makes up the master molecules of living systems, the materials from which genes are made. It is was produced synthetically before, but these earlier synthetic molecules, while chemically identical to natural DNA, did not perform like it. The latest synthetic molecules do.

We take this to mean that, if the scientists' claims prove true, they have produced living material from inanimate matter. This is probably a gross over-simplification of what has been achieved, but still close enough to the truth to explain why there should be so much excitement in scientific circles over the announcement.

There is some scepticism regarding the claim, arising from the nature of the experiment. This is much too long to be accurately described here, and much too involved for a layman to understand. Briefly, though, the scientists took natural DNA, destroyed its biological activity and then used it as a primer or "catalyst" to promote biological activity in the synthetic molecules. Some believe that this biological activity actually came from the natural molecules, but the experimenters insist this could not have happened.

As a layman, it strikes us that there still remains a major question which needs answering, even if the experimenters are right. What mysterious properties does natural DNA possess that, though dead, it can promote in synthetic DNA life which otherwise would not materialize?

Railways' Wandering Cars

Wall Street Journal

Has anybody seen the Southern Railway 2-8-2 boxcar 351417. East August car 351417 carried a load into another railroad's territory at Memphis. Since then incomplete records show it's been shuffled among more than a score of other lines without Southern ever being able to catch up with it.

The peregrinations of 351417 point up a growing problem facing many American railroads. Car shortages plague carriers - to promptly return cars choice freight cars. These modern cars usually offer easier loading, greater protection for shipments and more capacity than old-style equipment. Car 351417, for example, is 50 feet long, 10 feet longer than most older cars, and is equipped with a cushioned underframe to prevent damage to its load.

Railroads customarily switch their cars onto other lines' tracks to get shipments to their destinations. But protectionism is as American Railroads (AAR) long has required that such "foreign" cars be reloaded with shipments that will send them toward home whenever possible. In practice, however, the cars frequently are shunted off in other directions by the alert carrier.

Often such "mishandling" as railroaders call it, is due to carelessness. But occasionally a railroad men complain their choice cars are deliberately pirated by other carriers. Under present AAR regulations carriers generally pay only a $2.83 daily rental fee. This is a frequent lilse's boxcar and some critics contend that this often makes it cheaper for another line's car than rather than buy expensive modern equipment.

A few weeks ago, however, a majority of AAR members voted to switch away from the flat $2.83 fee to a graduated scale of rental charges that would range from $2.16 for cars worth $1,000 or less to $7.74 for cars worth more than $20,000. The AAR is now working out details related to the new rates and it's not likely that they could become effective until early next year.

"The cost of ownership must be met," says D. W. Brosnan, president of Southern Railway, one of the lines that led the drive for the new charges. "The $2.83 per diem charge permits some roads to acquire 70-foot cushioned-underframe boxcars with a 40-year-old hopper with sides in it you could throw a dog through.

"It's a tough deal to pay $13,000 for a car and not have the use of it for eight months of the year," says a traffic man for the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. "A railroad can't make money unless we have the car to put a shipment in." Although the Atlantic Cpast Line owned 2,407 50-foot boxcars last March, it only had 1,895 available to serve its own customers at the time.

Reports on a car's whereabouts usually don't reach the owning line's home office until weeks after it has passed through another line's checkpoint. The delay makes intransit correction of misloading nearly impossible.

Thus, Southern Railway learned too late that one of its cushioned-underframe cars went to Houston, Texas, with a load of chemicals had been reloaded there and put aboard a ship at Galveston, Texas. By the time the intercepting message reached Galveston, W.C. the vessel's destination, the car was on another ship bound for Savanah, Ga. In all, the unfortunate carrier spent some six weeks at sea.

The misadventures of choice cars are generally begin in freight yards. "In an automated yard a yard clerk may have 200 numbers on incoming cars from a closed circuit television screen," explains a superintendent of Atlanta yard. "He may not be able to tell from the numbers whether a car is one of our choice or ordinary. So he's liable to put a choice car down as an ordinary car and send it to a shipper who calls for an ordinary car. Nine out of 10 shippers will load what you give them."

Other railroad men offer less innocent explanation for some mishandling. "When a railroad has traffic for which it needs a choice car, it will take anybody's car it can get," says a veteran freight car official. "And if I had a car operating man who didn't protect himself, I'd get rid of him."

Gondoliers' Outlook Poor

London Economist

Not long ago a young American wrote to the tourist office in Venice to ask about the prospects of becoming a gondolier. He was, alas, an optimist.

For to be a gondolier in Venice it is essential to be born there. Since then it is desirable to be the son of, or related to, a gondolier. The "predicted" obtain a licence from the city of Venice. The latter is perhaps the most difficult part of all.

They tell you that times are bad, and getting worse; there's just no living in it. The gondolier is one gondolier, for example, who represents the fourth generation of his family. He says none of his four sons wishes to follow in their father's footsteps.

It is true that the present looks dull compared with the golden past. The ancestors of today's gondoliers, in general, were many generations of them, lived well off their craft.

Apart from the business generated by commerce and ordinary citizens wanting transport, the aristocracy kept a gondola element by insisting on two or three gondolas as status symbols.

In the heyday of Venice, and even down to fairly recent times, as many as 10,000 to 12,000 gondoliers could make a decent living.

Now only about 500 can, and they complain that life is getting harder.

The descendants of the old nobility may keep a gondola tied up below the window of their new motor launch, for the festivals and for sentimental reasons. But it is the tourists who enjoy use for everyday transport.

So does everyone else, including the tourists, who prefer the speed of the municipally-owned motorboats to the romance of the older hand-driven craft.

The gondoliers see inboard and outboard motors, as the invention of the devil. Since they were first introduced some 50 years ago, they say, the motorcraft have been gradually strangling their livelihood.

News Media Affect Events To a Degree

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Whenever the press is blamed for "blowing up news" beyond its intrinsic importance, I am reminded of the problem that the scientist in the laboratory trying to do dispassionate research. On the surface there may be no greater contrast between the reporter involved in the emotional hurly-burly of daily events and the scientist probing objectively into the essential constructs and behavior-trends of microscopic elements.

Yet one of the most baffling problems of the scientist — especially in the social sciences — is this: the very observance of certain phenomena changes the characteristics of these phenomena.

In the act of focusing his microscope, or even more sensitive instrument, upon the object of his attention, he is inevitably affecting the object itself. The manipulation is a factor in the results..

Now, on a macrocosmic scale, this is precisely what is happening more and more in the field of news events. The fact that reporters and television cameramen are expected to be present — in the very fact of their unanticipated presence — changes the character, and often the direction, of the event.

It is wrong to suggest — some naive critics have done this — that reporters "create" the event; but there can be no doubt that (just as the subatomic instrument affects either the velocity or the position of the particle) the knowledge that a press or TV camera is present or extensively reported acts as an inflationary force on the people involved in the event.

This is not to excuse or to justify those news media which do thrive on sensation and distortion; but I think they are fewer than they seem to be. What actually happens in such cases is that the participants begin to act more and more (notice a politician the moment he senses a TV camera in the area), and the presence of the reporters and cameramen exercises an expanding influence on the event.

It is a problem with no easy solution, and it grows harder as our technology becomes more sophisticated and enables us to cover events more swiftly and more fully. For example, the extensive coverage given to the deliberations of the United Nations has simply transformed it from a deliberative body to a debating society. Many contestants are continually trying to play to the front of its immense world audience.

The press had a duty to cover the incidents in Oxford, Mississippi, a few months ago; but who can doubt that this very coverage contributed to a degree to the violent turn of events? Let us not be so quick with our "solutions" until we are sure we understand the problem.

Do Not Panic Over "Diverticulosis" Problem

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Where can I find a diet for diverticulitis? — D. D.

Dear Doctor: What causes diverticulosis and diverticulitis? What are the differences, and the consequences if a sufferer doesn't adhere to careful diet? Can either lead to cancer? — D. D.

Just two letters inquiring about the "diverti" conditions, "Uloss" and "Ulitis."

There have been so many questions on the subject that I've just written a new booklet concerning it, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Frighten You," because the problem does upset a lot of people. It has such a ponderous name that it sounds worse than it really is.

Straining, constipation, and swallowing air into places in the intestinal wall appear to be the principal causes — especially in the colon or sigmoid, where outpouching develops. That's a diverticulum. Diverticulosis means you have a number of them.

Diverticulitis means that this pouched place has become inflamed and infected.

No, it's not regarded as leading to cancer. Indeed, in our modern advanced diet, it is looked on as a quarter to a third of us may have diverticulosis and not even know it.

It is when one of these areas becomes infected and under pressure develops that it may be serious, so it pays to understand it and to keep it from reaching such a stage.

It does not require a fussy diet, but it calls for reasonable avoidance of the consumption of a number of foods — seedy fruits, nuts, corn, and bran products (because they act like sandpaper, "roughage" and thus irritating.

It's easier to remember the things to avoid, because there are relatively few in number. Except for bran, for what you want. And cooked vegetables.

The new booklet goes into the whole problem in detail. For most people, it will be comforting to read because it takes the mystery and fear-element out of this condition. For the relatively few who are destined to have real trouble, it will underline the danger signs to look out for.

Anyone can have a copy by requesting it and enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope. (Requests for "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You" should be addressed: Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 133, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: My teenage daughter has a splinter in her pierced. How dangerous is it? What are the possibilities of infection? — Mrs. F. B.

Infection is essentially the whole risk, especially since the chances are that it was driven by the type of glass," said an official of the company.

Ballistic tests of glass

Aims of Industry

A Roman military engine, called a ballista, is being used in Britain by Triplex Ltd., a leading glass manufacturer — to test the strength of modern glass used in railway trains, supermarket, and security vehicles.

When the Triplex Research Laboratories, at Kings Norton, Holly Lane, Balsall Common, near Coventry (Warwickshire), were asked to test glass to prove the strength of glass against the effect of stones thrown by small boys, impact by misguided birds, and missiles thrown by bandits, they thought of the ballista on their hands.

To simulate these acts, the company's research department tried catapaults and bows and arrows. Neither was of any use. Next came the crossbow. Up to a point this worked, but fell short in speed and efficiency of about five miles an hour. A projectile travelling at 70 miles an hour was needed.

Now a ballista, "a Roman military engine in the form of a crossbow, which hurled large and heavy missiles" is being made specially for the task.

To record the actual speed at which the projectiles hit the toughened glass a sandwich of wire and foil, filled with a layer of non-conducting material is on the front of the glass. The metal grids which make electrical contact between the two pieces of tinfoil when it pierces them.

For bandit resistant glass the ballista will not be the only testing method used. "It is one of a number of tests of different kinds that are used for this

A real estate man tells me that the next thing to watch is the steps counsellors that is headed in the present day society is a special board of experts psychiatrists who will assist prospective buyers before they enter into choosing compatible neighbors.

"We get a straight-laced client," he said, "who is all set for an apartment, and he suddenly discovers that he has a three-year lease on a nest of vipers. The whole apartment house is full of party-givers. The couple next door to them on the left have been twice divorced. And the couple on the right come home at three in the morning with twelve other celebrators.

"On the other hand, we sign on a tenant who will be entertain his friends from time to time. He's got a hi-fi record player that would shatter a hundred dollars. He always has a couple of noisy barbecue dates. But he doesn't know he is signed up for three years in a mouse-client," he said, "and he'll stay if you understand me, in the whole establishment.

"What we've got to have in the real estate business is a bureau of neighbor counsellors who will be skilled in assessing the one and temper of the neighborhood, and who can match up new neighbors with their own kind."

Bilingualism Discussed at Club Meeting

On Sunday, May 5, the Club Pere-Marquette held a "Souper-Causerie" in the Columbus hall; at 6:30 guests enjoyed a typical French-Canadian cold supper.

Mr. Gaston Beaulieu, Inspector of Bilingual Schools for the Department of Education of Ontario, spoke about the possibilities of a bilingual school in Belleville.

At the head table, besides Mr. Beaulieu, were the Rev. Major Marcel Malenfant, R.C. chaplain at Kingston army camp; Mr. Robert Temple, M.P. for this constituency, and Mrs. Temple.

Mr. Temple addressed all his friends in French and English and spoke on the rights to bilingualism and biculturism in all parts of this country.

Mental Health Clinic's Need Is Discussed

Last week, at the request of the Canadian Mental Health Association, Belleville branch, representatives from welfare organizations, clergy, education, medicine, the law society, nurses' associations, police, and service clubs met to discuss the need for a full time mental health clinic in the city.

The group of about thirty persons first viewed a film which showed how such a clinic was set up in one community and the purposes it served as diagnostic and treatment centre, educational service, and as a consultative resource for other community agencies.

Dr. John Stock, president of the CMHA reviewed the organization of this association and explained the purpose of the meeting, which was to present the need for a clinic and to enlist the moral support at least of the various groups in working toward the establishment of such a clinic.

Dr. Evelyn Williamson outlined the March meeting of a Belleville delegation with Dr. William Henderson, director of community mental health services for the Ontario government. She noted that plans for a 24-bed psychiatric unit were already included in the new hospital building. Dr. Henderson had felt that a valuable and, indeed, necessary adjunct to such a unit would be an out - patient service — i.e. a mental health clinic.

Grants would be available from the government amounting to two thirds of the cost of such a clinic. The community would only need to supply one third of the cost but it is mandatory that the community have the initiative in setting up the clinic. One of the chief values of an out-patient service is that it provides a service to people with emotional problems who do not require hospitalization. It keeps people in the community and functioning in their homes or at their jobs. This, of course, is financially beneficial to the community.

KNOW OF NEED

Mr. George Whitman, director of the city welfare department, commented that his staff "sees more people who are disturbed and does less for them than any other agency." This was because the staff did not have the necessary training to help such people nor did they have any place to refer these people. He wondered what could be done to influence those who make the policy.

"Mental disturbance is a known problem to the police force," stated Inspector John McLaughlin. He discussed some of the difficult problems that the police have to deal with in the field of morals, marital conflict, juvenile delinquency, alcoholism and commented that sometimes people are sent to penal institutions or reform schools when they actually require psychiatric care.

Mr. Bruce Kerr, director of the local Children's Aid Society said he was aware of an ever increasing number of people coming to the agency who were suffering from personality disorders.

He felt that there was a tremendous need for a full time mental health clinic in Belleville.

Mr. G. Daugharty, personnel manager of Northern Electric, said that industry had to be as concerned over its responsibility in the field of mental health as it has been in recent years over physical health. He compared mental illness to the common cold stating that it would be to the benefit of industry and the community in general if "mental illness could be caught in the sniffle stage rather than when it reached the pneumonia stage of a complete breakdown".

DOCTOR'S OPINION

Dr. Bruce Cronk said that "no two mentally ill persons are persons ill in any sense without being aware of the emotional factors involved". He compared the fear which is at the root of most mental disturbances to the fear of the young boy whistling in the dark as he passes the graveyard. When the boy is accompanied by a friend his fear disappears. The mental health unit can supply the "friend" to whom the fears can be spoken so that the dark night becomes merely a pleasant evening.

The consensus of all present was that a mental health clinic is a definite need in this community and that it could serve a very real and practical purpose.

Discussion followed with regards to financing, staffing and referral to such a clinic.

Dr. Stock commented that the problem which lay ahead was to convince the source of revenue — i.e. city and county council, of the need and to ask the board of governors of the hospital to include this clinic in their building plans. He asked that the representatives present return to their groups and urge that the moral support of their groups be placed behind the CMHA in its petition for the establishment of a full time mental health clinic in Belleville.

CANADA CEMENT COMPANY APPOINTMENT

A. O. DRYSDALE

The appointment of A. O. Drysdale to the position of Assistant to the Vice-President and Manager of Operations at the Head Office of the Canada Cement Company, Limited, has been announced. Mr. Drysdale was formerly Superintendent of the Company Plant at Belleville, Ontario.

New Head at Cement Plant Started Work at Point Anne 'Like Coming Home' - Legate

After 12 years away from Belleville and from Plant No. 3 of the Canada Cement Company, it was like coming home for John M. Legate, who May 1st became superintendent of the cement plant at Point Anne.

The new plant superintendent is the son of J. B. Legate, East Bridge Street, former superintendent at Point Anne, who retired a few years ago.

The new plant head succeeds Mr. A. O. Drysdale, who at the end of April was transferred to the Canada Cement Company head office at Montreal.

A native of this city, Mr. Legate attended public and high school here, then for three years served in the Royal Canadian Navy before going to Queen's University, where he studied electrical engineering, graduating in 1951.

While at college he worked during the summer holidays at the Point Anne plant where he has now returned as superintendent.

SERVED AT HULL

After college he went to the electrical department of the company's head office in Montreal and two years later was transferred to the company's plant at Hull, Quebec, where he served for two and a half years.

His next move was to the Canada Cement Company plant at Winnipeg as assistant superintendent, a position which he held for three years before being named superintendent four years ago.

"I am glad to get back to Belleville and Point Anne," Mr. Legate told The Ontario Intelligencer as I am looking forward again to pickerel fishing in the Bay of Quinte."

Mr. and Mrs. Legate, his wife Toni, daughter Suzanne 17, and son Harold, aged 10, are living with relatives and are in the process of making up their minds whether to purchase a home or to build.

WRITES MAN. EXAMS

Daughter Suzanne will take her senior matriculation high school course in Belleville next year but at the present time is looking forward to writing her Grade 13 Manitoba exams, which are based on Hull.

Although his business is cement, Mr. Legate says he would be a big advocate of nationalized education.

Under the present provincial system of education, the transfer of pupils from one province to another during the school year presents its difficulties.

"It is really quite a problem," he says.

And no doubt hundreds of other parents and children in the same position have similar thoughts on the matter.

want to have anything to do with."

The Russian, accused of peddling secrets to the U.S. and Britain with Wynne acted as his liaison man, was asked by Court President Lt.-Gen. Viktor Borisoglebsky what her profession was.

She agreed with a statement by Wynne's lawyer that the Britor merely had been a "chauffeur" in the transmission of material.

"No," replied Penkovsky.

READS FROM NOTES

Penkovsky, apparently reading from notes, said Wynne "constantly handed over materials, three times showed me photographs of intelligence" and had met the Russian in a "conspirative meeting place."

This appeared to be a reference to a house near London where Penkovsky has said he met Western intelligence agents during a trip to Britain and France in 1961.

Penkovsky testified that he did not want to attack Wynne, whose attractive wife Shiela, 42, here from London, was in court again today.

"He was not only a chauffeur," Penkovsky added. "Wynne must not minimize his role."

Asked by Gen. Borisoglebsky whether he agreed with the "chauffeur" description, Wynne replied: "Chiefly, I was to help Penkovsky during his stay in London. . . . My actual role I did not fully realize until I came here."

Court sources said the trial will go into secret session Thursday and Friday. The case may reach its verdict Friday but Saturday is more likely, they added.

On Tuesday the court was told that a British diplomat's child was used for espionage "camouflage."

Penkovsky's testimony and the [illegible] named five Americans — including the U.S. embassy's former agricultural and assistant air attaches as U.S. contacts of the Soviet defendant.

Penkovsky said that in August, 1961, Wynne, his alleged liaison man, gave him a box of candy into which he was to put espionage films and give the box to one of the children of Mr. Janet Ann Chisholm, wife of a former British embassy official, Roderick Chisholm.

According to the indictment, Mrs. Chisholm was a member of British intelligence who maintained espionage contacts with Penkovsky through Wynne when the latter came to Moscow. Chisholm and his family now are back in England.

Club Aircraft HaveFlownOver Million Miles

PICTON—The fantastic figure of 1,038,500 miles travelled by Prince Edward Flying Club aircraft reveals the popularity of flying in this area.

1960 was the banner year for the club when its aircraft flew over 2300 hours or a distance of over 207,000 miles. This is a figure from the past when a trip from Picton to Belleville was a journey to be well considered before being embarked upon.

During the 10 years of operation since the club was organized in 1953, its members have been "air-borne" over 11,000 hours. This period has seen 126 Private Pilots trained - 10 Commercial Pilots graduated - 3 Instructors trained and graduated and five aircraft engines consumed.

The "fair" sex have not been in the background during these 10 years for the following Lady Pilots have graduated: Kay Gribble; Ruth Hart; Grace Williams; Ruth Barkley; Hazel Boyle; Janet LePine; Isabelle Hartt; Sharron Way; Carol Vermilyea.

Teenagers and Telephones

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have been going with a boy for six months. Now that exams are coming up I can't have any dates during the week; and now Mother says no phone calls after 6.00 p.m.

Wouldn't it be fair for her to allow me a half-hour from nine to nine-thirty to talk to him? He can only phone Tuesday and Thursday.—SIXTEEN.

DEAR SIXTEEN — A long visit on the phone is like having a personal date. This is a familiar bone of contention between teenagers and parents—and mother's the boss! You see him on weekends. Concentrate on the studies during the week.

DEAR DORIS—I have lost a lot of weight around my waist and bust, but my hips seem to stay the same. This makes it awkward in buying dresses as I have to get a larger size to fit my hips, then they are too large for the bust.

So, could you please send me the exercises? Also, I am 52 years old. Am I too old for exercises?—PROBLEM.

DEAR PROBLEM—I know one wiry little lady of ninety who secretly performs her bends and stretches night and morning. Her daughter confided this to me. Feels fine and intends to go on living indefinitely. Does that answer your question?

The exercises are on their way. Thing is to go at it easily at first—and with your doctor's knowledge. We don't want stiff muscles for our pains, as it were.

DEAR DORIS—I would like to celebrate our 25th anniversary in October; not a big party.

Should invitations be sent or should they just be told by word of mouth? Some of the close relations do not live near here, so would it be proper to write them a fancy note?

How would the relatives be invited without the bringing of small children?—OCTOBER.

DEAR OCTOBER—Word of mouth for those in your town. A note on proper correspondence paper (not a hasty note) for those outside.

In the note or on the phone, name the individuals you are inviting: "John and I are having an informal party to celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary. I do hope you and Frank can come!"

Tells Lawyers, Doctors, Serve Or Be Drafted

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court justice has warned doctors and lawyers that the government will conscript their service unless the public is helped without regard for ability to pay.

Mr. Justice Edson Haines told the Medico-Legal Society Monday night:

"Why should you take second place to the politicians in serving the public? Either you do it and the government pays, or the government will do it and conscript you to carry it out."

Mr. Justice Haines, long engaged in medico-legal organization for the Canadian Bar Association befogs his appointment to the bench last November, outlined a legal aid service operated by the British bar and paid for by the British government.

"Isn't it your responsibility here to see that the people receive legal and medical care without regard for ability to pay?" he asked.

The public no longer accepts the idea of lawyers and doctors being a priestly class, and the public is aware that it has a vested interest in how they service society, the justice said.

Sex Experiments May Get Experience Not Anticipated

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—The nuttiest letter in ages came from that young bride who said it's about time girls demanded the same standards of purity when it comes to marriage that the fellows demand of them.

She claims she held out for a "lily white lover" and got one. How do you like that for naivete? I'll bet what she actually got was a lily-white liar.

Someone should awaken the sleeping beauty and tell her how it really is. This is a man's world and the role of the male entitles him to privileges. Nowhere in the Bible or in any good piece of literature is it suggested that the male should remain chaste until marriage.

Anyone who has brains will tell you that inexperience on both sides can add up to serious trouble. Why didn't you set her straight?

Welcome to the twentieth century, kiddo.—FEET ON THE GROUND.

DEAR FEET—The tired idea that prowling around "getting experience" insures sexual compatability in marriage is completely fallacious.

Such experience brings nothing to a marriage—except possibly disenchantment. The basis for a good sexual relationship in marriage is consideration, kindness and the genuine desire to give rather than to receive. I've had some mighty sad letters from young men who meant only to sow a few wild oats and ended up with a harvest of thistles.

DEAR READERS—I had no idea there were so many noisy eaters in the world. It seems every family has one and I must have heard them all.

The majority of people who wrote did not like my advice. I told a 16-year-old girl I knew of no polite way to tell a father his table manners are atrocious and to cut down on the noise.

Your readers informed me that there are a variety of ways to tell the old man to quiet down, and you offered suggestions. The ideas ranged all the way from "Please father, if you don't mind, can you eat a bit more quietly?" to "For Pete's sake, pa, shut up with the slurping and chewing already. You're making me deaf."

Some parents said they welcome criticism from their children. One mother wrote, "Every member of the family should be free to speak up about things that bother him. It's the democratic way."

A thoughtful reader wrote, "Young people who are ashamed of their parents are in a terrible spot, Ann. How do you suppose a 16-year-old girl feels in public or at the home of her friend when her father eats like a pig? He puts her in an unfavorable light as well as himself."

It would be ideal if the emotional climate in all homes encouraged every member of the family to speak freely about matters that bothered him. Unhappily, the millenium has not arrived. The girl who complained about her father's eating habits was ordered to button her lip when she corrected him.

Kids know when criticism is unwanted. They only create problems for themselves by suggesting to a hostile parent that he improve his table manners. So my advice stands. Any teenager who has to enlist the help of Ann Landers to get a slob of a father to stop eating like a pig is fighting a lost cause.

licemen were injured, none badly. Most were struck by thrown rocks.

There were no confirmed reports of any Negroes being injured.

There were these other developments:

1. President Kennedy and Attorney-General Kennedy kept in close touch with the situation. The president said he hoped that the racial problems could be solved by the people of Birmingham.

2. Governor Wallace, in a speech before the Alabama legislature, threatened murder prosecutions if the Negro demonstrations result in violence and death. The governor said he would take whatever action necessary to preserve law and order—perhaps including calling out National Guard troops, although there was no official word on this.

3. The White House reported that a justice department representative had succeeded in bringing Negro and white leaders together in Birmingham for their first meeting on the racial problem.

This could not be confirmed from sources in Birmingham.

4. Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, called on NAACP try to conduct "peaceful sympathy picketing" in support of the Birmingham demonstrations.

5. Nineteen rabbis planned to leave for Birmingham to give what they termed "testimony in behalf of the human rights and dignity" of Negroes in Birmingham. The decision was made at a session of the rabbinical assembly in Greenfield Park, N.Y.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Tiros V weather satellite has stopped transmitting pictures after a record-breaking 10½ months of operation, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday. PHILLIPS — WANNAMAKER

Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, April 13, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely spring wedding when Beverley Joyce Wannamaker, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wannamaker, became the bride of Mr. Charles Edward Phillips, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips. The Rev. M. C. MacFarlane pastor of the church officiated before a background of calla lillies mingled with yellow mums interspersed with ferns and tall candelabra. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Clifford Tempier, church organist, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Douglas Shaw who sang, "This Is Our Day," and "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride, wore a bridal gown of imported parchment white organza fashioned on princess lines with empire bodice having a deep Bertha collar of Alencon lace re-embroidered in sequins and seeded pearls, framing the portrait neckline. The full bouffant skirt was accented with matching crinoline. She wore a crystal drop headdress with flowing shoulder-length veil of white French lace and carried a cascade bouquet of white stephanotis, yellow roses and sun rounding a white orchid and trailing ivy.

Her matron of honor was her sister-in-law [illegible] Wannamaker, who wore a gown of mauve brocaded taffeta in sheath style, with dark mauve over skirt of organza, matching shoes, net hat and white gloves.

Miss Beverly Kilpatrick, of Shannonville; Mrs. Russel Phillips of Belleville, sister-in-law of the bridegroom and Mrs. Bruce McKeown, of Belleville, were attired in similar design to that of the matron-of-honor's but in yellow. All carried baskets of white Shasta daisies, tied with satin bows matching the color of their gowns.

Mr. Russell Phillips attended the bridegroom as groomsman; while the ushers were Messrs. Donald English of Shannonville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Bob Wannamaker of Belleville, brother of the bride; and Bruce MacKinnon, also of Belleville.

The reception was held in the church parlors, with Mr. J. W. McConnell as toastmaster. Mr. MacFarlane tendered the toast to the bride. The guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a pink linen brocaded sheath gown with matching duster, long white gloves and pearl-beaded purse; pink hat, and shoes, and white orchid corsage.

Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, attired in a green linen sheath with matching duster, pink accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to New York and other eastern points, the bride chose a beige colored linen suit with green accessories, beige hat, and white orchid corsage.

Guests were present from Belleville; Toronto; Port Huron, Michigan; Madoc; Campbellford; Shannonville; Wellington; Rosmore and Bancroft.

The bride, prior to her marriage, was entertained at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. Russell Phillips, of Belleville; at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Randolph Nelson, of Belleville, and at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Beverly Kilpatrick, at the home of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are residing at 402 Bagot Street, Kingston, Ontario.

St. George's Guild Holds Successful Daffodil Tea

An ideal day with bright sunshine and balmy breezes ushered in a dainty daffodil tea yesterday afternoon under the auspices of St. George's Guild at St. George's Chapel, Station Street.

The guests were received by Mrs. R. Furgusson, president of the Guild, assisted by Mrs P. Welch, with Mrs. W. Beare taking tickets at the door.

The tea table was gay with little guest tables, each one appointed with a snow-white cloth, either lace-edged or beautifully embroidered with colorful pastel flowers, and centred by crystal bowls containing pretty sprigs of blue hyacinth bells, and double-frilled pale-yellow daffodils, which complemented the long tea table with its white cloth, centred by a tall pale cream-pink container filled with pale yellow double daffodils. Tall pale green and yellow candles carried out the spring motif, as did the scalloped serviettes.

PRESIDING

Those who presided over the silver tea trays were: Mrs. R. Dawson and Mrs. E. Smith during the first portion of the afternoon, and Mrs. R. G. Fleming and Mrs. G. G. Wright during the latter portion.

Those who served included Mesdames F. Asky, B. Coleman, M. Quirt, Ann Briese, while Mrs. H. Rutton, Miss L. Towner, Mrs. A. Briese were engaged in making tea. Receiving the plates were: Mrs. W. McLeod and Mrs. F. Markle.

Along the south wall was a booth for plants which included the old fashioned "bess and chickens," in both green and purple tints; African Violets, Climbing English ivy; a mauve flowered, (when it opened) ivy geranium from England, and a host of seedlings of delphiniums in various shades. Along with the plants were bunches of tempting rhubarb, so nice for breakfast, with golden buttered toast. These were in charge of Mrs. W. Collyer and Mrs. A. Hall.

The fancy work, which adjoined, was conveied by Mrs. B. Clegg, and Mrs. R. Ferguson who showed a variety of everyday work aprons as well as the more fancy types in both the all-over and half styles. There were pretty printed designs in attractive colors and some in plain shades.

PRETTY CRIB QUILTS

On the novelty table were little dressed dolls, in blue and pink done in crochet with matching hoods; a pretty crib quilt in yellow with animal designed squares in white; soft bath towels with crochet edges; pink knit little sacques for babies; tiny sockees; little mitts; bridge sets made from factory cotton, nicely embroidered; knit sweaters in red, blue and white; hooters; and fancy doilies as well as runners; lace-edged handkerchiefs, and many other fine samples of knitting or sewing. Miss A. Docter, Mrs. Mathews and Mrs. G. Jenkinson, were in charge of these.

The candy booth, convened by Mrs. H. Sharp, Mrs. H. Armstrong, and Mrs. G. Gulliver was tempting with its cellophane bags filled with chocolate fudge, maple creams, burnt sugar taffy; vanilla cream, all attracting the possessors of the "sweet tooth."

DELICIOUS CONFECTIONS

The home baking table was laden with delicious confections of lemon pie, heaped with golden meringue; apple pies; raspberry pie, luscious to see and more luscious to eat; oozing red juices; cherry pies; date squares; glistening honey buns; bran muffins; butterscotch squares; various cookies; little cup cakes prettily iced; spice cake dotted with walnut bits; orange muffins; apple and peanut butter cake; raspberry jam and one jar of olives. Convening these delectables were Mrs. J. Garrow and Mrs. J. Collings.

A dainty and successful daffodil tea, bringing appreciative thanks to the convener, Mrs. D. Donnelly, and to all others who assisted in its preparation.

Plainfield 4-H Garden Club Formed

ROSLIN — Members of the Plainfield Homemakers' 4-H Home Garden Club held their organizational meeting on May 4th, at the home of Nancy Huffman.

There were two leaders, Mrs. Violet Elliott and Mrs. Jack Salmon, and five girls in attendance.

Material for record books and pamphlets from the Department of Agriculture were distributed and discussed.

The roll call for the meeting was, a new flower I would like to grow this year.

The election of officers resulted in the following being elected: president, Nancy Huffman; vice-president, Beth Hall; press secretary, Mrs. R. G. Nicholls.

A discussion followed on why do you plant a garden?; planning a garden; preparation of a garden, and planting a garden. Each girl is to plant and care for her own garden, and the course promises to be most interesting and educational.

Councils Put Widow Out Of Business

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — For 33 years Mrs. William Morning worked with dynamite and never had an accidental detonation. But now, because others lack confidence in her, she has had to surrender her license to handle explosives.

The petite, grey-haired widow was forced out of business as a dynamite retailer when two councils refused to approve sites for a magazine.

Mrs. Morning took over the business in this town 35 miles north of Toronto when her husband died in 1960. She ran the business until the farm on which she stored the explosive and detonator caps was sold.

The new owner didn't care for the idea of having the magazine on his property and asked her to move. She managed to line up two sites, one in King Township and another in Whitchurch Township.

"I wanted everything to be open and above board so I went to the councils to be sure there were no objections," Mrs. Morning said.

Both objected. King said the site was too near a proposed residential subdivision. Whitchurch felt it would be a strain on the nerves of residents.

Mrs. Morning finds it difficult to understand their fears.

"My husband used to say that dynamite was nothing to worry about as long as it was treated with respect. I've always followed that advice."

Mr. Morning, an expert in handling explosives, did most of the bridge clearance work in the Toronto area after Hurricane Hazel in 1954. He was often employed to destroy dangerous buildings and bridges and remove stumps and boulders.

"Airy Puddings"

by Mary Moore

If I call the orange pudding I am about to offer to you a souffle it might scare of some of our timid cooks. But it is a souffle and it is easy to make. It would be an ideal dessert for young daughters to make for dinner on Mother's Day. I think it is at its best served hot. But good scouts in this troop who like to "be-prepared" will snap up my suggestion that it may be made in advance, refrigerated, then turned out without dire results, even though it is a souffle.

ORANGE SOUFFLE (a baked orange pudding):

3 eggs, separated, ½ cup sugar, divided, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, ½ cup evaporated milk, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, ⅔ cup orange juice (or ½ cup fresh orange juice and ⅛ cup fresh frozen orange juice concentrate to intensify flavor), ¼ teaspoon salt, orange sections.

Beat egg yolks with 3 tablespoons of the sugar. Stir in flour and melted butter. Gradually add evaporated milk, orange rind and orange juice; blend until smooth. In large bowl beat egg whites and salt until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add remaining sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold in egg yolk mixture. Pour into 6 buttered custard cups. Place in shallow baking pan; place on oven rack. Pour in boiling water to half the depth of custard cups. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Serve hot or if to be served cold, chill then turn onto dessert plates and garnish with fresh orange sections or serve with Orange Sauce: Three quarters cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 1-3 cups hot water, 1-3 cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon firm butter. Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt well in top of double boiler; add water and stir until smooth and thick, then cook over boiling water, covered, for 15 minutes with occasional stirring. Remove from heat and add remaining ingredients. Serve warm or cold. Lovely hot over Cottage pudding.

My next offering is the answer to quite a few pleas from gals who accumulate too many egg whites. You can make really good dessert souffles with these. Here is how.

MAPLE SOUFFLE (or Honey, etc. see next column):

WEDNESDAY: (Guests)

Dinner Menus

Shrimp Cocktail; Pork Roast-Mary (see Tuesday); Rice Pilaff (see Tuesday); Braised Celery and Mushrooms; Relish Tray: Radish Roses, Cucumber Sticks, Carrot Curls; Triple-F Chiffon Pie (see Monday); Coffee.

1-cup maple syrup (or use liquid honey or 60% fruit juice (leftover from canned peaches or pineapple or raspberries). Beat egg whites until stiff; then gradually add the sugar, mixed with the baking powder and salt, to them. Fold in hot ¾ cup reduced syrup until blended. Pour into ungreased medium baking dish. Stand pan in larger one containing 1" hot water. Bake 1 hour at 300 deg. Fahr. Serve at once.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

DOMESTIC PUBLIC RELATIONS

With household help so hard to get, it's amazing that so many homemakers overlook the simplest inducement they can offer to keep efficient employees once they've got them.

In a word, it's courtesy.

Many housewives feel it's perfectly alright to hire someone to clean several days a week, then saddle her with baby - sitting without so much as a by-your-leave.

If the job is to be a dual-purpose affair, then terms should be spelled out from the beginning. It's discourteous, as well as impractical, to upset anyone's routine. The job doesn't get done satisfactorily from the viewpoint of either employer or employee, and the latter becomes so discouraged that she leaves on the next train to seek a situation that is less complex and offers more consideration. And that doesn't mean just money.

TACT NEEDED

Many homemakers we know, who have been able to keep the services of the same domestic employees for years, offer tact and understanding in addition to a substantial paycheck. Here are a few tips based on their experiences, which might prove helpful in improving employer-employee relations on the domestic front:

Make sure the job lives up to its original outline. If it's simply to involve light housekeeping and preparing dinner, try to live up to the letter of the bargain. Occasionally, the format of the job may be altered — depending on circumstances or emergencies that might arise — but basically the job should be the one contracted for.

Be considerate about time. If the day is to run longer than usual — you can't get home promptly and the day worker has to stay with the children until you arrive — let her know in advance by a phone call, at least. Many fine employees have quit in frustration because employers just took them for granted and didn't consider that being forced to stay an extra hour or so caused them any inconvenience whatsoever. If overtime runs into a considerable amount, employees should be compensated accordingly.

OBSERVE DEADLINES

If serving dinner is part of the bargain, see that the family observes the deadline. You wouldn't want late arrivals to spoil your own souffle. A good cook is just as possessive of specialties and wants the family to enjoy a dish in its prime and not sit down to a warmed - over facsimile of the original.

When leaving instructions, put them in writing, if possible, especially if you have to rush out when the worker arrives. A hasty, garbled message can be misunderstood. A written message prevents misunderstandings.

If you have live-in-help, make sure the room she occupies is comfortable and tastefully decorated. Days off should be respected and only an extreme emergency should interfere with their regularity. Constantly being asked to change her week around can be very frustrating, especially when an employee plans her free time and may have something special to do with friends and family.

TEACH COURTESY

Teach children to be courteous at all times to household employees, and to respect their status in the family as well as their privacy. Financial consideration may be the bait that originally attracts good household help, but it's the personal consideration that is most binding.

Cape Cod Will Be Resting Place for Three Kennedy Wives Soon Expecting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cape Cod will be a secluded resting place this summer for three Kennedy wives—expecting babies in June, August and September.

Their stork - watching husbands—President Kennedy, Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy, and Senator Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy of Massachusetts—will be weekend commuters.

Boston and Washington have been chosen as the birthplaces. But, as everyone knows, with babies it's hard to be sure of anything.

The Kennedy family tradition ally has gathered at Hyannis Port, Mass., a New England seacoast resort town, for the summer with its constantly increasing brood of children that soon will reach a total of 23

This summer, though, it will be a hideaway from the limelight all three expectant mothers must face when they are in Washington.

The president and his senator-brother have summer homes on Squaw Island, an area of about six summer estates, accessible from the mainland only by a narrow causeway, guarded by town police.

Every resident on Squaw Island has a private telephone connected to the guardhouse at the causeway entrance and no caller gets in without being checked first.

About a half-mile away is the famous Kennedy compound, where the president's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain, has a big seaside home, surrounded by cottages usually occupied by his sons and daughters.

Robert Kennedy will continue to use his white cottage in the compound, close to sand, surf and sailboats.

The departure of the Kennedy wives and children from Washington to the Cape is expected to begin sometime early in June —after schools let out. The three mothers-to-be, Ethel (Mrs. Robert Kennedy), Jacqueline, the president's wife, and Joan (Mrs. Ted Kennedy), already have a total of 11 children, who form a ready-made play group, enjoying the carefree life by the sea.

Some Secret Service men, looking forward to an unusual period of stay-putness with the first family, are arranging for summer cottages on the Cape, too.

In the Kennedy stork race, Ethel Skakel Kennedy, wife of the attorney - general, comes first. She is the oldest of the trio, having just turned 36, and the child she expects in June will be her eighth.

Jacqueline Kennedy's third baby is due late in August. By then, she'll have passed her 34th birthday, which is July 28.

Of the trio, Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy has had the most trouble in childbearing and she appears to be taking the most precautions in limiting her activities. She has decided to have this latest child in Washington, but just where remains a secret.

Joan Bennett Kennedy, the senator's wife, has switched the time schedule a little and now says her baby is due in September, not August as previously announced. Now 26, Joan, too, will observe a birthday of her own—Sept. 2—before her new child is born.

With two youngsters already — Kara, 3, and Ted Jr., 19 months—Joan says she's ready for "as many as come along," proclaiming as have Jacqueline and Ethel: "I love children."

Each of the expectant fathers also has had trouble keeping up with the stork in the past and this time it's likely to be even more difficult with their busy official duties in Washington — especially since it now seems unlikely that Congress will adjourn before mid-September.

DESERONTO

Many Veterans Mark 'Battle Of the Atlantic'

DESERONTO — The Battle of the Atlantic was fittingly commemorated by the local Navy veterans on Sunday last. Heading the parade and carrying a Navy standard the veterans moved off at 10.30 a.m. immediately behind the band of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The parade was completed by the attendance of a goodly number of Legion members who wished to assist. The parade was in charge of Commander A. E. Hill, who organized the service.

Arriving at the Canotaph, a short service was conducted by the Rev. J. M. Souter of St. Mark's Anglican Church. Following the sounding of the 'Last Post' a wreath in the form of an anchor was laid by two members of the contingent. The parade then moved on down Main St. to St. George, then to the Highway to St. Mark's Church.

Father Souter welcomed the veterans and spoke on 'Authority'. In a pointed address he showed where a great deal of the delinquency and disrespect of the younger generation today lies — because of the lack of parental respect. His sermon was much appreciated by the veterans.

Following the service the veterans paraded down Fourth St. to Thomas St. and thence back to the Legion Hall. It was interesting to note the large numbers of townspeople who lined the streets to accord tribute to the veterans. Included in the parade were a number of Navy veterans from Belleville who wished to participate.

tive — Negroes in downtown stores.

"The organization won't settle for less than 20-per-cent desegregation downtown," said one.

He added: "We're not even talking about the schools now, just the stores and the lunchrooms."

The conversation takes place in the corridor of a Baptist church that is one of the centres of the "breakthrough movement."

The church is jampacked with about 1,400 Negroes. Others listen through partly opened side and front doors.

They applaud loudly when Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., symbolic leader of the civil rights movement, calls on President Kennedy to "take a forthright stand."

Then they begin singing, clapping with the rhythm of hymns. Something's Got A Hold Of Me.

WAVE FANS

They seem good humored. They laugh and wave their palm-frond fans when another speaker describes an incident in Ingram Park, fronting the church, a centre of the disturbances in Birmingham during the last few days.

"These children ran after the policeman so that he would arrest them," he says. "But he wouldn't arrest them no matter how hard they ran."

This is a reference to the fact that the Birmingham jails already are filled to capacity. More than 2,400 negroes have been arrested.

Dr. King goes to two other churches in the vicinity. They, too, are packed to the roof. There is more singing and more exhorting.

Meanwhile, the streets of Birmingham are quiet. It is not much of a night-life city, anyway, and it looks little different now than on any night. There are no clusters of men on the street corners—as there were in the first few nights in Oxford after Meredith entered the university—and no signs of tensions as there were at Little Rock.

TELEPHONE BUSY

The lobby of the Gaston Motel, where Dr. King is staying, is quiet except for the incessant buzzing of the telephone switchboard and the operator saying, again and again, "Dr. King is not in."

The only evidence of anything amiss is in front of another hotel where a group of state highway patrolmen stand, talking, beside some police cars. They were ordered into Birmingham Tuesday.

The corner where they are standing is near enough to the Baptist church to hear the Negroes chanting—

"Something's Got A-Hold On Me."

Slave Lake.

On one street a house rested on top of a car. On another, the Legion Hall had settled on an angle about 30 feet from the outline of its original foundation.

The Hudson's Bay Store staff house had popped from its lot, basement and all, and was tilted towards the sky.

Houses were snagged on the edges of several roads and the main street was blocked at one point by a displaced building.

"You have to see it to believe it," said John Morin, who had started building a new house before the town was inundated a week ago.

He pointed to a cluster of wood pilings sunk in a rectangular pattern beside his present water-logged home.

"It cost me $1,800 to have those put in," he said, "but I'm not going to build here now."

Federal government assessors were expected today to inspect damages. Adjustors for private insurance companies also were to be on hand to receive damage claims.

SET UP COMMITTEE

A 15-man co-ordinating committee was set up Tuesday night to plan and oversee cleanup, rehabilitation and re-entry of the town.

The committee included representatives of the municipal, and federal governments, RCMP, the Salvation Army, businessmen and Dr. C. G. Penny, town doctor.

Dr. Penny said in an interview that health hazards in the town have been conquered.

"We didn't have an epidemic, but we had the ingredients for an epidemic. Our hospital is empty. We've had less illness in the last week than we've ever had—not a cough, cold or a sprained ankle."

Prison Warden Says Trouble Will Continue in Montreal Until Facilities Replaced

MONTREAL (CP) — Warden Michel LeCorre said Tuesday St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary will continue to have trouble with prisoners until burned-out facilities are replaced and the security staff strengthened.

The prison, in the north-end suburb of St. Vincent de Paul, has had 17 separate incidents in the last year of stabbings, riots and various demonstrations. The worst was a day-long riot last June that resulted in $2,000,000 damage.

The job of replacing the burned-out cells, work shops, psychiatric wing and recreation centre won't be completed until this fall.

In the meantime, prisoners have nothing to do.

Fifteen mounties, armed and helmeted, patrol strategic outdoor posts where there are no guards to do the job.

IS DISTRESSED

Warden LeCorre, obviously distressed over a decision he made last Thursday that culminated in the death of a guard and a prisoner, spoke to reporters at a press conference in the prison board room.

"I have nothing to hide," he said. "I did the best I could." He was referring to an incident in the main cell block that started when guard Raymond Tellier, 33, was held hostage by two rebellious prisoners, cousins Marcel Marcoux, 34, and Claude Marcoux, 21.

When Warden LeCorre ordered his men to storm the cell with guns blazing, Tellier and Marcel Marcoux were killed. Police fired nine shots.

The warden himself joined the attack and admits "one guard told me he came close to shooting me in the back in the darkness."

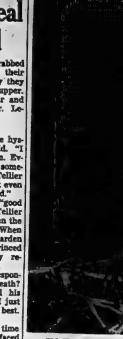
The Marcoux cousins grabbed Tellier when he opened their cell door to find out why they hadn't reported for supper. They tied him to a chair and began stabbing him, Mr. LeCorre said.

WERE HYSTERICAL

"The two prisoners were hysterical," the warden said. "I couldn't reason with them. Everytime I asked them something, they would stab Tellier again and again. I couldn't even find out what they wanted."

He said there is a "good chance" Claude pulled Tellier over him as protection when the order to rush was given. When he made his decision, Warden LeCorre said, he was convinced that Tellier had already received "mortal wounds."

Did he personally feel responsible for the guard's death? Warden LeCorre bunched his shoulders. "I don't know. I just don't know. I did my best. That's all I could do."



He said it was the first time in his career that he was faced with making such a hard, fast decision. "There was no time for discussion, we had to do something."

BIT BY BULLETS

An autopsy later showed that Tellier was hit by four bullets—in the head, shoulder and twice in the heart.

Allen J. MacLeod, commissioner of penitentiaries for Canada, supported the warden's decision to shoot it out, as did Roland LeFrancois, president of the civil service association local that represents the 600 penitentiary guards.

Warden LeCorre said the uprisings at St. Vincent de Paul are not peculiar to that institution but are part of a Canada-wide trend in prisons that "are overcrowded."

IN THE RIVER — 13-year-old Don Carr of Avondale Road, Belleville, aims his net as a minnow swimming in the Moira River just below the CPR bridge, in Belleville, Sunday.

Parents Must Be in Court Says Magistrate

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto magistrate said Tuesday he will no longer hear cases against teenagers unless their parents are present in court.

Magistrate J. W. Butler said in suburban Scarborough court: "Parents should be present when their children are facing charges."

The parents of Donato Norcis, 17, were not present when the youth appeared on a charge of auto theft.

Magistrate Butler ordered police to have the parents subpoenaed for May 14. If they do not appear then, the said, they are to be brought to court in a police patrol wagon.

In an interview later, the magistrate said:

"I feel the parents of these children should accept responsibility for them. It happens far too often that the parents aren't present.

"Then in many cases the father sends the mother to court to take the rap."

Canada's Income Tax Laws Ready for General Overhaul Claim of B&P Women's Club

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's income tax laws were blasted today for "their skeptical and belittling attitude toward the economic contribution of married women" as the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs made recommendations for a general overhauling.

The organization said complete industrialization in Canada cannot be achieved until there is a change in the traditional social attitudes towards women.

The Carter royal commission on taxation heard requests from the federation for immediate changes in the Income and Estate Tax Acts, coupled with a suggestion that on a longer-range basis, the commission consider such things as a flat rate of personal income tax instead of the present graduated rate.

WOULD CHANGE PLAN

The present marital exemption could also be replaced by an income - splitting plan between spouses, or direct tax credits could also replace the existing scheme of exemptions from gross income.

The federation also recommended that a taxpayer who, with a dependent, are both over 65, should each get an additional exemption of $500. Present law allows such an exemption for the over-65 taxpayer, but not for the dependent.

Working women who employ housekeepers should be given a $1,000 exemption — now permitted for unmarried clergymen. The present act allows an exemption of $300 - $650 for housekeeper services for a single, divorced, separated or widowed taxpayer with a dependent child.

"... This extension would free the services of many a woman with training—the nurse, social worker, technician, accountant, librarian, bookkeeper, doctor, scientist, engineer, lawyer and the like, whose ability and talent would once more be available to the community. Housekeeping jobs would increase both in number and status. Housemaking generally would benefit."

All medical expenses should be deductible, and not—as pres ent—only those exceeding one hundred three per cent of taxable income.

The federation said no estate tax should be levied on money not actually received by the survivor. Present regulations call for the payment of estate taxes on the capitalized value of pensions and annuities within six months of death even though all the money from these sources has not been received.

Tyrone Guthrie Theatre Opens With 'Hamlet'

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — A capacity audience gave a standing ovation Tuesday night at the conclusion of a performance of Hamlet inaugurating the $1,000,000 Tyrone Guthrie Theatre here.

The theatre is strikingly modern and its 1,437 seats are all within 58 feet of the stage. Taking three years to complete, it is situated next to the city's Walker Art Gallery.

Named director of the theatre here in 1960, Sir Tyrone has a long association with the Stratford Ont., festival, taking part in its inauguration in 1953.

William Glover, Associated Press drama critic, said Tuesday's four - hour presentation was a "peculiar" version of Hamlet.

He said the presentation "lunches with some brilliance but the lighting of Ophelia's mad scene is all too infrequent. What is poetry has been reduced in stridency, and the effort to liven up the highly Gothic is too often ruefully mechanical drama."

IN FLIVVERY FLANNEL?

"Guthrie, an imaginative Irishman, has done up this Hamlet in fashions of various periods, somewhere between Viennese operettas and Ivy League flannel," causing difficulties in "credibility and coherence."

"This is a Hamlet to cause plenty of discussion, which is undoubtedly what the eminent director wished to do."

The cast included George Grizzard in the title role, Jessica Tandy as Gertrude, Robert Pastene as Polonius, John Lewin, Laertes, and Ellen Geer as Ophelia.

Moliere's The Miser, Chekhov's Three Sister and Miller's Death of a Salesman make up a four-play bill to be presented in the all-professional 22-member company in the new theatre.

Gerrard Village Residents Want to Retain Bohemian Way of Life and Location

TORONTO (CP) — Residents of Toronto's Gerrard Village—a pocket of Bohemia smack in the middle of the downtown commercial area—have two preoccupations: Art and the preservation of their way of life.

In the name of art, villagers labored Tuesday night painting daisies on the sidewalks and decorating shop fronts in preparation for May-time—their official salute to spring.

Today, the same villagers will march to city hall in an attempt to save a large section of the village from the wreckers' hammer.

Tonight crowds of Torontonians are expected to stroll in off Bay Street to take in the sound and color of the annual three-day festival, during which the village folk will work and play in the streets.

People who have never been closer to the village than a bootlegging nearby Queen Street General Hospital or a bus ride down flanking Bay Street will get their first look.

The tourist value of the festival will be one of the bargaining points when the village folk meet city council today.

Residents of one block of the village—including about 13 of the area's 40 assorted art shops —have been told to vacate by August. Toronto General Hospital, which has owned the block since 1955, plans to level the century-old buildings to make room for a parking lot and, later, hospital expansion.

Local politicians are sympathetic to the villagers. The municipal planning board favors the preservation—and possible expansion—of the area as a tourist attraction.

SHOW OFFBEAT HUES

The houses, tilting but brightly-painted in the upbeat character of modern tenants, were imposing homes when they were built in the 1820s.

A hundred years later, after surviving a turn-of-the-century slum and withstanding the sinister and the sordid, the village welcomed a fresh kind of tenant—the artist, writer and high-rent-sky people like the late Ernest Hemingway, then still a struggling unknown.

The building where Hemingway lived about 1920 how houses The Unicorn, a shop offering an unusual array of interior decorations and gifts.

The recommendations of the city planning board to preserve the area will be backed up by a petition carrying 12,000 signatures—some of them from centre 30 miles from Toronto.

Signalman Marvin R. Scott, 22, of Belleville, was in a group of Canadian soldiers who left the Congo by RCAF aircraft this week after a tour of duty with 57 Canadian Signal Unit in the United Nations Force.

A member of the Royal Canadian Signals, Sig. Scott was a despatch rider with the signal unit in the Congo. He will return to his old unit, Vanncouver Wireless Station at Ladner, B.C.

At a ceremonial parade prior to departure he was presented the United Nations medal for service in the Congo by Lieutenant-General Kebbede Guebre of Ethiopia, U.N. Force Commander.

Sig. Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Hall of R. R. 4, Belleville.

Whites in Birmingham Fear Boiling Pot May Explode

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — This city is gripped by growing concern over gigantic demonstrations by Negroes who have mobilized en masse to protest segregation.

"It can keep building up . . . people can get to the boiling point," said a white store manager Tuesday, who, like most of those interviewed, asked that his name be withheld.

"The situation could easily get out of hand," Sheriff Melvin Bailey said. When an estimated several thousand Negroes charged into downtown Birmingham Tuesday, officials feared they would not be able to maintain control.

White spectators, however, remained spectators.

What will happen next time is anybody's guess.

PREDICT TROUBLE

Bailey and other officers have said that if such demonstrations occur when rough white elements are downtown, trouble will come.

"I'm amazed that we've not had trouble," Bailey said.

White employees of downtown stores and shoppers said they believed white people generally wanted no violence. They said, too, that they think the issues resolved—even at the cost of some desegration.

"I believe it inevitable, anyway," said a Woolworth's saleswoman, Mrs. Nona Melvin. "I'm willing to give a little."

Though closely wrapped in secrecy, talks have been going on for some time between white businessmen and Negroes. The businessmen are willing and anxious to work out the problems.

AGAINST OUTSIDERS

But neither they nor city officials want to deal with the "outsiders" who spearhead the desegregation movement.

They are talking now in terms of a timetable on major objectives listed by Negro leaders. The objectives include desegregation of downtown facilities, better job opportunities for Negroes, formation of a bi-racial committee and dismissal of charges against demonstrators.

Just give 'King (Rev. Martin Luther King) one concrete concession that he can take back to his people and he will leave —he wants to leave town and get this thing settled," was the comment of a leading businessman.

This is what Negro leaders themselves indicated in a letter Tuesday. But they said they would not stop their demonstration campaign which has gained considerable momentum without clear agreement on at least some points.

A Negro boycott of downtown stores is hurting merchants and will have long-range economic effects unless business returns to normal.

Labor Party Making Gains In Elections

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor party today claimed further successes in municipal elections held Tuesday throughout Britain.

On the week's balloting so far, the party claimed a net gain of 84 seats and capture of control of nine local government councils. It has lost its majority in one council.

The party claimed a net gain of 33 seats in voting for 72 town councils in Scotland.

Balloting for urban councils in England and Wales today, day, Labor claimed a net gain of 25 seats on top of 26 net gains Monday.

Labor gains have been made mainly at the expense of Conservatives and independents.

The Liberals, who have launched a record number of candidates this year, claimed a total of 38 net gains.

Egg Production Higher in 1962

OTTAWA (CP) — Net production of eggs increased in 1962 compared with 1961 but output of poultry meat decreased, the bureau of statistics reports.

Egg production rose one per cent to 434,200,000 dozen from 428,200,000 a year previous. These figures do not include output in Newfoundland.

Average number of layers on farms increased to 26,408,000 from 26,374,000 in 1961, while the rate of lay advanced to 199 per hen from 197.

Domestic consumption increased to 418,696,000 dozen from 412,555,000—a per capita consumption of 22.5 dozen, down 22.6 a year earlier.

IN THE BOTTLE held by Fred Hagerman, 12 years old, of Avondale, the minnow joins the rest of the boys' catch. Don Carr, who has kept and stocked his aquarium since January, explains he "just likes watching fish."

Negroes on March in South No Intention to Turn Back

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Negroes are on the march again in the southern United States in search of their American constitutional rights and they have no intention of turning back—despite police dogs, fire hoses and electrical prod sticks.

So far they have focussed international attention on their plight by staging non-violent demonstrations but the situation could easily erupt into bloodshed.

Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. is determined to avoid violence as he directs masses of Negroes in their fight for equal rights in Birmingham, Ala., where more than 2,400 arrests have occurred in the last couple of days.

The majority of those arrested and held in crowded confinement after being soaked, poked and threatened by police dogs are youngsters and school children. They were charged with parading without a permit.

HAVE MORAL SUPPORT

The demonstrators seek admission to white schools, a fair policy for hiring Negroes and desegregation of all downtown public facilities, including lunch counters, restrooms and water fountains.

They have the moral support of President Kennedy's administration but feelings in the South are deep-rooted and neither the demonstrators nor the segregationists are willing to yield now that they have come face to face.

Integration has been slow in coming to the southern states (officially because former Democratic administrations did not wish to step on any toes for fear they would lose the support of the traditionally Democratic South.

But Kennedy's administration has just about spiften off hopes of holding Alabama and Mississippi in next year's presidentials election.

Influential Democrats appear to be resigned to the breakup of the once solidly Democratic South and the defection of extremists and conservatives to the Republicans.

SEE ASSET IN LOSS

Democrats supporting the president believe the loss of southern congressmen will soon take chairmen who have blocked Kennedy's legislative program would be an asset to the party.

They argue that it is time to rebuild the Democratic party in the South because of the growing number of Negroes, trade union members and other Liberals who are in sympathy with the Democrats of the north.

Segregationists are fighting a losing battle in Birmingham and a pattern of integration already has been established in other southern cities.

Perhaps the demonstrators should turn down the pressure and await the new city administration which will soon take office and which promises racial peace.

And if Kennedy succeeds in rebuilding the Democratic party in the South and continues his program of integration—segregation will one day disappear, although the unpleasant feelings dividing the South may linger on for many years.

Will Change Arrangements To Meet Press

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says new arrangements are in the making for his meetings with newspaper reporters and broadcasters after cabinet meetings.

For years, reporters have clustered in a corridor leading to the Privy Council area where the cabinet meets behind closed doors. They put questions to the prime minister and other cabinet members as they arrive for and leave cabinet meetings.

On Monday Mr. Pearson told reporters jammed into the corridor:

"We are trying to work out some arrangements so that you won't have to be hanging around in the corridor like this.

"If we are suggesting any change, it's not to avoid the kind of information which you quite rightly would like to get after cabinet."

"But it is to make it possible to give it in a way which would be more satisfactory to everybody concerned. It is not to break any contact which has been established between the leader of the government and the press but make that contact much more efficient.

RESCUE FIVE

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—The fishing dragger Cajun II, of Saulnierville, N.S., sank off nearby Briar Island Tuesday following a fire aboard ship. Capt. Leslie Dewar and his four crewmen escaped in a life-boat and were picked up by another dragger. The Cajun was valued at $88,000.

Prison Warden Says Trouble Will Continue in Montreal Until Facilities Replaced

MONTREAL (CP) — Warden Michel LeCorre said Tuesday St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary will continue to have trouble with prisoners until burned-out facilities are replaced and the security staff strengthened.

The prison, in the north-end suburb of St. Vincent de Paul, has had 17 separate incidents in the last year of stabbings, riots and various demonstrations. The worst was a day-long riot last June that resulted in $2,000,000 damage.

The job of replacing the burned-out cells, work shops, psychiatric wing and recreation centre won't be completed until this fall.

In the meantime, prisoners have nothing to do.

Fifteen mounties, armed and helmeted, patrol strategic outdoor posts where there are no guards to do the job.

IS DISTRESSED

Warden LeCorre, obviously distressed over a decision he made last Thursday that culminated in the death of a guard and a prisoner, spoke to reporters at a press conference in the prison board room.

"I have nothing to hide," he said. "I did the best I could." He was referring to an incident in the main cell block that started when guard Raymond Tellier, 33, was held hostage by two rebellious prisoners, cousins Marcel Marcoux, 34, and Claude Marcoux, 21.

When Warden LeCorre ordered his men to storm the cell with guns blazing, Tellier and Marcel Marcoux were killed. Police fired nine shots.

The warden himself joined the attack and admits "one guard told me he came close to shooting me in the back in the darkness."

The Marcoux cousins grabbed Tellier when he opened their cell door to find out why they hadn't reported for supper. They tied him to a chair and began stabbing him, Mr. LeCorre said.

WERE HYSTERICAL

"The two prisoners were hysterical," the warden said. "I couldn't reason with them. Everytime I asked them something, they would stab Tellier again and again. I couldn't even find out what they wanted."

He said there is a "good chance" Claude pulled Tellier over him as protection when the order to rush was given. When he made his decision, Warden LeCorre said, he was convinced that Tellier had already received "mortal wounds."

Did he personally feel responsible for the guard's death? Warden LeCorre bunched his shoulders. "I don't know. I just don't know. I did my best. That's all I could do."

He said it was the first time in his career that he was faced with making such a hard, fast decision. "There was no time for discussion, we had to do something."

BIT BY BULLETS

An autopsy later showed that Tellier was hit by four bullets—in the head, shoulder and twice in the heart.

Allen J. MacLeod, commissioner of penitentiaries for Canada, supported the warden's decision to shoot it out, as did Roland LeFrancois, president of the civil service association local that represents the 600 penitentiary guards.

Warden LeCorre said the uprisings at St. Vincent de Paul are not peculiar to that institution but are part of a Canada-wide trend in prisons that "are overcrowded."

Parents Must Be in Court Says Magistrate

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto magistrate said Tuesday he will no longer hear cases against teenagers unless their parents are present in court.

Magistrate J. W. Butler said in suburban Scarborough court: "Parents should be present when their children are facing charges."

The parents of Donato Norcis, 17, were not present when the youth appeared on a charge of auto theft.

Magistrate Butler ordered police to have the parents subpoenaed for May 14. If they do not appear then, the said, they are to be brought to court in a police patrol wagon.

In an interview later, the magistrate said:

"I feel the parents of these children should accept responsibility for them. It happens far too often that the parents aren't present.

"Then in many cases the father sends the mother to court to take the rap."

Canada's Income Tax Laws Ready for General Overhaul Claim of B&P Women's Club

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's income tax laws were blasted today for "their skeptical and belittling attitude toward the economic contribution of married women" as the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs made recommendations for a general overhauling.

The organization said complete industrialization in Canada cannot be achieved until there is a change in the traditional social attitudes towards women.

The Carter royal commission on taxation heard requests from the federation for immediate changes in the Income and Estate Tax Acts, coupled with a suggestion that on a longer-range basis, the commission consider such things as a flat rate of personal income tax instead of the present graduated rate.

WOULD CHANGE PLAN

The present marital exemption could also be replaced by an income - splitting plan between spouses, or direct tax credits could also replace the existing scheme of exemptions from gross income.

The federation also recommended that a taxpayer who, with a dependent, are both over 65, should each get an additional exemption of $500. Present law allows such an exemption for the over-65 taxpayer, but not for the dependent.

Working women who employ housekeepers should be given a $1,000 exemption — now permitted for unmarried clergymen. The present act allows an exemption of $300 - $650 for housekeeper services for a single, divorced, separated or widowed taxpayer with a dependent child.

"... This extension would free the services of many a woman with training—the nurse, social worker, technician, accountant, librarian, bookkeeper, doctor, scientist, engineer, lawyer and the like, whose ability and talent would once more be available to the community. Housekeeping jobs would increase both in number and status. Housemaking generally would benefit."

All medical expenses should be deductible, and not—as pres ent—only those exceeding one hundred three per cent of taxable income.

The federation said no estate tax should be levied on money not actually received by the survivor. Present regulations call for the payment of estate taxes on the capitalized value of pensions and annuities within six months of death even though all the money from these sources has not been received.

Tyrone Guthrie Theatre Opens With 'Hamlet'

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — A capacity audience gave a standing ovation Tuesday night at the conclusion of a performance of Hamlet inaugurating the $1,000,000 Tyrone Guthrie Theatre here.

The theatre is strikingly modern and its 1,437 seats are all within 58 feet of the stage. Taking three years to complete, it is situated next to the city's Walker Art Gallery.

Named director of the theatre here in 1960, Sir Tyrone has a long association with the Stratford Ont., festival, taking part in its inauguration in 1953.

William Glover, Associated Press drama critic, said Tuesday's four - hour presentation was a "peculiar" version of Hamlet.

He said the presentation "lunches with some brilliance but the lighting of Ophelia's mad scene is all too infrequent. What is poetry has been reduced in stridency, and the effort to liven up the highly Gothic is too often ruefully mechanical drama."

IN FLIVVERY FLANNEL?

"Guthrie, an imaginative Irishman, has done up this Hamlet in fashions of various periods, somewhere between Viennese operettas and Ivy League flannel," causing difficulties in "credibility and coherence."

"This is a Hamlet to cause plenty of discussion, which is undoubtedly what the eminent director wished to do."

The cast included George Grizzard in the title role, Jessica Tandy as Gertrude, Robert Pastene as Polonius, John Lewin, Laertes, and Ellen Geer as Ophelia.

Moliere's The Miser, Chekhov's Three Sister and Miller's Death of a Salesman make up a four-play bill to be presented in the all-professional 22-member company in the new theatre.

Gerrard Village Residents Want to Retain Bohemian Way of Life and Location

TORONTO (CP) — Residents of Toronto's Gerrard Village—a pocket of Bohemia smack in the middle of the downtown commercial area—have two preoccupations: Art and the preservation of their way of life.

In the name of art, villagers labored Tuesday night painting daisies on the sidewalks and decorating shop fronts in preparation for May-time—their official salute to spring.

Today, the same villagers will march to city hall in an attempt to save a large section of the village from the wreckers' hammer.

Tonight crowds of Torontonians are expected to stroll in off Bay Street to take in the sound and color of the annual three-day festival, during which the village folk will work and play in the streets.

People who have never been closer to the village than a bootlegging nearby Queen Street General Hospital or a bus ride down flanking Bay Street will get their first look.

The tourist value of the festival will be one of the bargaining points when the village folk meet city council today.

Residents of one block of the village—including about 13 of the area's 40 assorted art shops —have been told to vacate by August. Toronto General Hospital, which has owned the block since 1955, plans to level the century-old buildings to make room for a parking lot and, later, hospital expansion.

Local politicians are sympathetic to the villagers. The municipal planning board favors the preservation—and possible expansion—of the area as a tourist attraction.

SHOW OFFBEAT HUES

The houses, tilting but brightly-painted in the upbeat character of modern tenants, were imposing homes when they were built in the 1820s.

A hundred years later, after surviving a turn-of-the-century slum and withstanding the sinister and the sordid, the village welcomed a fresh kind of tenant—the artist, writer and high-rent-sky people like the late Ernest Hemingway, then still a struggling unknown.

The building where Hemingway lived about 1920 how houses The Unicorn, a shop offering an unusual array of interior decorations and gifts.

The recommendations of the city planning board to preserve the area will be backed up by a petition carrying 12,000 signatures—some of them from centre 30 miles from Toronto.

Centuries of Bloodshed, Hunger and Repression Seems Story of South Korea

By CONRAD FINK

TOKYO (AP) — Few nations have endured so much and have so little to show for it. Not many face such a bleak future.

After centuries of bloodshed and turmoil, hunger and repression, this seems to be South Korea's story—painful past and no end in sight.

South Korea today wallows in an almost medieval political and economic morass.

In Seoul, the capital, military rulers in big cars speed past sweating, straining men harnessed like oxen to creaking carts filled with coal.

In the countryside, spring winds whip brown dust across treeless hills almost barren of the signs of industrial progress being displayed in other Asian lands.

In the villages, there is dawn-to-dusk labor followed by fervent prayer for a good rice crop —the difference between life and death.

U.S. EFFORT FAILS

An immensely expensive effort by the United States has failed to shape South Korea into a stable, democratic and economically progressive country.

The United States shed the blood of its youth, poured in billions of dollars, assigned some of its most dedicated diplomats, economists and soldiers to South Korea.

Many Americans are becoming impatient with the seeming inability of 26,000,000 South Koreans to stop internal political squabbling, put their house in order and attack a heritage of economic and political ills passed down through the ages.

This heritage results from a quirk of geography that hooked the northern end of the 525-mile Korean peninsula to the Asian mainland and placed the southern end within easy sailing distance of Japan.

DIVIDED BY WAR

Mongols, Manchus and Russians moved south in devastating waves to conquer or control in ancient times. Japanese attacked from the south. The Second World War left the country divided, with Communists holding everything north of the 38th parallel.

The 1950-53 Korean War was only one more battle for control of the strategic peninsula.

Three years of war also devastated the land again, wiping out the enormous U.S. economic program that began after the Second World War when Washington somewhat unwillingly became South Korea's financial patron rather than let it slip into communism.

That dollar investment, for both economic and military aid, now totals $5,400,000,000. It has without doubt saved South Korea from complete collapse but has not moved the nation toward economic or political stability.

LACKS RESOURCES

South Korea is an impoverished land, lacking natural resources and cadres of trained economists or industrial managers to run the factories U.S. dollars build.

Army generals more noted for political reliability and zeal than understanding of economic principles are writing South Korea's economic policy—often with disastrous results. Colonels are running fertilizer plants.

Tremendous sums are spent to maintain the 600,000-man armed forces, among the biggest and best-trained in all of non-Communist Asia.

South Korea since the Second World War has been one big political free-for-all, with the out groups constantly trying to unseat the ins. The ins have been marked by inefficiency and corruption, the outs with lust for power.

University students have toppled one government since 1960, military officers another. Neither group of revolutionaries has demonstrated any real understanding of how a democracy works.

U.S. policy so far has been publicly to urge progress toward democratic rule and privately make clear aid will be cut unless this happens.

South Korea's military rulers feel the United States cannot withdraw from South Korea. They know the strategic value of their peninsula in cold war terms.

Edmonton Has 3-1 Bulge Over Falls ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Full House Sees Three Kings Nip Pair

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Oil Kings, riding a three-game winning streak capped by a 3-2 triumph Tuesday night, need only one more win over Niagara Falls Flyers to wrap up the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior hockey championship.

Doug Fox, a University of Alberta student from Calgary, gave Edmonton its Tuesday night win when he lifted a rebound high into the net midway through the final period.

The Oil Kings, who were whipped in the opener 8-0 by Hap Emms' Eastern champions but came back to win the next two 7-3 and 5-3, were hard-pressed in taking the close-checking fourth game.

Butch Paul and Max Mestinsek picked up Edmonton's two other goals. Wayne Maxner counted both Niagara Falls tallies.

The game was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, and the teams remained deadlocked 2-2 at the end of the second.

Emms, Flyers' owner-coach, protested the game when Art Potter of Edmonton, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, turned down a request that Niagara Falls have the choice of ends because of "home ice" privileges. After a conference with referee Frank Dsignault of Montreal which delayed the start of the game 15 minutes, Potter ruled there was nothing in the CAHA regulations covering the request.

PLAY UNDER PROTEST

Emms already had protested the whole series because he felt the nets in Edmonton Gardens, set 15 feet from the end boards, constituted a violation of CAHA rules. The rules say there should be 10 feet between the goal line and the end boards.

Questioned about the series following the game Emms said: "I have nothing to say to anyone—no comment."

Oil King coach Buster Brayshaw was happy, but said: "I think this will wind up Thursday, although I'd like it to.

"The Flyers played well," he said, "but they didn't finish."

Niagara Falls will be without forward Gary Dornhoefer for the rest of the series. Dornhoefer suffered a broken leg in the third game Monday night when checked by defenceman Pat Quinn.

Brayshaw indicated the Oil Kings had no injuries to worry about in the fifth game.

George Gardner in the Flyers' net made the only visible Edmonton's Russ Kirk turned aside 19 shots.

Have Road Record Of 11-2

Nothing Homer About The Giants

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't invite San Francisco Giants over for a friendly baseball game. They're liable to wreck the place.

Giants, who were everybody's friend on the road last year, have turned into traveling terrors this season. As a result, they are in first place in the National League today, a game over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Giants did their ungracious visitor act again Tuesday night at Milwaukee as Juan Marichal pitched a four-hitter and Felipe Alou, Ed Bailey and Jose Pagan spanked homers in a 5-1 victory over Braves.

That gave Giants an 11-2 mark on the road this year. Last season they were only 42-41 in their traveling suits, and they had to win the pennant in the playoff at Los Angeles to go over .500.

Oddly enough, the defending champions, who were inhospitable at an amazing 61-21 clip in San Francisco last season, are only 6-8 in Candlestick Park this season.

PIRATES TRIMMED

Pirates fell back at Chicago, where Cubs trimmed them 5-4. St. Louis Cardinals also lost ground, as Los Angeles Dodgers trampled them 11-1. Both are a game back of Giants, with Pirates percentage points ahead of Cards.

Houston Colts whipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and New York Mets 4-2 defeated Philadelphia Phils 3-1.

Marichal, 25-year-old right-hander, struck out nine as he posted his fourth victory for Giants. It was the eighth victory in the last nine games—all on the road—for San Francisco. All the Giants runs came off Milwaukee starter Lew Burdette, who now has served up 12 homers in 59 innings.

The rampaging Cubs racked up their fourth straight against the Pirates. Lee Jackson got the victory, his fourth, and Ernie Banks hit his sixth homer for Cubs.

Two Pirates' errors helped Cubs to two runs in the seventh and Merritt Ranew doubled home the clinching run in the eighth.

KOUFAX WINS

Sandy Koufax came back after a two-week absence and pitched eight sparkling innings for Dodgers. Koufax had not worked since he suffered a muscle spasm April 23, but the left-hander allowed only five hits, struck out four and walked just one for his third victory. Another Dodger returnee, Tommy Davis who missed most of the first three weeks of the season, hit his first homer of the year. Ray Washburn was the loser, after winning five straight for Cards.

Bob Purkey, ailing with a sore shoulder, made his first start of the year for Cincinnati and went 5 1-3 good innings—the only good news of the night for Reds. Bill Henry, and then Joey Jay tried to protect a 2-1 lead, but Jay was tagged for run-scoring singles by Bob Lillis and Rusty Staub in the eighth inning for the loss to Houston.

Jay, a 21-14 pitcher last year, now is 0-6 for Cincinnati.

Mets jumped Art Mahaffey for three runs in the first inning, all on homers, and little Al Jackson made them stand up for his third victory. Charlie Neal got an inside-the-park homer when Phillie centre fielder Don Demeter fell down trying to field his line drive, and Frank Thomas hit a two-run homer. Bobby Wine ruined Jackson's shutout bid with a homer in the ninth.

Record Todate None For 86

Bob Buhl Batting Bust

CHICAGO (AP)—Bob Buhl is the worst batter baseball ever has recorded. The Chicago Cub pitcher has not hit in 86 times at bat.

Tension will mount in Wrigley Field today as Buhl goes to the plate against Pittsburgh Pirates. Every one knows the 34-year-old right-hander can take care of himself on the mound.

"I guess, Bob's in somewhat of a batting slump," says Cub vice-president Charlie Grimm. "In fact in all my years in baseball I've never seen a worse one. We still don't want to bother him by telling him what he's doing wrong at the plate. Some time he will get a hit and we'll keep the game and present him the ball."

John Phillips, who has kept baseball statistics for 43 years, says Buhl's 0-for-86 has to be the all-time low ebb of batting.

"Buhl's major league batting average is .086 based on 70 hits in 811 at bats," says Phillips. "Clem Labine is .075, but he was officially at the plate 127 times. Nobody on record has been up as many as 86 times without a hit like Buhl."

WORSE THAN LEFTY

Buhl seems to be worse than such notoriously weak batters as Lefty Grove of the old Philadelphia A's and Lefty Gomez of New York Yankees of 30 years ago.

"Each time I go to the plate I have a determination to get a hit," says Buhl, who steps back from a pitch as if it were a striking cobra. "I'm up there swinging but nothing happens. All I think about is making contact.

"Last year I drove in a run with a sacrifice fly-it was a beluva season at the plate for me. I also stole my first base. It was fun.

"But I'm paid to pitch. I'm not worrying about a hit."

Buhl didn't remember when he got his last hit. He was told the records show he was a single off Los Angeles Dodger Ron Williams on the night of Sept. 1, 1961 in Milwaukee when he was with Braves.

Leafs Edge Syracuse, Wings Lose

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlanta's Jack Kubiszyn not only wants to keep his batting average above the .400 mark, but also he is making sure that the Crackers see their share of the top spot in the International League's Southern Division standings.

Kubiszyn drove in three Atlanta runs with two doubles and two singles Tuesday night to lead the Crackers in a 13-4 drubbing of Columbus and take the Southern Division lead away from Arkansas.

Northern Division leader Buffalo used four home runs in walloping Jacksonville, the league's defending champion 9-4. Indianapolis put down a late Arkansas rally and whipped the Travelers 4 - 1. Toronto edged Syracuse Chiefs 3-2 on the strength of Frank Lelle's homer and single, and Richmond snapped Rochester's four-game winning streak by defeating the Red Wings 8-6.

PUTS BISONS AHEAD

Buffalo's victory coupled with Rochester's defeat put the Bisons 3½ games in front of the Northern contenders. Joe Hicks tallied twice on home runs and Ello Clemente and Joe Christopher accounted for one round trip each. Hicks-Ricketts went all the way for the Bisons to earn his third straight victory. He gave up seven hits, walked four and struck out one.

Columbus took a 2-0 lead over Atlanta in the fourth inning on home runs by Bob Burda and Orlando McFarlane. The Crackers tied the score in the fifth and loosed the bulk of their 13-hit barrage in the furious sixth inning.

LeJa, Toronto first baseman who played for Syracuse two years ago, hit his homer in the fourth with the bases empty. Jesse Quenn tied the score with a two-run homer in the same inning, but the Leafs went ahead in the eighth for good. Steve Riddick notched his fourth victory after yielding eight hits.

Yesterday's Stars

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Bill Freehan, Tigers, hit a two-run homer, triple and double for his ninth hit in last 10 at-bats, in 6-0 victory over New York Yankees.

Pitching—Bob Turley, Angels, allowed only three hits, striking out nine and walking none and posted his first victory of the season, 2-0 over Minnesota.

In reality, Riders were in sympathy with the amateurs and believed some of their games could be played there.

O'Brien said the club had not been consulted when the field owners—the Central Canada Exhibition Association—decided to rule all junior and high school teams off the field.

The association said it made the decision after Riders complained of the condition of the field in mid-October last year. Five amateur games had been played in two days and the gridiron was not in top shape for a Big Four match.

Riders Sign College Fullback

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference called a press conference Tuesday to announce the signing of a new player and to express sympathy with amateur teams who want to continue using Riders' home ice field for some of their games.

The new player is Rick Black, a 22 - year - old fullback with Mount Allison of the Atlantic Football Conference last season. Black, named the most valuable player in the conference, was Ottawa's first draft choice.

J. Barry O'Brien, Rider president, said the club was being blamed for the ruling that only big four games would be played at Lansdowne Park this season.

Baseball Brass Amends Balk Rule

MightySpeak-But UmpsHaveFinal Word

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's mighty have spoken from the summit about the balk, but as usual the umpires appear to be having the last word.

Commissioner Ford Frick and the two major league presidents met Tuesday and amended the balk rule to read that willful guilt only will still be required, there will be no time requirement on the stop.

The move was aimed at cutting down the wide difference in balks called in the two leagues.

A few hours later, the NL umpires promptly called two balks —one against Bob Purkey of Cincinnati and one against Ray Washburn of St. Louis. The balk against Washburn scored a run that gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a victory.

None was called in the American League.

National League umpires had called 96 balks in games through Monday, an all-time record. Only nine had been called in the American League.

Aware that the all-star game and World Series would present supreme problems if the differences were not settled, Warren Giles of the National League and Joe Cronin of the American League arranged Friday's meeting at a summit conference.

In effect, the one-second stop is being called for on this season. Officially, the top brass agreed unanimously that the rules committee amend the balk rule to eliminate the necessity of stopping" for a definite length of time." The rules committee, headed by Charles Segar, secretary of baseball, does not meet again until December and the new interpretation will prevail at least until that time.

"The pitcher still must stop," said Frick after the meeting with Giles, Cronin and Segar. "The umpires definitely will continue to call balks if the pitcher does not come to a stop. This will apply to the all-star game and the World Series."

National League umpires had been following the letter of the law and insisting on the strict one-second stop. American leaguers had been advised by Cronin merely to enforce a stop. Although Giles advised his umpires to be more liberal in their interpretation a week ago, National League umpires have been calling as many as ever.

Asked whether he thinks the meeting will reduce the number of balks in his league, Giles said, "not too much until the pitchers learn to stop. There still can be a difference of opinion as to what constitutes a stop."

"I don't like to see so many balks. But I can't tell the umpires not to call them if they see them."

Cronin said he does not expect to see any increase in the number of balks called in the American League.

Giles said the balk-watching resulted from a change in the balk rule to cover a move by pitchers to first base. Previously the change of last winter had nothing to do with the one-second rule that had been in effect since 1950, it made the umpires balk-conscious.

Golfers Open Season With "Fun Day"

The golfers called it "Fun Day"—and that is what it turned out to be and a highly enjoyable one at that.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club kicked off its golfing season with a mixed two-ball foursome.

Seventy-two golfers of both genders enjoyed brilliant weather and of course the course.

The golf was not "serious" in the literal sense of the word. Players generally got the "feel" of the course and the consensus was "all to favor."

The "fun" came from the fact the golfers used but two clubs, an iron and a putter.

Harry Birkenshaw and Eva Ketchison topped the field with the first low gross. Bill Townson and Doris Hogle were second and Stan Armstrong and Dolly Diamond third.

Pete Aeton and Robin Jeff[illegible] with Chips and Dorothy Lunn shared the low net honors with Roy Jeffery and Anne Acton next in line.

A good field of lady golfers will inaugurate the weekly Thursday "draw" tomorrow.

Sunday, May 19, sees the Jewellers' Trophy draw and a mixed two-ball and dinner by request.

Western Hospitality Criticized

Hockey, Not Social Event

EDMONTON (CP)—The hospitality of Edmonton to visitors was criticized Tuesday by three visitors from Niagara Falls, Ont., and one declared that Western hospitality is not all it's cracked up to be.

The three, Mayor Franklin Miller, Mrs. Miller and coach Hap Emms of the Niagara Falls Flyers, are here for the best-of-seven Memorial Cup finals between Flyers and Edmonton Oil Kings.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller said that so far the hockey is exciting but the social scene is dead. They said that in Niagara Falls some entertainment usually is arranged for visitors but so far they know of nothing arranged here.

Mrs. Miller said it was "terribly disheartening."

They were met on arrival Friday by Art Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Some of the women with the team made their own arrangements to go to Jasper Park, 240 miles west of here.

On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Miller visited city hall. On Wednesday they will have lunch with Mayor Elmer Roper and Mrs. Roper.

Miller said the Edmonton club has been "stand-offish" with the Niagara team.

Leo Leclerc, Oil Kings manager, said the visitors should have no complaints.

"We are only reciprocating. Nothing was ever arranged for us when we went east. This is no social event; this is the Memorial Cup finals," he said.

Potter expressed surprise at the complaint. The Flyers will be taken on an Edmonton tour today.

"I don't think they're doing too badly for a four-day trip," he said.

MAY BE FIRST

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States may have its first Negro player on the Davis Cup tennis team this year—Arthur Ashe, a 19-year-old UCLA student from Richmond, Va. "This boy has talent running out his ears—he is the finest Negro tennis prospect we have ever had," Bob Kelleher, Davis Cup playing captain, said Tuesday in naming Ashe on a 11 - man squad which is being tested for the 1963 Davis Cup campaign.

RAISE LIMIT

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Golf Association has boosted its mid-season player limit to 21 from 20, President Tommy Richardson said Tuesday. The revised player limit becomes effective midnight, May 15, and will continue through Aug. 12, 20 days before the season's end on Sept. 2. "The clubs complained of the unusual number of doubleheaders piled up due to bad early season weather," explained Richardson, "and they feared they may not have enough pitching to handle the heavier schedule."

ML Garden May Be Curling HQ

TORONTO (CP) — Curling took place on four ice sheets pulled ice at Maple Leaf Gardens Tuesday as officials began tests in hopes of finding the first national invitation bonspiel here next winter.

World champion skip Ernie Richardson of Regina joined a group of Toronto curlers in the tests. Officials hope to make the Gardens a centre for important curling events.

Tentative plans call for a three-day bonspiel early in January, 1964, to which the eight best rinks in Canada will be invited. A bid has already been made for the 1965 Canadian men's championship.

Boston Tops

By MIKE RATHBY
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's just possible Bill Freehan will make Gus Triandos the Wally Pipp of Detroit Tigers.

Freehan, a $100,000 bonus catcher, continued to give every indication that he's here to stay when he slammed a two-run homer, a triple and a double as Detroit whipped New York 6-3 Tuesday night and dropped the Yankees out of first place in the American League.

He also gave rise to the suspicion that Triandos might find himself without a job in a situation somewhat parallel to Pipp's days. It will be remembered, stepped out of the Yankee line-up one day with a headache and a guy named Lou Gehrig stepped in.

Gehrig played 2,130 consecutive games.

Freehan got shoved into the Tiger line-up when first baseman Norm Cash broke a finger. But when Cash returned to action against the Yankees, Detroit manager Bob Scheffing figured he had to have Freehan's hot bat somewhere. So Triandos languished his catcher's equipment.

STARTS WITH HOMERS

Freehan, a big right-handed swinger signed off the University of Michigan campus, started his pro career with homers and a double against Baltimore Sunday and followed with a 3-for-5 performance Monday night against the Yankees.

He now has nine hits in his last 10 official trips and has driven in 12 times in his last 13 appearances and has hitted his batting average to .346.

While Freehan was shelling Yankee pitching, former Yankee Hank Torre pitched a shutout for the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland belted Washington 7-3 in 11 innings in a wild game in which a pitcher wound up playing the outfield for the Senators.

FIGURES IN SCORING

Freehan's heroics in four of the Tigers runs. He tripled off Yankee starter Bill Stafford in the second and scored on Dick Auliffe's single. He hit his homer off Stafford in the fourth. He doubled in the seventh and eventually scored on Bubba Phillips' sacrifice fly. Phil Mosai allowed the only New York runs on Tom Tresh's two-run ninth inning homer.

Turley, now 1-3, retired 12 Twins in order at one point, but just managed to beat Jim Perry. Perry acquired from Cleveland last Thursday in a trade for Jack Kralick, is permitted only three hits. The Angels, however, needed only two hits to drive home the first inning. Leon Wagner's single drove in one run and Billy George drove home another. Two other when outfielder Bob Allison failed to throw home on George Thomas' short fly.

The only Baltimore run off Wilson came in the seventh on a single by Jim Gentile, Jerry and Boog Powell's double after the Red Sox had moved in front 5-0 in the top half of the inning on Lu Clinton's two-run homer. Orioles starter Robin Roberts lost his fourth in his sixth try for victory. No. 1.

John Buzhardt pitched and batted White Sox to their 7th victory over the As, dropping Kansas City out of a tie for first place. Buzhardt drove in the deciding run with a seventh inning single and allowed only five hits and a run before Hoyt Wilhelm came on in the ninth to preserve the victory.

PROVOKES BELOW

Johnny Romano's pinch-hit double with the bases loaded and Al Luplow's three-run single were the key blows as the Indians came up with four runs in the 11th. The Senators, who had Jim Piersall, Jim King, Chuck Cottier and coach George Case ejected during the game and used various other players in utility roles, wound up with Jerry Lumpe, Dennis Daniels playing the outfield.

Umpire Al Salerno threw Piersall out of the game in the first inning.

Jim King was ejected in the Senators' 10th after Salerno called a ball on the third pitch to him. King turned and said something about Salerno's call on the previous pitch. Chuck Cottier and coach George Case also were ejected.

The game was held up several minutes while manager Mickey Vernon and several of the players fawned with Salerno. The Senators had used all of their players except Lumpe and Jim Bronstad took the third call strike in batting for King.

'Jumping' Player Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cleveland Indians suspended outfielder Gena Green Tuesday for jumping the club in Los Angeles Monday. Manager Birdie Tebbetts said Green was suspended "as of the time he missed the plane."

Earlier, Cleveland President Gabe Paul said disciplinary action—probably a fine—will be taken against Green when he rejoins the team, and added he had no plans to sell or trade Green to Los Angeles Angels or any other club.

Tebbetts said: "Green could have a profitable baseball career as a pinch hitter if he would make up his mind he is that kind of a ball player."

Green remained in Los Angeles Monday as the Indians flew to New York. He said he either wanted to play regularly or be traded, preferably to Los Angeles.

In Los Angeles, Green asked in an interview:

"How can they suspend me when I quit?"

Minor Baseball Coaches Needed

A meeting of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association has been called for Thursday night of this week.

The meeting is scheduled for the Recreation Centre, on Pinnacle Street, at 7.30.

Coaches are definitely needed and anyone interested is asked to either attend the meeting or to call the Recreation office at 968-3561.

Players will be allotted to teams and teams to coaches at Thursday's meeting.

Name Dupas Boxer of The Month

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Ralph Dupas of New Orleans, newly crowned world junior middleweight champion, was named boxer of the month by the World Boxing Association Tuesday for his victory April 29 over Denny Moyer.

Dupas edged out Jose Stable, Cuban welterweight, who upset Curtis Cokes of Dallas recently.

Tony Petronella of Providence, chairman of the rating committee, dropped Ingemar Johansson, ex - heavyweight champion, from fourth to sixth in the heavyweight division following his bout with Brian London of England.

Although Johansson won, he was knocked down in the final round and will undergo physical tests to determine his condition in the ring, Petronella said.

No Canadians are ranked in any divisions.

Alex Karras Quits Wrestling

DETROIT (AP)—Alex Karras, defensive tackle of the Detroit Lions football team, has been given up wrestling and wants to return to football in 1964.

Karras and Lou Thesz of the Green Bay Packers were suspended indefinitely by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle last month after admitting they had bet on games.

Both will miss the 1963 season, but what happens after that depends on Karras and Hornung.

"They must avoid trouble or incidents that would reflect on pro football," said Rozelle, visiting Detroit for a meeting of NFL publicists. "It's true a person may be innocently involved in incidents. But these things still reflect on the game."

His apparently was hinting at the incidents involving Karras. One was a basketball fight and the other a brawl involving wrestler Dick the Bruiser and a slight policemen in a Detroit bar partly owned by Karras.

Paul Pender Announces Retirement

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Pender, stripped of his world middleweight title in all but his home state of Massachusetts, announced his retirement from boxing Tuesday and took a few sharp slaps at various boxing promoters and commissions. The articulate craftsman said he was retiring for two reasons: "The practically impossible situation of trying to solve the dual claims to the middleweight title" and because of the promoter's inability to get television coverage of a scheduled bout with Joey Giardello.

Irving Berlin Plans Nothing Special on 75th Birthday

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"When you get to be 75 you approach birthdays with realism," says Irving Berlin.

So the realistic songwriter plans nothing special when he reaches 75 on Saturday. He will be with his wife and the families of his three daughters at the Berlin home in the Catskill Mountains.

But Berlin admitted that the last year has been a significant one in his long career. It saw his return to Broadway with Mr. President after almost a decade of inaction. And now he has signed with MGM for his return to films with another Berlin cavalcade, Say It With Music.

Berlin's return to show business was dramatic. After assisting with two film musicals, White Christmas and There's No Business Like Show Business, he became a recluse.

"I didn't feel too well," he explained during his visit here. "Part of it was physical and part was mental. You can become quite ill if you think you are ill. It was a form of depression."

"I had thought that I needed a rest, but I ended up by just being restless. The real cure was to get back to work."

He remarked that he had gone through a similar period in 1930-32. He was dissatisfied with everything he wrote and feared he had lost his touch. Out of that period came Say It Isn't So and How Deep Is The Ocean?

After some false starts, Berlin returned to Broadway this season with Mr. President. It was his first stage musical since Call Me Madam in 1950, and the event was signalled by a fantastic $2,500,000 advance sale. It met boos from the critics.

"Nobody likes bad reviews," Berlin commented, "but I thought the ones for Mr. President were a little too harsh. Some of the critics seemed not to be reviewing the show, but the people who created it."

Jan Rubes European Holiday MC

Jan Rubes will be the master of ceremonies for "European Holiday" Mr. Rubes who completed his studies at the Prague Conservatory shortly after the war, and before graduation became the youngest bass at the Prague Opera, has established a solid reputation with musical audiences throughout the continent. He has devoted most of his time and effort to opera, having sung over forty leading roles in Canada and the United States. Across Canada he is a favorite performer of television viewers and radio listeners. He spends nearly all his time in this country as a leading member of the Canadian Opera Company; as the host and singer of his CBC radio program "Songs of My People" (now in its tenth year); as star of Canadian Summer Festivals in Vancouver, Montreal and Stratford; or enjoying himself with lighter music at the summer outdoor theatres. Shortly the new Walt Disney film "The Incredible Journey" will be released. In this Disney movie, which is in full Cinemascope and color, he is portraying a Finnish farmer living in Canada.

Haunting melodies of five European countries will ring through O'Keefe Centre when "European Holiday" is staged for three nights, Friday, Saturday and Sunday - May 10,11 and 12.

Music and dances of Italy, Hungary, Germany, Poland and the Ukraine will be performed by five outstanding ethnic groups from in and around Toronto. These groups are made up of New Canadians and their sons and daughters. Together they will give the theatregoer a fascinating evening's entertainment of song and dance from their homelands.

Mother, Please, Rock 'n Roll Record, Named After Ad

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A new rock 'n' roll record called Mother, Please is achieving a certain amount of popularity with the young crowd these days, but is most notable for the fact that it borrows its title and theme from a long-retired television commercial.

The commercial itself was launched more than a year ago, part of a batch advertising a headache remedy. It showed a young woman snapping irritably: "Mother, please! I'd rather do it myself!"

Later, headache gone, she offers her mother a cup of tea and there is a smiling fade-out.

Now, mother's rarely are seen because a new batch of irritable headache sufferers commercials has been cooked up. But Mother, Please! continues to have impact. It is a rag-line used by television comedians and teen-agers. It has been the basis for a number of comedy sketches.

"It's curious, the way that thing caught on and stays around," commented an advertising executive. "I suppose it just proves that by the time the client starts pounding the desk and demanding new copy in his commercials, the good old public is barely beginning to notice the old ones."

Nobody seems to have figured a sure-fire way to catch the public's fancy, but when something like Mother, Please! occurs, the company is usually pleased and the advertising agency is ecstatic.

The test, however, is of whether the public is amused, entertained or impressed. It is whether the commercial sells the product—and whether the public relates the commercial to the brand name.

Demand for More Engineers And Scientists Is Mounting Government Survey Shows

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—As the technological revolution gains speed, the demand for more engineers and scientists is mounting, a new government survey shows.

On top of the rising requirements for professional people in scientific and technical fields, there are shortages as well—widening the science gap at a time when technology is advancing at an ever-increasing pace.

The survey shows that not only do industry and government want more engineers and scientists, but so also do the universities, the main source of future technologists.

To pinpoint Canada's professional manpower needs to 1964, the federal labor department polled 2,800 employers in industry, government and education. About 2,500 replied, disclosing that some 1,600 employers had engineers or scientists on their payrolls.

The result was made public in a professional manpower report just released.

It shows the greatest shortages in the social science fields where the vacancy rate is 10.4 per cent, compared to 6.2 per cent in engineering and six per cent in natural science.

SCIENTISTS NEEDED

The main vacancies were for industrial and metallurgical engineers, mathematicians and physicists, sociologists and statisticians.

Heavy shortages were reported by industry and government. In government, the vacancy rate was 7.9 per cent for engineers, seven per cent for natural scientists and 11.3 per cent for social scientists. Industry's rate was six per cent for engineers, 5.4 per cent for natural scientists and 12.3 per cent for social scientists.

The university sector reported the lowest rate of vacancies—2.9 per cent, engineering; 4.2 per cent, natural science; 4.7 per cent, social science.

Looking ahead, employers in the three sectors forecast that between 1962 and 1964 their requirements for engineers will increase at an average annual rate of 5.9 per cent. In the same period, they expect the need for natural scientists to rise at a 5.4-per-cent rate and for social scientists at a rate of 9.1 per cent.

Universities and colleges see their needs rising at the highest rate—10.7 per cent for engineers, nine per cent for natural scientists, 13.2 per cent for social scientists.

ENGINEERS AT TOP

Industry said its expected rate of gain will be somewhat lower, ranging from 5.2 per cent for natural scientists to 8.8 per cent for social scientists. The government estimate was slightly lower.

Here's how the demand shapes up in terms of occupations:

The greatest increase in demand in the engineering professions is expected to fall in the industrial and mechanical fields, where job openings are increasing at a rate of 10.7 and 7.3 per cent, respectively.

The smallest gains are in the mineral industry, where employment opportunities are expanding more slowly. Demand for metallurgical and geological engineers is expected to rise annually by 3.1 per cent, for mining engineers by 2.3 per cent.

In the natural science field, the greatest need seems to lie in the fields of mathematics and physics, where the respective rates of gain are 10.5 and 8.3 per cent.

Lowest estimates are for the fields of geology, agriculture and forestry, each around three to four per cent a year.

Of the three social science professions, the greatest increase in requirements is expected to be for sociologists. In this field, demand is expected to rise by 13.3 per cent each year to 1964. For statisticians, the rate of increase is 10.4 per cent, while it is 7.8 per cent for economists.

Attack Mounted Against Validity Of Import Levy

Reitman's Ltd. Claims $112,151 Repayments

OTTAWA (CP)—A legal challenge of the validity of last year's emergency import surcharges has been launched in Exchequer Court which, if successful, could involve the refunding of close to $100,000,000 collected under the levies.

A test case in which a chain of ladies' wear shops, Reitman's Limited, claims repayments totalling $112,151 has been started by an Ottawa law firm.

A spokesman for the law firm of Gowling, MacTavish, Osborne and Henderson said Wednesday that similar petitions for 29 to 30 other clients, involving a total approaching $500,000, will be filed in the next few days.

Besides seeking repayment of import surcharges, the petition of right by Reitman's Limited seeks a court declaration that the cabinet orders-in-council of last June 24 imposing the surcharges were invalid and that money collected under the levies is being held illegally.

IMPOSED FOR AUSTERITY

The surcharges were imposed as part of the former Conservative government's austerity measures to halt an international run on the Canadian dollar that was threatening the country's foreign exchange reserves. The levies, varying at five, 10 and 15 per cent, were imposed on about half of Canada's import trade. In followed months the surcharges were eased in successive stages and last March 31 were removed entirely.

The austerity program, imposed by order-in-council to meet an emergency when Parliament was not sitting, came under fire from the Liberal opposition during the last Parliament. Paul Martin, now external affairs minister, said in the Commons that the program "has no legal foundation whatsoever."

The then justice minister, Davie Fulton, said the government had received a legal opinion from the crown's law officers that the orders-in-council were valid. A Liberal attempt to have the legal opinion made public was unsuccessful.

The government has 30 days from March 31 to file a defence in Exchequer Court against the Reitman's petition. The case is not expected to be heard before next fall at the earliest. The court's decision could be

JFK, PEARSON TALKS TO COVER "WATERFRONT"

Investment, Trade, Defence on Agenda

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says he intends to cover "the entire waterfront" of Canada-United States relations when he talks with Prime Minister Pearson at Hyannis Port, Mass., this weekend.

The "waterfront" includes such items as defence, trade and investment. But some of the president's other remarks about Canadian affairs indicate that Pearson may have to do more lecturing than listening — to clear up some of Kennedy's misconceptions of how the Quebec government got its money to expropriate private power companies in that province.

As he visited the question at his press conference Wednesday, Kennedy said the U.S. government should provide India with financial aid to build a new steel mill, suggesting that those who are opposed to such a plan should have a look at the situation in Quebec.

The president said there is an important distinction between providing help to a government to build a new steel mill and merely assisting that government in taking possession of one already built.

LEND TO CANADA?

In words that bore little relation to fact, Kennedy said: "... We lend hundreds of millions of dollars to Canada to join in the nationalization of the electric lights in Quebec. . . .

Actually, the Quebec government raised the money in the U.S. money market, paying commercial rates.

India has been pressing the U.S. government for a direct, low-interest, long - term loan from the treasury to build the steel mill. Kennedy said the U.S. should help build it because India needs the steel.

The president said he assumed the nuclear test ban treaty discussions and was extremely pessimistic about them.

Kennedy predicted a new round of nuclear testing by the United States and the Soviet Union unless a test ban treaty is negotiated this year—which he doubts.

If the prediction comes true, Kennedy said it "would be a great disaster for the interests of all concerned."

Kennedy's pessimism on this subject was watching in equal measure of optimism

Transmitters Put on Animals Will Keep Track of Movements

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Rube Goldberg and Signor Marconi have provided the inspiration for new devices for closer study of the habits of wild animals in Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park.

Marconi invented wireless. Cartoonist Goldberg's inventions don't come under any particular classification, except that they usually involve doing something simple the hard way.

Wireless is now going to be used to keep track of the movements of such animals as bears, timber wolf and mink in big park. Tiny transmitters will be attached to the animals.

Researches headed by Bruce Stephenson, director of the park's wildlife research station, will track the animals with direction-finding receivers tuned to the tones emitted by the transmitters.

The radios have a range of about a mile and their signals will last five or six months.

Each animal will have a special code so that when the tracker hears the beeps he will know by their pitch and frequency whether he is hearing for B or mink X.

The park staff designs its own traps for animals and birds such as the grouse trap which

CROWN AGENCY FOR FEED GRAIN RECOMMENDED

CFA Presents Brief To Federal Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal agency serving feed grain consumers was recommended Wednesday by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture in its first appearance before the new Liberal government.

The federation's executive met Agriculture Minister Harry Hays and Rene Tremblay, minister without portfolio who is to become a second agriculture minister specifically in charge of Eastern Canadian farm affairs.

The feed grain crown agency was the only new item in the list of proposals discussed in a general way.

They included an early start on a national school milk program and establishment of a Canadian dairy advisory council—the latter already begun under the former Conservative government.

There were these other suggestions:

A planned policy of railway abandonment on the Prairies to avoid "piecemeal" withdrawal of service.

WANT WHEAT SOLD

Continued aggressive efforts to sell wheat, tied in with credit facilities.

Federal legislation to reinsure provinces against heavy losses from crop failures.

Extension of farm credit facilities to cover emergencies and rural hoarding.

The feed-grain formula was another manifestation of interest in providing adequate supplies for Eastern consumers at stable prices—a condition hampered now by existing storage and purchase patterns and higher costs after water transportation freezes up on the Great Lakes-seaway system.

The agriculture brief have an advisory committee formed from representatives of organized farmers.

Agency functions would cover these points:

Administration of the system of federal assistance on feed transportation costs.

Public information activity to force action, when required, in making the Eastern Canada grain storage available for essential carry-over stocks.

Administration of a recon-

Wm. Goodfellow Leaves Cabinet, Resigns Seat

TORONTO (CP)—William A. Goodfellow, 67, a cabinet minister in former provincial administrations, has resigned from both the cabinet and seat in the legislature, it was announced Wednesday.

Mr. Goodfellow, first elected as member for Northumberland riding in 1943, told a press conference he was watching to make room for a younger man.

Premier John Robarts said he accepted the resignation with regret.

Mr. Goodfellow was first appointed to the provincial cabinet in 1946 as welfare minister under then Premier George Drew. Since then, he has been municipal affairs, agriculture and reforestation minister, until his retirement, he was minister without portfolio in the Robarts administration.

Last week, Charles Daley, an Ontario cabinet minister for 19 years, resigned his seat as member for Lincoln riding.

Caribou Bones Are Checked To Keep Track of Fallout

OTTAWA (CP) — Chunks of Caribou bone are being tested for radioactivity here as a precautionary check on northern fallout.

The program — a combined operation between the Canadian wildlife service, which provides the bone samples, and the radiation protection division of the federal health department.

If follows published reports last year by American biologist William O. Pruitt that caribou may be a "hot" pipeline passing radioactive strontium - 90 and cesium-137 to humans in dosages beyond safe levels.

Mr. Pruitt worked with the wildlife service in its studies on why the caribou — a staple source of food and clothing — was declining in numbers. He wrote last February in northern Canada and Alaska, like reindeer in northern Europe, are "hot spots" of radiation because the mosses and grasses they eat are prone to store up fallout from nuclear detonations.

Russia's resumption of nuclear testing was conducted mainly at high altitudes in northern areas.

W. W. Mair, director of the wildlife service, says his group is interested in any radioactive problem from an animal standpoint and began preliminary studies in 1961. This includes collection of data from areas outside Canada.

Dr. A. H. Booth of the health department's radiation division says the material, including the caribou bones, hasn't been fully analysed yet and no results have been produced. There is no indication that any hazard to humans exists, he says, but the program being developed is designed to make "absolutely sure."

Tests conducted in Alaska "do

4 RESIDENTS DIE IN FIRE IN ROOMING HOUSE

Identification Said Almost Impossible

MONTREAL (CP)—Four residents of a downtown rooming house were killed Wednesday in a fast-moving fire. Montreal morgue officials said the bodies were burnt so badly identification "is almost impossible."

A fifth tenant, William Laprade, 54, is in serious condition in hospital. He is unconscious and suffering third - degree burns.

The fire started on the second floor of a three - storey wood - and - brick building on Craig Street East, just across the street from the rear of Montreal city hall.

Det. Sgt. Roland Monpetit of the Montreal detective force's arson squad said the fire snaked along the second-storey hallway and up into the third floor "like a fish."

He said the origin of the fire has been traced to a hallway which he said might have exploded.

Three badly-scorched bodies were found near a small fire escape door on the second floor, and the fifth was found in the second-storey hall.

Sgt. Monpetit said it appeared they had died of asphyxiation before the flames reached them.

Phillip Lemay, 77, also a tenant, was taken to hospital and treated for shock.

He was released in minutes and returned to the fire. "He was

Truce Continues At Birmingham Despite Arrests

Racial Differences May Be Solved by Talks

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—This southern industrial city may know today whether month-long desegregation demonstrations finally have come to an end.

A 24-hour moratorium on the protest marches by many hundreds of Negroes during the last few days ends at 1 p.m. EDT.

Negro leaders hoped that a settlement of racial difference might be reached soon.

The truce almost collapsed a few hours after it started when two of the integrationist leaders were jailed briefly, but it weathered this crisis.

Negro leaders announced the 24-hour truce Wednesday as heavily reinforced police patrolled the streets that were in sharp contrast to the mob scenes of recent days.

The word came shortly before President Kennedy held a press conference in Washington. The president said he was gratified by progress in what he described as "an ugly situation."

CRITICIZES PRESIDENT

Governor George Wallace of Alabama, a militant segregationist, called the president's remarks "unjust and unfair" and said the demonstrations had been carried on by "lawless mobs in conflict with lawfully constituted authority." Wallace said he would have no part in conferences to compromise on the issue of segregation."

Along with a biracial committee, two aides of Attorney-General Kennedy have been working behind the scenes to bring both sides together. The No. 1 negotiator is Assistant Attorney-General Burke Marshall.

There was no indication of what actually brought the truce. It was a quiet lull in an explosive situation in which more than 2,400 Negroes have been arrested since the protest demonstrations began April 3. More

First Poqo Terrorists Are Hanged

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—Six Negroes accused of murdering their chief were hanged here today—the first members of the terrorist Poqo organization to be executed.

The men were sentenced to death in Umtata, in the Transkei, Feb. 7. They all pleaded guilty.

The accused said in court they were ordered by Poqo leaders in Cape Town to kill their chief, Gwebindala Gqobora of the Tembu tribe.

They were then given £15 each and weapons including a pistol and a spear.

They killed the chief Oct. 29 near St. Mark's Mission in the Transkei.

Defend Use of Police Dogs

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) Sheriff Melvin Bailey and Birmingham Police Chief Jamie Moore said trained police dogs were used when Negroes began demonstrating in the streets "because the officers had to get in close."

And the reason for that, they said, was because at times between 100 and 125 policemen were outnumbered many times over by the crowds they were trying to control.

They made the statements in an interview Wednesday.

"Using police dogs is one of the accepted practices in police riot work," Bailey said. "The leader is contrary to some reports that have gone out of here — are not dog. They are about six feet long. Normally, the leash is wrapped twice around the officer's wrist so that the dog can't possibly get away. The leash itself is about a quarter."

Photographs of the dogs, lunging at Negroes, have been shown in many parts of the United States and the world. Probably no aspect of the racially explosive strife in Birmingham has stirred so much reaction.

"When the crowds grew so big," Bailey said, "the dogs were the only thing restraining them. There were too few men."

Wood Alcohol Toll in Bowery May Reach 31

NEW YORK (AP) — The death toll from wood alcohol poisoning among Bowery derelicts may reach 31, official say. Autopsies continued today on suspected victims of the liquid.

A hardware store clerk has been accused of selling wood alcohol that killed two of the derelicts.

Additional autopsies Wednesday disclosed at least 10 deaths had been caused by men treated from imbibing wood alcohol, with 21 additional deaths apparently due to the same cause.

Several deaths attributed to drinking the alcohol were reported earlier in the week in Brooklyn.

David Feit, 65, employed in a lower East Side hardware store, was arrested Wednesday on a homicide charge, accused of selling "denatured alcohol which caused the deaths of two persons. Held on a first-degree manslaughter charge, in connection

Will Initiate Crash Program To Improve Penal Conditions

OTTAWA (CP)—A comprehensive study of conditions in federal penitentiaries will be undertaken by the federal government in the wake of recent prison riots and the death of a guard last Thursday at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary outside Montreal.

A delegation of guards from St. Vincent de Paul and representatives of the Civil Service Association of Canada said they received this assurance at a meeting Wednesday with Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier.

J. C. Best, president of the 32,500-member association, said Mr. Chevrier was "sympathetic" to a five-point program placed before him by the association aimed at improving conditions in penitentiaries. He said the delegation was happy about the way Mr. Chevrier received its representations.

Later, Mr. Chevrier said a number of steps already have been taken and others will be put into effect. Among them were "the government decision to segregate dangerous psychopaths, provide greater protection for guards, and hire 25 additional guards at St. Vincent de Paul.

"Our first point was that we wanted a crash program for building an institution for psychopaths," Mr. Best said.

"The minister assured us that this was going to be done, that Showdown in Syria?

Nasserites Battle Ruling Socialists

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Pro-Nasser rioting and gunfire were reported again today in Damascus and Aleppo as the crisis between Nasserites and the ruling Ba'th socialists party continued in Syria.

Casualties were indicated in the northern city of Aleppo, where the army was trying to maintain a curfew. The government said a policeman was killed there Wednesday, many police were injured and a large number of arrests made.

A Western diplomat in Aleppo reported by telephone that shooting started in the pro-Nasser quarters of the ancient city. He said heavy gunfire was heard, followed by light firing through the morning.

The diplomat said most of the shooting apparently was directed into the crowds and "the army appears to have the situation in hand."

In Damascus, hundreds of students shouting support for President Nasser seized control of the Damascus high chool and fired stones from the roof for three hours at police in the street below. Riot police finally dispersed the students by firing shots in the air.

Four other pro-Nasser demonstrations were reported in other sections of the city. The reports said armored cars moved in troops, broke up the demonstrations by firing into the air.

No casualties were reported among the Damascus demonstrators, but several policemen were hurt by stones.

Interior Minister Brig. Amin Hafez said police in Aleppo were attacked, stoned and beaten by knife-wielding demonstrators led by "hired agents." Demonstrators fired from behind barricades of rocks, overturned cars and buses, slashed telephone wires and shouted slogans.

No Hospital 'Open House' This Year Due to Crowding

There will be no "open house" at Belleville General Hospital this year to initiate observance of Hospital Week to be held May 12th to 18th.

The reason — too many people at the hospital already.

Over-crowded conditions at the hospital with corridor beds prevalent on every floor has prompted hospital authorities to the year dispense with the customary "Hospital Day" when tours of the institution are invited.

"The hospital is too crowded to conduct tours", stated hospital administrator Werner Daechsel.

Instead, members of the local press and radio on Wednesday were invited to the hospital where they were shown through many of the departments, and had their operation explained by courteous officials.

PACK IN BEDS

They saw how hospital authorities, by using a shoe horn technique, are able to care for an average of 268 patients in a hospital with a rated capacity of 227 beds.

They do it by setting up beds in the corridors, by turning private rooms into semi-private rooms and by packing still more beds into ward rooms.

But in spite of crowded conditions members of the hospital staff are accomplishing near miracles in their efforts to provide quality care under more than trying conditions.

Board Chairman J. N. Yan, over told the group of visiting newsmen that the Belleville General Hospital presented a better than two-and-a-half million dollar operation annually.

459 EMPLOYEES

Of this approximately one-and-a-half million dollars went to the latter than 450 paid employees.

Dr. Bruce Cronk, president of the Medical Association, said that everything at the hospital had advanced with the times with the exception of the institution's physical capacity to accommodate all the patients requiring admission.

The medical association head presented a detailed picture of over-crowded conditions at the hospital and told of the pressing need for added accommodation to serve Belleville and district.

Hydroplane Racing Club Organized

The Quinte Racing Club, for hydroplanes, was officially formed at a meeting here last night and plans for the initial season of operation were made.

An interim executive, consisting of Homer Hirst, Reid Seames, Bill Boulter and Doug Clark, was formed as some 28 interested persons attended the meeting.

Another meeting has been called for next Wednesday, at Bob Bland's shop, and a regular executive will be elected at that time.

Present plans call for races to be held on the holiday weekend of May 20. The course will be decided, likely at the next meeting, but it will be on the Bay of Quinte off the Yacht Club. The club hopes to find a spot most acceptable from both the racing and spectator's viewpoint. Ten boats are said to be ready for racing at this time.

The club will work in conjunction with the Yacht club.

Different classes will be formed for different horse-power boats and a racing schedule will be drawn up.

It is hoped to complete most of these plans in next Wednesday's meeting and any boat enthusiasts in the district are invited to attend.

City Hall Bowling Loop Holds Banquet

The City Hall staff bowling league crowned its their season's activities with a turkey banquet and presentation of trophies at Club Canada last night.

Following the sumptuous repast served by the CNR Ladies' Auxiliary, Al Hutchinson, proprietor of the Bowl-O-Drome, presented the winners with their respective trophies. These included: ladies' high average, Doreen Brown (160); ladies' high triple, Shareen Kinny (654) and ladies' high single, Alice Sickle (218); and the men's high average, Jack Kane (201), men's high triple, Charles Mott (700), and men's high single, Grant Sickle (245).

Bill Este, captain of the winning team received the Annie Haggerty Memorial trophy which was presented by John Rollins on behalf of his brother Maurice Rollins, who donated individual trophies to each member of the top team. Others on the team included Doreen Brown, Mary Logue, Wilbur Purcell and Charles Mott.

Jack Kane, president, expressed sincere appreciation to his executive for the fine co-operation throughout the past year.

Dancing rounded out the evening's entertainment with various door prizes and spot dance prizes given out.

Hospital Started in 1886 In Need of Further Expansion

It took a train wreck in the immediate Belleville area with its dozens dead and seriously injured to prompt the establishment of the Belleville General Hospital back in the 1880's.

Parts of that original 50-year old hospital are still in use and ample periodical additions (the last in 1956) the old hospital is bursting at the seams with additional beds in dire need.

Dr. Bruce Cronk, president of the Belleville Medical Association, told visiting newsmen at a hospital luncheon yesterday, that the Belleville General Hospital was unique in that it was the only hospital in Canada that was planned and operated by a group of women.

For 62 years the Belleville Hospital was operated by the Women's Christian Association which in the late 1920's decided they had had enough and turned the hospital operations over to a male group.

PROUD OF HOSPITAL

Dr. Cronk said he was proud of the fact that Belleville was, but was looking forward to what it will be when planned expansion is completed.

The hospital needs of the Belleville district should be met if at all possible within the means of the community, he said.

But back to the origin of the Belleville Hospital.

Back in the 1870's two trains collided in the Belleville area and the injured were brought into the city by horse and wagon and in the absence of a hospital were cared for in parish halls, railway freight sheds and private homes. Public spirited women, many of them without experience, nursed five or six doctors tended them.

Shortly afterwards the wife of Dr. J. R. Ponton who at that time was head of the then Albert College, got together a group of women and formed the Women's Christian Association. To this aim, all were to assist the poverty stricken and provide an institution for the care of the sick in the city and county.

60 WOMEN IN GROUP

There were 60 women in that first WCA group, and their efforts to start a hospital were fought on every turn — by city council, by physicians and by the citizens in general.

When they did get around to providing a home for the aged they could get nobody to go into it.

"It seems there was some kind of a stigma against going to what was then known as the 'poorhouse' ", Dr. Cronk said.

Eventually there was a change of heart on the part of council and the citizens in general toward the idea of a hospital and money started to be raised.

The women themselves staged pancake socials, held teas and candy sales and for four years admission raised $1,100. The city council voted $1,000, and the County of Hastings voted $1,000.

MAYOR GIVES SALARY

Even the then Mayor of the day donated his salary of $200 for one year.

Eventually a contract was let for $12,500 for a home for the aged and a hospital.

There is no record of which of the two buildings was first in use, but not too many years elapsed before both buildings were in use for hospital accommodation.

Most of these 90-year old buildings are still in use as part of the present day hospital.

The school of nursing at Belleville Hospital started in 1906 with Fraser and Hudson as the first graduate.

In 1939 that was known as the West Wing was added and again another wing in 1956.

In addition other hospital facilities were provided, including laboratory, x-ray and physiotherapy equipment.

LACK BED SPACE

On the medical and nursing level the hospital has kept pace with the need, but due to lack of bed space the hospital was now physically incapable of filling its role in the community.

Dr. Cronk said that maximum use must prevail and although doctors have to recommend what is necessary for patient health, the responsibility of raising the money to pay for the services was that of the municipality.

"But we cannot have the quality of medical care deteriorate because of lack of modern equipment and space and we cannot do the job under present conditions."

The offence was committed in an automobile parked in the Middleton Park RCAF subdivision.

The Sounds of Music, Local Interest Bring CJBQ Radio's Highest Award

The packaged product of one of the nation's highly-organized industries today is much further removed from the days of the time out of sight, though rarely out of mind. However, there is more to radio than just a breast - pocketful of linked transistors idling away on a local waveleng th.

The spoon-fed word to tune to here is "local." Recent events will qualify the foregoing statement.

Radio Station CJBQ has been the local commercial radio outlet for the Quinte district for nearly 18 years. A modest enough signal to put out for the records perhaps when compared with some of the giant operations with which it shares the business - pattern known as Broadcasting.

Yet, one week ago CJBQ was acclaimed by all broadcasters in Canada as the country's top radio station. With due ceremony, station manager Frank Murray was handed the John G. Gillin Jr. award — something akin (in lay identification) to an Oscar in the Canadian broadcasting industry.

Why? Again the key word is "local."

The Gillin award goes to the radio station for outstanding service in its community, and it was on the merits of an outstanding local service project that CJBQ gained the accolade.

PLENTY OF HARD WORK

That project was the broadcasting of live music, with a subsidiary achievement - - encouragement of local talent.

"Service" is a dramatic word, but also a vague one. However, in this instance it signified plenty of hard work for Frank Murray and his station staffers.

Their submission for the award to Canadian Association of Broadcasters points this up: "It should be emphasized that the opportunity for the broadcasting of live music is very limited in smaller communities. There is actually a dearth of musical talent of a calibre suitable for broadcasting.

"However, extensive research by CJBQ resulted in the arranging of many live musical broadcasts that were warmly appreciated by the station's listeners."

The spareness of language belies the actual results of the station's research.

During the past two years there have been born forth a flourish of talent encouraged by broadcast organ recitals, piano scholarships, excerpts from local high school shows and song festivals, string music and live symphonic programs.

The "diligent search" also discovered artists of "high calibre" resident in CJBQ's broadcast community, vocalists and instrumentalists, who loaned their more polished weight to the broadcasts.

The station's project also received enthusiastic support from those intimately connected - - and concerned - - with the ex use of good music in the area.

MUCH PERSONAL SUPPORT

The pro-musical support came from such sources as the local branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers Association; the Royal Association of Church Organists and, among the individuals, Steve Choma, director of the Eastern Ontario Symphony Orchestra.

This last was the most ambitious addition constructed for the project and saw the presentation under CJBQ sponsorship of two live concerts in Belleville. The reception was such that repeat performances not only seem likely, but inevitable says Mr. Murray.

Fitting it together, not only into its broadcast pattern but a community weave, achieved last week's result when the industry's highest award was made the station. The formal presentation put it succinctly it called CJBQ's project one "at the heart of good broadcasting — namely music".

It demonstrated "what can be done with imagination and effort in utilizing and developing the talents of individuals and the support of organizations found in the communities served . . ."

Ontario Commerce Chamber Manager Is Guest Speaker At Trenton C of C Annual

TRENTON — Last night's annual meeting of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce was not the largest in history, but it was nevertheless an enthusiastic gathering of about 60 members and wives who listened to Edward Nokes, manager of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, guest speaker for the evening.

"What is the Canadian Chamber of Commerce?" asked Mr. Nokes. He said it was a national federation of some 8,500 to 9,000 chambers of commerce in all ten provinces. One of its primary functions, he said, was to provide services to community chambers by such things as field service courses, publications and a university course. If assistance is requested by the local chamber of commerce, it could become a "clearing house of ideas," he said.

Mr. Nokes deplored the fact that many chambers do not take the opportunity to get an expression of opinion from their members. An active policy statement would enable the community to present ideas at the national meeting, and thereby help to create national policy, he said.

Mr. Nokes said a local chamber must first recognize the needs of the community and then do something about them. Members should have a broad field of interest, including education, industrial promotion and community, provincial and national government. All these things, he said, are closely related to the business and social life of the community.

Problems will arise when methods are considered, he said. "But it is still possible to detect the sort of community attitude which says, "if anything comes up, we'll look after it. "But if you wait for things to happen," he said, "you will only notice the weeds."

NEED A PLAN

Mr. Nokes said the value of a proposed plan is that it commits members to a project. He said any successful chamber of commerce has a program which, if carried out, can do much to stimulate membership, appraise as it must, the different interests in the community.

Another problem, he said, was to communicate the program to the community. The program should tell the community what these are things the chamber intends to do. Everyone should understand that this is "not a hide-bound thing," he said, but an elastic program ready for any changes such as the sudden need for new industry. The chamber could then ensure that it would not be duplicating services already offered by other clubs.

Mr. Nokes said a chamber should co-operate with the municipal council, helping to bring things about for councils as well as the community. The chamber is dedicated to do this, he said, because it has its ear to the ground and can act in an advisory capacity.

Problems exist because many persons wish to criticize council. But nothing good will come of destructive criticism, he said. A chamber must always be ready to advise and to praise when necessary.

"Be ready to take a stand," he said, "but only if your facts are right and justified. If you have a stand to make, which is in direct opposition to council, I would suggest that council be informed before the public, so that a solution agreeable to all can be worked out."

No program can work without money, said Mr. Nokes. He said he usually finds that a program will be geared to the money available instead of the other way around.

He said every business and professional man in Trenton should be a member of the Chamber of Commerce, men whose interests cover a broad range of activity in the town.

Bringing one new industry employing 100 persons to the town would result in an upsurge of the whole economy of the community, he said, including creating work for 174 persons, $300,000 in new income and $290,000 more bank deposits. "The chamber can provide some very important incentives for investment: people with income," he said.

DUTY TO LEAD

The chamber's officers and directors should be charged with leadership. This requires realistic and determined leadership, and be expected to devote sufficient time to help encourage membership and community development. Leaders have to develop successors, who must see there is activity at the executive level and that things get done.

Members likewise have the responsibility to see that their fees are paid promptly, to keep chamber affairs in mind along with their business and the entire community.

ONTARIO COMMERCE AT...

Following the speaker members were entertained by Christopher Sheridan, an international circle member, whose tricks ranged from pulling a rabbit from a seemingly empty hat to eating three numerable glasses of liquid poured from a small bottle he apparently refilled every time. A film, "Gold Mine on Main Street", was also shown.

Thanks to the guest speaker and to the magician were extended by Percy McDonald.

At the outset of the meeting, Acting Mayor Claude Graham extended the greetings of the town, saying council was happy to work with the chamber, and Secretary Norman Mostrand Sprague reported on the aims and objectives of the local organization. He said these were to work with civic, commercial, industrial and agricultural interests, to work for an efficient organization of government for the town.

Mr. Sprague praised the work of the various chamber committees, with a special word for the membership committee which, he said, was able to increase the 1962 membership to twice that of the combined 1960 and 1961 totals. The membership chairman was working to get new industry for the town, he said, and hoped that 1963 would be a year of greater effort.

Head table guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Percy McDonald; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Bearen; Mr. and Mrs. Donald McPherson; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Clark; Acting Mayor Graham; W/C J. A. Arnett of the RCAF, Trenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goldberg.

Dinner was served by members of the Women's Auxiliary of Branch 110, Royal Canadian Legion, in whose hall the meeting was held.

TRENTON — Swimming and water safety awards will be handed out in the Trenton High School auditorium Saturday night, May 11. Recreation director, William Workman has issued an invitation to the public to attend the events, starting at 7.30 p.m.

Trenton First Quinte Centre With EMO Plan

TRENTON—Trenton now has an official emergency measures plan, and it's the first municipality in the Quinte area to have one.

Quinte area EMO co-ordinator, Col. Angus Duffy, said Wednesday that because of the interest shown locally in emergency planning, prime consideration had been shown to the town.

Col. Duffy also said that in the event of a national emergency, Trenton's operational headquarters would be in the Trenton Cold Storage plant. At the present time, the plant is being analyzed for "shielding" qualities. However, Col. Duffy said that it was to be presumed that the present construction of the plant would prove to be adequate protection against radioactive materials. Some weeks ago, a small room in the basement of the town's office was built at Col. Duffy's request and this was meant to house town officials, (who would carry on the municipal government in the event of a national emergency), but this proved not to have the necessary shielding qualities.

Asked if the EMO would carry out audio tests with Trenton's three air raid warning sirens in the near future, Col. Duffy said "No." Col. Duffy said that such tests would be expensive. First, permission to hold the test would have to come from the federal Defence Department. Then, arrangements would have to be made to place observers on the corporation's perimeters to report on the audibility of the tests. Any such tests he said, would have to be advertised in advance, so as to avoid panic among the townspeople. All in all, Col Duffy said, audio tests "must be very expensive," at the moment. Trenton had one "soundless" test last winter . . . just to make sure that the sirens really worked.

Apartheid Meets the Jew

A rash of red swastikas has blossomed on walls in Durban, South Africa. In case anybody missed their meaning they were accompanied by signs saying "Juden Raus" (Jews get out)..

Nobody ought to be surprised. Wherever the disease of racial prejudice is rampant, sooner or later the Jews are included in the list of those earmarked as victims. In the U.S. southland the Jews have long had the honor of earning the displeasure of the Ku Klux Klan. It was unthinkable that in South Africa, where the disease is so much more virulent, the Jews could long have escaped being lumped with the Negroes, the Indians and the "colored" or half-breeds as members of an "inferior race."

But, while there is no cause for surprise at this evidence of anti-Semitism in South Africa, there may be reason for puzzlement.

What is it about the Jews which never fails to arouse the ire of racial bigots?

No easy answer suggests itself, until one realizes that there is one excuse for apartheid or segregation which at least approaches rationality. This is the contention that equal treatment for all, regardless of race, will inevitably lead to inter-marriage. It is not wholly unreasonable to object to inter-marriage on a widespread scale. The world will have lost something if the day ever dawns when all its inhabitants are a uniform coffee-color. The delights of that striking variety which the Negro brings to a union with those of white blood, producing a liveliness which even the "dark white" races of the Mediterranean cannot hope to match, will not be entirely adequate recompense for the disappearance of shining blonde and rich auburn heads. A world with one race of humans is as little to be destired as a world with one breed of cows. Something of its colorfulness would have disappeared.

So goes the argument of the "reasonable" advocate of apartheid and segregation.

And then along comes the Jew and proves that an ethnic group can remain a group apart, even when it receives equal treatment, for the Jew is at least as reluctant to marry with the Gentile as the Gentile with the Jew.

The Jew is a living proclamation telling the white racial bigot that, if racial equality really means that the white and inevitably be dyed brown, it is only because the white wants it so, because the colored races possess a virility and seductiveness which the white people could not resist without the aid of artificial barriers.

So -- "Juden Raus" is the bigot's cry.

Life's Little Nuisances

We must speak sharply to the editor of the Brantford Expositor. The other day we clipped one of his paper's editorials for reproduction on this page. It was just one line too long to be pasted easily on our standardsized copy-paper. This is obviously a gross case of mismanagement. It confronted us with a difficult problem. We had four alternatives. We could clip it in two and use two sheets of paper. This somewhat involves more work. We could let the bottom hang over the end of the sheet and risk it being torn off. We could omit the credit line. Or we could try and crowd the credit line in, at the price of legibility. We chose the latter alternative.

Think how much simpler life would have been if that editorial had been just one line shorter.

If this were an isolated instance, it would not be worth mentioning.

But everybody knows that this sort of thing happens all the time.

The streets are always churned into mud the day after one washes the car.

Gravy always drips into one's lap right after one has had a suit cleaned.

It drizzles on picnic days, blows a gale when one wants to go fishing, clouds up when a suntan at the beach is scheduled and is hotter than a gambler with crooked dice when one wants to work in the garden.

The brightest moonlight always shines on the girl with buck teeth. The empty parking spot is always on the other hand of the street. The fellow who turns up with a bottle always brings rum when there is nothing in the pantry but Collins mix and gin when the only available mixer is coke.

When, once in a lifetime, that beautiful blonde calls and suggests a dancing date that evening, it is certain to be the day before pay-day and all one's white shirts at the laundry!

A theory that doesn't stick out its neck is unscientific. It must stick out its neck so that it can be twisted. Everything is subject to disproof. We can never be sure of ourselves.— Professor Hermann Bondi, F.I.N.S., professor of mathematics at King's College, London, and writer of astrophysics.

External Affairs Dept. Needs Its Striped Pants Kicked

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — A former member of what he frankly terms the "Striped Pants Brigade" has confessed to the "Boys in the Business Suits."

When it comes to representing Canada around the world — whether selling wheat, lumber, oil; negotiating trade agreements or treaties; bargaining over travel routes or tariffs — the Pearkes Dam in striped pants drink the tea, and the Working Stiffs in the business suits produce the goods.

Who says so?

None other than Prime Minister Pearson.

And he, as a former member-in-excellent standing of the Striped Pants Brigade should know.

Back some 15 years ago, before former Prime Ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent drafted him for political service, Mike Pearson was a civil Servant.

Now, in the Capital there are just two ranks of Civil Servants.

So forget all about such things as the assistants of Deputy Ministers and the run-of-the-office clerks, stenos and messenger boys.

And think of the Civil Service as people who work either for the Federal Government, or in External Affairs.

It is something like the sheep and the goats.

"THOSE PEOPLE"

Prime Minister Mike was one of the "in" people, rising through the majestic ranks at External Affairs to become departmental Under-Secretary of, as the Striped Pants Brigade entitles it, Undersecretary of State — when the Tories recruited him for the Cabinet.

So it was with the Voice of Experience he spoke when he pep-talked the Trade and Commerce Department's Big Trade Commissioners the other day.

In the veddy veddy elevated world of External Affairs, we're told them, the poor working stiffs from Trade and Commerce were known as "Those People" down the street.

When they were out, like a lot of global travelling salesmen, knocking on the doors of the world, the Prime Minister confessed, he and the other Striped Pants Boys who got in your way.

And he recalled how the Trade Commissioners used to regard the elite from External Affairs as so many "Dudes and Dandies who spent all their time sipping tea at the rocks."

Then, gently kidding both sides of this argument that is the world in Canada's missions all around the world, he grinned:

"Of course, you know that isn't true."

They laughed at that.

And so did he.

Making a clean breast of the whole thing, he admitted, grinning, that in the rarified atmosphere of External Affairs, there was even a little inverted suspicion of the Trade and Commerce boys in business suits who did all the work, while, of course, the Striped Pants Brigade had all the fun and games.

STILL THERE ?

The Prime Minister, despite all the good-natured kidding, was trying to make the point that if External Affairs ever felt superior to the Dept. of Commerce and the rest of the federal service, that time was long gone.

But has it?

Not only five years ago, in New York, in his suite at the Drake Hotel on Fifth Avenue, former Prime Minister Diefenbaker let his hair down with less humor and more fervor, on the same subject.

He was making his first appearance at the United Nations, as External Affairs, in its stilted dignity, was not fond of fire in firming up the final arrangements.

To a roomful of newspapermen from the Canadian Capital, the then Prime Minister said waspishly:

"I'm wise to those Lah-de-Dahs in External Affairs who they don't do enough to keep themselves warm.

"There'll be some changes made there — such a shake-out as they've never dreamed of. They're going to have to get up off their Striped Pants and go to work — or get out."

But the changes were never made. And nothing happened in the five years that Dief might have done something about it.

So there they all were again, just the other day, with one another and new Prime Minister talking about the Striped Pants atmosphere in External Affairs.

Maybe sometime it might occur to somebody to have External Affairs take off its morning coat and put on a business suit to hustle along with the working stiffs from Trade and Commerce for business other than the consumption of tea and scones.

Kiss Will Not Spread Colds

Brantford Expositor

In the opinion of a Winnipeg doctor, colds are not so contagious that they can be easily transmitted by kissing. Young love would not be in the least bothered by such a consideration anyway. Still, it is reassuring to have this medical opinion.

What Dr. W. L. Mercer of the department of bacteriology and immunology at the Medical College in Manitoba has said is not new. Other specialists have made corresponding findings. His remarks come merely as the latest authoritative confirmation.

In the same category are some further statements he made on the subject of colds in an address to the Manitoba Chapter of the College of General Practice in Canada.

He said, for instance, that colds are not brought on by exposure to cold, dampness, exposure or getting the feet wet — all supposed, from our grandmothers' time till now at least, to be the prime causes of sniffles, sneezes and coughs.

It could be that there are indirect psychological causes, of course. If you have been told ever since infancy that getting wet feet will bring on a cold, you may, on dampening the pedal extremities, unknowingly yourself into one! That's something Dr. Parker doesn't appear to have mentioned, so we toss it in for what it's — Atch-oo! — worth.

What the professor did submit was this: "The cold syndrome results from the invasion of a climatic or other environmental factor simultaneously in many persons."

Which, being boiled down to plain English from the doctor's absurd medical jargon, means simply: Signs of a cold are the result of weather or other influences affecting many persons at the same time.

That does not answer precisely — the question we'd like answered: What is a cold? And it certainly does not answer the next and more urgent question: How do I get rid of the dratted thing?

Beer Crosses Color Line

Lagos, Nigeria Tribune

Bar patroniners were fearcaught over the weekend when the glass of beer turned black, she drew attention of other barmaids to the incident.

People who were in weekend mood became startled and summoned the serviceman to see it himself.

The serviceman, too obviously perplexed, said he could not account for the transcloration.

"After all, I served two glasses. And this is the other glass served with the same content retaining its natural color," the serviceman said, shrieking and quibbling.

The woman whose cup of beer turned black was accompanied to the bar by her husband who enjoyed the weekend.

As the woman, Mrs. Sikiratu Abike, got to the bar she called for two bottles to start off.

As the couple were served, the serviceman turned back and the lady started chatting with a Mr. Akanbi Apatira.

Just in a twinkling of an eye, the woman turned back to her glass only to discover the glass growing black in her presence.

Meanwhile police are investigating the circumstances of a plain beer turned black.

They have removed both the glass and the bottle containing the content for analysis. The serviceman too had been invited for questioning.

Easier to Make History Than To Write It

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The trouble with the conservative approach to society is that it wants to deal with men as they used to be, and the trouble with the liberal approach is that it wants to deal with men as they ought to be; thus, men as they are tend to be ignored by doctrinaires of both factions.

It is easier to make history than to write it: the lunatic who killed Lincoln made it, but no single historian has yet succeeded in giving us the definite portrait of the Civil War and its aftermath, despite thousands of books on the subject in the last century.

The author who sits down to write a certain book or play, and knows exactly what he intends to say in it, and keeps unswervingly to this original purpose — such a man cannot write a genuine work of literature or creative work, for unless the creative takes over and guides the author to a purpose and in a direction he did not conceive in the beginning, his work will be stillborn.

When a person says with great finality, "I know my own mind," he usually proves it by his mind," that he commonly means is that his feelings have ordered his mind to act or keep thinking on the subject.

Why the country life is called "the simple life" has always baffled me — in terms of the average person, the country life is the most complex of all; but its very complexity provides a personal satisfaction not found in the automatism of urban living.

A certain amount of jealousy is natural and reasonable; but the unreasonable jealous man, far from valuing his wife as a sweetheart, is really depreciating her, for his jealousy is a reflecting her, for his jealousy is a reflecting her, for his jealousy is a reflecting her, for his jealousy is based on the hidden assumption that she will easily capitulate to anyone attractive who comes along, that she is cheap, easy and fickle.

Clarity is the enemy of prophecy; if you are going to set up shop as a prophet, you must assiduously cultivate an obscure style of expression, like the ancient oracles, which so as prophecies could be interpreted in either of two contrasting ways, depending on the course of events.

The best step is to go from doctor to doctor.

Some, like Mrs. E. H., are lucky enough to find a succession of doctors who have told her the truth, or the same story.

But others finally get into the hands of some glib quack who tells them they have "obstruction of the coogle," or "exhalation of the whatsis," and promises to "cure" them with a series of 48 treatments.

The victim of quacks are happy while they are being expensively "cured" of something. The only trouble it, pretty soon these same patients acquire other fears or tensions. And the problem starts all over.

Frightened Patients Are Difficult to Cure

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Here's an example, I think, of the second hardest job that a doctor faces, day in and day out.

Dear Doctor: I'm very much worried. I'm 46 and in the last years have had trouble with my throat hurting. It never hurts when I swallow, but afterward I feel like it is still full of air or food.

I've been to throat specialists and have had X-rays. They say no ulcer, cancer or gall stones. They can't find anything. I've even taken nerve pills, but nothing stops it.

I'm so nervous and upset as a result of thinking the doctors don't tell me what is really wrong. Could you please try to tell me? — Mrs. E. H.

The doctor's hardest job is when the chips are down. When you have to tell a patient that something is desperately bad, and you have to weigh the right or wrong of doing this, or of not doing that, according to calculating what is best when there is no way of foretelling what the future holds. Often, when the doctor resorts to diplomacy but still tries to keep his patient's courage up in the face of undeniable dangers.

The second hardest job is to "cure" a patient when the real problem is being scared. Call it nerves, or anxiety, but it's the same thing.

The throat, stomach, head, neck, back complaints are common places for sheer nerves to evidence themselves. You can have headaches, backaches, and all sorts of aches, cough, tightness in the throat, palpitation and so on, just from nervous tension.

The symptoms, the pains are real enough, no doubt about that, the cause is some physical disturbance or an emotional upset.

When the cause is physical and you identify it, then you can go ahead and cure it.

But when it is a manifestation of tension — well that's different. You can't tell a patient, "It's all in your head, so forget it." But there isn't any medicine to take worry out of the mind.

Oh, sedatives and tranquilizers will relax some patients though. Others will accept your assurance that if they'll stop worrying, the symptoms will disappear.

But not all. Some can't force themselves to relax, and won't trust what you say. Instead of being glad that nothing physical is wrong, they then start

Look Longer

St. Thomas Times-Journal

'Tis said that short skirts make girls look taller. They also make men look longer.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The question of human rights requires some thoughtful consideration. Nature assures rights to no creature, not even to man. And with the world growing up the way it is, with its enormous stockpiles of armaments, with the Soviet Union of Genghis Khan or Napoleon on the one hand, and the steadily seething populations of the Orient and Africa threatening to spill out in all directions on the other, the human race hardly be suppressed in the minds of those who study nature without prejudice that nature may be up to one of her tricks. In the seons of time that nature has been governing the arth, directing the rise and fall of animate empires, rights have not extended to no species. Great giants, faster than man, for a million years have trod the earth, mastering it. And just about the time they reached the dignity of reptiles, they were quietly wiped out in the badlands of Alberta, and modern now tenderly dig up their teeth.

Rights, though it is a sheltering word, are only those used to use in the hearing of nature. Maybe nature is not so compassional but someone else today as we have been led to believe.

Steady Rain Dampens Show By Moira School Cadets

Despite a steady drizzle which dampened uniforms, forced cancellation of some of the shots, and moved demonstrations inside, the annual inspection of the Moira Secondary School Army Cadet Corps yesterday afternoon was a pronounced success.

Inspector officer of the day was Col. Angus Duffy, who later congratulated the 72-member corps for their steadiness under adverse conditions and for their ability to adjust themselves to the unexpected.

The inspection was held on the paved parking area instead of on the football field as originally planned.

The band show was called off due to the rain and the demonstrations were held within doors.

Members of the inspection party included Col Duffy; Lt. G. H. McGill, representing Army Headquarters (Eastern Area) at Kingston; Deputy Mayor Ben Corke; Bay of Quinte High School Board chairman Bruce Pontt; school principal James W. Musgrove, and Lt.-Commander H. G. Birkenshaw, chief instructor for the cadet corps.

HELD INSIDE SCHOOL

Due to the rain the precision drill team show, map using, Bren gun, first aid and signals demonstrations were held inside the school.

The school cadet band under ban leader George Messer, was forced to cancel its special show due to inability to manoeuvre inside. For the first time this year four girls are members of the school band.

The Col. Angus Duffy trophy for the best cadet on parade went to Paul Hunter, while 16 St. John Ambulance certificates were presented to as many cadets who had completed their first aid training.

The 1961-62 rifle shooting award went to D. Brant, and the 1962-63 award was won by R. Minion.

PURELY VOLUNTARY

School principal James Musgrove said membership in the school cadet corps was entirely voluntary. Most of the cadets are from the junior school ranks with corps officers being from the senior classes.

Following the inspection members of the cadet corps were served with cokes and doughnuts, while the officers and member of the inspection department had tea in the home economics department of the school.

Asked to Watch For Windsor Boy

WINDSOR, N.S. (CP)—Police in Belleville, Montreal and Calgary have been asked to watch for a Windsor youth missing since May 4 after leaving Windsor by train for Belleville.

Francis Bartlett Kendall, 17, was last heard from in a telephone call to his mother here May 2. He said he was calling from Montreal and had been offered a "good job" in Calgary by a man he met on the train and was going straight there.

After his mother repeatedly told him to go to Belleville, where he has relatives, an unidentified man took the phone and hurriedly exclaimed "I'll take good care of him." The call then ended.

Mrs. John Kendall informed RCMP immediately, and Montreal police searched the train station. Two trains arriving in Belleville were also searched but no sign of the youth was found.

Contributors to City's Beauty To Have Tree Named After Them

Belleville residents who have made major contributions to the beauty of the city, will have their names commemorated with the proposed development of Zwick's Island as a recreational area.

Members of the Belleville Horticultural Society are co-operating in the development of the area and each year will plant a tree in the name of some local resident who has made a major contribution to the city's beauty.

The first tree, to be planted in the near future, will be in the name of Mrs. W. S. Northcott of Pinnacle Street, whose flower garden across from the Corby Public Library, has long been admired by local citizens.

Mr. John W. Hodgson, vice-president of the Horticultural Society, and chairman of its planting committee, said a tree would be planted each year at the island in the name of some worthy resident.

Also each year a number of flowering trees or shrubs will be planted. This year's planting will be flowering crabapples which will reach early maturity in 1967 — Canada's Centennial year — by which time the new Zwick's Island project is hoped to be completed.

Antiques Featured At Glenhyrst In Brantford

by Mary Moore

Always present in my subconscious is a yearning for Canadian women to be better cooks.

In Brantford last week my dream came true in a charming way at a preview luncheon held on by the Glenhyrst Arts Council for their annual Antiques Show and Sale.

Everything was done with skill and imagination and polish.

The pre-show exhibit of antique treasures from Brantford, Ontario homes was an extra and rare treat that antique lovers would sell their birthrights for, but these private treasures were not for sale.

At the Fifth Annual Antique Show and Sale held this week all the dealers who are given permission to set up booths to sell their treasures must be authentic dealers in authentic antiques. No frauds or copies are allowed.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Macaroni and Cheese Dish with Ground Meat Topping; Italian Bread Sticks; Generous Crisp Cole Slaw with Dill Dressing; Citrus Fruit Cup; Mocha-Frosted Spice Cake; Tea.

SUNDAY: (Mother's Day)

Roast Loin of Pork (see Tuesday); Pan Roasted Potatoes; Creamed Asparagus; Chef's Salad in Individual Wooden Bowls with Mayonnaise (tossed by Father); Orange Soufflé (made by daughter — see Wednesday); Coffee.

But to add to these impressive activities is a crowning idea which enthralls me. The committee are serving meals — gourmet meals, no less — to the thousands of people attending on May 8th, 9th and 10th.

At the pre-show luncheon we were served the dishes which are on the menu at the Antique Show and Sale. I have the recipes for these — graciously given to me by the cooks — all Brantford members of the Art Council. I am going to give you these recipes regularly over the next two months. Today I have for you one which appealed to me particularly — Fish Supreme — which the casserole and chafing dish crowd are going to enjoy. Later I will give you the recipe for French Onion Soup made for our luncheon by one of the male members of the Council.

GLENHYRST FISH SUPREME:

NOTE:

This recipe as given to me states "makes 12 entree servings — 1 cup each — or 24 emorgasbord servings — ½ cup each."

To be practical and to make this more generally useful to my cooking friends in this audience I reduced the quantities and served it in a chafing dish to 5 people. It was a smashing success.

½ cup coarsely chopped green pepper, (½ of a large one), ½ cup chopped green or mild onion, 1-3 cup butter or margarine, ½ lb. sliced fresh mushrooms, 1-3 cup flour, ¾ teaspoon dry mustard, ¾ teaspoon accent, 1 cup milk, 1 cup shredded old Cheddar cheese, 1 cup thick part canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 7-oz. package fresh frozen shrimp (shelled and deveined), 1 6-oz. can crabmeat (see below).

Gently saute in the butter the pepper, onion and mushrooms until they are wilted a little but not brown. Add the flour, mustard and accent and when blended stir in the milk until thick. Add the cheese, thick tomatoes, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Stir to melt cheese. Then add shrimp and crab and stir just enough to mix then cook over low heat a short time to thaw and cook shrimp. Do not overstir this.

NOTE:

I used Japanese King crab and had to be sure that the long pieces of cartilaginous bone embedded in the flesh were removed. We served this with brown rice.

Argyll IODE Hears Reports Of Convention

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter of the IODE was held in the Armories last Wednesday.

The meeting was opened by the Regent.

The regular business took place and reports given by convenors. Tickets were on sale for the St. Julien tea. Conveners were appointed to look after the Bridge and Hat Show to be held in the fall.

As the date for the next Citizenship Court has not been set, it was agreed a tea would be held as is the usual custom.

A letter was received from the United Appeal requesting assistance in canvassing. This was assured.

Lt. Kay Kokesh was presented by Mrs. Willcocks and welcomed by the Regent and installed as a member of the Argyll Chapter.

The June meeting will be held at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. F.M. Sprague and will be a pot-luck supper.

Reports from the two delegates to the convention held in Hamilton were heard with Mrs. Fullerton giving a fine report and covering many highlights of the convention.

Junior chapters with members 14-26 years of age were given a special welcome.

Most of the clothing is sent to "Britain (Save the Children Fund." It was suggested that dark colors are more acceptable in many countries as soap and washing facilities are limited. A number of interesting ideas for fund raising by other Chapters was another feature.

The Regent, Mrs. E. F. Smith, gave an enthusiastic report of her first visit to the convention. She dealt on replies to queries, with considerable benefit from same.

Another feature of the convention was a work shop. The group was divided into seven units and discussions were held by the different department convenors, moving from one unit to another. This proved to be satisfactory and everyone had an opportunity to ask questions.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments served.

St. Julien Chapter Holds Most Successful "Hat Fiesta"

Yesterday afternoon a unique and lovely display of women's crowning glory — hats — took place at the beautiful and spacious home of Mrs. Ben Safe, Campbell street, under the auspices of St. Julien Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

The guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. Safe, assisted by the Regent of the Chapter, Mrs. Ralph Ellis, who extended a most cordial welcome to those who had been stout-hearted enough to brave the inclement weather.

Following the welcome, and the taking of the tickets by Mrs. K. MacDonald and Mrs. Ross Taylor, the downstairs hostess, Mrs. George Hume and the living room hostess, Mrs. H. Thompson, added their greetings.

Hats have come a long way from the day in 1404 when a Swiss made the first hat in Paris, which was a simple contraption following the Greek petasos, a tiny headpiece with a brief brim to shade the eyes from the sun's rays; to the one ate one worn by Charles 7th, in 1440, when he entered Rouen. This particular hat was lined with red velvet and sported a gay plume of ostrich feathers. Since then hats have become the fashion.

FEL HATS

Felt hats were introduced into England during the Norman conquest and are spoken of in the "Canterbury Tales" when men were as susceptible to the headgear as are women of today. During the reign of Elizabeth I, beaver hats in many shapes were the style, and for 300 years after, black beaver hats were used by the higher classes in Britain. Genuine beaver hats are unknown today; instead hats are made from an endless variety of materials and as a result of this term they defy all definition. Usually they are known as "creations." The main material used now are felt; cloth; straw; panama and lately lace and dreamlike wisps of tulle.

At yesterday's display, shown by Woodley's Furriers, every hat was a jewel in its own right and the trend noticed showed the high crown with up-rising lines so beneficial to the older woman. As each model passed along, Mrs. Eva Doolittle, the commentator, charmingly pointed out the fine points of each hat, and its complement to the wearer.

DARING — DIFFERENT:

Styles shown ranged from the daring and different highrising sailor hat, which tended to memories of the past, and a keynote to the future — a hat always smart and chic, delightfully worn with a tailored suit; to a Shantung smartly stitched with large crown in chartreuse and black; equally flattering to blonde and brunette. A floppy stitched brimmed cloche of printed aqua and coffee flowers on white chiffon, banded with coffee velvet ribbon, was eye-catching. Another hat shown was of "ballibuntle" straw, and was in the picture type, softly accented with white organza; the old cloche, but glorified in draped pink organza was highlighted by a soft frontal bow. Another high sailor was of smoky yellow fashioned from pleated organza, small brimmed with gros grain ribbon trim.

BAKU STRAW

A wide-brimmed hat was of Baku straw, smart with suits and dresses and an unusual hat was of black loops of mohair on a crochet nylon base interningled with bows of black velvet — a most versatile hat, which hides the hair, good to wear to any afternoon event.

Romance tulle made a lovely hat of flattering softness. One that was eye-catching was the "Lawrence of Arabia," fashioned of beige silk tulle with front ornament in gold. These are but a few of the charming hats modelled, but each showing the trends of the coming season. Colors ranged from black, to petasos, a tiny headpiece with a brief brim to shade the eyes from the sun's rays; to the one ate one worn by Charles 7th, in 1440, when he entered Rouen. DAINTY TEA TABLE

Following the hat show, tea was served in the supper dining space where the tea table was daintily appointed with an exquisite Englefield lace cloth, centred by a silver bowl of white and blue-tinted "mums, nestling in a bed of British Columbia huckleberry sprays, and flanked by silver candles and gleaming silver services. Little appropriate serviettes, bearing the emigrate of the Order, and trays of tiny cakes, delicious sandwiches, all provided by the gracious hostess, completed the delightful setting.

Here and there about the rooms were vases of lovely flowers, pale pink gladioli, and "mums and in the reception room at the foot of the softly carpeted winding stairs, a triple fountain of mottled marble, surrounded by pretty flowers of various kinds and in each fountain basin rested a white or pink water lily.

Those who invited to the tea room were Mrs. Ken Putnam, and Mrs. Charles Mott; while presiding at the silver services were the past presidents of the Chapter: Mrs. George Watkin, Mrs. Gordon Vince, Mrs. R. M. Paterson, and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock.

SERVING

Those who served included Mesdames Allen Hitchon, Percy Hart, Charles Cox, Jo-seph Gaddier, Arthur Hinder, Heinz Tischbein, Albert Harris, G. A. McConnel, William Shipherd, J. A. Reynolds, J. A. Ruddy, John Darvell, C. Whitemore and Miss Margaret Fairbairn.

Others assisting with the tea were Mrs. W. Gilbert, Mrs. D. L. Storey, Mrs. H. G. McKay, and Mrs. G. M. Gibbons.

Those in charge of the fashion show were Mrs. Hazel Smith of Woodley's and Mrs. Eva Doolittle, to both of whom appreciative thanks are tendered for a big job well done. Thanks are also tendered to the conveners of the lovely tea, Mrs. Harry Thompson and Mrs. Charles Bishop.

How to Preserve Your Hubby

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have enclosed the reading "Friend of the Bride" was asking about. I found it in a cookbook my sister gave to me when I was married. By the way, I am doing very well with my diet. I was 186 pounds when I wrote to you and now (two months later) weigh 167 pounds. I took your advice and promised myself a new outfit when I got down to 150. Hope to make it in another six weeks. Thanks. —MRS. M. R.

DEAR MRS. M. R.—My thanks to you and several dozen other kind readers who showered me with ways to cook a husband, preserve a husband; keep wedded bliss, preserve children, and other tested recipies. Several add the note that "This recipe has very pleasing results"; or "wives may be successfully preserved in the same way." (Instructions include keep out of hot water, sweeten with smiles, add a little spice, etc., etc.)

A sheet is now available to readers, entitled "Readings Suitable for a Shower", containing three such inventions.

Congrats on the dieting.

DEAR DORIS—Is there any reason why the man that gives a bride away could not give the toast to the bride, providing he is not her father or a relative?—GEORGE.

DEAR GEORGE—No real reason. He is in loco parentis, and as such, it would be better if he did not assume the double role of toast proposer.

But then, he may be the best speech maker in the crowd—and if so, I'd throw caution to the winds and ask him.

DEAR DORIS—We had a fire a year ago which destroyed our furniture and much of our house. My husband wanted me and our little girl to live at his mother's until he could get settled again, but I preferred to go home to my father's place.

Now he says I left him. All I wanted was a place of our own and he has never given this to us. He had trouble finding a job, so he moved to another part of Canada where there was work.

I thought he would make plans for us to join him but he never has. He keeps saying this is a good place for me. He was never like this before he went away.

He has gone back. I told him that if I did not hear from him I was taking what money he left and coming to him. Am I right or should I stay here and wait?—WAITING.

DEAR WAITING—Wait no longer. Get to where he is, if you love him and want him for a husband. He felt deserted before and detached himself; the time has come for both of you to work at mending your relations.

DEAR DORIS—I was going steady with a boy and loaned him my record player. When he moved away he took it with him with my consent. We corresponded and at times he visited me. Then we decided to break up.

Shortly after, I wrote two letters requesting the return of my record player, to which I received no reply. Later, I heard he got married and now I hesitate to write again as I would not want him or his wife to think I care to interfere with their marriage.—UNFAIR.

DEAR UNFAIR—Jog his memory, then forget it. Wifey may shame him into returning the record player when she finds it isn't his. If a song from you is enough to unsettle his marriage, it was made of pretty poor stuff anyway.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WONDERING—The names Jack and Jake come from the same root, which is John. I know some Jacks who are also called Jake. At the same time many people are sensitive about nicknames and you should be guided by whatever name your friend prefers.

TO AMBITIOUS—If you taught swimming once, you can do it again. Ask your local "Y" or recreation centre about helping out with a swimming class for children or young people. This part-time type occupation is often in need of a worker.

(If it's a point of etiquette, ask Doris. She has guided thousands of others. When you write remember that stamped envelope.)

Chi Rho Enjoys Bowling At Plaza

The regular meeting of Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship was held last Wednesday evening when a good turnout enjoyed bowling at the Plaza Bowling Alleys. Several visitors and new members were welcomed.

After bowling two strings, everyone went to the Parish Hall where they were joined by the Young Adult Group for a lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts and hot chocolate.

During this, Eleanor Butcher announced the prize winners of the evening; women's high was won by Eleanor Butcher, while Bill Crooter captured the men's high. The hidden scores were won by Marian Rowbotham in the ladies, and Bill Crouter in the men's.

The enjoyable evening was closed by the Chaplain, the Rev. Michael Carwell.

Christ Church ABWA Holds Dedication

Members of the Afternoon Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church joined together in a service of dedication of Thank Offering in the church, conducted by the Rev Michael J Carwell, prior to their regular monthly business meeting.

The treasurer's report shows the usual wear and tear of spring interments, but it was reported that all obligations have been met.

Several visitors were welcomed by the president, including Mrs. R. Fleming, wife of the rector, and her daughter Ellen; Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Pam Rawlings.

The Dorcas secretary, Mrs W. Heard, reported all articles bought for the school hale. Mrs. Horace Wright reported that the branch has orders for quilts which will take them right through the summer months. Mrs. J. Miles told the meeting that the plans for a prayer circle are well underway in the social service department. A vote of interest to those present that, out of the membership in the 1930's, nine members are still in the city.

CARDS SENT TO SHUT-INS

Mrs Bessie Thomas has sent quite a number of greeting cards to shut-in members during the past month. Sympathy was extended to one of the members who had been bereaved of her husband the morning of the meeting.

Many articles have been sold from the travelling basket during the month as reported by the convener, Mrs. J. Chapman. At this point in the meeting the members were privileged to hear two more chapters of the study book for the year, read by Mrs. G. G. Wright.

Mrs. G. A. Furzen, Dominion C.A. Link secretary, read an interesting letter from a new Diocesan Link secretary in the Diocese of Athabaska, in which she tells about two of her daughters were were educated in residential schools and were given Girls' Auxiliary Scholarships to further their education in universities. One daughter became a nurse and is now married and the mother of two children, while the other daughter is at present taking her Master's Degree in a Western university. Mrs. Furzen pointed out that the Girls' Auxiliary of the Anglican Church, as part of their pledge, provide scholarships for girls from residential schools. It was interesting to note that it was the money provided by the girls of the C.A. in about the year of 1950 who had made the education of these two girls possible.

AUXILIARIES' LEADERS' CONFERENCE

The members were told about the plans for the Girls' Auxiliary and Junior Auxiliary Leaders' Conference to be held again this year at Camp Hyanto, in August. The members decided to give a contribution toward this conference. Summer calendars were discussed, and it was decided to order the same number again for the coming year.

The W.A. annual meetings will be held in Brockville this year, May 14th and 15th. Mrs. Ashton will attend as the Link-gate for the Afternoon Branch of Christ Church. As enough members had expressed the desire to attend the annual meeting on Tuesday, a bus will be ordered for the trip.

A social half-hour followed the meeting, with tea and cookies.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart R. Rosenberg

No one is suggesting that parents go out of their way to inflict torture on their children — but it seems to us that they ought not to feel guilty if a child is not training every muscle to give them only pleasure.

Tom, a young offender, product of a happy, comfortable home, put his finger on a long overlooked problem, when he explained his difficulty to social workers: "My folks were always afraid to hurt my feelings. Everything I wanted, they said I could have — if I was right away, then maybe some day. I grew up feeling that I was entitled to happiness and, if things didn't go my way, someone else was to blame."

Tom's situation points up the psychic hurt and the moral confusion we can cause our children when we make their lives too easy, all the time. Life is no bed of roses, and as parents, we have an obligation to prepare our children to absorb their shocks and the stresses of living. The parent who teaches his children how to handle disappointment and pain need not apologize. He is doing a better job than the one who thinks he's giving them love by not denying them ease.

WRONG FOOT

In the name of love, we continually get off on the wrong foot disciplining our children. If we assert ourselves too much, we fear that the youngsters will feel unloved and neglected, unwanted. But the shoe is probably on the wrong foot, such parents are themselves too love - conscious, and are afraid to lose their child's affections, by showing too much control.

John, a good - looking, bright and perceptive seventeen-year-old tells a tale that more parents need to hear — particularly those who resemble his own.

His clergyman had called him in to discuss anti-social patterns in his behaviour.

In self-defence John explained: "I've been getting away with murder at home. Dad's been so busy succeeding at his work that I've been exposed only to mother."

SPARING THE ROD

Increasingly our children are being raised by their mothers alone. Fathers, busy competing and producing, have sub-contracted the child-rearing functions to their wives. But often, motherhood alone is biologically incapable of the physical fortitude required to hold the parental line against the strenuous desires of children.

Even if mothers earnestly try to become fathers, inevitably their womanly slips show. Frequently they are not getting enough love and affection themselves. They feed on the affection their children give them. "Why," some women ask, "should I deny myself love by whipping my youngsters into line?"

Unfortunately, love without thoughtful, character-molding discipline, like love without shared sacrifice, does not insure good children. Children need to be exposed to reasonable and consistent doses of parental control, or else they will find growing up difficult. As we grow older we need to adjust to the requirements of those around us. Those who have been shown how to do this by their parents can integrate into society. Those who were never put in their place by their parents may remain maladjusted through life.

"CUTE KIDS"

"Oh my, isn't he cute!" may be a diplomatic way of describing the nasty little boy who runs roughshod over his friends. But it is not difficult to pick out the products of spineless parents in later life. They still think that they're "cute kids." They have been fashioned into self - centred, self - satisfied monsters by doting parents who were afraid to lose their affection. They needed to be spanked, lovingly; instead they were spoiled, dreadfully. Sparing the rod does spoil the child; it also spoils the parent.

STUDY TALE

Physician - physicists are studying the action of salt tear crystals on gold after hearing claims that rubbing the eyes with a gold ring cures sties.

Mother's Helper

SOME CHILDREN are just plain spill-prone, and giving them liquids in any glasses is a constant risk. Where, such a youngster is confined to bed, or watching TV, put her drink in a jar with a top which screws on tightly. Make a small hole in the top, just big enough for a plastic straw to poke through. Even if the jar is tipped over, only a drop or two will escape.

Mr. L. W. Gehman, formerly of Galt, a 25-year gold pin for service in China and India;

Canadian Fashion & Fad

— BY pegg rogers

SO YOU WANT TO BE A "DESIGN by MARY JONES"

FASHION DESIGNER?

No, of course, that is not glamorous enough. Perhaps if you could it backwards — "Design by Yram Semoj"? Now you've got a wonderful signature for your creations in fashion designs. You can even see your salon — all ivory and gold — and yourself, crisply charming and slightly dogmatic.

Well, so much for daydreams. You have a good eye for color. You know, instinctively, what silhouettes will suit you and your friends. You love clothes. Now how do you go about studying fashion design in Canada? Once your studies are completed, can you make a living here? Yes, you can. Do you have to study in New York? No. Are all the best jobs in New York? Again no!

CHILDREN'S CLASSES

Good, practical courses in fashion designing, covering fashion sketching, costume design, color harmony, dressmaking, sportswear, children's wear, draping, drafting of patterns to measure, pattern making, styling, fashion forecasting and research, are available here in Canada.

Use the yellow pages of the telephone book in any large city to compile a list of schools offering courses in fashion design. Ask for brochures and full information about the courses offered. If you are doubtful about the qualifications of any school, investigate thoroughly before you sign anything. Your bank manager, or the Better Business Bureau, should be able to help you here.)

Most courses in the fashion arts offer both day and evening classes, five days a week, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The evening courses call for about three hours of creative training—three nights a week. Registration months are usually May, September and January. The emphasis, at any good school, is on talent, with no matriculation evidence being necessary. But beware of the school that is too eager for students. An interview, with samples of your work sketches, is required by all reputable schools.

A young, inexperienced graduate from an established school can look for an initial wage of about $50, to $60. a week. Older, more poised graduates have been known to start at $80. a week. It is assumed that you will follow in the steps of most apprentice designers and take a salaried position to gain experience.

SUCCESS DEPENDS

Your success will depend on your own talent, energy and initiative. We think that for the creative and artistic, fashion designing offers a lucrative, fascinating career in Canada in its own expanding field of fashion.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers, care of this paper.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: We've received an invitation to my niece's wedding addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Family." I assume this includes our two children, aged 10 and 14, but does the invitation also include my mother, who lives with us? My niece knows my mother is a member of our household and I'm sure the invitation was addressed this way to include her. Mother feels otherwise and doesn't think she should attend unless she receives a personal invitation. How would you interpret such an invitation? — Mrs. L. S., Baltimore, Md.

SEPARATE INVITATION

Answer: This is another indication of how an improperly addressed invitation can cause confusion. Properly, your mother, as an adult member of your household, should have received a separate invitation. The invitation to you and your husband should have been addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" and, below, the names of your children, "Kate and John," should have been added. However, since your niece knows your mother lives with you, the invitation may be interpreted as being all-inclusive, and all your mother is invited as well as the children.

Question: I'm planning home reception and will display our wedding gifts in a separate room. The problem is that I've received several duplicate presents and don't know whether to put one or both on display. What should I do in this case? — E. A., Chicago, Ill.

Answers: All gifts should be displayed, even duplicates, but they should be separated so the duplication won't be too obvious.

Question: A boy I've been going with has asked me to give him a picture of myself but my mother objects because she says it's too personal a gift to give someone I'm not engaged to. He goes to school out of town, and only wants to keep it on the desk in his room. I just can't see how my sending him a framed snapshot could possibly be considered in bad taste. Can you? — Miss M. M., Boston, Mass.

Answer: No, but I'd advise against writing any sentimental inscription on it. An overtly-endearing message on the face of it could be considered in bad taste, especially when you have nothing as yet, to pin your hopes on.

Question: My parents shortly will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. I would like to give a dinner party at a restaurant for about twenty or twenty-five guests. Is there any way to indicate on the invitations that gifts are not expected? We feel that their presence is much more important. — Mrs. G. J. B., Clifton, N.J.

Answer: "Please omit gifts," may be noted in the lower left-hand corner of the invitation. If you prefer not to be so direct about it, then you could omit any reference to the reason for the dinner in the invitation and just invite guests to a dinner party in honor of your parents. The reason, of course, would be evident once they got there.

Slight Trace Of Irritation Creeps In

TORONTO (CP)—The first slight trace of irritation crept into hearings of the royal commission on taxation Wednesday as the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs brought forth a sweeping series of suggestions that, basically, had woman in mind.

Singled out was one section of the Income Tax Act that deals with a spouse, employed by another spouse, in an non-incorporated business. Under the act, wages paid by the employer to his—or her—spouse are considered part of the employer's income, and the tax burden is heavier than if the incomes were divided.

Mrs. S. M. Milne of Winnipeg, one of the six commissioners investigating the entire field of federal taxation, suggested that perhaps because married women made such a great contribution to their husband's business, the men would be glad to consider extra taxes as a cost of operation and not as an expense.

That, said Mrs. Elsie Gregory MacGill, federation president, "is the type of thinking the federation is trying to fight." She said it was an outmoded idea.

STIRLING — Interested parents, grandparents, friends and others gathered in Stirling Theatre, Friday evening, when the pupils of Miss Barbara Woodbeck, school of dance gave their annual dance recital. Almost 50 children took various parts throughout the two-hour program, including pupils from Frankford, Marmora and the Stirling area.

Graham Mouck, reeve of the village, was master of ceremonies and spoke briefly. The back of the stage was nicely arranged with a large display of artificial flowers which were later used in the presentation of a short nursery story.

Beta Sigma Phi Holds Black-Gold Ball

Spring was at her gayest at the Club Commodore when Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its annual Black and Gold Ball, which was convened by Mrs. Jean Thompson.

Mrs. R. L. Walmsley and her decorating committee were responsible for the clever decorating and guests entering the club were delighted with the profusion of brilliantly colored spring flowers. Aristically draped willows entwined with sunshine-yellow daffodils framed the archway. One corner of the reception room was reserved for the gaily colored Maypole with vivid streamers.

Each lady attending was presented with a yellow rose corsage, a symbol of Beta Sigma Phi.

Receiving the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Revil, Mr. and Mrs. R. Ketcheson and Mr. and Mrs. William Tatham.

Soft candlelight glowed from the white damask draped tables surrounding the darkened dance floor.

While the gay crowd danced Mr. Paul Poulin acted as master of ceremonies and announced the winners of spot dances and door prizes donated by various Belleville merchants.

A sumptuous buffet supper, planned and prepared under the direction of Mrs. G. Mutter, was served from two beautifully appointed tables with silver bowls of sorority's traditional yellow roses and flanked by gleaming candelabras.

EXPORT FLOWERS

Bulgaria exports many types of flowers and seeds including 300 kinds of roses.

Woman Doctor Given Bracelet For Bravery

MONTREAL (CP)—A young woman doctor who crawled into the wreckage of a fire-swept building to aid two firemen trapped by debris was presented with a gold bracelet Wednesday by Mayor Jean Drapeau.

Dr. Genevieve de Groot, 24, also received a fireman's helmet from Armand Duretta, director of the Montreal fire department.

Wearing a construction helmet and fireman's slicker, she squirmed through the rubble three times to administer pain-killing drugs to the pinned firemen—whose injuries proved fatal.

A third fireman died when the roof of the building—a furniture store on downtown St. Catherine Street—collapsed after the fire April 6.

Ann Landers

Imposters Gain Nothing By Their Phoney Behavior

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—The whole town is talking about this and most people are as incensed as I am. The approaching marriage of a young woman was announced recently in the newspaper. The girl flunked out of the University of Michigan and the following year returned home after attending Michigan State for a few months. Then she went east and got a job working in a department store. The newspaper announcement described her as a graduate of Radcliffe.

The girl's fiance is a young man from New York. According to the newspaper announcement he is a graduate of Yale. He says, "Pleased to meetcha," and "I'd redder have deez den dose." My husband is a Yale graduate and he is furious.

Why don't newspapers check the facts? Do they print anything handed to them and assume it is correct? I'd like your comments and so would others in this town.—BONDE VERDAD.

DEAR DONDE—Some newspapers verify such facts but most newspapers assume that people are not going to lie about their education.

It's disappointing when people are dishonest but why are you "incensed?" You've lost nothing and they've gained nothing. This incident has made the family look ridiculous.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I was interested in the letter from the mother of a young dentist. He had just begun to practice and several of his relatives went to him for dental care. When he sent them bills for his services they refused to pay. They said they were "helping him get experience" and that he should appreciate their willingness to take a chance on him.

You told the mother that a dental fee should be discussed with the patient before the work is done—relative or not.

What about physicians? Both my husband and I have had surgery recently. When the bills arrived we were shocked. We have friends who had similar operations and their bills were much smaller.

I've always felt it was beneath the dignity of a physician to talk about money, and it would be insulting to bring the subject up. What about this?—FINANCIALLY ANEMIC.

DEAR ANEMIC—There is nothing "undignified" about money. In our society we need money to live. Hardly anybody barters any more.

The cost of surgery should be discussed in advance. It may be possible to anticipate complications which might make the procedure more costly but a reasonable estimate should be given. And the patient should not hesitate to ask.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—My husband reads your column every day but he will not admit it. Please print this letter. If he sees it in the paper it may help.

We have three children. The two older ones are grown and on their own. They were very bright in school and we never had even one phone call from a teacher or principal. The youngest boy is having a terrible time with his studies. My husband makes matters worse by arguing with his teachers.

Yesterday he got on the phone and told Jack's math teacher that she has it in for him and that his grades would be better if she weren't spiteful. You can imagine what this does to Jack's relationship with the teacher.

What can I do to get my husband to lay off?—WIT'S END.

DEAR WIT'S END—Nothing, probably. But you can go to school and talk to the teacher so she will know that Jack has at least one rational parent.

Ask her how you can help the boy to do better, and inquire about hiring a tutor.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

complete authority is available. As soon as construction can be started and other details cleared up, it will be done. There is no block insofar as authority or money to do it."

Mr. Best said he understands that the new institution will be built in Quebec but that a site has not yet been chosen.

P. E. Leonard of Montreal, one of the guards in the delegation, said the death last Thursday of guard Raymond Tellier at St. Vincent de Paul would not have occurred if the two prisoners who kidnapped him and held him hostage had been in an institution for psychopaths.

Mr. Chevrier said one of the steps to be taken immediately at St. Vincent de Paul will be construction of a wall to cut off about 125 troublesome prisoners from any contact with others.

Roland LaFrancois, president of the St. Vincent de Paul section of the Civil Service Association, said about 200 of the 1,000 prisoners in the penitentiary are dangerous.

CONTROLLED BY SCUM

He said the bulk of the prisoners are controlled by the 200 whom he described as "the scum of the earth."

The two guards said lack of space is responsible for 75 per cent of the trouble at the penitentiary. They also said that in recent years too many privileges had been granted to prisoners too quickly.

Mr. LaFrancois said the situation at St. Vincent de Paul has been deteriorating steadily for the last two or three years.

Mr. Best said the association feels that penitentiary guards are not compensated for the hazard element and that their salary scale is too low.

Mr. Best said Mr. Chevrier was sympathetic to a proposal for legislation to provide adequate compensation for widows and orphans of penitentiary guards killed on duty.

Mr. Best also said the association is making a survey of its 2,335 members working in penitentiaries to obtain an over-all view of current problems. It would be presented later to Mr. Chevrier.

than 2,000—most of them teenagers—were arrested in the last week after the demonstrations expanded.

The truce faltered when Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Rev. Ralph Abernathy, two Negro leaders, were convicted and jailed for parading without a permit.

The two had been arrested on Good Friday while leading a protest march.

GET MAXIMUM

They and 34 other demonstrators were given maximum sentences of 180 days and $100 fines.

Before the conviction, King told a press conference:

"We are hopeful that the possibility looms that we may be able to make some sort of settlement within the next 24 hours. We are very near a settlement."

King stepped out of jail three hours later on $2,500 bond and said he hoped the truce would not be broken. Abernathy also was freed on bond.

King and Abernathy were jailed because they were unable to post the $2,500 appeal bonds immediately. Later a wealthy Birmingham Negro, A. G. Gaston, posted bonds and the men were released.

JFK

about efforts to end what he termed "an ugly situation in Birmingham, Ala."

Declaring that racial strife in Birmingham damaged the city and the nation, Kennedy said in an opening statement that responsible efforts by white and Negro leaders had prompted Birmingham businessmen to pledge "substantial steps" to meet the "justifiable needs of the Negro community."

But he said "much remains to be settled before the situation can be termed satisfactory."

Kennedy said that, in the absence of violations of federal law, the federal government had limited its role in Birmingham to that of mediator.

As for the Hyannis Port meeting with Pearson Friday and Saturday, Kennedy said the central objective is to go over all the areas which involve the common interests of the two countries: Defence, trade, distribution of natural resources, the flow of investments and other matters.

Other officials have stated the most vital issues to be discussed likely will be Canadian acceptance of U.S. nuclear warheads and some means of removing Canadian barriers to ratification of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River power treaty.

These are two issues which caused most of the frictions between Kennedy and the previous Diefenbaker administration. However, the two leaders intend to discuss issues around the world in efforts to form parallel views on how some of these problems may be overcome.

Intelligence Gap Develops Regarding Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — United States surveillance of Soviet military activity in Cuba has been curtailed and an intelligence gap is developing, the Miami Herald says.

In a dispatch from Washington, The Herald cites three instances of decreased intelligence-gathering:

1. Low-level reconnaissance flights have been suspended since Feb. 9.

2. High-level U-2 reconnaissance flights are being kept at a minimum.

3. Anti-Castro guerrilla reports are being stifled by the U.S. crackdown on American-based raids against Cuba.

Military leaders in Washington were described as upset over three developments in Cuba about which they feel they have insufficient information:

1. The appearance of a large number of Russian tents, some of them big enough to enclose a missile and its launcher.

2. Heavy transport traffic to and from areas where large caves are known to be. Cuban exiles have been maintained that the Russians are hiding missiles in Cuba's numerous caves.

3. Construction of a rail line to a major Soviet camp area.

mended storage subsidy program for feed grains.

Advice to the government on its policy of permits for imported feed grains.

Finally, to provide a general study and advisory body on feed grain supplies and market developments "which may have created undesirable and short-run distortions and fluctuations in prices." However, it would not interfere with the Canadian wheat board, crown sales agency for Prairie wheat, oats and barley.

The former Conservative government had been working on legislation to set up a federal feed agency serving Eastern Canada.

NOTES BUTTER SURPLUS

The brief noted the new government's decision to continue the 13-cent-a-pound butter subsidy although on a more limited measure of support.

"We think on the whole that the policy meets the needs of the present situation and we expect in 1963-64 the demand and supply situation for butter will come very much closer this balance."

The butter surplus of more than 300,000,000 pounds has been rising annually since 1958.

not indicate any abnormal situation," he said. His group was well aware of the work done in Alaska as well as in Sweden.

Mr. Pruitt wrote that tests on a few Alaskan residents showed formation of new bone containing concentrations of strontium-90, the cancer-forming elements, four times in excess of the general American level.

He said that tests on Swedish Lapanders from the north showed concentrations of cesium-137, which is capable of producing genetic changes, 30 to 40 times greater than in residents tested in southern Sweden.

Cesium-137 acquired by an animal or human settles in the flesh while strontium-90 settles in bone.

Boom Sounded Like Jet's Sonic Blast

OTTAWA (CP) — Something went BOOM in the capital area Wednesday night. So far nobody has been able to figure out what it was, although it sounded like a jet's sonic blast.

The noise struck like a gigantic thunderclap at 8:21 p.m. EDT. Houses shook, some windows cracked and a few residents reported that dishes and certain rods fell to the floor. Damage was not serious.

Police, firemen, radio stations and newspaper newsrooms were deluged with calls from all sections of Ottawa, adjacent Hull, Que., and villages 10 miles away.

There were no reports of an explosion, fire or accident.

RCAF headquarters at first suspected that one of three Voodoo jets flying near Ottawa had accidentally broken the sound barrier and caused a shock wave — the explosive "sonic boom." But the pilots returned to Uplands air base and reported none of them had approached the sound barrier on their routine flight.

An air force radar base in the Pembroke area that watches a vast area around Ottawa said the interceptors were the only aircraft on its screen.

A radar base spokesman also confirmed the Voodoo pilots' report. They had been clocked on the radar screen at well under the speed of sound.

Death Claims Black Hawks' "Bill" Tobin

CHICAGO (AP) — William J. Tobin, vice-president of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, died Wednesday.

Tobin, associated with the team for nearly 36 years as owner or an official, died in Mercy Hospital of emphysema, a lung destroying disease.

Tobin, who would have been 68 May 20, entered the hospital Saturday for the second time in a month. He was released in April after a brief stay but returned when his condition worsened.

Tobin became associated with the Black Hawks in 1932 when professional hockey was introduced to Chicago. He was named general manager by the late Major Frederick McLeagh-lin, who bought the Portland, Ore., Rosebowls that year, transferred the club to Chicago and renamed it the Black Hawks. Later Tobin was president of the Hawks for seven years until 1946 when he and a syndicate of Chicago businessmen purchased the controlling interest after the death of McLaughlin.

Tobin headed the club until 1950 when he and his associates sold their interests to the present owners, James D. Norris and Arthur Wirtz. Tobin continued with the Hawks as vice-president. In 1941 while associated with the Hawks, Tobin took over independently Kansas City Americans of the U.S. Hockey League. He operated the Americans until 1951, when the club became part of the Black Hawks organization.

A native of Ottawa, Tobin played amateur hockey there. He later played as a goalie with the original Edmonton Eskimos of the old Alberta Big Four League.

HIJACK FAGS

MONTREAL (CP)—Thor Melby, a truck driver, walked into a Montreal police station Wednesday and said his truck had been hijacked of $22,000 worth of cigarettes. He said he was stopped about 9 a.m. at a street corner in northeastern Montreal by three men with guns.

Starvation

50, who packed 500 pounds on his six-foot, seven-inch frame when they carried him into the hospital about two weeks ago.

Fox was being crushed by his own weight, said Dr. Drenick. "He had a foot and a half in his grave."

Fox now weighs 444 and has lost 10 pounds in the last two weeks. His goal is to get down to 230 within the next six months.

Dr. Drenick and his patients agree that hunger pangs disappear after 48-72 hours. After that the body adjusts to the change in habits.

Is starvation a means of losing weight for the person who is just plain fat?

"Definitely not," said Dr. Drenick.

He explained that blood pressure problems and other difficulties requiring close medical supervision frequently develop in starvation cases.

"This method should not be attempted without a doctor's approval," he said.

Autopsy Reveals Traces of Carbon Monoxide Poison

WANSTEAD, Ont. (CP)—An autopsy performed on the body of pensioner Alex Wilcox, 70, found dead Wednesday in Ida Brook Township cottage near here, revealed traces of carbon monoxide poisoning.

John Wilcox, 74, found in serious condition in the cottage he shared with his brother, is in hospital at Sarnia, 30 miles east of here, with a possible skull fracture.

Coroner Dr. R. L. Norris of Wyoming, Ont., said it was possible Alex Wilcox had been dead for a week. A gash on his brother's head was several days old.

Provincial police, who reported no visible evidence of foul play, speculated the brothers may have been overcome a week ago by a blow-back of gas from a wood stove during a wind storm.

appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Legal sources said that if Reitman's wins its case, it is certain that other importers affected by the surcharges will seek repayment.

No exact figure is available of the total amount collected under the surcharges.

For the first 11 months of last fiscal year to the end of February—one month before the surcharges were listed—total customs duty collections were $111,000,000 higher than a year earlier. The surcharges are responsible for most of the increase, although a gain of some $250,000,000 during the period in the flow of imports also produced higher customs revenues.

The legal argument over the validity of the surcharges likely will be a complex one, based on a claim that the cabinet orders were not authorized by law.

Last June the government took a round-about way of imposing the surcharges. Under the Customs Tariff Act it raised duties on the imports involved up to the level of the "general tariff"—a rate higher than the duty applicable to most of Canada's imports. Then it passed a companion order-in-council under the Financial Administration Act, granting remittances on the duty down to the level it wanted.

has all the air of a goldberg creation.

The grouse trap consists of a wire cage, a mirror, a mouse trap and a trapdoor. It is placed on a log used by the male grouse in mating season to stand upon, drum his wings and attract females.

The male grouse, highly jealous of other males, sees his image reflected in the mirror and charges into the cage tripping a little wire.

The wire triggers the mouse trap on top of the cage. The bar on the mousetrap pulls a wire which pulls a catch. The catch releases the door which slams shut behind the grouse.

Despite all the snaps, tugs and slams, the grouse continues to battle his image in the mirror until a research worker comes along, bands him, and lets him go.

SIU Says Starr Worked 'Hand in Glove' With Co. Heads in Fight With Union

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Seafarers International Union of Canada today accused former labor minister Michael Starr of having worked "hand in glove" with the management of the Upper Lakes Shipping Company of Toronto in its fight with the SIU.

The union, in a bulky report submitted to the SIU North American convention, also charged that the federal commission headed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of British Columbia, investigating the Great Lakes labor battle, showed bias against the Seafarers.

Prepared by Harold C. Banks, Canadian SIU leader, the report said if the Norris commission findings resemble the conduct of the hearings, the results can be expected to be derogatory for the SIU.

"We are prepared for this and have planned appropriate steps," the Ohio - born Banks told the convention in relating his version of two years of union strife on the Great Lakes—rooted in the rivalry between the Canadian Maritime Union, supported by the Canadian Labor Congress, and the SIU which had been expelled from the CLC for union raiding.

Claiming that the Upper Lakes Company of Toronto is controlled by the Norris Grain Company of Chicago, the SIU said it has no doubt that Starr, labor minister in the previous Diefenbaker administration, worked to assist the Norris family with their labor-busting attempts.

Earlier, Banks said that the Great Lakes shipping fight can only be resolved if the Upper Lakes Company rehires an estimated 300 SIU men who lost their jobs when the Toronto company signed a contract with the CMU.

Should the Upper Lakes work battle be resolved in the favor of SIU, the 56-year-old SIU executive vice-president said Wednesday, he would be prepared to make peace with the Canadian Labor Congress and, if invited, return the SIU to the CLC —pledging not to raid other unions.

"But there's got to be an understanding that non-raiding be applied to all the unions—not just the SIU," the burly, Ohio-born union boss added in an interview.

Asked whether he would be prepared to withdraw from Canada if this became a point in settling differences with the CLC, Banks said he has been with the union "for 28 years now and you don't walk off the job in this kind of fight." He said he has no intention of leaving Montreal.

Arriving to attend the SIU North American biennial convention, Banks said his union report on the Great Lakes fight likely will come before the convention today.

J. M. Hartwick Causes Shock To Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Agriculture Minister William Stewart of Ontario said Wednesday he was shocked by remarks of the National Dairy Council president criticizing marketing legislation in the province.

J. M. Hartwick told a meeting of the Nova Scotia Dairymen's Association May 1 that farmers should rebel against legislation which gives marketing powers to producer groups in Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Stewart said Mr. Hartwick had participated in a national dairy conference in February sponsored by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture which gave recognition to the importance and interests of the processing side of the dairy industry.

Mr. Hartwick told his Nova Scotia audience that Ontario and Quebec legislation represented an imminent threat to the existence and progress of a producer - owned co-operative system of processing and marketing.

Mr. Stewart commented in an interview that Mr. Hartwick's statements were a betrayal of the spirit behind the dairy conference and his attitude could be a stumbling block to future discussions concerning the dairy industry.

TO BUILD UNIVERSITY

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Bennett announced Wednesday that Simon Fraser University will be constructed on an 1,168-acre campus atop Burnaby Mountain near Vancouver. It is hoped to begin building before the end of this year.

Kennedy Pledges Swift U.S. Counteraction in Event of New Mid-East Aggression

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has posted a new warning against aggression in the Middle East, pledging swift U.S. counteraction in an effort to reassure both Israel and the Arab states.

In a five-point policy statement at his press conference Wednesday the president, however, ignored specific proposals made in Congress for a formal U.S. treaty to guarantee Israeli-Arab frontiers.

The effect of his declaration thus was to throw cold water on calls for such guarantees.

"In the event of aggression or preparation for aggression whether direct or indirect," Kennedy said, "we would support appropriate measures in the United Nations (and) adopt other courses of operation on our own to prevent or put a stop to such aggression. That, of course, has been the policy for which the United States has followed for some time."

CREATE CONCERN

Two developments in the Middle East have created concern in Washington and in Israeli government circles in recent weeks. One is the recent decision by Egypt, Syria and Iraq to form the United Arab Republic. Coupled with this have been demonstrations in Jordan against the government of King Hussein and in favor of the Arab unity movement headed by Egyptian President Nasser.

The other development over a long period of time has been Nasser's program of arming Egypt with modern weapons including rockets being built with the aid of German and other European scientists.

Together, these two developments on the Arab side have aroused fresh fears in Israel of an eventual Arab military effort to smash Israel. The challenger has been discussed publicly and some days ago Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion informally suggested either a U.S. guarantee or a U.S.-Soviet guarantee of Israel's frontiers.

U.S. policymakers say privately that the United States intends to avoid any action in the uneasy situation which would seem to put the U.S. on either side in the controversy.

The aim, they said, is to pursue friendly relations with both and thus to make its stand against aggression equally applicable to both.

Quebec Mayor Makes Strong Plea for Unity

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities of Canada said Wednesday night that Quebec separatists are "a group of idealists who have not done too much in life and who apparently suffer from an inferiority complex."

Mayor J. Lucien Rochon of Trois Rivieres, Que., made the statement at the annual dinner meeting of the Prince Edward Island Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

"I tell a group of separatists in my province to go visit the rest of Canada and when you come back you will be separatists no more—but you will be better Canadians."

Speaking in English — "my second language my father made me learn"—Mr. Monsgrain made a strong plea for unity in Canada and said mayors and councillors of municipalities were in a position to further it.

"Why should we quarrel when we all seek the same sense of belonging? Minor differences of language or religion should not prevent our working together."

STAKE DRIVING — Alderman Frank Murray shows confidence as he holds first stake in Zwick's Island development, being driven by Parks Board member Bill Hurst. Board secretary-treasurer C. J. Bender looks on.

Will Start Initial Phase Of Half-Million Program At Zwick's Isle This Year

The initial phase of a proposed half million dollar development program at Zwick's Island, which is hoped to be completed by 1967, will get underway this year.

This was assured yesterday by Belleville Parks Board chairman William Hurst as he and his board members planned the location of buildings and other services to be provided this year.

Mr. Hurst said that approximately $30,000, provided mainly by special levy on this year's tax rate will be spent this year, with the initial service to be ready by the middle of June.

Planned for this year is the construction of an irrigation pumphouse, dressing rooms, a sand beach, canteen and wash rooms, and a boat ramp to provide easier launching for local boating enthusiasts.

PLAN AUDITORIUM

Scheduled for later consideration to complete the island as a recreational centre are a memorial centre with auditorium, bandshell and track and field facilities.

First major public attraction at the island, following the provision of utility facilities will be a Lions Club picnic in June. In appreciation of being granted use of the island, the club is donating a flag pole, which will be mounted on the island's promontory.

Yesterday afternoon members of the Parks Board met at the island and with the board chairman went over plans for the island's development.

Later stakes were driven marking out the location of the various structures to be provided this year.

Parks board plans call for reserving most of the original island area for pedestrians, with motor vehicles to be excluded for their protection.

"We don't want cars driving near where kiddies are at play," noted Mr. Hurst.

PLAN SAND BEACH

One of the first facilities to be provided at the island will be a sand beach along the southwest side.

The sand area will be 80 or more feet in width with a length of from 65 to 70 yards.

Willow trees at present growing in the beach area at the island will be retained.

Other almost-concurrent conferences also are involved but the one that may really count is scheduled for next year. This is the United Nations world-wide trade conference with special application to developing countries, for which a preparatory meeting will be held just after the forthcoming Geneva get-together.

Failure of the GATT talks could well mean an explosive political situation at the UN meeting, where Soviet Premier Khrushchev could be expected to take advantage of failures of the advanced countries to make concessions to the less-developed area.

The big impetus in the whole complex of talks was President Kennedy's success Oct. 11, 1962, in getting the U.S. Congress to give him authority to negotiate across - the - board tariff reductions up to 50 per cent.

The principle of tariff reductions has been approved by Prime Minister Pearson but he explained at a press conference in London last week that the 50-per cent "linear" idea might present problems because Canada is a producer of primary items and semi - manufactured goods.

Start Biggest Examination, Assault on Tariffs Yet Attempted in Free World

LONDON (CP) — Canada joined Wednesday in a family-type two-day study that is part of perhaps the biggest examination and assault on tariffs yet attempted in the free world.

What started here was a 17-country Commonwealth conference among experts and it is linked either formally or inevitably with other conferences leading to next week's Geneva meeting of the 44-country General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Questions rather than answers set the tone of the day:

Nationalism or internationalism? Are the new economic blocs seeking rivalry in trade or real co-operation? Can the less-developed countries look forward to real meaning in the phrase trade-not-aid? Will the highly - industrialized countries recognize the particular problems of, say, a primary-producer like Canada?

The immediate job of the experts meeting in London was to prepare the ground for government ministers—including Canada's Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp—who will attend the Commonwealth Consultative Economic Council meeting next Monday and Tuesday.

Pentagon Shakeup Points To Weakness of McNamara

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The U.S. defence department is undergoing internal convulsions involving the careers and morale of the top military echelons as the result of a single military contract acquisition valued at the entire Canadian budget for a full year.

When Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower stepped down from the presidency two years ago, he warned against the possibility of a huge military-industrial complex acquiring undue government influence. Because of tremendous government defence expenditures, "the potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist," he said.

But Eisenhower also warned against what he described as an equal and opposite danger—that public policy itself could be seized by the scientific-technological elite.

In essence a conclusion as to what company would be given the contract to construct a controversial new fighter plane, with a hinged, tapered wing, defence secretary Robert McNamara probably realized his decision would become highly political and debatable.

CONTRACT AWARDED

Various districts in need of jobs were hungry for that contract which eventually would mean federal outlays of about $6,000,000,000 or more. The biggest competition was between Boeing Aircraft Company of California and General Dynamics Corporation of New York and Texas.

General Dynamics got the contract under circumstances which initiated a heated congressional investigation amid charges that McNamara ignored recommendations of his generals and displayed dictatorial tendencies in his final decision.

The former "whiz kid" of the Detroit auto industry resented the criticism. A tough and hardworking Irishman, he pursued a determination to cut Pentagon costs, knock military heads together to eliminate inter-service rivalry and push for an integrated form of defence based mainly on missiles despite the cry of some of his military men for a new family of long-range jet bombers.

But wove through his toughness there appears to be intolerance of criticism and a zest for revenge against those who oppose him. The top man in the Navy, Admiral George Anderson, is being dropped. His one-year term ending next August will not be extended.

LOWERED MORALE

The two-year term of Gen. Curtis LeMay, chief of the air force, is being extended for only one year instead of the expected two. These and other changes are reported to have reduced morale among the top military career men to a low point.

Congressional investigators say there were errors in McNamara's judgment in handling the fighter contract. They suggest there may have been more politics than military savvy displayed.

Now McNamara is being criticized, and defended, in editorial columns. Where before he was considered the golden boy of the Kennedy administration who could do no wrong, he now is described in one column as a would-be superman who ignores the public in his decision-making.

Politics being what it is, the fighter contract is unlikely to be upset but it could split some of the democratic groups in congress and possibly reflect in the presidential vote next year.

Jagan Declares Emergency In Guiana

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters)—A state of emergency was in force in this troubled British colony today after the failure of a last-minute attempt to settle a strike that is to break a deadlock in talks on ending a 10-day general strike.

Premier Cheddi Jagan declared a state of emergency in the country's populous north coast coast of South America shortly after Governor Sir Ralph Grey ordered to get the government and the Trades Union Council to break the impasse. The talks collapsed Tuesday.

Jagan's action came after a war office spokesman said in London 200 men of the "spearhead battalion" of Britain's strategic army reserve were placed on a 12-hour alert "in view of the situation in British Guiana."

The group is from the 1st battalion of The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, stationed at Graysend, southern England. The remainder of the battalion has been placed on a 72-hour alert.

PROTEST BILL

The TUC called the general strike in protest against the government's labor relations bill, which would allow it to decide which unions employers should recognize.

Jagan has previously declared the strike unconstitutional and an attempt to overthrow the government.

The left - leaning premier called in British troops after declaring a state of emergency on Feb. 16, 1962, when disorders claimed five lives, injured 200 and caused extensive damage to the Georgetown business section.

Police last week were reported to have seized guns, knives and over 500 rounds of ammunition in raids on homes and the headquarters of both the People's Progressive Party—headed by Jagan—and the opposition National Congress and United Force.

CONGRATULATIONS — Past-president, W. R. Templeton, Trenton, (centre), greets successor H. J. Casselman, Brockville, at meeting of Eastern Ontario Purchasing Agents' Association in Belleville last night. Secretary-treasurer K. H. Moran, Kingston, (left), joins in congratulations. The dinner meeting was attended by close to 40 members of the Association from Trenton to Prescott.

DESERONTO

Residents Attend Meeting To Discuss School Question

DESERONTO — Unusual was the fact that the regular meeting of the town council on Monday night saw all seats taken around the table. Mayor Sweetnam occupied the chair, and there were seven council lors in attendence. The three new members appointed because of resignations were J. D. Colley, Albert Marks and P. Brooks.

The first order of business was the adoption of the new committees and the tabling of the report of the Water Resources Commission on the test drilling conducted some time ago.

According to the report there were four wells drilled and test pumping of two showed that a flow of 250 gallons per minute could not be obtained. The commission recommended the improvement of the present surface water supply.

Another unusual feature of the meeting was the presence of a large number of ratepayers. Every seat in the council chamber was taken and, as it developed, they were mainly supporters of that element who advocated the closing of the high school last year.

A letter from S. E. Knapp to the council asked permission for D. A. Armitage to present their case to council. Mr. Armitage was a defeated candidate for the Board of Education in the election held last December. Mr. Armitage said that he was speaking for those people who wished to have free choice of education and asked for a meeting of the council and the Board of Education to iron out the difficulties. He was the opinion of those present that the courses available to children throughout the province should be available to the children of Deseronto. He said that the maintenance of the high school caused an increase in taxes and that any further delay in settling the question would be detrimental to the town. Mayor Sweetnam said that he had been working on the question for six years and now the problem of closing the school would have to start from the ground up. Reeve Lott also expressed the opinion that the move would have to be started anew.

A report of the special meeting of County Council held on June 19 last was read and showed that 14 were in favor of the motion of closing the school and 16 were against. Councillor Alford stated that there was nothing in the minutes showing why the request was turned down.

MATTER FOR TOWN

He advised that the members of the county council felt that there was too much dissension amongst the people of the town on the question of fact that the matter should be resettled in the townspeople. This feeling of the members of the county council was occasioned by the two delegations from the town who presented opposing arguments to the county council at that meeting.

Councillor Alford stated that the county council failed in their duty. He moved that a letter he had prepared should be presented by the finance committee of the town council to the county council. His letter stated that no written answer had been received to the request of the town council presented on June 19th last and as a result the town is still maintaining the high school with a deficit which caused an increase in taxation. The letter further stated that this council felt that county council should assume the cost of maintaining the Deseronto High School. A copy of the letter is to be sent to the Municipal Board and the Department of Education.

The motion passed with only one dissenting vote.

BOARDS MAY MEET

Councillor Marks then moved that the school board be asked to meet with the town council so that we can come to some decision on the matter. After some forty minutes of discussion this was passed with Councillors Alford, Colley and Marks attend the meeting of the Board of Education on May 13th to set a date for the joint meeting.

Councillor Marks asked if council had requested a list of expenses for the past five years. It was advised that a proper request would have to be made to the Board of Education. Councillor Colley, however, presented councillors with a copy of costs he had taken from audits.

A number of ratepayers spoke their views to council on the matter and Dr. L. McCullough told of the high esteem that the local school had in the past and advised that two premiers of Ontario had visited the school. P. Roach, principal of the public school, gave his views on the matter and said that the high school is not proper as it is. Following the closing of the discussion on the school question all the ratepayers except five left the council chamber.

Councillor Howard moved that a new police car be purchased and council are to call for tenders. Councillor Howard intimated that the tender would be awarded locally.

DOES NOT WANT PLANT

Before the motion for adjournment was presented, W. M. Smith asked to speak to council and said that he had a letter requesting such permission. He spoke against the use of the old plant of the Ideal Vendors being used for a meat packing plant and stated that the building was in no condition to be used as such. He said the town has no guarantee that the party will keep its promises and once he is let in he will not be gotten rid of. He took issue with the report of the M.O.H. that there will be no odors. He also said that if the town were built up residentially and the council could control the members on the school board we would have a good town.

Councillor Brooks advised that the people will have a chance to register any complaints with the Municipal Board. The clerk advised that notices had been sent as required by law and the date of the hearing would be May 17. Councillors Marks and Alford moved that an advertisement be placed in the local paper advising the people of the hearing. This was passed.

Govt. Planning Some Move Toward Commission Regarding Boundaries of Constituencies

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is planning to make some move toward establishing a permanent commission to redraw the boundaries of parliamentary constituencies.

A first step emerged Monday with the report that Nelson Castonguay, the chief electoral officer, will make a three-week trip to Australia to examine the redistribution system employed there for the last 50 years.

All four parties in the Commons are agreed in principle on establishing a permanent commission to handle redistribution. But the proposal has never reached the stage where Parliament has gone into the various kinds of commissions possible, such as that employed by Australia.

The Conservative government introduced a bill in 1962 to establish a commission but it made no progress before the 1962 election. Now was any concrete step taken in the parliamentary session before last April's general election.

The law requires that redistribution occur "on the completion" of the census taken every 10 years. The 1961 census was completed last June. So far, redistribution have been handled by parliamentary committees.

OTHER PROPOSALS MADE

Associated with public discussion of a redistribution commission have been a number of other proposals such as setting up a permanent electoral roll, reduction of the voting age to 18 years, from 21 and a variety of suggestions to limit campaign expenses or pay them out of the federal treasury.

However, Mr. Castonguay's instructions from the government involve only examination of Australia's redistribution system. While there, he also will study Australia's system of permanent voters lists although this forms no part of his assignment.

Australia will provide an indication based on 60 years experience of how constituency boundaries are redrawn by a commission. However, experience on some of the problems involved in starting such a system probably will be unavailable.

Britain changed from redistribution by parliamentary committee to redistribution by commission after the Second World War and may be able to provide information on the problems involved in such a change.

It is uncertain whether the government expects to get legislation through Parliament at the forthcoming session to establish a commission.

MPS AFFECTED

Every MP is vitally affected by the boundaries of his riding. This, plus the fact that none of the four parties commands a majority of the 265-seat Commons, means that a substantial degree of agreement will be necessary to achieve rapid action on a bill establishing a redistribution commission.

Once a commission is set up by Parliament, it then faces the job of examining constituency boundaries and fixing them in accordances with ground rules laid down, by Parliament.

Within the last 10 years, both Manitoba and Ontario have had experience with this problem. Manitoba set up an independent redistribution commission in 1955 and it took about five months to come up with recommendations involving that province's 47 legislature seats.

Ontario set a commission to work last year and it took several months to deal with boundary problems of the Toronto suburb seats in the Ontario legislature.

Experts here say it may take three or four years to achieve redistribution of parliamentary seats by a commission.

HOWS THIS FOR SIZE? — Maurice Denonconcourt tries a 19th-century neck shackle for size at the old Trois-Rivieres, Que., jail. Chuckling at the stunt is J. Robert Loranger, head of the Trois-Rivieres Chamber of Commerce. The group plans to set up a museum on the site of the nearby St. Maurice forge where the shackles were made. Founded in 1733, it was Canada's first iron works. (CP Photo)

Canada's First Iron Strike Historic Site

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — The birthplace of Canada's iron and steel industry is to be brought back to life as a historic site.

The Trois-Rivieres Chamber of Commerce is spearheading a campaign to restore the St. Maurice Forge, the first heavy industry complex in Canada, nine miles north of here.

Restoration will have to start from scratch because the forge, abandoned 80 years ago, is gone except for a furnace chimney.

First step in the project was the purchase by the provincial government of the tract of land for the Quebec Historical Sites and Monuments Commission.

The province has also promised to put up $68,000 to landscape the site. Next step for the chamber, headed by J. Robert Loranger, is to get financial backing from Canadian steel companies for the project, expected to cost about $353,000.

Documents found by Msgr. Albert Tessier of the Trois-Rivieres history show the location of the foundry, home of the master of the mill and of the entire village.

MAKE SOUVENIRS

Plans call for construction of the pioneer foundry and the residence of the master forger. The foundry will turn out iron and steel souvenirs and the home will contain displays showing the area's history.

Iron ore deposits were discovered in the region in 1670 but because the French government followed a policy of discouraging colonial industry, it wasn't until 1729 that development began.

The forge survived several changes of control and failure as it passed from private hands into those of the French king. Under British rule several fortunes were made by various owners.

Several hundred square miles of land belonged to the operation were gradually sold and finally in 1883, at a time when the forge employed 500 men, it was shut down.

Historians say the village had a steel complex, company store, chapel, windmill, charcoal-making kilns, storage sheds, axe works and homes for the workers. It was surrounded by lush farmland on the shores of the St. Maurice River.

HEADS FEDERATION

WINDSOR (CP) — The appointment of Richard S. Passmore of Toronto as executive director of the Canadian Wildlife Federation was announced Tuesday by federation President T. S. Hodgkiss. A graduate of the University of Toronto, Mr. Passmore, 40, served for 12 years with the Ontario department of lands and forests, the last two as supervisor of game management.

New Course Training Men As Guides for Tourists

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP) — A new field is being explored in the national program for retraining men without jobs or skills.

In the woods of northwestern Ontario 27 men are being trained as guides for tourists.

The course, being carried out under the Canadian Vocational Training Act, is part of a training and retraining program for 400 unemployed sponsored by the Port Arthur Board of education.

At the Quetico Conference and Training Centre near Atikokan, Ont., 110 miles west of the Lakehead, the 27 men are taking a tough one - month course, working 10 hours a day six days a week. Some are experienced guides trying to upgrade their skills, some are Indians accustomed to life in the woods, others are completely new to guiding.

The men, including two from as far away as the Sault Ste. Marie area, range in age from 17 to 55 and in education from Grades 4 to 11. Some were skilled in occupations that practically have ceased to exist. Others were completely without skills.

The men are taught where to find fish and game. They learn bush first aid and how to make emergency repairs of equipment. When they are through they will know how to use a map and compass and tell direction by the sun and stars. And they will know how to organize search and rescue parties.

The guide will be able to set up a safe camp and cook full-course meals over an open fire. He will be expected to make sure all fish and game laws are obeyed and in some cases will be required to show tourists how to prepare, cook and preserve their game.

The course also trains a guide how to live off the land. It teaches him safe boating and hunting practices and is particularly emphatic about immaculate personal hygiene.

Another aspect of the course is the teaching of practices to guard against forest fires resulting from carelessness.

Anyone with $2 can get a guide's licence and there isn't any qualification test. But reliable tourist operators and competent guides say standards are needed, and G. P. Dalzell, director of education here, agrees.

"We get hundreds of tourists pouring in here from the United States and one of the things they are looking for is a qualified guide. We hope this course will fill the need."

Instructors are C. M. McIntosh and Glenn Rawlings of the staff at Quetico, which also conducts seminars on labor management and cultural development. Harry Pinn of Winnipeg, Erika Hull of Atikokan, Mark Sauberbrei and Ken Tolnie of Port Arthur, Allen Elsey of Fort Frances, Ont., and Mickey Linkister of Kenora, Ont.

MANY HUNT

The Ontario government estimates that at least 400,000 of the province's 6,342,000 persons go hunting.

This Fallout Tastes Good Like a Cigarette Shouldn't

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP) — Smoke from different tobaccos has been found to give a vast range in radioactivity, according to the region from which the tobacco comes.

New Zealand scientists studying the properties of tobacco smoke have taken measurements of radioactivity, with some surprising results.

They found that tobacco from one overseas source was 60 times more radioactive than the reading from New Zealand-grown tobaccos. Since radioactivity has a relationship to cancer, the suggestion has been advanced that New Zealand tobacco is the safest to smoke, so far as lung cancer is concerned.

The New Zealand experiments are being carried out jointly by the government department of scientific and industrial research and by two prominent scientists, Sir Ernest Marsden and M. Collins.

CLUE TO CANCER

Sir Ernest Marsden, formerly head of the government scientific organization, believes that the research, which began last August, could lead to valuable results.

"We have quite a lead on the world on this particular research into the short-life components in the smoke," he said. "It could lead to an understanding of the processes of cancer production."

His collaborator, Mr. Collins, said: "Our tests show that only new smoke contains large quantities of alleged cancer-producing materials. We assume that the statistical evidence that smoking produces lung cancer is conclusive, so the work we are doing is to try to find out what it is in the smoke that causes the lung cancer. If the cause is known, then it may be possible to reduce the alleged risk.

"We have measured the radioactivity of many tobaccos and found a terrific range, with New Zealand - grown tobacco showing the least and South American showing a great deal.

POSSIBLE CAUSE

"It is known that radiation can cause cancer, so if we can find a mechanism that transfers this radioactivity to the lung we have a possible producer of lung cancer.

"It is the decay products of the radioactive material, themselves radioactive, which get attached to the particles of dust or particles of smoke tar, that settle in the lungs. Another mechanism of transfer is through the production of active radicals in smoke tar which can then be carried into the lung.

"Both forms have been found in all tobaccos tested and in all proprietary brands of cigarettes.

"However, different tobaccos showed the effect in varying degrees. So if this is important as a cancer-producer, it might be possible to blend our cigarettes from low-activity tobaccos and hence reduce the alleged risk of lung cancer."

The experiments are still in progress.

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Track and Field which evinced bored ho's and hum's from a disinterested public and little more from student athletes a few short years ago is hitting a new high in spectator popularity and student participation.

It seems there was nothing wrong with the sport that a few Canadian world records, and topflight track stars could not cure. The last two or three years has noted a marked upsurgence in interest with 1962 standing out and 1963 promising to be even better.

Secondary schools' athletes have turned to the sport in numbers that have surprised coaches and educational bodies with the result that high school meet entries are reaching record figures.

Increased competition has resulted in better performance. Records go by the board in larger numbers at practically every meet. Last Saturday 19 records were established at Hamilton by secondary schools' relay teams. It is the same in other events.

The track and field "virus" is no respecter of athlete or school. Here in the COSSA Bay of Quinte District the sport is on the flowtide of popularity. A few short years ago you could count the number of meet participating schools of the district on one hand.

This year you'll need both fists with two extra fingers thrown in for proper measure.

As I said, the "virus" is no respecter of persons. The "bug", so to speak, has bitten the dimiest side of the classrooms. The Abigail Hoffmans and the Nancy McCredie's of the secondary schools are matching their male counterparts in interest and participation.

This year, next Saturday to be exact, 158 girl athletes from 12 schools of the COSSA Quinte District will take part in the track and field meet at the OSD.

Miss Betty Lelonde, OSD girls' physical education instructor and the meet convener, tells me that she expects records to go by the board in what is expected to be one of the best meets on record.

COSSA boys' convener Dave Bell of Moira S.S., says an all-time record has been established for the meet slated for Trenton High School, also on Saturday.

Upwards of 400 student track and field athletes from twelve schools of the district will target district records in a meet that consists of forty-two track and twenty-four field events. Last year some 250 students from the district took part.

Participating schools include: Moira Secondary School, last year's champions; Belleville Collegiate Institute; Quinte Secondary School; Trenton High School; O.S.D.; Prince Edward Collegiate; Napanee District High School; Marmora District High School; Campbellford District High School; Stirling High School; Norwood High School and Tweed High School.

Stan Barbour's Belleville Collegiate team tops the field in numerical strength with 60 athletes. Moira will be represented by forty-five, Quinte Secondary twenty-four and the O.S.D. thirty-nine.

Two new events have been added to the meet agenda this year, giving juvenile athletes the chance to show their track wares. The younger students will compete in the mile run and the 880 yards.

Convener Bell says: "We are looking for several meet records to be broken since the calibre of competition has been upped considerably."

Moira Secondary's track team will be seeking its second consecutive Bay of Quinte COSSA title and the opportunity to represent the district in the COSSA meet against Oshawa and Peterborough districts champions slated for Trenton on Saturday, May 18th. Oshawa O'Neill won the championship last year.

The COSSA champions will go to Ancaster later where they will take part in the OSSA track and field championships.

'Willie' Paces Dodgers; Giants 2 Up

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Los Angeles Dodgers had been waiting all season for that Davis fellow to start hitting. Well, he got started all right, but it was the other Davis.

One of Dodgers' big concerns this season has been the hitting slump of Tommy Davis, who led the National League with a .346 average and 153 runs batted in last season. He's been hampered by leg injuries and is hitting only .227.

But Willie Davis, sometimes called the other Davis, suddenly has taken up the slack. In the last four games, Willie's had seven hits in 19 times at bat,'including two doubles, two homers and a triple and has driven in five runs.

It's no coincidence that Dodgers have won three of the four, including an 11-8 decision over St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night. Willie had two homers and a triple in that one, driving in three runs and scoring the one that broke a 5-5 tie.

GIANTS PAD LEAD

San Francisco Giants opened a two-game lead atop the standings with a 12-6 victory over Milwaukee's slumping Braves; Cincinnati Reds edged Houston Colts 3-2; Chicago Cubs bombed Pittsburgh Pirates 9-5, and New York's Mets downed Philadelphia Phils 3-2.

Willie Davis' triple triggered a five-run eighth inning that broke a 5-5 tie at St. Louis. He scored on an error and Junior Gilliam wrapped it up later in the inning with a three-run homer.

Cardinals' Stan Musial also had a homer, breaking the major league record for extra base hits he shared with Babe Ruth. Musial now has 1,337 extra base hits, including 463 home runs.

Giants, who have won eight of their last nine, rushed in seven runs on five hits and a couple of errors in the fourth inning at Milwaukee and breezed in. It was Milwaukee's fifth straight loss. Willie McCovey homered for Giants, Frank Bolling for Braves.

SCATTERS SEVEN HITS

Veteran lefty Joe Nuxhall scattered seven hits in pitching Reds past Houston. Catcher Johnny Edwards drove in two Cincinnati runs in the fourth. The red hot Cubs struck for four runs in the eighth inning, triggered by Nelson Mathews' homer, broke a 5-5 tie and went on to beat Pirates. It was Chicago's eighth victory in the last nine starts and kept Cubs just two games off the pace.

Jay Hook struck out 10, allowed only four hits and set up New York's winning run with a ninth inning double against Philadelphia. Ed Kranepool's blooping double scored Rod Kanehl, running for Hook.

Disgusted With Hawks Support

Stamps Want Out Western H.L.

CALGARY (CP)—The hard-luck Calgary Stampeders, disgusted with the support offered them by the affiliated Chicago Black Hawks, want to pull out of the Western Hockey League, it was learned today.

A special hockey committee of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Ltd., sponsors of the club, voted unanimously Wednesday to request voluntary suspension of Calgary operations in the WHL for the 1963-64 season.

A telegram was sent to Chicago general manager Tommy Ivan advising him of the decision, which will have to be approved by the Stampede's board of directors before it is taken to a WHL meeting at Seattle May 15 and 16.

"We have been treated so shabbily by Chicago that we have no alternative but to ask for a year's suspension," said Ron Kelly, chairman of the Stampede board. "Ivan simply isn't interested in the future of hockey in Calgary and that's all there is to that."

The announcement came after a disappointing season for the Stampeders, who lost 45, won 23 and tied two games, and did not make the WHL Northern Division playoffs.

Attendance at home games has fallen steadily in recent years and Love said the club lost $90,000 on last season's operation alone.

Bisons Drop Three of Last Four

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo still owned the distinction today as the most successful team in the International League with a 13-7 record and a three-game lead in the northern division, but the Bisons are heading for trouble unless the pitching straightens itself to triple-A league specifications.

Atlanta Crackers rallied for six runs in the eighth inning Wednesday night to whip Buffalo 9-4 and hand them the third defeat in the last four games, a span during which Buffalo pitchers have surrendered an average of 6.5 runs a game.

The victory kept Crackers a full game ahead of Arkansas Travelers in the hotly contested southern division race. Arkansas whipped Columbus Jets 5-3, dumping Jets into the southern cellar.

Jacksonville Suns climbed to fourth place in the southern division with a 7-1 verdict over Indianapolis Indians on a pair of two-run homers by Bill Williams. Syracuse and the winning Richmond and Rochester were idled by rain.

TAG RELIEVER

Atlanta's comeback victory over Buffalo was doubly humiliating to Bisons because Crackers tagged their ace relief pitcher, Marty Kutyna, for four consecutive hits and the winning runs before the veteran right-hander could get anybody out.

Shortstop Jerry Buchek atoned for two earlier defensive lapses with a bases-loaded double off Kutyna that put Atlanta ahead 5-4 after Crackers had trailed 4-0. Mike Shannon's triple with the bases loaded completed the big Atlanta eighth.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting—Willie Davis, Dodgers, hit two homers, and tripled in eighth inning, scoring the tie-breaking run as Los Angeles went on to wallop St. Louis 11-8.

Pitching—Don Rudolph, Senators, allowed only one hit for 12 innings while retiring 25 batters in order, and wound up with a four-hitter in 6-3, 13-inning victory over Cleveland.

RECONSIDER PLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference may not be the only team to use the gridiron at city-owned Lansdowne Park this season. The Central Canada Exhibition Association which runs the park for the city said Wednesday that it is reconsidering its decision to ban use of the field by amateur clubs.

Wants CFL To Change Import Rule

REGINA (CP)—Ken Preston, general manager of the Western Football Conference Saskatchewan Roughriders, said today the Canadian Football League should revamp its rules governing imports to reduce strain on the budgets of some of the smaller clubs.

Preston suggested the rules should be changed to specify that any player who has had all his football training in the United States be classed as an import.

He said present import rules, designed to maintain a good percentage of Canadians on CFL teams and at the same time save money—imports generally are paid more than Canadians—are not rigid enough.

Preston said clubs like Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts can afford to pay the salaries demanded by these "Canadian-American" players but the Roughriders can't.

England Draws With Brazil 1-1

LONDON (AP) — England's 1-1 draw with Brazil gave the soccer experts some hope today for the 1966 World Cup championship—but not much.

The big consolation for English spectators was the top-line performance of wing halves Bobby Moore and Gordon Milne. The big question mark hung over the English forward line —and whether this experimental Brazilian team is anything near the world champions' full strength.

Most critics lined up with the opinion of Brazilian team manager Vicente Feola. His verdict: "Both teams will have to improve a great deal to have any chance of winning the World Cup."

The crowd of 92,000 packing Wembley Stadium Wednesday paid £75,000 ($225,000)—a British record.

Most of them were there in hopes of seeing the fabulous Brazilian inside left Jose Pele. A storm of booing broke out at the announcement that he was not fit to play because of a knee injury.

Peter Wilson of The Daily Mirror wrote:

"Without Pele this was Hamlet without the prince, the heavyweight championship without Sonny Liston."

Not So "Hap" Emms On Spot

Loses Player, Protest

EDMONTON (CP)— Edmonton Oil Kings, defeated in the Memorial Cup final in each of the last three years, could wind up the 1963 Canadian junior hockey championship tonight with a victory over Hap Emms' Niagara Falls Flyers.

Flyers, who walloped past Oil Kings 8-0 in the series opener, now have watched Edmonton come on to win three straight games—7-3, 5-2 and 3-2—to grab a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Along with taking a beating on the ice, Niagara Falls lost smooth-skating forward Gary Dornhoefer for the balance of the series. Dornhoefer broke a leg in the third game when he ran into a stiff check from Edmonton defenceman Pat Quinn.

Flyers' owner-coach Emms is not happy. He began the series under blanket protest over a dispute about the distance between the end boards and the goal lines. The Edmonton lines are 25 feet from the boards, and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules say they should be only 10 feet.

TURNS DOWN REQUEST

Emms also protested Tuesday night's game when CAHA president Art Potter turned down his request for the choice of ends. The Flyer coach claimed it was his team's "home game" and therefore he should have the right to choose. Potter said the rules didn't cover the request.

Meanwhile, Edmonton coach Buster Brayshaw was exuberant following Tuesday's game, although he said he didn't expect the series to finish tonight.

"Don't ever let it be said I'm underestimating them," said Brayshaw. "They played well enough to win the last game, but they couldn't finish their plays."

The coach of the Eastern champions had nothing to say after the last game.

The current series is the first time in the last four years Oil Kings have led an Eastern club in the final.

Commercial League Will Operate!

The Commercial Softball League is back in business.

Fear that the league might fold because of a lack of sponsors, was wiped out last night when six clubs indicated they will enter the loop.

League brass is taking no chances of sponsors pulling out this time however.

Secretary Don Wood said this morning that no sponsors names will be officially released until after the entry deadline meeting, slated for the YMCA next Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

All clubs must have their entry fee in the treasurers' hands by that date.

HARD OF HEARING

A transistorised hearing aid sufficiently miniaturized to fit comfortably in a pocket pill box was introduced here today by Accusticon Hearing Aid Company. Accusticon International distributor at 347½ Front St., Belleville. Assembled under 30-power microscopes and engineered with micro-miniaturization techniques used in space vehicles circling the globe, the new Accusticon Spectra provides sound amplification and tonal quality equal to previous models twice its size.

"We dramatize the Spectra's micro-miniaturization with a pill box because it is a readily apt comparison," Mr. Nickle, Manager, said. "The fact is that the Spectra's entire amplifier assembly — which contains 18 electronic components — is actually smaller than a standard aspirin tablet. The result is a significant breakthrough in miniaturization without sacrifice to quality."

Mr. Nickle pointed out that the Accusticon Spectra was designed for the estimated millions who want better hearing but who have resisted traditionally conspicuous instruments.

Worn behind-the-ear, the Spectra weighs one-fifth of an ounce and is often worn with complete concealment.

Kaline Robs Yankees In Ninth

Senators Rudolph, Grandslam Nip Tribe

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball fans in the United States capital couldn't have been more startled by Don Rudolph's amazing pitching performance than if they awoke one morning to find the Washington Monument tilted like the leaning Tower of Pisa.

A hurry-up pitcher who dispenses with his warmup throws between innings, the left-hander nevertheless had to stick around for more than three hours Wednesday night before Don Lock hit a grand slam homer in the 13th inning and provided the runs for a 6-3 victory over Cleveland Indians.

But Rudolph wasn't unhappy about working overtime after turning in one of the top pitching jobs of the season. He allowed only one hit—a single by Tony Martinez in the fourth inning—until the 13th when he began to tire.

In between he retired 23 Indians in a row—the equivalent of pitching 8 1-3 innings of perfect ball. He wound up with a four-hitter.

Not bad for a well-traveled hurler who had been shuffling between the majors and minors for 12 years before finally winning a regular starting job with Senators after the Washington club got him from Cleveland last year.

MOVE TO FIRST

Chicago White Sox shelled Kansas City's Ed Rakow for eight runs in the seventh inning after he had pitched perfect ball for six innings. The 8-3 triumph over the As moved White Sox into the American League lead. Baltimore Orioles belted Boston Red Sox 10-4 and knocked Red Sox out of first place, Al Kaline's two-run ninth inning homer gave Detroit Tigers a 7-6 decision over New York Yankees and Ken Hunt's tie-breaking homer provided Los Angeles Angels with a 4-3 triumph over Minnesota Twins.

Rudolph, who had a lifetime major league record of 10-10 going into the 1963 season, was locked in a tight pitchers' duel with Jack Kralick for 12 innings. Kralick, acquired by Indians last Thursday in a trade with Minnesota for Jim Perry, had permitted only four hits. Then, in the top of the 13th, Indians struck for two runs on three hits—a single by Mike de la Hoz, Johnny Romano's triple and a single by Vic Davalillo.

But Cleveland relievers Barry Latman and Ron Nischwitz could not hold the lead. Marv Breeding's single drove in one Washington run before Lock hit his homer.

ERRORS COSTLY

White Sox put together their eight-run outburst on six hits, three walks and two errors with J. C. Martin's three-run double and Pete Ward's two-run double the big blows. Backed by the burst, Eddie Fisher won the distance for the victory, although tagged for a ninth inning homer by Norm Siebern.

Orioles lashed 17 hits and came up with their biggest run production of the season while Steve Barber breezed to his sixth victory against two defeats. Barber managed to keep 12 Red Sox hits well spaced. Brooks Robinson led the Baltimore attack with three singles and a double and Jim Gentile chipped in with a homer.

Kaline cracked his homer off reliever Jim Bouton after Norm Cash walked to open the last of the ninth. Tom Tresh had put the Yankees ahead 6-5 in the seventh inning with his second homer of the night. Yogi Berra and Clete Boyer also homered for New York while Jake Wood connected twices and Bubba Phillips once for Detroit.

Hunt's eighth inning homer off Jim Kaat snapped a 3-3 tie, gave Angels a sweep of the three-game series and dropped Twins into last place. Minnesota had made up a 3-0 deficit on Bob Allison's fourth inning homer and a two-run rally in the fifth in which Kaat singled in one run home.

Hurler Marks Comeback From Cancer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The long wait ends tonight for Big Jim Umbricht whose pitching career was in jeopardy because of cancer. He will be in the bullpen for the Houston Colts against the Cincinnati Reds.

This will mark the latest milepost in the comeback story of the tall, crewcut right-hander from the University of Georgia who underwent a seven-hour cancer operation two months ago.

The days of doubt ended last midnight when Umbricht was restored to the active list. Manager Harry Craft promised that Big Jim would be in the bullpen for tonight's game.

Umbricht underwent surgery March 7 to remove a malignant growth from his right leg. Doctors said that under similar circumstances five years ago Umbricht's athletic career would have been halted and his leg probably amputated.

Umbricht, 32, says he feels fine, anxious to get back to pitching.

'Fed Up With Glory'

'Ingy' Through With Ring

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ingemar Johansson, former world heavyweight boxing champion, says he's fed up with glory and through with boxing.

The 29-year-old Swede, who knocked out Floyd Patterson in 1959 to win the heavyweight title, announced his retirement Wednesday.

"I have thought it over and there's nothing left that incites me to go on boxing," he told a newspaper. "I like boxing, but I don't have to do it for money any more and I am fed up with glory."

Johansson's last fight was against Britain's Brian London April 21 in Stockholm. Ingemar won a narrow decision in the 12-round non-title bout but was knocked down in the final seconds and saved by the bell.

Afterward, the Swedish Boxing Association barred him from European rings for a month until his physical condition could be thoroughly examined and approved.

DROP TWO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators of the American League sent pitcher Jim Hannan and catcher Bob Schmidt to Richmond of the International League Wednesday to get down to the 25-player limit required by midnight. In a separate deal, the Senators purchased catcher Hobie Landrith from Baltimore.

TO PLAY RUSSIANS

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The United States will play Mexico in the first round of the world basketball tournament and was put in a group with Italy and Argentina in the drawings held Tuesday night. Other first round pairings include Uruguay vs. France and the Soviet Union vs. Canada's Lethbridge Nationals.

No Tourist Cliches to Be Shown in Liz's 'London'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When Elizabeth Taylor shows her native city, London, to television viewers Oct. 6, there won't be a tourist cliche shown, the producers assure us.

"I suppose we'll see Liz Taylor in the poet's corner, Liz Taylor setting her watch by Big Ben, Liz Taylor borrowing a pound from the old lady of Threadneedle Street, ventured this reporter.

Norman Baer and Phil D'Antoni, who dreamed up Elizabeth Taylor's London and sold it to Miss Taylor, a sponsor and the CBS network inside of four days, looked disdainful.

"Absolutely not," replied D'Antoni. "You won't see any of those tired old things . . ."

"No Westminster Abbey?"

"No."

"No London Bridge?"

"Absolutely not. We'll show off-beat London—things like the Little Venice Canal. Did you ever hear of the Little Venice Canal?"

"In London?

"In London. It is a very important waterway that carries a lot of traffic."

The filming of the show is expected to start the end of this month, to be finished by the end of June. They have hired a British camera crew.

Recommended tonight:

The Nurses, CBS, 10-11 EDT—Express Stop From Lenox Avenue, an episode, starring Ruby Dee, about a nurse who tried to leave Harlem and her people behind.

Imagination Has Word For Actor Bob Cummings

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Cummings says that if you want something badly enough you can imagine yourself into getting it.

"It's worked for me during my whole life," says Cummings, who imagines he's in his thirties —and almost does it.

Back in the 1920s, when Cummings came to Broadway from his native Joplin, Mo., he found that producers didn't want to hire him.

"There was only one thing to do—imagine myself an Englishman. I even took a trip to England, bought an English suit and changed my name to Blade Stanhope Cummings.

"I acquired a British accent to go with the name and then wrote the same producers who had refused to see me. I told them I was the youngest actor, author, manager, director and producer in England and I was coming to America.

"Within four years, I was in a Broadway play. Sure, I was a con man, but I wasn't hurting anybody."

ROLE IN FOLLIES

After a few years as an English actor, he became Robert Cummings again.

He worked as a straight man for Milton Berle and co-starred with Fanny Brice in The Ziegfeld Follies.

"Then I read that Paramount was looking for a Texan to co-star with Margaret Sullavan. It was no trick to become Tex Cummings—and that's how I got to Hollywood."

Cummings believes so much in his theory that he is going to make a movie about a man he calls one of the great imagineers of the age—William Piper.

"Piper, of the famous Piper cubs, wasn't even a pilot when he went into the aircraft business," says Cummings. "Today he has sold more airplanes than just about anyone and will go down in history as the Henry Ford of the air age.

"Bill Piper now is in his eighties, but he still flies his own plane. There's a man who makes his imagination work."

Dinah Shore Leaves TV To Be With Two Children

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's such a wonderful feeling," says Dinah Shore, "to wake up in the morning and wonder what you are going to do . . . my biggest decision is whether I will play golf or tennis. I'm living."

The songbird had returned to the NBC studios for her last hours of work before her announced retirement from television. Her final show, which will appear next Sunday, had been taped. All that remained were some commercials for her sponsor.

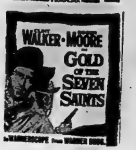
"This is it. I've already wept buckets, so I won't do that again. And I'll be back. There's no telling how soon."

There was good reason for her sentiment: A good slice of her life has been spent in the precincts of NBC. Her television career started in 1951 with her 15-minute show. Some 444 telecasts later, she launched into a weekly hour. The hours lasted seven years, though in the last few years she has cut her pace to a dozen or so yearly.

Before television there were movies, radio, records and so on dating back to her debut as a singer of 14 in 1931.

WATCHES CHILDREN

"I've worked a long time," she observed as she underwent the last hairstyling for her television show. "You know, there are some things you get to do only once in your life, like watching your children grow up. I'm determined not to let those things pass me by because I have too busy working.



"From now on, the most important thing in my life is going to be Judy's little league team. You know something? He made second base on the team sponsored by the local plumbing and appliance store."

Like Red Skelton and other Hollywood personalities, Dinah considers Palm Springs her permanent home. She finds it ideal for the rearing of her two youngsters, Melissa, 15, and Jody, 10.

"In Beverly Hills we have the big house, but in Palm Springs we live in the same size house as anyone else," she remarked. "It's really small-town life and we're a part of it. In Palm Springs there is some resentment between the permanent residents and the weekenders. But I know so many of the permanents that they consider me one of them."

Dinah said she won't stop singing. She'll play clubs and occasional benefits—if the children can be with her.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Ex-Hamilton Tiger-Cat Hal Waggoner purchased his first race horse, a four-year-old filly named Twice Shy, two Saturdays ago and Wednesday Twice Shy won the eighth running of the $8,788 Whimsical Stakes at Greenwood.

The filly had won her first Ontario start for Waggoner last Saturday at Fort Erie, earning $1,365. The $5,033 winner's portion of Wednesday's purse almost caused Waggoner in the black for he has reported to have paid approximately $7,000 for the filly.

Leading rider Ron Turcotte, rode Waggoner's filly and rewarded his many supporters among the 6,841 patrons that turned out Wednesday with three winners. Twice Shy being his third consecutive win of the afternoon. He had scored earlier on Stafford Farms' Black Raven in the fifth and Charles Taylor's Muskeg in the sixth. Twice Shy paid $7.00.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Striding as confidently as he was backed by the crowd of 2,479, Armbro Duke made winning the featured Mohawk Trot Stakes look easy Wednesday night at Mohawk Raceway.

Owned by the Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, Ont., Armbro Duke, with Harold McKinley in the sulky, returned $2.50, $2.20 and $2.10 as the 1-to-4 favorite.

HARVEY'S UNCERTAIN

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Doug Harvey of New York Rangers, veteran National Hockey League defenceman, said Wednesday he isn't sure yet what his plans will be for next year. "I'm just waiting until the NHL's June meeting to see what the Rangers have planned for me."

GREEN RETURNS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gene Green, who temporarily deserted Cleveland Indians Sunday night, joined the club in time for Wednesday night's game with Washington, minus one day's pay and plane fare from Los Angeles. Manager Birdie Tebbetts and Green, a utility outfielder, had a long talk in the hotel lobby during the afternoon. Tebbetts said Green understands he still is a pinch-hitter on the Cleveland club.

Give $50,000 To Pilot League

Majors Finance College 'Farm'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick announced a major league grant of $50,000 Wednesday that would set up in the Midwest a pilot league for college players from 13 states as a stepping stone to the majors.

To be known as the Central Illinois Collegiate League, it could be the forerunner of similar organizations throughout the United States.

College players eligible to play in the 90 - game summer schedule, effective June 15, are those from 13 states.

Bob Stewart of St. Louis University, who planned the organization with Cleveland Indians scout Walter Shannon, said each major league team would be asked to contribute $2,500 toward the $50,000 cost of establishing the league. He said about six or seven teams had already agreed to put up their share of the cost.

The governing body will be known as the National Collegiate Baseball Foundation, headed by Frick.

The league will operate as an intermediary between professional and college baseball and will work within the rules of the major leagues and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Stewart said the players would not be paid for playing baseball and that only their expenses for weekend trips would be paid.

SPORT BRIEFS

REJECTS CONTRACT

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fred Glover turned down a contract Wednesday to continue as playing coach of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. He indicated he intends to retire as a player. Glover, with the Barons for 10 years and playing coach last season, is the leading scorer in American Hockey League history. Glover gave no indication what his plans are for next year.

OPTION LARY

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers of the American League Wednesday optioned veteran right - handed pitcher Frank Lary to the Tigers' Knoxville farm team in the South Atlantic Baseball League. Lary, 32, agreed to the move to the minors "because it will give me a chance to pitch regularly and strengthen my arm." Lary has been bothered by a sore arm for almost two years.

TO PLAY SERIES

MONTREAL (CP) — Britain's anti-assassins, an old boy rugger club from schools in the northern counties, arrive by air May 15 for a six-game exhibition series in Montreal and Ottawa. Club President Stewart Faulds arranged the tour after spotting an invitation from the Quebec Rugger Union in an International Rugger Magazine last June.

Sport Snapshots

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1962-63 season was the worst in the four-year history of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, says retiring president John J. Ufie.

"We were down to four teams from six, and one of them—St. Louis Braves—was hopelessly out of the playoffs very early in the schedule," the 64-year-old Ottawa lawyer declared in a post-season interview.

The other three clubs were Kingston Frontenacs, Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Sudbury Wolves.

To fatten the schedule the league governors approved interlocking games against teams of the International League, but the IHL clubs just weren't able to skate with the young professionals of the EPHL and attendance at the games dwindled.

Another complicating factor was the move of the Syracuse franchise to St. Louis in mid-season. Because of the expensive trip from other league centres, the teams bunched two or three games on each visit to St. Louis.

With the exception of St. Louis, all teams suffered drastic falls in attendance from the previous season.

TWO DROPPED OUT

The league came close to folding before the season started. Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers, sponsored by New York Rangers, and North Bay Trappers, backed by all six teams of the National Hockey League, withdrew because of heavy financial losses.

"The league continued because of the belief of the NHL owners in the idea behind the founding of the EPHL," said Ufie. "Unlike any other professional league, our sole purpose is to develop young players for the NHL. The American and Western leagues must make money and are stocked with many older players."

EPHL rules state that teams may have only two players over 25 years of age and three in the 23-to-25 group. The remaining nine must be under 23.

This gives the younger players a chance to develop under competition. The league has produced nearly 20 players for the NHL, including goalie Ed Johnston of Boston, Gilles Tremblay and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal and Dave Balon of New York. Toronto centre Dave Keon also saw brief EPHL action.

NEED MORE TEAMS

Pressure of business is forcing Urie to give up his position. He intends to make recommendations to the league before he steps down this summer.

"First of all, I think they'll have to go back to six teams. The cities with franchises will have to be close together or the two new franchises needed to bring the league up to strength will have to be close to St. Louis so that visiting teams can easily fit them into one trip."

Urie said he'd prefer to see the league confined to Canada if he suggests one team for Windsor) for two reasons.

"The Kingston players, for example, are personalities in their city but I don't think that would be the case in, say, Kansas City."

He also believes U.S. cities would resent it if members of their teams were called up by parent NHL clubs.

"On the other hand, you have the pride in Hull and Ottawa when Montreal called up Terry Harper and Jacques Laperriere at the end of the season."

Urie says the EPHL has the backing of all clubs and he believes it will survive.

"It's certainly needed. But it's a decision that will be made only by the NHL owners."

ENDS RECORD SLUMP

CHICAGO (AP)—The worst batting slump on baseball's record ended Wednesday when pitcher Bob Buhl of the National League Chicago Cubs got a single for his first hit in 88 times at bat. Buhl's last hit in camo in night of Sept. 1, 1961 when he was with Milwaukee.

Camp Counselling Is Fast Becoming a Profession

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Planning to be a camp counsellor this summer?

If so, there's a good deal of hard work in store, as well as the excitement and adventure of camping.

Camp counselling is fast gaining the status of a profession. Its responsibilities are fully outlined in The Camp Counsellor's Book, (Gloagmans Canada Limited) edited by Barry G. Lowes, president of the Ontario Camping Association.

"You (the counsellor) are responsible 24 hours a day for everything that happens to your campers," writes Mr. Lowes.

From the time they check into their cabins or tents until the time they have packed for the trip home, the counsellor looks after their activities, their health and their safety.

Flare of temper, sulky moods, outbursts of indignation, plain fears and homesickness occasionally may have to be dealt with.

DON'T GET FUSSED

The most important thing in learning to live with children is the ability to accept their immaturies as simply necessary stages in the growing-up process, writes Mary L. Northway, co-editor of the book.

"Anticipate as much as you can, but never be surprised at anything," is the advice of this woman, who is research supervisor at the institute of child study at the University of Toronto.

But also be alert for warning of trouble. "Crankiness, listlessness, boredom and sullenness of a camper are all signs which the counsellor must take time to read."

To be successful, the counsellor must get a good example from the very first day.

"The behavior of campers will be governed by your example more than anything else," says Mr. Lowes.

"As a camp counsellor, you are expected to act as an adult."

And nearly every waking hour, you will be called upon to use good judgment because children are constantly busy, bubbling over with energy and ideas.

NEED HUMOR

Wide use of your sense of humor will also be valuable when at camp.

Children are full of humor, says Elizabeth Raymer, director of Camp Tanamakoon. "If the situation is ridiculous, laugh. Laughter clears the air; it unifies the group."

Energy — good health and a feeling of well-being — are essential when dealing with young people, Elizabeth Raymer writes.

"If your health is precarious, camping is not for you."

And if you want to succeed as a camp counsellor, you should always be receptive to any constructive ideas you see, hear or read about.

"Your greatest gains from a summer of counselling will be from intangibles"—fun, friendship, a chance to test your own ideas, learning about human nature and the satisfactions of teaching children and seeing them learn.

Prince Philip Got the Bird, Not Disturbed

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip rose to make one of his after-dinner speeches. For the first time on record he got the bird.

It came, loud and clear, from actor Tom Bell.

"Listen it up," shouted Bell.

"Tell us a funny story."

The prince, presenting awards at Tuesday night's annual British Film Academy dinner, was undisturbed.

So was Bell. Sitting just a few feet away from the prince he returned to the attack.

"Go on," he said. "Tell us a funny story."

"If you want a funny story," Philip said, "I suggest you engage a professional comic."

Brian Forbes and Dickie Attenborough, both top names in British movies, smothered any further contribution from Bell.

ACTRESS APOLOGIZES

Later Leslie Caron, chosen as British actress of the year for her performance in The L-Shaped Room, apologized to the prince and explained that Bell was feeling a trifle boisterous.

"That's all right," said the prince, "I took it in the right spirit."

Bell was unrepentant. He told reporters later:

"I'm not at all sorry.

"It's about time somebody told him. He should liven himself up."

Earlier, however, the prince had been in lively form. He told a luncheon of the Institute of Personnel Administration that the trouble with management in Britain is too many one-aiver men in too many two-aiver jobs.

New Solicitor-General P.E.I. Lawyer Who Professes Warm Feeling for Underdog

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's new solicitor-general is a Prince Edward Island lawyer who professes a "warm feeling for the underdog."

There may be significance in the remark because 58-year-old J. Watson MacNaught will have a lot to say about whether convicted murderers live or die.

"I have always had a profound belief in inherent goodness of humanity," Mr. MacNaught said in an interview shortly after moving into his new office in the justice building.

"Most people are trustworthy. People want to be good."

Mr. MacNaught, who prefers to be on the defending side in a case, has found himself on both sides during his legal career. For several years he was crown prosecutor for Prince County. Later he was defence lawyer in his only murder trial, winning acquittal for his client.

It is with murder cases that he will be occupied most as solicitor-general. He is the minister who presents to the cabinet reports on all capital cases for a decision on whether the death sentence should be carried out or commuted to life imprisonment. It is he who recommends whether the cabinet should exercise its prerogative of mercy.

MOST COMMUTED

During its period in office, from 1957 to 1963, the Conservative government attracted widespread attention for the number of death sentences it commuted to life imprisonment—52 of the 66 that came before it for decision.

The new Liberal government will be watched with interest by those wondering whether it will follow the same pattern.

After a six-year absence from Parliament, the tall, pipe-smoking Mr. MacNaught regained his old riding of Prince from the Progressive Conservatives in the April 8 federal election.

He is the Liberal party's first cabinet representative from the island province since 1944. He originally won the seat, for the first time at St. Peterburg has returned to her home to spend the summer.

Mr. Harold Landon and son will soon have completed their modern supermarket and in a few days everything will be in readiness for the grand opening of the latest up-to-date equipment to serve the public.

assembly and then became clerk of the assembly.

At home he leads a quiet life with his wife, Eva Maude. They have two sons, John William, 29, and David Alexander, 21.

At work he dressed conservatively—"with a very small c"—and wears glasses when dealing with papers.

During his leisure hours, he leans to sports jacket and flannels, particularly when staying in his summer home at North Bedeque, P.E.I. Curling and swimming have been his chief outdoor recreational activities.

An avid reader, he is especially fond of the English 19th century classic novels and of Elizabethan plays—in keeping with a lifelong interest in drama. Last year he was chairman of the P.E.I. Drama Festival and before the war, as a member of the Summerside Little Theatre, won the MacLaren medal for individual acting for the Maritime provinces.

Things We Could Do Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things we could do without:

Gold identity tags for dogs that have everything. Oldtimers who can remember a worse winter than the one just ended. Lipstick so pale it makes teenage girls look like day-walking zombies.

People who, when you tell them your troubles, just reply, "Well, that's life for you." Folks who think it's cute to send a city child a small live bunny for Easter.

Grapefruit that squirts in our eye instead of the eye of the guy that's eating it. Hatcheck girls who drop our hat to the floor when we put down 15 cents because we don't have a quarter change in our pocket. Telephones that ring just as we reach the punchline in a joke we're telling to 12 e bosz.

Hairdos that make a woman look as though she's been frightened out of her wits—or that cause lost bees to confuse it with their home hive. Office straw bosses who scribble endless suggestions to others just because somebody gave them a tack of free memo pads.

ANTI BARBECUE

Barbecues who sprinkle red pepper on their bowl of cashew nuts so you'll buy more drinks to soothe your burning palate. After - dinner speakers who speak so long you begin to yearn for breakfast.

Any meal cooked in a back-yard between May and November. Wives who can fix with a hairpin a broken vacuum cleaner we've tinkered over for hours with pliers, monkey wrench and crowbar.

People who think you're an ignoramus because you'd rather shoot pool or sit in on a poker game than play bridge or chess. Anybody at a cocktail party who tries to tell us what Sigmund Freud or Karl Marx really meant to say. Anybody, anywhere, who says, "let's play charades."

Men's hats that have brims so narrow they look as if they'd been gnawed away by hungry mice. Truck drivers who honk their horns just to see the startled pedestrians jump. Rains that fall only on the days you put on a freshly-pressed suit.

TOOK INDIAN NAME

The grey or Canada jay—commonly known as whisky-jack—probably got his nickname as a corruption of the Indian "wiss ka chon."

Major Montreal Counterfeiting Ring Broken

RCMP Arrest Two And Seize $140,000

MONTREAL (CP) — The RCMP expects more major developments shortly in its crackdown on a major Montreal counterfeiting ring with possible international ties.

The RCMP arrested two men Thursday, seized $140,000 in "near perfect" bogus U.S. $100 and $50 bills equipment for making "millions of dollars" more, and forged money orders, railway passes and United States social security cards. Safe-cracking equipment was also seized.

The RCMP would not confirm or deny reports that Interpol, the organizing grouping many world police forces, had sought the RCMP's assistance in tracking down the source of bogus U.S. bills flooding many European countries in the last few years.

One raid in the northeast section of Montreal yielded all those items. Another and other uncovered negatives used in the offset printing of $100, $50 and seven $1 bills.

MAY BE IN MILLIONS

"We have no way of knowing how many bogus bills could have been printed with these negatives," an RCMP spokesman said. "It could easily have run into millions of dollars."

Printing equipment seized in another raid was taken immediately to the RCMP major crime laboratory in Ottawa.

"We're certain that the crime laboratory people will come up with something that will lead us to further seizures," the police spokesman said.

"Our investigation is by no means completed. Major developments are expected shortly."

The men arrested were identified as Donat Dumouchel and Marcel Dorais, both charged with possession of counterfeit money.

The apartment in which the large quantity of counterfeit equipment was found in a brief-case was empty. The owner said it had been rented by a man named M. Blanke for a U.S. woman who was to occupy it.

BURN BOGUS BILLS

In another raid that produced about 5,000 Canadian National Exhibition money orders in denomination of $1,000 to $100, police officers found bogus $100 bills being burned when they arrived. The man was identified as Mrs. Raymonde Ouimet was arrested in another raid when bogus train passes were found. She was released.

HOFFA TO FACE NEW CHARGES OF BRIBERY

Posts $10,000 Bond For Hearing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Teamsters President James R. Hoffa today faced new charges attempting to bribe jurors in his deadlocked federal court conspiracy trial here last year.

A five-count indictment returned by a special federal grand jury Thursday accused the labor leader with "aiding, commanding and inducing" efforts to influence two jurors and a prospective juror to vote for his acquittal.

In Philadelphia, Hoffa said he was not guilty and declined comment because he had not seen the indictment. He appeared before a U.S. commissioner and posted a $10,000 bond for a hearing next Monday.

Six others — most of them close friends or associates of Hoffa, also were indicted, and Justice Department attorneys indicated still more indictments might be forthcoming.

The grand jury charged that the defendants offered $10,000 to a prospective juror, a "dollar a day man" on a farm and a "promotion" to a Tennessee highway patrolman to influence a juror. The two jurors were replaced before the case went to the jury.

TRY ON LABOR COUNT

The 50-year-old Hoffa, who heads the nation's largest single union, was tried on charges he conspired to violate federal labor laws by accepting funds illegally from a Detroit transport firm in return for labor peace.

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters has more than 1,500,000 members including some 20,000 in Canada.

The trial, which began Oct. 22, ended Dec. 23 after Federal District Judge William E. Miller declared the continental jury having reported it hopelessly deadlocked 7 to 5 for acquittal.

In dismissing the jury, Miller said he was "frankly astonished at the tenacity of attempts [jury fixing in this case" and directed the U.S. attorney to launch an investigation.

A special grand jury was picked for the Federal District Judge Frank Gray Jr. and more than 100 witnesses summoned to testify during the next three months. The indictments were returned in a report to jury.

Hoffa was indicted in five counts. Indicted in single counts were:

Ewing King, president of Teamsters Local 327 here; Allen Dorfman, friend of Hoffa and a Chicago insurance broker; Larry Campbell, business agent for Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit, which Hoffa headed before being Parks of Nashville, Campbell's uncle; W. Va., insurance executive and president of the Continental Tobacco Company of New York and Lawrence W. Medlin, Nashville accountant.

The maximum penalty for attempting to influence a jury is five years in prison and a $5,000 fine on each count.

This was the sixth federal indictment against Hoffa in as many years. Two of the cases have been mistrials, two in acquittals and one—a mail fraud indictment in Florida—is pending.

THEIR CONVERSATION TAKES UP SPACE — Astronauts John H. Glenn, Jr., left, an experienced space traveler, and Gordon Cooper, who hopes to become one, discuss in Cape Canaveral, Fla., helmet and gloves Cooper will wear on his flight, scheduled for Tuesday.

Cooper's 22-orbit mission is slated to land him in the Pacific off Midway Island. Glenn will be aboard the U.S. ship Coastal Sentry 300 miles off Japanese coast to monitor the flight and possibly control Cooper's re-entry into the atmosphere.

Talks To Cover Subjects Of Old, New Problems

Inter-Union Struggle To Be Main Topic

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson arrived here for two days of talks with President Kennedy, said today he is sure the leaders will not set a course in their discussions to strengthen further the good relations between Canada and the United States.

Pearson's RCAF plane arrived at nearby Otis Air Force base at 12.10 p.m. EDT, shortly after Kennedy's four-engined jet touched down.

One incident marred the welcoming, a strong wind forced the Red Ensign—part of a color party—to half staff.

Guard of honor officers tried twice to get the flag back to the top but the wind forced it down again.

PEARSON NOT PLEASED

As Pearson inspected the U.S. Air Force guard of honor he asked a set officer to get the flag back up but the officer responded that this could not be done.

Kennedy shook hands with some of the adults and children awaiting the arrival of the Canadian prime minister. He appeared in a happy mood.

In welcoming remarks, Kennedy recalled the prime minister's long career in diplomacy and the fact that he had won a Nobel Peace prize.

"We are most happy to have an opportunity to meet you and discuss those matters which concern our two great countries," Kennedy said.

In response, Pearson said: "I am sure that the discussions will be held in a frank and friendly way which characterizes the relations between peoples who speak the same language even when they differ as they are bound to from time to time.

"I am sure by the end of this brief visit we shall have come to a better understanding of each other's problems and have set a course which will further strengthen the friendly and durable good relationship between our two peoples."

Because of the brisk wind most of the words of the various leaders were lost to the airport audience.

LEADERS CONCERNED

Main issues at this two-day session are the questions of Canadian acquisition of American nuclear warheads and a final disposition of the long-stalled Columbia River project. Mrs. Kennedy also was concerned with the heavy flow of American investment funds in Canada and its impact on American deficit in international payments.

The U.S. government would like to see Canadians reduce their borrowings in the New York money market.

Two guards of honor and a 44-piece U.S. Air Force band were at the airport for the two leaders. Also there are Pearson's elder brother, Marmaduke, a retired businessman who lives at West Newbury, Mass.

On his flight from Ottawa, Pearson was closeted with the Canadian ambassador to Washington, Charles Ritchie, and with E. A. Ritchie, assistant undersecretary of state for external affairs.

"Well, it's nice to be here; I know this state very well," Pearson told the president after completing his inspection of the guards of honor.

He quickly doffed his black homburg, tossing it to an aid, and then ran a couple of steps to the president en route to the helicopter which carried them to this site of the discussions.

They will coincide the consensus of the Kennedy compound on Cape Cod, Mr. Pearson staying in the home of Attorney-General Robert Kennedy and moving with his host in the home of the president's father.

Mr. Pearson said Thursday before a final meeting with his cabinet before going to Hyannis Port that the subjects to be discussed are "very far-reaching in character."

One of the more urgent matters is the existence involving Canadian ships in American ports, linked to an inter-union struggle on the Great Lakes. Shots were fired at a Canadian freighter in Cleveland Thursday.

MAY SEE FLIGHT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television viewers in Europe may see U.S. astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. start into space shortly after his rocket blasts off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., next week via the Relay communications satellite. That was the word today from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which said Cooper's flight — orbit rides around the earth is planned for no earlier than 9 a.m. EDT next Tuesday.

LABOR CAPTURES CONTROL OF 30 TOWNS, CITIES

Wins 541 Seats In Elections

LONDON (Reuters)—The opposition Labor party hammered Britain's ruling Conservatives and other anti-socialist parties in town council elections Thursday.

Labor captured 541 seats and control of the councils of some 30 important towns and cities.

Jubilant socialists hailed the result as a heartening pointer to their chances of gaining power in the general election expected within a year at the latest. The government's five-year term of office expires in October, 1964.

The runaway victory more than recouped the 472-seat loss suffered by the Labor party in the 1960 town council elections, when the vacancies filled Thursday were last contested.

COMPRISE ONE THIRD

The contests involved a total of 2,973 seats—one-third of the membership of the 64 town councils balloting.

The councils are totally re-elected on a three-year cycle.

Labor's success was not only confined to the capture of control in many places. It also increased the party's representation over a wide range of councils.

Len Williams, Labor party general secretary, said that according to an eminent political statistician "a gain of this dimension would mean a Labor majority of 90 to 130 (parliamentary) seats in a general election."

CAPTURE LIVERPOOL

One of the main socialist achievements was the capture of power in the ocean port city of Liverpool.

Other big cities where Labor won control included Bradford, Nottingham, Bristol and Bolton.

The Liberal party, recently enjoying an electoral resurgence, secured only a moderate success despite the fact it fielded 2,200 candidates compared with about 900 in 1960. It made a net gain of 80 seats. But Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservatives had a net loss of 547 seats and Independents a net loss of 72.

Liberals gained control of two councils, but lost it in another.

Gentleman Gardener J. Kennedy Orders Reporters off His Lawn

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has perhaps the proudest gentleman gardener in Washington — and he doesn't like to see his new bluegrass lawn get unnecessary wear and tear.

The president delights in the blooming trees and colorful flowers arrayed around a quarter - acre plot just outside his White House office.

Known as the rose garden since it was established in 1913 by the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, this secluded beauty spot is now carefully redesigned a year ago at Kennedy's direction.

There is a path with the bluegrass lawn. The entrance used by visitors to the garden is a walkway through a break in the surrounding hedge. And the tramping of feet has completely worn the grass down to the sod at this point.

Kennedy noted the bare spots this week and took steps to curb the wear and tear. He asked reporters covering ceremonies in the garden to enter via the same concrete steps he uses, thus avoiding the footpath.

U.S. Ambassador Threatens Force Before Visas Issued For Citizens to Leave Haiti

PORT - AU - PRINCE, Haiti (Reuters)—The government announced that Americans to leave Haiti only after the United States ambassador threatened to call in a U.S. naval force cruising off the coast, an embassy source said Thursday.

The source confirmed exit visas were issued Wednesday to a group of civilian evacuees following a threat by Ambassador Raymond Thurston to bring in the naval force.

The U.S. warships with 2,000 marines aboard were reported sailing in Gonave Bay outside Haitian territorial waters during the current crisis between Haiti and the neighboring Dominican Republic which has come close to war.

The source also said Thurston was told to stay in Port au Prince instead of returning to Washington as previously planned "in view of the critical situation" in Haiti.

Henry Niblock, British charge d'affaires, said Thursday he managed to get exit visas for three more British citizens, but Canadian Charge d'Affaires Peter Jennings, said the issuing of the visas had come to a halt.

One diplomat said he believed the government was slowing up on visas to "play down the exodus of foreign nationals."

Meanwhile, Clement Barbot, President Francois Duvalier's former security chief, was reported fast becoming the symbol of opposition to the president.

BLAST ROCKS BLACK WATCH ARMORY IN QUE.

Explosion Heard Four Miles Away

MONTREAL (CP)—An explosion that was heard as much as four miles around rocked the Black Watch armory in central Montreal early today.

About 40 panes of glass in armory windows were broken, a rear door was knocked off its frame, and back windows in at least half a dozen homes and buildings nearby were shattered. No one was injured.

Detective Sergeant Leo Plouffe of the Montreal police bomb squad called it "the most powerful explosion we've had yet." He scoured the rubble in the lane behind the armory for clues.

There was no immediate evidence linking the latest explosion with the separatist Front de Liberation Quebecois, the self-styled terrorist organization that has claimed responsibility for other bomb attacks on armories and federal institutions, but police said they couldn't discount FLQ involvement.

ADMITS BOMBINGS

Two mimeographed statements purporting to be from the FLQ were mailed Thursday to news agencies and newspapers. In them, the organization said it set off bombs at an army recruiting centre in Montreal, in which one man was killed, and at a Royal Canadian Legion hall in St. Johns, Que., 25 miles south of Montreal.

The statements also threatened a Quebec mining company whose workers are on strike and announced the appointment of a revolutionary tribunal to judge "foreign oppressors and traitors."

Today's bomb was set off in a men's room between the Black Watch building and the storage area of a building next door. It blasted a hole about three feet across in the brick facing of the storage building and made the wall sag over a 10-foot-area, but hardly chipped the stone foundation of the armory.

The explosion took place despite extra precautions taken

Birmingham Officials Say Pact Not Binding on Them

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Prospects for a final settlement of the Birmingham desegregation campaign were uncertain today despite an optimistic statement by negro integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

King said Thursday night that an agreement virtually had been worked out except for minor details. A series of statements and counter-statements followed.

City officials immediately said any agreement reached by a biracial committee was not binding on them. The committee, composed of business and civic leaders, had no official status.

The committee resumes work today.

Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, one of the Negro leaders, said a press conference would be held later.

Both King and Abernathy warned that demonstrations would be resumed if no agreement is reached during the day.

For the second straight day, there were no massive demonstrations Thursday. Earlier demonstrations resulted in the arrests of approximately 2,400 and use of fire hoses and police dogs to disperse Negro crowds.

The Negro leaders had called a truce Wednesday while the biracial committee worked for a solution.

King had said at a press conference shortly after noon Thursday that agreement had been reached on two of the four goals of the integration campaign.

Points on which agreement had been reached, he said then, provided for desegregation of lunch counters and other public facilities in the downtown stores, and improvement of job opportunities for Negroes.

The other two points sought were demands that charges against the 2,400 arrested be dropped and for the formation of an official committee of Negroes and white persons to deal with racial problems.

Negro comedian Dick Gregory also was released on bond after being held four days on a charge of parading without a permit. Gregory was arrested Monday leading the first group of an estimated 1,000 marchers to picket lunch-counters. They also were arrested.

Gregory said at a press conference that he was beaten while confined in jail. Police Chief Jamie Moore denied it and asked U.S. Attorney Macon O. Weaver to investigate the charges.

Most of the Negro children arrested in the demonstration were released in custody of their parents who signed a $250 "straw bond" — requiring no posting of money.

Mao Rumored Incurably Ill

LONDON (AP)—The weekly magazine Time and Tide says that Mao Tse-tung, 69, leader of the Communist party of China, has an incurable disease and will retire before the end of the year.

The magazine in a Moscow-dated dispatch says the ruler of Red China will be succeeded by head of state Liu Shao-chi "who belongs to the right-centre of the party and who believes in peaceful coexistence with the west."

OTTAWA (CP)—With a low bow to the fabulous Klondike gold rush days, the elite of Ottawa's social set whoops it up tonight in aid of the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra.

The society's annual springtime party takes over Lansdowne Park Stadium and adjoining cattle barns with the aid of a few imports, such as Pierre Berton, columnist and TV star, himself a native of the Yukon.

Netherlands Ambassador A. H. J. Lovink is cast as a Bon Vivant, Gold Digger. But as his vivacious wife is one of the ladies of the saloon, Diamond Lil, she'll be safe with feathered hat and blue velvet gown.

Health Minister Judy La Marsh is the lady that's known as Lou. Transport Minister George McIlraith was to have played Dan McGrew, but had to drop out of the cast at the last minute.

So a new role was created for Yvon Dupuis, parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne. But the change doesn't seem to matter much to the story line of Robert Service's classic ballad, the Shooting of Dan McGrew.

Berton plays the part of Service's narrator of the show. Master of ceremonies is Charles Lynch, chief of Canadian News Services and television commentator.

After the 35-minute floor show, Governor General Vanier, wife of the governor-general, is to lead the crowd to the Horticulture Building where is expected to spend lavishly in aid of the philharmonic on wheels of fortune, grab bag, duck hats, and other money-making booths.

Nearby is a real Gold Nugget Saloon, which promises to be working and licensed order.

The capital city is without a philharmonic orchestra, and the annual springtime party was discontinued two years ago when the symphony orchestra folded. This year's party is to raise funds to bring the Montreal Symphony Orchestra and guest artists to Ottawa next season.

Former Belleville Native Honored by Capreol C of C

A 55-year-old C.N.R. conductor has been chosen as citizen-of-the-year of the town of Capreol, by the Chamber of Commerce.

Fred Miles, father of four, and a resident of the town for the past quarter century, was selected for his outstanding contribution to the youth of the community and the town in general.

Mr. Miles was presented with a certificate recently by the past president of the Capreol Chamber of Commerce, Mr. A. W. Rogers. In making the presentation, Mr. Rogers noted that Mr. Miles in the past 15 to 20 years, had provided playground facilities during the winter months, on the frozen surface of the Vermilion River in front of his home at 40 Lakeshore Drive.

For the past number of years Mr. Miles has shovelled the ice on the river to make a skating rink for the youngsters in the neighborhood.

"I started it back when my own children were young," he said, adding that his three sons and a daughter were now adults.

JUST KEPT IT GOING

"Doug Mohns, now playing for the Boston Bruins, used to come and skate with the young sters here," recalled Mr. Miles.

"Then when my kiddies got older, I just kept it up for the youngsters who flock to the river every winter," he added.

Officials of the Capreol chamber said Mr. Miles has also helped a great deal in the development of the park area along the river front.

Moreover, Mr. Miles modestly credits other groups, such as the Jaycees, the town recreation, the CNR and Lowphoo Ore Co., with the most work.

"I am just a helper," he said. Mr. Miles chuckled as he noted that Capreol youngsters were great hockey enthusiasts and skaters, "but we haven't got too many shovellers."

Having worked with a shovel for the past few years, Mr. Miles plans to purchase a snow blower this year, "so I can last a few more years."

While Mr. Miles is modest about his contribution to the town, Chamber of Commerce officials were high in their praise for the railway man.

FORMER BELLEVILLE BOY

"He's certainly helped develop that parkland along the river front and has helped make it a clean and pleasant place for residents to enjoy," said vice-president Val Mazuce.

A former Belleville boy, Mr. Miles still has many relatives living in the city who were quick to learn of his fame.

He is the son of a former CNR engineer here, A. "Gingy" Miles, and has brothers living in the city: Dr. A. E. Miles, Robert Miles of Clark and Miles Insurance Agency and Joe Miles of the city parking meter staff.

There are also three sisters here: Gladys (Mr. Charles Green); Margaret (Mrs. Harry Hutt) and Mrs. Janet Bowering.

He is also the son-in-law of Mrs. F. R. Wilmot and a brother-in-law to Newt Wilbor, both of this city.

OTTAWA (CP)—A 30-man Canadian Army survey team will leave here Sunday by air for the far north to obtain the on-the-ground information required to fill in the last gap in the topographical maps of the Canadian Arctic. Army headquarters said Thursday that if weather conditions are favorable the five-year program by the army will be started and the technical surveys department to map the Arctic will be completed.

RCAF Station Says No Planes Were in Air

TRENTON — What was it. is the question being asked about a plane, which flew about 3 a.m. this morning citizens of Trenton and points up to three miles away, heard a mysterious boom.

Town police and firemen were also unable to come up with any explanation. Perhaps it was a flying saucer.

4,000 Trees Already Planted At Club Farm

TRENTON — Don Rogers of Stirling, president of the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Club, announced at a recent meeting of the executive that over 4,000 trees have been planted at the club farm by Jack Wallace and his committee and that it was hoped a further improve the property in the near future.

Cal York is busy organizing the trap shooting teams and reports that the club will be open every Thursday night at 6.00 p.m. and Sunday at one at the club house, north of Trenton.

Forty-two shooters are needed to fill out the teams that will be competing and as there are still some openings on the teams he urged anyone interested to get in touch.

The membership chairman, Clarence Tower, reported that there are now 200 members paid up at present and he asked that everyone make an effort to bring out at least one new member to the next meeting in the club house on Thursday, May 16, at 8.00 p.m. Some good sports films will be shown at the meeting and an enjoyable evening is promised for those attending.

The president stressed the need to sign up at least 500 members before proceeding with the erection of the clubhouse on the club property. The charter has been received for the club and it is hoped to have a fully equipped club house with excellent facilities for the sportsmen in this area.

A large amount of lumber and other material has already been acquired by Jim Howard and his committee and the enthusiasm shown by the members is a clear indication that this project will soon be a reality.

Walter Wilson and W. H. Menzies were provided with a list of 40 delinquent members in Trenton and area and asked to contact them re being reinstated in the club.

The president stated that with the large number of sportsmen in Trenton that the club should have many more members from that area.

Harry Long and his farm improvement committee are busy preparing an approriate entrance to the club property and it will be built along the lines of the entrances to provincial parks and should be quite impressive when completed.

TRENTON — Reporting on a recent meeting of the Ontario John Howard Society annual meeting at Osgoode Hall in Toronto, Trenton's John Howard and president William Menzies had this to say:

"As one of the 40 executive members from all over the province, I was present for the meeting with the feeling that if offenders were to be rehabilitated and take their rightful place in society, it is up to us as laymen to see that they be given the opportunity to get gainful employment and given a chance not to become repeaters."

At the Toronto meeting, Mr. Menzies took part in a layman's panel discussion, presided over by P. T. Lamothe of Ottawa. Panel members were local society presidents from Oshawa, Peterborough and Trenton.

Mr. Menzies was elected an executive member of the Ontario Society Board of Directors. Accompanying Mr. Menzies to the meeting from local branch members Harry Cannel and Alec Campbell and their wives.

Students View Hospital on 'Career Day'

TRENTON — Yesterday was Hospital Career Day at Trenton Memorial Hospital. Fifty one Grade 12 and 13 students from Trenton High School and East Northumberland District High School, listened to lectures Mrs. Lucille Pensat, a registered nurse graduate of Toronto, and then went on a tour of the local institution.

Mrs. Pensat's department heads told the students of work in the hospital and they were then taken on a conducted tour by hospital administrator Miss Hazel Naudette, O. M. Newton, vice - president of the hospital board and Dr. J. G. Beecroft, head of the medical staff. Mrs. Ann Baker president of the hospital auxiliary, also welcomed the girls.

Miss Naudette said later that this would be the only observance of Hospital Week, May 12 to May 18.

The administrator said that it was her feeling that of other hospital authorities that it be devoted to young girls in search of a career was more worthwhile than opening the hospital's doors for a day to the general public during hospital week.

Town Praised For Record By Minister

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald received a letter from Transport Minister Minister James A. C. Auld, May 3, commending the town on its record of no fatal accidents during 1962.

"This is a remarkable achievement," said Auld in his letter, "particularly when you consider the substantial growth of the number of motor vehicles on the streets and highways in recent years. It certainly speaks well for the attitude of both the motorists and the pedestrians in your community towards the observance of traffic laws and rules of the road."

Mr. Auld credits the effective traffic measures instigated by police council, the work of the Trenton police department, and safety teaching in schools, churches, service clubs and other community groups in establishing such a "fine record."

Mr. Auld ends his letter thusly:

"Long may you continue to serve as an outstanding example to be followed by other communities throughout this great province."

BILL NOT MAILED

TRENTON — Westmount Park developer William Sidor has issued a statement published after Monday night's council meeting regarding a bill of $20 from the town for the clearing of sewage from a house in the sub-division.

A check with the town offices revealed that the bill for $20 had not been mailed out . . . Consequently, say town officials now, Mr. Sidor has not paid the bill, true; but could hardly do so before he received a statement as to the charge.

Retarded Adults May Be Trained In Near Future

TRENTON — A program of training in "sheltered workshops" for retarded adults in the Trenton area may soon be instigated in the near future. Although plans are now merely tentative, the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children is investigating the feasibility behind the program. It is felt that the organization, set up in the fall of 1959 has progressed so well in its initial objective . . . to provide schooling for retarded children in the area . . . that the group's energies can now be turned to the pressing problem of providing educational and recreational outlets for retarded adults.

An executive member of the association said yesterday that the plan calls for the setting up of training workshops in local factories to enable the handicapped persons had "graduated," local plants would take them on in the same fashion as workshops. In this way, they can become more or less self-supporting.

Meantime, June 7 and 8 have designated as tag days in the area and Mrs. (Bonnie Mabel) Reid has been named campaign chairman. Monies collected will be used for the $4,000 needed in furthering the childrens' phase of the association's work, but some are to be set aside for the new venture.

Leo Agesen, recreation director of the childrens' group, has made tentative plans for the children to attend a supervised summer playground for at least one week during July or two, this year. The playground would be set aside in Hanna Park. William Wyman, the division's recreational director has promised to make play equipment available for the summer sters. Association members said that this would be a step towards integrating the "special" children with the community and physician playground is also held at Hanna Park.

The twenty-some children who attend the school for the retarded west of Trenton will also have an outing on a nature hike in Presqu'ile Park, May 24. All association members have been asked to take part in the fun and starting time for the picnic is 1.30 p.m.

The next general association meeting is to be held on May 16, at the school and the time is 8 p.m.

PICNIC TABLES ARE OUT — The picnic tables are out for another season at the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg. Area covers more than 400 acres, offers outdoor interest for everyone. It will open for the season this weekend.

DEMONSTRATION FARM POND—Rural visitors to the Vanderwater Area will be interested in this half-acre pond, completed last fall. It incorporates automatic overflow to maintain constant depth and rip-rapped sluiceway to take care of spring freshets. Entrance to nature trail is seen above men's heads.

Final Meeting Of Traffic Club Held

The regular and final meeting of the season for the Quinte Traffic Club was held at Jim's Place on Wednesday evening, and chaired by the president, Mr. R. H. Godden, Direct Winters Transport.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Ralph Plumpton, traffic manager, H. Corby Distillery Limited, who outlined the rules governing the construction and filing of tariffs of tolls by motor carriers in accordance with the Public Commercial Vehicles Act of Ontario.

It was pointed out that there are ramifications to rate filing which could hold serious consequences not only for industry but for highway transport industry itself.

A very interesting discussion period followed at which time a panel consisting of W. Old, Ise Rollins, R. H. Godden and R. N. Plumpton participated.

Vanderwater Park to Open For Season This Week-End

Mecca for thousands of visitors arriving in more than 2,000 autos during the 1963 season, the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area, operated by the Moira Conservation Authority near Thomasburg, will be opened for another season this weekend.

The picnic tables are again out, the fireplaces are in readiness and firewood neatly piled for the influx of picnic-minded citizens expected throughout the coming summer.

The original intention was to open the conservation area on the weekend of May 18th, but with the grounds drying up rapidly it has now been decided to open a week earlier. There will be no admission charge for the first weekend.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE

Visitors to the popular picnic area with its 400-plus acres, will find a number of further improvements from last year.

Two picnic areas have been extended, nature trails have been further improved and the demonstration farm pond, one half acre in extent, has been completed.

During the past week an earth cover has been placed on the roadway extension skirting the hardwood bluff to the south.

This roadway is now in readiness for gravelling and next winter it is hoped there can be extensive underbrushing and other work to fit the area for expanded camping facilities.

Rural residents will find the new demonstration farm pond of interest. This is to the left, a short distance inside the entrance. Depth of the pond varies from a maximum of about five and a half feet.

Also at the area named in honor of the late Col. Roscoe Vanderwater for his interest in conservation work are a demonstration pasture lot and reforestation plantations.

USED BY SCOUTS

Belleville and district Boy Scouts also make good use of the Col. Vanderwater area. Here the Scouts' organization has its Camp Ganaraska, site of camporees during the summer months.

Unique at the area is a never failing spring, providing pure, cold drinking water for visitors.

Despite the fact the conservation area covers more than 400 acres (most of it wooded) there is no danger of the tyro liker getting lost.

There are signs all over the place directing visitors to the nature trails, to the beach or boat launch, to the spring or to the picnic areas.

In the few years that it has been open the Col. Vanderwater Conservation Area has become known over a wide area.

Last week a naturalist club from Whitby visited the area and a week or so ago another club from the Toronto area wrote asking for camping accommodation for 50 families for the weekend of July 1st.

"We will try to accommodate them," stated an Authority official.

TWO OTHER AREAS

Popular and all as the Col. Vanderwater area is, the two other conservation areas operated by the Moira Authority, also have their quota of visitors.

This year additional work is being carried on at both the O'Hara Mill area northwest of Madoc, and at the Price area at Actinolite.

At the O'Hara area, old farm buildings are being razed and dead trees around the mill pond removed.

At the Price area on the Skootamatta River at No. 7 Highway, it is hoped this year to construct a swing bridge to allow visitors to cross the river.

TINY BALL BEARINGS

United States space instruments use ball bearings so small that some 32,400 of them weigh only one pound.

CROSSROADS — Visitors to Vanderwater Area need have no fear of getting lost. Authority works foreman Mac Sarles reads directional signs.

Reconciliation Talks Planned For Moscow

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has won a preliminary tactical skirmish in his ideological battle with Communist China. The first peace talks will be held in Moscow, not in Peking as Communist Chiefs in Mao Tse-tung had hoped.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai informed Soviet Ambassadors S. V. Chervonenko Thursday that his government accepted Khrushchev's invitation to send a delegation to Moscow to discuss ideological differences splitting the Communist world.

Khrushchev had proposed that Mao head the Chinese delegation, but nobody expected the Chinese boss to agree to that. Chou said the delegation will be headed by Teng Hsiao-ping, top theoretician of the Chinese party, and Peng Chen, mayor of Peking.

SEES FUTURE

KITCHENER (CP)—Like a boisterous child, drama for children has grown and will continue to grow in Canada, Mrs A. L. Campbell of Winnipeg said Thursday. Mrs. Campbell is chairman of the second conference of the Canadian Children Drama Association, which begins its three-day meeting today immediately prior to the annual Dominion Drama Festival.

Many friends and relatives gathered at the Bennett residence for a buffet supper served in his honor.

Former Minister Of United Church To Be Speaker

The Reverend Donald Ross Fraser, a former minister of the United Church of Canada, will be the guest speaker at the Sunday service of the Quinte Unitarian Fellowship, 281 John St.

Mr. Fraser was born in Belleville, his father being a United Church minister in Ivanhoe at the time. He attended Queen's University and graduated Queen's Theological College in 1950. After serving seven years in the United Church Ministry, he resigned for doctrinal reasons in 1957. Mr. Fraser is now a teacher of English at Ripley District High School.

Search Illegal, Free L. Bruce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge dismissed a narcotics possession charge against comedian Lenny Bruce on grounds police violated his constitutional rights.

Superior Judge Alfred P. Perasca ruled Thursday that the violation occurred when officers searched Bruce Feb. 2 after stopping a taxi in which he was riding.

The officers said they found heroin on the floor of the cab and arrested Bruce.

Bruce's lawyer, John Marshall, argued the officers were looking for a taxi involved in a robbery when they stopped Bruce's taxi and searched it.

"Following this logic police could stop every car in Los Angeles and conduct a search," Marshall said.

The judge ruled this constituted illegal search and seizure of the object.

Bruce is scheduled to appear in court Monday for trial on an earlier charge of possession of heroin. He was arrested on that charge last Oct. 5.

Not a Case for Compulsion

A Toronto magistrate, J. W. Butler, has stated he will no longer hear cases against teenagers unless their parents are present in court.

"I feel that the parents of these children should accept responsibility for them," he declares. "It happens far too often that the parents aren't present. Then in many cases the father sends the mother to take the rap."

It is impossible for the reasonable person not to sympathize with the magistrate's view-point.

But, as is so often the case, taking what is a reasonable yardstick for most cases and making it a compulsory procedure in all involves the danger of injustice.

Unless one accepts as truth a commonly-preached fallacy, that there are no delinquent children but only delinquent parents, the decision whether to attend court is best left to the parents. If parents are hauled into court every time a child has a clash with the law, children who resent their parents have handed to them a new and stout stick with which to beat their parents. Absenting himself from work to attend court might easily cost a man his job, and that in many cases is the reason why the mother of the accused turns up in court alone. In other cases, while a man's employer might not dismiss him, the man would forfeit a day's pay which, perhaps, the family could ill afford.

Compelling parents to attend may be justified in cases in juvenile court. It would appear that a magistrate is exceeding his proper powers when he seeks to enforce such a ruling in cases involving those considered by the law to be old enough to bear full responsibility for their own actions.

Intelligence Depends on Ignorance

The British Intelligence Service has been accused of trickery in its recruiting British businessman Greville Wynne as a courier to assist with espionage within Russia. Wynne himself made the accusation. Now on trial in Moscow, Wynne has already confessed to his part in lifting certain Russian secrets, but he insists he wasn't actually aware about what he was doing at the time.

Oleg Penkovsky, a Russian, who has already confessed a part in the same scheme, claims that Wynne is minimizing his own guilt.

The charges and counter charges on both sides probably mean nothing. Certainly, British Intelligence could be accused of gross incompetence if any of its field operatives really had a well rounded idea of his job. Such knowledge could be bartered by a spotted spy for his life and British Intelligence has to consider its own interests more important than the life of a courier. Certainly, the Intelligence agents who recruited Wynne would not have told him just what he was doing, or the reason for it. They might well have told him almost anything else.

On the other hand, Wynne's claim that he thought his actions as a courier between a Russian scientific official and British officials had the full consent of the Russian authorities should be taken with a grain of salt. Many British businessman in a position to be wandering about Moscow must realize that the Russians have mail services, and both the Russian and British governments have uniformed couriers, and there is little real need for an apparent civilian to run around handling over-the-counter business.

The hocus-pocus, the phoney stories and the half-informed courier are all part of the spy game, a game that probably started when the first cave man or cave woman married into a neighboring tribe. Now, spying is such a popular sport that few countries even go to the trouble to deny they are engaged in it, which is a development in honesty, in one way. If the Moscow trial takes the normal course for such events, the Russian defendant will be disposed of on the high treason charge, and the Briton will be stored away until an opportunity comes to trade him for a Russian caught behind the wrong curtain in a western country. Among spies for the bigger nations these days, it is only the traitors who are severely punished.

"Where else than in the Oxford Dictionary can one follow the meaning of common words over the centuries, and see the English language as an immense fleet of ships moving down the ocean of time, tossed about by winds, diverted by local currents, and leaving some words behind wrecked and stranded on a forgotten beach only to be re-floated and given an overhaul before coming into new use years later?"—Sir Llewellyn Woodward.

Divers Find Pharos Light

National Geographic Society

Divers have discovered fragments of the Pharos, the great lighthouse that was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

In the harbor of Alexandria, Egypt, the underwater explorers found a decorated stone facade, a broken column and statuary that may have ornamented the ancient structure.

The remains of the Pharos in about 34 feet beneath the Mediterranean Sea. An earthquake toppled the lighthouse in 1375, destroying a remnant that had stood for 1,900 years.

The Pharos was completed about 280 BC in the reign of Ptolemy II, or Philadelphus. This enlightened ruler of Egypt made Alexandria into a centre of science and scholarship. The city also was a major port, and because a beacon was needed to guide ships to Egypt's low-lying coast and past the shoals outside Alexandria's harbor.

The lighthouse was built on the island of Pharos, a natural breakwater. The island was connected to the mainland by a causeway, which has silted over and become an island.

The Greek architect Sostratus, who designed the tower, was so proud of his work that he boldly carved his name on it. He then prudently covered the place with plaster on which he engraved Ptolemy's name. Sostratus knew the plaster would disintegrate after Ptolemy's death and reveal the original inscription.

Ancient and medieval writers often described the Pharos but they mingled fact and fancy so capriciously that an uncer-

Strictly Personal
Child's Ear Interprets Differently

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Parents simply do not know how children hear them. The things husbands and wives say to one another in the presence of children sound quite different to the ears of the children than to the ears of adults.

This point was forcibly borne upon me a few Sundays ago, when my own nuptials were drawing over to help me prepare my remarks. We spent a few hours closeted together, and then he left I walked into the kitchen to find a badly mashed cup of black coffee, and told my wife, in grim news.

My 5-year-old was munching a cookie in the pantry and overheard my wailing of voice, my gnashing of teeth, my pulling of hair. He then quietly walked over to me and slipped a quarter in my shirt pocket.

"What's this for?" I asked in surprise. "It's all I've got left of my allowance for this week." he said. "If we're so poor, you'll have that to pay your taxes with."

I was much moved. "Now it isn't all that bad," I explained to him. "We're really not poor to many people, and actually we're quite well off. It's just that we have what we have. It's just that income tax time makes most daddies feel rather hard put upon. Thanks, anyway."

What picture must a child get of adult existence from having a constant stream of complaints and recriminations and self-pity from one parent to the other? How is the child to know that this exaggerated verbal response is not a faithful report of everyday life in adult life?

I was liable to tell my boy about real poverty in the world — and not too many blocks away from us — with the assurance that we are an especially lucky family, and should thank God for our good fortune. This was a relatively easy matter to straighten out.

But I happen to know, for instance a little girl whose mother was always complaining about a housewife's role — how hard it is, how thankless, how martyred she has become to home and husband and children. Most of the time, the woman does not even know she is whining — it is so much a part of her temperament.

The little girl, however, will take her life's cue from the mother. She will not accept her feminine role, will always feel cheated at not being a man, and will unconsciously resent men in later life. This kind of emotional crippling is much more common than we think.

The only permanent gifts we can give our children are courage and cheerfulness and an acceptance of difficulties. If parents constantly vocalize and exaggerate their resentments in the home, this becomes the child's inevitable concept of the world at large.

Kangaroos In Danger

UNESCO Features

The kangaroo, once regarded as a pest in some parts of Australia, is in danger of extinction unless measures are taken to protect it. A campaign has been started by Professor A. J. Marshall, explorer and zoologist, to stop wholesale slaughter of the animal and the birth of the Australian sub-continent.

According to Professor Marshall, 30 different species of Australian marsupials are known which carry their young in a pouch — are born prematurely and, he says, "it is our duty not to allow the kangaroo to join them." The kangaroo is valued for its meat and in recent years export figures for kangaroo meat have risen from 5,708,000 lbs. in 1961 to 2,618,000 lbs. in 1961-62, indicating that the kangaroo is being slaughtered out of existence.

Another Australian animal whose numbers are declining rapidly is the friendly koala bear. The reasons for this, however, are different. Koalas live in the Australian bush, the koala is a victim of expanding civilization which has "gifted" backwards such as busy fruit-growers as such as the newly-introduced fox, and disease. Unlike the koalas, according to naturalists, have been killed in epidemics brought into Australia since the arrival of the white man 175 years ago.

The survival rate of these frail animals is low; the females breed every second year and have only one baby. The young are fully grown at four years and may live to the age of 20, though this is rare.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 10, 1963 . . .

Winston Churchill became prime minister of Britain 23 years ago today—in 1940—to lead the struggle against the Axis powers in the Second World War. Churchill, then 66 years old, embarked on a tenure of office of five years in which he demonstrated his full qualities of statesmanship and strategy. All through the war he inspired the people of Britain and the Commonwealth with his own resolution and unswerving confidence in eventual Allied victory.

1944—The seat of Canadian government was moved to Montreal from Kingston, Ont.

1940 —Germany invaded Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

tain picture of the tower survives.

Archaeologists believe it stood 300 feet tall in several tapering sections. The base was 100 feet square and perhaps 300 feet high. It probably contained 300 rooms and may have served as a fort. Above the base rose octagonal and circular stages. A cupola protected the signal fire. Surrounding all was a giant statue of Poseidon, god of the sea.

Smaller statues in the Pharos supposedly included a rotating figure that followed the sun's course with a pointing finger and another that musically sounded the hours.

Some accounts describe an interior ramp that wound gradually all the way up to the light. Donkeys hauled fuel up the incline. Other scholars say a winding staircase led to inclined ramps through a centre well. In any case, the flare was kept burning constantly—a pillar of fire at night, a column of smoke by day.

Ancient writers said the Pharos beacon was visible 60 miles at sea, and that sailors sometimes mistook it for a stationary new star. Modern authorities suggest that the beacon probably was visible only 30 miles.

The light may have been reflected by a polished stone or metal disk. According to legend, the reflector could beam the sun's rays 100 miles to a fleet of enemy ship. One ruinous writer claimed that the Pharos mirror reflected events in distant Constantinople.

Top sections of the Pharos collapsed around A.D. 700. After seeking Alexander the Great's treasure, rumored to be hidden there, many have undermined the top. An earthquake in 1200 and the severe tremor in 1375 completed the destruction.

Today all that remains above ground of the wonder of the world are a few stones incorporated into a 15th-century fort on the site.

With the exception of letters from home, perhaps nothing is more welcome to the men in the armed forces overseas than a good Canadian cigarette. That is why in October, 1941 the Kinsmen Club of Belleville commenced a project for the provision of cigarettes for Belleville boys serving overseas. Today that rather original small item has grown steadily until it is with pride the Kinsmen Club of this city announce that over One Million cigarettes have already been sent to Belleville boys overseas.

To be singled out by newspaper photographers and newsreel cameramen as being outstanding in the annual Easter parade at the Sunnyside boardwalk is honor that has been the honor and novel experience of a former Belleville girl, Miss Norma Finch, the daughter of Mr. George Finch, local Victoria Ave. grocery. Some 250 people from Cannifton and vicinity scorned the rather chilly atmosphere and gaiety in the air, to attend a dance that village Monday evening. A space was fenced off in front of the Tremayne store and the Riverside orchestra furnished excellent music for square and round dancing. The success of the dance will go to the treasury of the Cannifton ball club.

Tories Weak In Debaters

Windsor Star

The Conservatives, as the official Opposition in the Commons, will suffer from the same deficiency as the Liberals have since 1957. They will be weak, theoretically and otherwise, in debaters.

The Liberals, in Opposition, had only a small group of able debaters. These, besides Hon. L. B. Pearson, comprised Hon. Paul Martin, Hon. Lionel Chevrier and Hon. J. W. Pickersgill, with such as Hon. Paul Hellyer to be intended to assist in secondary support.

This placed almost the entire load on the "old guard". It had to work overtime just because there weren't any perceptible debating skill among the backbenchers (until recently when a new group began to show).

The Conservative Party not only lost the election. It lost, in the defeat, all of the debating events, its most effective parliamentarians (Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker excepted).

Gone are Hon. Donald M. Fleming, Hon. Davie Fulton and Hon. Gordon Churchill through resignations. Gone are Hon. Howard C. Green, Hon. Ellen Fairclough and others through being defeated. Mr. Diefenbaker will be able to assemble only a corporal's guard of frontbenchers.

Those who will have Hon. George Nowlan, Hon. Hugh John Flemming, Hon. Michael Starr, Hon. J. W. Monteith, Hon. Walter Dinsdale, Hon. Alvin Hamilton and Hon. Gordon Churchill. All are experienced. None, however, is a debater of the skill of Mr. Fleming or Mr. Fulton. Hon. Douglas Harkness is back in the House, but may be of little help to Mr. Diefenbaker on defence issues.

It could be that the most effective debating group in the Opposition side will be provided by the small New Democratic group. It lost one of its best in the defeat of Mr. David Lewis. But it has such excellent debaters as Mr. T. C. Douglas, Mr. Stanley Knowles, Mr. Harold Winch, Colin Cameron, Mr. H. W. Herridge and Mr. Douglas Fisher.

The Conservatives will need to be careful that this bunch doesn't snatch the opposition ball. This is the C.C.F. group often did under Mr. M. J. Coldwell when the Conservatives previously were in opposition.

The Social Credit Party has an excellent speaker in its leader, Mr. Robert Thompson. Real Caouette always is interesting, even though irresponsible.

To Your Good Health
Should Curb Unlimited Refill of Prescriptions

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a practising, registered pharmacist and am writing you after reading the letter from a woman whose husband has been taking "pep pills" and now is on an overdose schedule of "five tablets at a time."

How does this patient obtain so many from his pharmacist? There must be an apparent increase in refilling of the medication. Or an increase in the amount dispensed at each refill. Do you suppose the original prescription included refill instructions?

The problem illustrated in that letter is probably a result of professional laxity and public ignorance. People should realize that prescribed medications are potentially dangerous when taken for more than a designated period without a doctor's supervision. And six months may be too long for perhaps steroids or anti-infective drugs are involved.

I believe that the prescription should contain specific refill instructions which will regulate the frequency and the total amount of the medication. It is also important that the patient should be aware of the instructions and understand why. — W.Q.R. Ph.

You've written an informed and important letter.

You add some things I can't mention — or only at the cost of having somebody say, "Sure, doctors want another shot at for writing a slip of paper when you need a refill."

Pharmacists who suspect overusage often phone for refill permission or demand a written prescription.

I don't know where the man obtains all the "pep pills" which are ruining him emotionally and physically. Maybe he is going to several doctors and getting a prescription from each. Maybe he stole (and forged) prescription blanks. Maybe he has found a "bootleg" supply.

For the patient's welfare, as well as the doctor's and pharmacist's protection, the prescription blank has a place that must can be filled only once. Naturally there should be a maximum time before a prescription must be replaced with a new order.

Some hospitals only permit gratis refills of drugs for a couple of days without a new order being written.

The known safety of cases of pharmacists who insist on calling a doctor to confirm that he ordered a prescription to be refilled.

Common sense from the patient, care by the pharmacist and caution by the doctor prevent most of the trouble.

But perhaps we need more rigid rules to protect some people from their own folly.

THE PACKSACK

—By GREGORY CLARK

Every time there is a radio or TV program about the end of a past generation, whether it be Sir John A and his colleagues, or Charles the Last of the Romans, or Richard the Lion Heart, they are made to talk in stilted, pompous phrases that sound like the documents of their time. It is true that Shakespeare set a fashion of dramatic utterance that has affected all dramatic presentation from day on. But Shakespeare was a poet first, and a dramatist in order to make a living. It is doubtful if any of his people talked, a hundred, three hundred or a thousand years ago, any differently than they talk today.

If this delusion as to how people conversed is based on the literary or documentary evidence of their time, then the mistake is made on an inexcusable oversight on the part of our scholars. It is little more than two months ago that there would have been beneath their feet a tape written in the idiom of their time. And it is my impression that, in general, the popular idiom of Henry VIII was pretty close to the popular idiom of today. We make a mistake in trying to thrust our forebears from us.

Would Require Major Assault To Defeat Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — It would take a major amphibious assault, co-ordinated with a paratroop attack, to overcome powerful Russian-stiffened defences of Cuba.

This is the current assessment by U.S. intelligence authorities, as reported by the Senate preparedness subcommittee.

The Senate group's report made public Thursday, said the combined Soviet and Cuban forces now in the island are quite powerful defensively but could offer severe opposition to any attack.

The investigators criticized the Central Intelligence Agency and military intelligence authorities for what they said were "substantial errors" in evaluating information indicating a serious missile-armament buildup in Cuba last summer and fall.

MAY BE HIDDEN

The subcommittee showed it did not fully convinced that all the Russian long-range missiles and bombers have been pulled out of Cuba. It said intelligence chiefs admit "there if reason for grave concern" that such weapons might be hidden in some of the country's thousands of caves.

But apart from questioning the latest intelligence estimate of 17,500 Russians in Cuba, the Senate group appeared to accept the professionals' judgments on the state of Cuba's ground, air and sea defences.

Goodbye, city
Hello, adventure!
Here comes Evinrude, searching adventure as she always does. And by morning she'll taste it.
She'll find adventure at a quiet land's end. Or in an angry stretch of white water. Or maybe as she rests on a hidden beach.
(Adventure, are you there? If you are you'll get found. Don't fight it.)
This outboard is a powerhouse, a thrill-seeker, a dynamo, an explorer. Yet, with all this verve, she'll sneak up quietly on adventure.
So, goodbye, city. There goes Evinrude on her way to Bigger Things.

Two Fishing Tugs Tossed On Shore by Tidal Wave

PICTON — An eight-foot tidal wave which swept in from Lake Ontario Wednesday afternoon, did considerable damage at Stanley Rankin's fishery at Salmon Point.

So great was the force of the wave that the big fishing tugs were tossed around like matches, and equipment used in fishing was spread over a wide area.

Women who had been working in a shed removing smelt from nets had left a few minutes before the wave inundated the building with more than two feet of water.

"There had been small tides during the day but the big one came as a surprise and we were not prepared," said Mr. Rankin. "It was lucky that, as in most cases, the tide, when it receded, did not carry things out into the lake. But it sure scattered everything over the area as well as leaving the two big fishing tugs high and dry on land."

One of the fishing tugs, a steel craft, 36 feet long with 15-foot beam, was tied up at one end and the wave swung it entirely around and left it high and dry on the beach. It was having the motor repaired and had not been fully secured to the moorings.

Mr. Rankin was using a smaller tug for the final lift of smelt and they were able to secure this at both ends. It rose and fell with the tide but the rock beneath was borne away and thrown on the beach.

Heavy booms filled with net were carried partly across a field until they lodged against bushes. A small dock was demolished. An outboard motor was moved 50 feet around a building.

WATER BACKED UP

"The water just backed up and came in as a tremendous wave. It swept over the dock on the high beach and on in to the lower land behind. It made quite a mess of everything," said Mr. Rankin.

There have been such tidal waves before but none so severe in recent years.

Mr. Rankin recalled that some years ago a tidal wave smashed the breakwater in front of the lighthouse (now a museum) and carried pieces of rock and concrete inland. Some of these pieces can be seen today.

Mr. Rankin's helper, Dave Marshall, was among those who waded into the water to retrieve floating articles.

Ken Hunt's fishing boat was securely moored and he did not suffer any loss.

Provincial Police reported no tide at Outlet Provincial Park beach.

The 8-year-old Clayton Hyatt visited the scene yesterday, "I have never seen anything like it," he commended as he watched men picking up nets, boxes and debris from the fields in the afternoon.

Others in the area at the time said it was "awe-inspiring." Some of the water receded and then came in with a rush there was a tremendous roar.

Talks to Cover

rious incidents," Mr. Pearson said. "It will be helpful from this to the president. It's an important and basic."

Of wider implication, the prime minister said he would discuss trade relations and the Columbia River power development treaty.

There may be some understandings reached on defence and other matters, but there will be no formal agreements, he added. Earlier he told reporters he regards the Hyannis Port meetings as only the start of discussion on many things.

"It's not a negotiating meeting, any more than the one in London was. It's a meeting to establish rapport between the president and myself at the beginning of our regime.

"I don't consider it primarily a meeting for negotiating anything; it's for an exchange of views. The exchange of views might lead to the beginning of negotiations when we get back."

On trade, Mr. Pearson said that while he agrees in principle with tariff reductions and removal of other obstructions to trade, there would have to be exceptions. He is for across-the-board tariff reductions which work unevenly.

"I don't think there aren't too many exceptions which will prevent the principle meaning anything at all," he added. "We've accepted the fact that if we are going to get concessions we will have to make concessions."

On the Columbia treaty, Mr. Pearson said he would suggest changes in the treaty which the Liberal party believes should be made. He said, however, he has not been in touch with Premier Bennett of British Columbia, who objects to restrictions in the present treaty. The premier claims these limit the province and its financing for power projects in the Columbia.

Also before flying off to Hyannis Port, Mr. Pearson put the final touches to a letter to provincial premiers suggesting a royal commission on bilingualism. Details will not be announced until the premiers have reached a study of the letter.

Mr. Pearson has been fully briefed on the long and violent struggle between the Canadian Labor Congress and the Seafarers' International Union of Canada on the Great Lakes.

MAY POINT OUT DANGER

One source said the prime minister may point out the dangers to labor amity between Canada and the United States if American unions continue supporting the SIU and its American-born president Hal C. Banks controlling Canadian-registered shipping.

The Canadian view, it is understood, is that the dispute between the SIU and the CLC over organization on the ships of the Upper Lakes Shipping Line of Toronto is purely domestic and should be "exported" to the United States for settlement.

Mr. Pearson is also expected to raise Thursday's shooting incident involving the Upper Lakes freighter James Norris in Cleveland.

Washington indicated that Canadian concern about the resumption of violence in the labor dispute was communicated to U.S. authorities in Washington.

One official here said there is "instantaneous communication" between Canadian and American authorities on labor disputes erupting in the long battle for labor supremacy on the Great Lakes.

MISSES CAPTAIN

J. D. Leitch, president of Upper Lakes, sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson reporting that several shots were fired at the freighter early Thursday. One shot missed the pantaloons of the cabin occupied by the ship's captain, Arthur Rouse of Wiarton, Ont., the telegram said.

The shooting was the first outbreak of violence since last August when Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver launched an exhaustive investigation of labor strife on the lakes.

A parade of witnesses before his one-man federal inquiry told about beatings, shootings, shoot-

Can You Look Ahead?

TIME LIMIT: 5 MINUTES

The rat route is trial-and-error to get through a maze. But the trial-and-error method will not enable you to thread these mazes in time to get a good score, for the choices are too many. You will have to look ahead of your pencil and mentally eliminate undesirable paths.

DIRECTIONS — Starting in the upper left hand corner draw a line through each maze to its exit. Your line is not permitted to cross itself, or any other line. If you do cross a line or go into a blind alley, you may return to the entrance and start over again—or you may pick up where your line turned into the blind alley.

FOLLOW REPORTERS

Newspaper men in the capital were being closely watched by the authorities and military censorship of telephone calls and cables appeared tighter than a week ago. Foreign reporters say they were followed by "tonton macoutes" bogeymen, the president's personal henchmen.

Several diplomats charged attempts were made to monitor their telephone calls.

Two reporters said that while they were in the telephone office here they heard a conversation between Thurston and the state department in Washington amplified over a loudspeaker.

Stirling Moss Wins Divorce On Desertion

LONDON (AP) — Stirling Moss, 33-year-old retired British auto racing driver, won a divorce today from Mrs. Lathercia Moss on grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Moss, 27 - year - old daughter of Canadian brewer F. Stuart Molson, now lives at Nassau in The Bahamas. She did not contest the action. The couple had no children.

They were married in October, 1957, and separated in 1961. Moss testified that his wife had made it clear she did not intend to live with him again."

Moss was injured seriously in a crash at the Goodwood track last year. He announced his retirement after a trial spin on the same track last week, which he said disclosed that his reflexes were no longer up to big-time racing standards.

Police Convinced Criminal Hand Is Responsible

BROSSARDVILLE, Que. — (CP) — Police Chief Albert Richard said Thursday he is convinced "a criminal hand" is responsible for an epidemic of mysterious illness at a Brossardville elementary school.

The school, which has 251 pupils, was closed Thursday for the third time since April 22. Its two classrooms were vacated immediately when 15 pupils began complaining, almost simultaneously, of nausea and headaches.

Eight of them had to be taken to hospital and five of the eight were kept there for examination.

The chief said the mysterious repetition of the ailment, which has had the effect of drugging the children, has convinced him that there is criminal activity behind it. No motive was immediately evident.

He said the school should remain shut for the rest of the school year.

"I want you to quote me on that. I am sure we have a sabotage affair on our hands."

Authorities at the St. Lambert Hospital said some of the children seemed to be drugged when the police were told they have undergone surgery without feeling any pain.

TO GIVE ADDRESS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson will give the convocation address and will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at the 19th convocation of Assumption University here June 3, it was announced Thursday.

Blast Rocks

since the start of the wave of bombings two months ago.

Army Provost Corps and city police patrol armories every 20 minutes and there is someone on duty 24 hours a day, but no one was seen in the lane.

HEARS BLAST

Only survivor W. W. Thompson and the armory's fireman were in the building at the time. Sgt. Henry Dollard, sleeping in the sergeant's mess, had just gone out for something to eat in a restaurant next door when the explosion shook the building.

He said he thought at first it was an explosion in the kitchen of the restaurant. So did restaurant owner Jan Woo, who reported that "it blew my kitchen window into the next room."

Lt.-Col. William Sedgwick, commanding officer of the Black Watch, said all reasonable precautions had been taken. But he had ordered his night staff to stay out of lanes and the garbage area, he said, because these were the most likely places for FLQ bombs.

Watchman W. Y. O'Neill, 63, was killed by a bomb set off in the garbage area of the Montreal army recruiting station April 20.

The statements alleged to sent by the FLQ Thursday said Mr. O'Neill's death "an untoward incident" but said revolution cannot be carried out without death.

NO CALL TO C-P

The bombing today did not follow the usual FLQ pattern—usually a call to The Canadian Press to announce an impending action, and signs calling for Quebec's independence at the site of the explosion. But there were no calls and no signs.

The statements also had announced that "operation Jean Lesage"—the name the terrorists gave to their last wave of bombings — had finished, and they did not announce any new operation.

The sound of the sharp blast was picked up over the city's suburban Verdun, on the St. Lawrence River front five miles away.

Chief Inspector William Fitzpatrick of Montreal said he thought the organization's claim to have set up a tribunal to judge traitors "may have been designed to discourage anyone from giving information to police and authorities." $10,000 reward the city offered after the death of Mr. O'Neill.

The kangaroo court has been named "tribunal revolutionnaire des patriotes Quebecois" (revolutionary tribunal of Quebec patriots), according to the statements.

Union Chief Says Head Being Placed on Block

KINGSTON (CP)—The president of Kingston-based Local 91 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT) says an investigation of the local's affairs is being used by high-ranking Canadian Teamsters to oust him from office.

Edwin Banks, Local 91 president and one of the seven local officers who have filed charges against each other under the union constitution, made the statement Thursday as top Teamster executives began the investigation, ordered Monday by International Union President James Hoffa.

Mr. Banks said that in the investigation, headed by Canadian Teamsters Director I. M. (Casey) Hoffa and a Detroit official delegated by Mr. Hoffa "my head is being placed on the block because of local union politics connected with people seeking union power."

Earlier Thursday, Mr. Dodds announced that a closed hearing, before a panel chosen by Mr. Hoffa, would be held June 4. May 28. He said the nature of the charges filed with international union headquarters would not be disclosed until after the hearing.

On his arrival here from Toronto Wednesday, Mr. Dodds said a March audit of Local 91 finances had disclosed "odd things of more depth than normal in a local of this size."

ESTIMATE IS SHORT

The Canadian director said the audit showed the size of discrepancies in the 1,000-member locals books was "way short" at $15,000. He said the amount involved might be nearer $25,000.

Mr. Dodds said the "heavy majority" of the seven-man Local 91 executive "is completely clear of any responsibility for the debt."

Mr. Banks said that his complaint to international teamster headquarters had alleged embezzlement of funds by members of the Local 91 executive.

Gerald Miles, Local 91 secretary-treasurer, said Wednesday that Mr. Banks had completed with a request from a majority of the executive board that he turn in the key to his office.

LAUNCHES SUIT

OTTAWA (CP) — A $200,000 damage suit against Hoffa has been launched against the federal government by Noel Drouin, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament from 1958 to 1962. A petition of right has been filed in the Exchequer Court of Canada by C. H. Goulet, counsel for Mr. Drouin, claiming damages on grounds of injuries received by Mr. Drouin March 16, 1962, when he fell in the Labor Shop in the East Block of the Parliament buildings.

Camp News of Guards

PICTON — In the "wee" hours of the 6th May, the Commanding Officer placed the 1st Bn. Canadian Guards of Camp Picton on two hours notice to move. The tactical setting was that Fantasia, a warlike nation, had invaded Prince Edward County from the south and was preparing to mount a major offensive now that the bulk of its forces were ashore.

All sub-units were deployed in hides and gradually, once reconnaissances had been completed, orders issued, battle positions were ready for occupation.

This was exercise 'Do Your Best', a form of Battalion controlled company exercises, it was a natural step to exercise the Battalion as a whole.

An electronic warfare organization of some 90 personnel was established as a unit. Through radio intercepts and the breaking of codes they hoped to get the exact locations, deployments, procedures, drills and jam our transmissions.

The second first phase was carried out on Monday and Tuesday, the 6th and 7th of May respectively. Phase 2 will be carried out on Thursday and Friday, the 9th and 10th of May.

Gagetown is not far off now so that the tempo of training is mounting. The good weather has had more than just the cmelts running!

BOBS

This was the Brigade Commander's patrol exercise held in Camp Petawawa recently. The First Battalion's patrol was commanded by Lieutenant Graham Meharg and assisted by Sergeant Goodwin. The competition was one officer and twenty other soldiers from each unit participating. The area in which the competition was held varied from the thick bushes and deadfall to open rolling country. The task of each patrol was to capture a prisoner and to attack an enemy roadblock. Full battle procedure was tested and the Division Staff attended all briefings, rehearsals, orders, and the actual patrol itself. The Royal Canadian Regiment are to be congratulated on winning the competition with a total of 906 points out of one thousand. The First Battalion's team got a close second with 870 out of a thousand points. In presenting the trophy, Brigadier A. J. B. Fortune, Commander, 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade Group commented on the professionalism of the patrols and briefly on the lessons learned over the two day exercise. The trophy, it will be remembered, "Carrousel de-bois" (runner-of-the-woods) was made in Quebec by handicraft workers. It follows:

1st - 2 RCR - 904 points
1 PD SQN
2nd 12 CDN GDS 870
3rd 2 CDN GDS
4th 3 CH
5th 1 RCHA
6th 1 FD SQN.

On Monday, the unit team defeated ROYAL ARMY with a score of 59-49. Later the same day they defeated 1 Signals Unit by a score of 47-44.

On Wednesday the 1st of May the unit team defeated 2nd Battalion, ROYAL CANADIAN Guards team by a score of 60-38 in the beginning of Battalion sports.

On the 2nd of May the unit team played off for the Championship of the first phase RCASC School team from Camp Borden. The unit team won by a score of 58-38 to win the "our best" for a job well done. Despite injuries and courses, the team went all through the season to win the championship.

MARK V E DAY

The Canadian Guards marked its 18th anniversary of V E Day by parading through Picton Wednesday. Thousands of people gathered to watch the 250 men, under command of Lt. Col. H. W. Mulkerin and led by their pipe and drum band. The salute was taken by Mayor H. J. McFarland. School classes were dismissed early so that the children could attend the parade.

Prior to the parade, the Salvation Army served hot coffee to the guards who leave this month for summer camp at Gagetown, N.B.

During their absence, the C.W.A.C. and officer cadet training courses will be held here.

CULTIVATION AND SOIL

Killing weeds is only one reason, and by no means the most important, for cultivating or hoeing the garden. It is well, of course, that weeds are destroyed because they certainly do not add to the appearance or flavour or even vegetables and they do rob the plants we want to grow of food, moisture and sunshine. But the main reason for cultivation (and this is why it should be carried out regularly at least once a week during the first part of the season), is to let the air into the soil, to conserve moisture, to work in fertiliser and manure; in other words, to produce the right climate or environment for our flowers and vegetables.

Regular cultivation alone will make a surprising difference in the texture of the soil, will break up the hard lumps and make it more open or friable, as the experts say. But the wise gardener will do more than just cultivate to build up his soil. He will add humus by digging in barnyard manure if he can get it, or straw, autumn leaves, vegetable refuse, peat moss and so on. In case where the garden soil is very heavy clay he may also add sand, or ashes. For sandy soil, too he will dig in straw, leaves and compost. He will also add chemical fertiliser, of the kind recommended by seed houses for his particular type of soil or for the kind of flowers, grass or vegetables he intends to grow. Not all require the same food, some like bone meal, some need nitrogen, some potash.

Where the garden soil is naturally heavy and it is difficult to get a good catch of carrots, beets or parsnips it is good plan to dig a trench about a foot wide and deep. This is filled with compost mixed with some fine and enriched soil, and perhaps a little sand. It may be necessary to water this down or at least firm it by trampling. Then the seed is sown fairly thin and merely pressed in, and kept moist until it has germinated. One must be careful, of course, in the first watering, not to wash out the seed as it will only be barely covered. It is amazing how the seed will germinate under these conditions and usually so quickly that the young plants will crowd out all weeds. It will hardly be necessary to thin, as this specially prepared soil in the trench is so fine and loose that there will be plenty of room for the shoots. About the only thinning necessary will be to start using carrots and beets when they are very small and not taking out the larger ones each time and leaving room for the remainder to develop.

WHEN THE GROUND SLOPES

Split levels have always been popular in gardening. Where the ground slopes considerably one should make the largest lawn and grounds generally confront rather than trying to grade the whole thing artificially to one level. The simplest and perhaps most interesting treatment is to have an upper and a lower lawn, joining the two with a bit of stone wall or a strip of rock garden. Through the wall or rock garden of course there will be a series of steps in stone, brick, or cedar timbers. Another way would be to have shrubbery on the slope joining the two levels.

Where these slopes are any size it is well to remember that unless anchored with rocks, or shrubs, or creeping vines, heavy rains will invariably wash out the soil and make a mess of things.

THE LONG VIEW

Many beautiful, urban gardens are spoiled because only a weedy, rapid growing trees are used and only the earliest maturing flowers, grass and vegetables. These early, quick growing things have a place, especially in the young garden, but they should not be the only things. In planting one is well advised to make sure that in addition to the quick growers the other kind goes in too. And this applies to flowers and vegetables just as well as trees or shrubbery. By using later sorts as well as early, we get quality as well as often better quality as well.

Cooling Unit Can Utilize Heating Line

Cooling engineers have developed a variety of systems so that air conditioning can be installed in any type of house, regardless of the type of heating system used in it.

A combination hydronic system uses heating-cooling convector units installed in each room of the house. The central power source — a boiler and chiller — is usually located in the basement.

Hot water and chilled water are circulated to the units through a common tubing system. Each convector unit has a fan, filter, cooling-heating coil and a thermostat for room by room temperature control.

SAME DUCTS USED

Combination warm air systems use a furnace and cooling unit, usually located in the basement, as the power source. Warm air and cool air are circulated through the same duct system. It's important, however, that ducts be accurately sized. Cooling requires larger ducts than those used for heating alone. If ducts are sized for heating only, the cooling system may not operate efficiently.

Combination heating-cooling systems are not always most economical to install than separate heating and cooling systems. In certain types of construction, for instance, a separate heating and a separate cooling system with a separate cooling system may be more economical than a combination heating-cooling duct system.

To combine cooling equipment with a heating system at a later time, special provisions for air conditioning must be made when the house is constructed. If these provisions are not made, then a separate cooling system may be required.

Some cooling equipment is especially designed for installation independently of the heating system. This equipment can be installed during construction or later.

For instance, a separate chilled air unit can be used with any type of heating system since it functions independently of the heating system. This central cooling system is suitable for modernization in small or medium size houses.

UNIT PLACEMENT

The cooling unit can be installed in unused space in the attic, garage, hall or closet. Cooling registers, or outlets, are usually located near the ceiling of each room.

A separate chilled water unit can also be used with any type of heating system. It also functions independently of the heating system, and is easily installed in homes located in regions not requiring heating. This unit is suitable for central cooling or new construction or modernization, but especially for multi-story or rambling designs in which zone control is necessary for best results.

This system contains a single cooling unit, remotely located in the basement, which sends chilled water through small tubing to several heavy-duty convectors which have individual temperature controls.

TREES OFFER PROTECTION AND VALUE—Trees are not only objects of aesthetic interest, they also afford shelter from all kinds of weather. Trees enhance the value of any property and are well worth the little care and attention they need.

Shade, Protection and Beauty Provided by Trees Around Home

Have you ever stopped to realize the value that trees have in our community?

Trees add to the overall beauty and comfort of a residential area. They provide the relief and contrast necessary to avoid the stark, barren appearance common to many housing developments.

They provide shade during the very warm weather and protection from cold winds during the cooler seasons.

They enhance the value of any property and are well worth the care and attention they may require.

It is worthwhile for you to protect the existing trees on your lot from damage during construction. This can be done by building a temporary barricade around each one. The land unnecessary for the builder's operations can be fenced off. The construction should be carried out with the protection of the trees in mind at all times.

If you buy a lot which is treeless, it will be worthwhile importing a 20-foot tree to produce immediate shade. Such a tree will not be unreasonably priced and will be an immediate asset to your property. Trees of this size existing on the property can be moved with good success to a desired location by a competent landscape contractor. Trees of the flowering variety such as cherry, flowering crab apple, and flowering shrubs are obtainable for a very small sum and can be planted at strategic positions to provide additional interest and beauty.

In selecting trees for planting avoid those which seed profusely such as chestnut, Manitoba maple and tree-of-heaven, because the seedlings have to be destroyed continually. Avoid planting poplars close to the house or sewer lines because their roots can clog drains and damage concrete walls. Coniferous trees, or evergreens, provide a permanent windbreak to cut winter wind velocities and may reduce fuel consumptions. A few trees properly placed and not a jungle is what you want on your lot. Too many trees provide dense shade and discourage the growth of grass and plants. Only a few ground cover plants, such as Periwinkle and Japanese spurge will thrive in deep shade. On the other hand it is desirable to introduce a reasonable amount of shade in order to protect the house from the sun's hottest rays during summer

To save trees you must devote time to proper planning. Plans cannot be an afterthought. It must be part of a program from the beginning. Careful consideration should be given to the location and fall grown sizes of trees. Healthy trees should be marked to be saved unless they constitute a nuisance or a potential danger. Trees can be removed where they are too thickly grown. The grade of the property should be planned to conform to the elevations of the trees in order to prevent cutting of the roots or excess piling of soil about the tree.

Planting of trees is done in the late Fall or early Spring when tree growth is dormant. Dig a hole large enough to accommodate the roots without overcrowding or bending. A mixture of good topsoil and peat moss should be used for backfilling. After the hole is filled and firmly tamped it should be watered thoroughly to remove any pockets of trapped air. The backfilling can now be completed. A fertilizer recommended by your local nurseryman will be put in naturally worked into the top three inches of the soil.

With newly transplanted trees the soil should be shallowly cultivated every six weeks to facilitate penetration of air, water and fertilizer. Cultivating after August 15 is not recommended as it produces late growth which is subject to winter-kill. Established trees can be fertilized by means of holes punched through the turf with a 2-inch pipe or bar to a depth of 12 inches, and spaced at 18-inch intervals in the area covered by the topgrowth. One-half cup of fertiliser is poured into each hole and the remaining space filled with soil and tamped firm.

Shade trees grow best in spacious surroundings permitting them to develop their own individual characteristics and under these conditions require a minimum of pruning and training. However, dead wood will occur on even the healthiest specimen and should be removed as it creates a breeding place for insects or disease.

Narrow crotches are weak and easily split by storms, sometimes requiring an otherwise perfect tree. These limbs may be held together by bolt braces or the injured section may have to be removed. Operations such as this should be carried out by a competent tree firm.

Make Concrete Improvements

Add low concrete retaining walls or curbs to your yard for a tidy appearance. The curb can be finished round or flat on top.

If you do not have a walk from your door to the driveway or street, now is a good time to add one. A walk to the incinerator, clothes line and garden are convenient and will add to the beauty of your home as well.

You might make concrete flagstone or stepping stone walks instead of the usual solid path for a different look.

It's easy to work with concrete. Only ordinary tools are needed.

ANNOUNCE TROOP MOVE

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1st battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry regiment, now stationed at Esquimalt, B.C., will be rotated to West Germany next fall to serve with the Canadian Army's NATO brigade, it was announced Wednesday. Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said the unit will replace the 1st battalion of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada which will be posted to Equimalt.

History of Golden Hawks Given at H-S Meeting

The pupils of Grade 7 at Prince of Wales School were on hand to welcome two members of the famed Golden Hawks last Tuesday evening at the final Home and School meeting of the year.

Mrs. Kay Bushell presided during the short business session when the annual reports were presented by the secretary, Miss Naomi Hoare, and the treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Cousins.

Mr. Bernard Wright welcomed the many parents before introducing the guest speakers, F/Lt. Norman Garrioch, who joined the air force in 1952, and several at several stations both here and abroad before being selected to be a member of the Golden Hawks in 1961.

He flies left wing in the formation. F/Lt. Alan Young, who flies right wing, has also seen extensive service since joining the RCAF in 1950. He became a member of the team in 1962.

The Golden Hawks were formed in 1959, in commemoration of 50 years of powered flight in Canada, and also the 35th anniversary of the formation of the RCAF. It was originally formed for one year only, but due to the great response to the team, it has been continued. Prior to making Trenton their home base, they were stationed at Chatham, N.B.

The pilots are selected from a long waiting list in November and December for approximately a two-year duration, and commence training from the first of the year to the start of the tour in mid-May.

Their rigorous schedule carries them from coast to coast in Canada as well as parts of the U.S.A. and continues well into September.

FILMS SHOWN

The accompanying film, with many unusual close-ups of the Sabres in action, pointed out only too vividly the reason only the finest pilots attain this high honour.

The pupils responded enthusiastically to the invitation to have their questions answered and kept the pilots busy signing autographs during the social hour following the meeting.

Miss Le'anne Moyer thanked the guests on behalf of her class.

The senior banner for attendance was awarded to Mr. Wright's class, while Miss Hoare's morning class received the junior banner.

Marguerite Taylor Will Be Remembered for Her Work

WINNIPEG (CP)—Marguerite Taylor has quit work, but as long as her statues continue to stand around the world she will be remembered.

Mrs. Taylor, a transplant to Winnipeg from Paris, suffers from arthritis, after a lifetime of working with her hands in damp clay modelling her creations, and can no longer form her herculean sculptures.

But, starting with her days of studying under Antoine Bourdelle, the great French artist and teacher, she has built a lifetime of memories and monuments.

One of her most famous—Canada—stands outside the law courts building at Prince Albert, Sask., while another—The Next-of-Kin war memorial—stands before the Manitoba legislative building.

As well, Mrs. Taylor has her works in Iceland and the United States, Saskatoon and Winnipeg's Kildonan Park.

Each of her major works was made in England where she would spend from three to four years.

FAVORITE WORK

Canada, which she says was done in answer to Great Britain's Britannia and the Statue of Liberty in the United States, was sculptured without a model.

It is her favorite work.

She says Canada had no symbolic statue and "I decided I must create one."

One of the most exciting times was while studying with Bourdelle—a prize pupil of the 19th century French bust of sculpture, Rodin, who created The Thinker.

She says of Bourdelle: "We called him the Master. He would touch, touch your work, just walk around it and make suggestions.

"It was a wonderful era for art in Paris."

When she came to Canada after marrying Hilliard Taylor following the First World War, she says: "I couldn't speak a word of English. Mr. Taylor studied French at the university and would interpret for me."

Her husband died seven years ago.

A classicist, Mrs. Taylor is "disgusted" with sculpture today. She says "My stomach rebels" every time she goes to a modern sculpture display. "I just can't take it."

Mrs. Taylor is philosophical about her inability to continue her work.

"My work is done," she said as she prepared for a trip home to Paris on her first transatlantic flight.

HER WORK DONE — Sculptor Marguerite Taylor, a transplant from Paris to Winnipeg, is philosophical about the arthritis that has crippled her hands. "My work is done," says Mrs. Taylor whose works include statues at the Prince Albert, Sask., law courts and a war memorial in Winnipeg. (CP Photo)

Japanese Girls Rediscover Attractiveness of Kimono

TOKYO (Reuters) — Modern Japanese girls, who in past years have considered the kimono outdated, are rediscovering its beauty.

While foreign travellers may still not see many women wearing the kimono on the streets of Tokyo, this picturesque dress attire prevails today on festive occasions such as New Year's.

The "come-back" of the kimono is believed to be the main cause of a 50-per-cent rise in raw silk prices here during the last year. Experts of raw silk also increased substantially, but shippers say that the record soaring prices of Japanese raw silk are scaring overseas importers away.

In the years immediately following the Second World War, the gaily colored kimono was chiefly worn by geishas but now women students, office girls and young wives are returning to it.

Tokyo department stores devoted half of their floor space to kimonos and courses are held on how to wear and care for it.

One leading department store reports kimono sales increased by 30 per cent in volume and 50 per cent in value in the last few months.

Plans are even being made to create an international kimono society and the slogan "let's meet 1964 Olympics with kimono." The society will urge Japanese women to wear the kimono when they meet foreigners or travel overseas.

Wool is also becoming an important material for the production of kimonos for everyday wear.

The Experts Say

Old Houses Are Coming Into Style Every Day

By PATRICIA BUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—The newest fashion fad in homes is a return to the old.

Ruth Home, past president of the Architectural Conservancy of Ontario, says old houses are coming more into style every day, especially in larger cities.

"People who want an old house usually want the amenities that go with it—the high ceilings, large rooms, lots of rooms, sturdy construction and central location."

Also the cost of an old house can be spread over a longer period than the cost of a new one. "You can move into it and chew at it," says Miss Home who, with her sister, has been re-decorating a three - storey five - bedroom Victorian house they purchased in central Toronto five years ago.

"An older house also allows for greater possibilities with the do-it-yourself programs."

FEW ARE UNCHANGED

The Architectural Conservancy, an organization of public-spirited individuals from all across Canada who wish to preserve old buildings of architectural, social and historical merit, has found that very few old homes today are in their original condition.

"Buildings are like ladies' dresses — people like to do things with them," says Miss Home explaining that such features as shingles, windows, paint and wallpaper usually have been changed. The stable cases are the most frequently changed feature.

But 50 per cent of the original building is there, it is worth preserving in most cases, she said.

In Ontario, there are practically no houses standing which date back to 1793 and many of the houses built between 1800 and 1814 were destroyed during the War of 1812 by fire.

"Any of these old houses are worth preserving not just because they are old but because they are visual examples of the social and economic conditions of their time."

Homes built in quantity in this country around 1940 coincided with the rather ornate "gingerbread age" in Europe.

CHIEF REMINDER

The dominant style which has survived here since the 19th century is that of the Gothic revival (1835-1890) which can be recognized by its arched windows, steep roofs, finials, lace verandahs and 13-paned windows. "As the century progressed its roof lines became flatter."

Rarely seen in Canada is the rectangular Georgian (1783-1870), characterized by a steep roof, tight eaves, bold molds, heavy six-panelled doors and 9-paned windows.

A more refined version of the Georgian modified by the United Empire Loyalists is also rare, and the plain heavy-looking Regency designed in the style of the classical revival with flat pitched roofs, pillars and corniced hall houses is rarely seen in Canada.

Whether built in 1810 or 1880, settlers' cabins were designed in the same simple pattern—one or two rooms with a shallow sleeping loft overhead—throughout the length of the countryside, said Miss Home.

The conservancy's next tour of old houses in Toronto May 15 is based on the "do-it-yourself" theme this year. Most of the half houses to be studied illustrate how much can be done on a small budget.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

When entertaining moves outdoors, good manners, unfortunately, sometimes are left inside. How do yours stand up in full sunlight on the porch or patio? For instance:

1. Are you careful to deposit cigarette ashes and stubs in an ashtray instead of the shrubbery?

2. Do you resist telling the host how to cook his hamburgers and franks?

3. When barbecuing outdoors, are you careful that the smoke doesn't suffocate the next-door neighbors?

4. Are used paper napkins and plates dispatched neatly in containers so they don't fly all over the neighborhood?

5. Do you keep refuse containers tightly lidded, so they won't attract cats and bees to the area?

6. Do you resist trying out your host's new — and costly— mowing and gardening equipment?

7. Can you refrain from picking flowers and vegetables your host would prefer to have remain on the vine to mature?

8. At night, whether your host or guest, do you try to use soft-pedal the merriment so others won't be disturbed?

9. Do you treat outdoor furniture with the same respect as the parlor variety?

10. Are you helpful about policing the outdoor living area so the host doesn't have to rake food scraps and cigarettes out of the grass and gravel?

ANSWERS:

All Yes! — Outdoor living hasn't made you or your manners rusticate a bit.

All No! — Manners are wilted, and they probably weren't more upstanding indoors, either.

Half and Half?—Better come in out of the sun before all remnants of courtesy are bleached out.

Dorcas Assoc. Views Scenes Of Europe

The Dorcas Association of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, held an open meeting in the Memorial Church auditorium Tuesday evening.

President, Mrs. C. Campbell, called the meeting to order and extended a cordial welcome to all present.

Mrs. A. Wells had charge of the Scripture reading and gave a Meditation called, "Time", concerning Spiritual Time.

There was a short program. Master Willie Hales gave several selections on his accordion and Miss E. Woodcock sang a lovely solo, with Mrs. Dorothy Reilly at the piano, which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Clarence Hay introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. V. Weir, who had been invited to show pictures of her recent trip to Europe.

Many beautiful pictures were shown of Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy and France. The coloring of these was most pleasing as well as educational in content. There were lovely blue lakes and some delightful mountain scenery of the Alps. Also shown were some of Holland's noted tulip growing areas. Some of the fields were ablaze in solid color of red, a most impressive sight.

The audience travelled through Venice with its quaint canal system. Then on to ruins of old historic buildings that once had been blessed with beautiful architecture and fine carvings.

Many views of Rome, the Vatican and the National buildings of France were shown, which impressed all.

Mrs. Gordon Woodcock thanked Mrs. Weir for coming and presented her with a gift.

The Rev. Gordon Woodcock closed the meeting with the benediction.

Ministerial Gown Gift of Church Club

CENTENARY — A unique event took place at the regular meeting of the Fellowship Club of Centenary United Church, when they had the privilege of presenting their first president, Fred Edmondson, with his ministerial gown.

Fred is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Edmondson and is married to the former Dorothy Kay, who is a sub-line secretary of the Club and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray. Fred graduated in April and will be ordained in June.

A sing-song, led by Mrs. Percy Sutherland, was followed by a devotional prepared by Mrs. Mae Nobes on "Family Life" with Mrs. Dawson Douglas reading the Scripture. Mrs. Byron Harder and Mrs. Edwin Hart each gave readings on "Friendship" and Miss Eileen Hancock sang "The Evening Prayer".

MINISTERIAL GOWN PRESENTED

The president, Mr. Dawson Douglas, asked Fred and Dorothy to come forward and Dr. Nobes addressed them. To Fred, he spoke of what the gown will mean to him. To Dorothy he spoke of the role of the minister's wife, one of her duties being to look after and preserve this gown.

Mrs. Sutherland read an address on behalf of the Club and Mr. Byron Harder, the past president, made the presentation.

Fred thanked the Club for their gift and their continued interest and prayers. He commented on the real meaning of minister (a servant) and his obligations to be one to be ministers in his or her right. Each office house is the same and it doesn't do it, it might never be done.

A presentation of tabs, black shirt, vestock and collar was made on behalf of the Ray family by Miss Brenda Pearman, a niece.

Mrs. Doug Reid gave a humorous reading entitled — A Minister's Wife."

The latter part of the evening featured a pantomime entitled, "Cakes for the Queen." It was introduced and directed by Mrs. Byron Harder. After several members had scouted Florida, Hollywood and Hollywood during the winter (unsuccessfully), they decided to look around locally and came up with the following cast: head baker — Jean Sills; taster — Mable Hart; mixer — Eileen Nobes; mixer — Alita Sutherland; measurer — Jean Christopher. All are dressed, pretty and vivacious. The Queen's secretary — Doreen Pearson, a winner of many beauty titles, tall and regal — Ruth Johnston, and the Hobnette, charming but an artistic mess — Bernice Ray.

The pantomime took place in the Queen's kitchen and the movements of all players were completely in rhythm to the music played by Mrs. Harold Hancock.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments.

U.C.W. Meeting

WEST HUNTINGDON U.C.W.

WEST HUNTINGDON — A U.C.W. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Howard Cooke last Wednesday evening with ten members and three visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Revoy opened the meeting with a poem and Mrs. John Moorcroft gave a reading entitled "This I Know". Mrs. Russell Stapley of Stirling contributed two vocal solos. Mrs. Bruce Stapley gave an interesting talk on stewardship of time.

At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Successful Living

By DORIS CLARK

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

You're Only Young Once

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My girl is 13 years old. She had a mixed party last week. The kids brought their own records. It started at seven o'clock and went on until eleven, Friday night.

We supplied hot dogs and soft drinks and they had a good time. My wife and myself were there and we had as much fun as the kids.

I say let the kids have fun. You're only young once.—PROUD PAPA.

DEAR PAPA—Bravo! Your girl is off to a flying start, when it comes to learning the happy art of mixing with males. Being in on it yourself, and accepted, is a big part of success.

DEAR DORIS—I am separated from my husband. I haven't tried to get a divorce but am sure I can.

I have gone out with a very nice man a few times and we now feel we might like to get married. There is nothing between us except friendship. We don't want to rush into anything. He would gladly pay for a divorce.

We want to get better acquainted but feel that if we are seen too much together tongues will be wagging (horrid expression).

A friend advised me not to get a divorce unless I want to get married. How am I going to know? One does not bargain for a husband as if he were a peck of potatoes.—ABOVE BOARD.

DEAR ABOVE—You have two problems: Should you divorce? Should you remarry?

I cannot agree with your friend. You need to be free first; then your mind will be clearer to make a decision about your future.

With your background there are ways to earn the money. Once you are truly single again, your friends and others, perhaps—are free to court you. But you could end up loving your single blessedness!

DEAR DORIS—I used to help my children with their homework, but now my oldest says that the way I do it is away out in left field. Can't we help our kids any more?—BEWILDERED FATHER.

• • •

DEAR BEWILDERED—Depends on the subject. Actual content has been changed in some courses; but certain basics remain in reading, spelling, mathematics and science.

Where there are facts to learn, you can help with the drill. The logic of geometry hasn't changed, although it seems differences are now called prepositions.

More important is to show interest in the teacher's ideas; disapproval is only upsetting and makes it harder for the student to learn. Also, home-lessons include good manners, obedience, an inclination to see the other fellow's point of view.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ONE MISTAKE—You compound the felony when you marry a man you don't love and give the baby an unhappy home. There are better ways. I am sending you my leaflet on Unwed Mothers and Their Babies, to help you in thinking this through.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Please come to my rescue . . . I what causes the yolk of an egg to turn black when hard-boiled? 2) Please give me a recipe for a real fluffy never-fail omelette. My last one was a real flop, with a house full of hungry guests. I cooked it in an iron pan, was it wrong? 3) What causes pie crust to shrink when baked as a single crust. By the time it's cooked I have a crust that in the bottom of the pie plate. When I bake a double crust pie there's no problem — Mrs. M. L.

ANSWER:

After eggs are hardcooked in the shell, immediately plunge into cold water to prevent discoloration and to make peeling easy. Slow cooling causes dark-ening on the surface of the hard-cooked yolks.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Glenhyrst Fish Supreme (see Thursday); Tossed Vegetables; Clam Chowder; Brown Rice or Homemade Whole Wheat Bread; Waldorf Salad; Old-Fashioned Custard Pie; Coffee.

FLUFFY NEVER-FAIL OMELETTE (to serve 4):

You must observe all of the instructions. The rule is to allow 1 tbsp. per person. Divide 6 eggs into 2 bowls, putting the yolks in the smaller one. To the yolks add 6 tablespoons warm water and ½ teaspoon salt. With rotary beater beat the whites until stiff. Transfer beater to yolks without washing and beat yolks until thick. Fold the beaten whites into the yolks as lightly as possible. Have heated and ready a large heavy frying pan (iron is fine) with not less than 2 tablespoons butter melted in it. The butter should be melted to a rich gold. Immediately turn omelette, leaving heat on low, and let it set a minute — then reduce heat to very low and cook until bottom is set and golden. Do not stir — just lift it carefully at side to peek to see if bottom is cooked. Transfer to oven of 300 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes to cook centre and dry off top. Crease centre, carefully fold over with spatula and turn out on preheated platter. Serve at once. There are dozens of variations. Here are a few: 1) Herb: Add 1 teaspoon each chopped parsley, chives or onion and Worcestershire sauce and 1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper (ever so popular in Paris and my favorite). 2) Cheese: Grated old Cheddar or Parmesan — ¼ to 1 cup with some of it sprinkled over top. 3) Tomato: Add tomato juice instead of water. 4) Bacon or Ham: Add ¼ cup ground cooked ham or crumbled fried side bacon to pan evenly just before turning in omelette mixture.

Pie crusts shrink when baked because 1) They contain too much water—even as much as enough 450 to 475 deg. Fahr. for 8 minutes. 3) They are not sufficiently shortened — fat is not high enough. Proportions are 1 cup unsifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup shortening, 2 tablespoons ice water.

HONORED AGAIN

HALIFAX (CP) — Rear-Admiral P. D. Budge, former chief of naval personnel, has been awarded the third clasp to his Canadian Forces Decoration; representing 42 years service. Only other navy man to receive the third clasp was Lt.-Cdr. C. H. R. Davis, now retired.

Unemployment Insurance Questions and Answers

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point, do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.

Q. If an employee has temporarily left his home and wife to take employment in another city, and subsequently finds that he is unable financially to keep up with living expenses at both epds, is he entitled to unemployment insurance benefit if he leaves his employment and returns home?

A. A person who voluntarily leaves his employment is subject to disqualification for a period up to six weeks unless he proves that he had just cause for leaving. Insufficient information is provided to judge whether the employee would be entitled to benefit. Each case is decided on the merits and full details should be provided to the Commission's local office at the time he files his claim for benefit as all the circumstances must be taken into consideration in making a decision.

Q. Is it possible for someone who has been steadily employed for 11 years, and has paid into the unemployment insurance fund all that time, to collect it when he goes into business for himself and is no longer drawing wages?

A. No. When a person enters into business on his own account on a full-time basis, he is neither unemployed nor available for work - two basic requirements for eligibility for benefit. The fact that his business may not be showing a profit has no bearing.

Q. My claim for unemployment insurance benefit was disqualified recently, and I have been told I can appeal to a board of referees. Who is responsible for selecting the people who get appointed to these boards?

A. Insured persons' representatives on the boards of referees are appointed by the Commission after consultation with workers' organizations and employers' representatives after consultation with employers' organizations. Chairmen of boards of referees are appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

Q. I started to pay unemployment insurance contributions ten weeks ago, but I actually have 20 stamps. I worked for a construction company during the day, and drove a taxi a few evenings every week, so I got two stamps each week. The construction job is over, and I am being laid off. I should like to know if I have enough stamps to qualify for benefit.

A. No. Contributions have been made only in respect of ten weeks and this number is insufficient to enable you to qualify for benefit.

Q. A short time ago, while drawing unemployment insurance benefit, I worked for a week building stockroom shelves for a storekeeper. I owed him a $45. bill, and he agreed to mark this paid in return for my work. I did not report this to the local office as a friend told me the work did not count as I had not actually received any money. I have been told by the local office that I should not have received benefit for that week, and now I have to pay back the $36. I do not think this is fair as I did not realize that I had to report work which I received no cash.

A. If you worked the full working week while paying off your debt you would not be considered as unemployed. If you did not work the full working week, then the amount that was applied against your debt in respect of the days you worked would be considered as earings. You must always report all work that you do each week while on claim and the value of your earnings from that work, regardless of whether you receive any payment for your services.

Q. Why is it that a claimant who finished a benefit period with some entitlement still remaining may find himself in a position where he cannot collect the balance of his entitlement?

A. A benefit period runs for 52 weeks from the date of its commencement unless the benefit rights with respect thereto are exhausted at an earlier date. No benefit can be paid under that claim for any week subsequent to the 52nd week, and to be elegible for further benefit a claimant must again qualify on the prevailing conditions for establishing a new benefit period.

Q. My weekly earnings from part-time work are less than the allowable for my claim. Must I declare these earnings even though my benefits will not be affected?

A. Yes. By failing to declare your earnings you make a false statement on your weekly report. This means that you are guilty of an offence and may be liable to penalties under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Q. While on claim I worked several days for an employer who did not put a stamp in my insurance book. He explained that the work was not insurable. A friend told me that I should always accept no pay when I do not get a stamp. Is my friend correct?

A. Your friend has given you incorrect information. All your earnings must be declared on your weekly report, otherwise you have made a false or misleading statement and are liable to penalties under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The official said King Hussein appears to have the situation well under control and disturbances and riots in favor of Jordan the United Arab Republic have virtually disappeared.

Special Tax Report Said Kept Secret

By STEWART MacLEOD

TORONTO (CP)—A special tax report on corporation profits, which Finance Minister Walter Gordon says was kept secret by the Diefenbaker government, was made public Wednesday by the royal commission in taxation.

The report, prepared by four tax experts in March, 1961, was sent to the commission by Mr. Gordon after the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants had written to the finance minister seeking access to the study.

In his reply to institute President J. W. Abbott of Toronto, Mr. Gordon said the "report was kept secret and apparently nothing was done about the problems." He decided to submit it to the taxation commission "so that it can be obtained by anyone who is interested."

The report produced a series of recommendations concerning the undistributed profits of corporations—a problem that ranks high in the current investigation. Members of the four-man committee who, Mr. Gordon said in his letter, were appointed by the government, included A. Emile Beauvais, a Quebec City chartered accountant who is a former of the six - member royal commission. He is past president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

LISTS OTHERS

Other members were R. Bredin Stapells, a Toronto tax lawyer, George T. Tamaki, a Montreal tax lawyer, and Harold P. Herrington, a Toronto chartered accountant.

The basic recommendation in the report was to impose a "shareholders tax" of a flat 15 per cent on the dividends paid to shareholders from the accumulated earnings of corporations.

Under existing laws, dividends paid to shareholders are taxed under the graduated personal income rates, but there are several legal loopholes through which dividends can be taken from the corporate surplus without tax-paying. This is known as "dividend stripping."

Ann Landers

Blow for Blow Only Cure For Punchy Co-Worker

DEAR ANN LANDERS—If you can help with this one the entire office force will be eternally grateful. A certain woman who works with us has a habit of emphasizing her remarks by hitting people in the arm, punching them in the ribs or landing her fist on a shoulder or a back.

These are not love-taps, Ann. They are enough to knock a person off balance. Nobody will go to a movie or a play with her any more because her blows have actually caused black and blue marks.

We have tried to break her of the habit by making a joke of it, but she just doesn't realize that we are kidding on the square. She goes along her merry way, punching, hitting, shoving and knocking people around.

Please publish this letter. She may see herself and cut it out. Thanks in advance.—BATTERED AND BRUISED.

DEAR B. AND B.—Here's the letter but don't count on her "seeing herself." The habit is an unconscious one.

The only way to cure her is to stop hitting and tell her what she is doing. When she lands a blow, belt her right back and say, "Now this is what I mean." After a while she'll keep her hands to herself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—You've always taken the position that the sitter should not be permitted to have visitors while on the job. My sitter refused to sit unless she could have this privilege—so I agreed. Now I see how right you are.

Last Friday I engaged the girl from 7.30 p.m. until midnight. My husband and I arrived home at 11.30. She and her boy friend were in the den and the hi-fi was going full blast. They were dancing.

Our living-room had gotten out of bed, pulled up a chair to the bathroom medicine cabinet and taken down several bottles of pills. We could not learn whether he had swallowed any pills, so we rushed him to the hospital and had his stomach pumped out.

Fortunately, the child is all right. But had the girl not had a visitor she might have heard the boy moving about upstairs, or checked him periodically to see if he was in bed where he belonged.—NO MORE SITTERS WHO NEED SITTERS TO SIT WITH THEM.

DEAR NO MORE—Your experience pointed up another good reason to prohibit guests for sitters.

My central objection is the cop-out way which the sitting job provides. The girl who refuses to sit unless she can entertain her boy friend may well be using the job to do things she can't do in her own home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I've always been considered a steady person with common sense—not the type you'd think would end up writing to Ann Landers. But here I am.

I'm a teacher with a good position in Northern Ontario. My fiancee is teaching in Niagara Falls. Betty and I exchange letters several times a week but see each other only during long holidays.

In spite of my efforts to keep busy I've become strongly attracted to another young woman. I feel like a rat because I've kept Betty waiting for three years. I'm sure she has been true to me and has passed up other opportunities to date. Betty is a fine girl and I'd rather die than hurt her.

Shall I marry her this summer as planned? I want to do the honorable thing but I'm afraid I'm in love with the girl here.—DUNCE CAP.

DEAR CAP—Do nothing until you see Betty. After renewing the relationship in person, if you still feel the other girl is the one for you by all means level with your fiancee. There's nothing "honorable" about marrying a girl you don't love.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

Chief Justice Will Preside At Opening

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Robert Taschereau will become Administrator of the government of Canada for six hours May 16 to preside at the opening of the new Parliament, it was announced Wednesday.

This will give the chief justice, acting in the place of Governor - General Vanier, all the special honors normally accorded the Queen's representative, including two 21-gun salutes on arrival at and departure from Parliament Hill.

Government House said Gen. Vanier is making good progress in his recovery from his mild heart attack of April 8 but that his doctors have advised him not to undergo the strain of the ceremonial opening of Parliament.

Therefore, it was announced, the Governor-General had asked Chief Justice Taschereau to open Parliament as Administrator from noon to 6 p.m. on May 16. The ceremony starts around 3 p.m. EDT.

The Chief Justice, or a Supreme Court justice, acts as a deputy for the Governor-General several times a year and is given a number of courtesies —such as being called "the honorable deputy to his excellency," and riding in a Government House limousine.

But by going one step farther and making Chief Justice Taschereau Administrator for the occasion, he will be entitled to the full honors paid the Queen's representative.

U.S. State Department Says It Is Not Aware of Any Violence on Great Lakes

WASHINGTON (CP)—A state department spokesman said Thursday the department is not aware that any new acts of violence have taken place in connection with the Great Lakes shipping dispute but it would be concerned and would deplore such acts if they affect Canada-U.S. relations.

The official was commenting on an Ottawa report quoting Prime Minister Pearson as saying he intends to take up the problem of violence with President Kennedy at Hyannis Port, Mass., today and Saturday.

A sniper armed with a high-powered rifle fired shots against the sides of a Canadian ship, the James J. Norris, as it was being picketed by two members of the Seafarers International Union at Cleveland, Ohio, early Thursday. No one was hurt.

A spokesman for the Seafarers International Union of North America, meeting in convention here, said this report also took the SIU by surprise. It also had received no word of violence.

Officials of the SIU in Cleveland said they had no comment to make on the shooting nor on the labor trouble.

The dispute involves the SIU of Canada, which represented Upper Lakes Shipping. Limited crews until two years ago when it was replaced by the Canadian Maritime Union with the approval of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The Canadian SIU has attempted to regain its lost ground and has brought the dispute into the U.S. ranks.

John Leitch, president of Upper Lakes Shipping of Toronto, dispatched a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson calling attention to the firing on the Norris, an ore vessel.

"It is clear that the Seafarers' International Union is resuming its campaign of violence against Upper Lakes Shipping Limited ships and personnel," Leitch claimed.

Vessels of the Canadian company were fired upon twice last year in Toledo. This year other Upper Lakes ships have been picketed in Toledo, Ashtabula, Ohio, Milwaukee and Chicago in a jurisdictional dispute.

The Norris was unloading iron ore from Sept-Iles, Que., when the shots were fired from a pier jutting out from the westerly sewage plant. The vessel sailed 3½ hours after the shooting.

Edward Neuman, attendant at the plant, said he heard the shots and turned a flashlight on the sniper, who fled the pier and covered the rifle with a topcoat.

"He was thin and tall and young by the way he ran," Neuman said. "He ran over to the boathouse and jumped into a car. Another man was driving. They drove off in a hurry without turning on their lights."

Police said they found seven empty cartridges on the pier. Investigators said the shells were for surplus .303 calibre British Army rifles, some of which are sold in Cleveland stores.

BIGGEST CHALLENGE TO DATE IN OBESITY PROGRAM — Dr. Ernst J. Drenick, right, who was over 300 pounds when he started on a obesity research program at Wadsworth Veterans' Hospital in Los Angeles. He's Leland Poe, 38, who packed 500 pounds on his 6-7 frame (months) when they carried him into the hospital, about two weeks ago. Wednesday as he was being weighed on the scales. Poe weighed 444 pounds and has lost 10 pounds in the past two days. His goal now is to get down to 230 pounds within the next six months. (AP Wirephoto)

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — Opinion is divided among parliamentary reporters on Prime Minister Pearson's capacities either to remake their work more orderly. But they are generally agreed he wins high marks for his performance at press briefings.

Mr. Pearson told them this week he hopes to solve their perennial problems of trying to cover East Block affairs properly, and meanwhile is conducting the practice which has grown up over the years since the late Mackenzie King's era as prime minister.

When Louis St. Laurent became prime minister years ago the membership of the parliamentary press gallery was about 60, and there were few representatives of radio or television. Until then, Mr. King had never answered any reporters' questions after cabinet meetings, and few press conferences were ever, called in the prime minister's office.

BRIEFED BY REPORTERS

At that time, however, Mr. Pearson was undersecretary of state for external affairs, and gave weekly background briefings to reporters. Rarely did he speak for quotation, but the information he was able to give reporters as "an informed source" was invaluable in keeping up with tangled post-war international developments affecting Canada directly.

When Mr. Pearson became external affairs minister under Mr. St. Laurent, the weekly briefings were stopped because it was difficult for him then, as a cabinet minister, to pose only as an informed source.

Mr. St. Laurent, reporters soon found, was not unwilling to answer questions of fact, though he bristled frequently when asked what he was thinking about any given subject. What he thought didn't matter; what the cabinet decided did.

With the development of radio and television forms of journalism, the press gallery contingent grew rapidly. It now numbers well over 200, and new cabinet press briefings are frequently attended by photographers who are not members of the gallery.

WAS FREE, EASY

Former prime minister Diefenbaker had a free and easy way with reporters and rarely showed annoyance at having their presence in corridors before or after every cabinet meeting or other activity centred in the East Block.

But many reporters found he was a difficult man to report, dating back to his earlier days as an opposition MP. He spoke more in phrases than in sentences, leaving an impression or telling a story off the record to illustrate a thought, rather than giving reporters only hard facts. He often seemed surprised that the reporters were there, and started his brief meetings with them by asking questions himself.

Mr. Pearson has made no move to change the style of meetings with reporters, but has said he hopes to work out some arrangement in which they can wait for the breakup of cabinet meetings in more comfort than the present dark, narrow East Block corridor outside the cabinet room. He has also suggested means of providing a public address system—so that all can hear him easily, and record what he has to say.

PREPARES THOUGHTS

So far, many reporters have found Mr. Pearson's briefings set briefings fuller than those of his predecessors. He usually has thought through and prepared even if it is merely a listing of the subjects dealt with by cabinet.

He has put nothing off the record, and has given radio and television reporters permission to tape-record his remarks. His press briefings, like most reporters have found, are neither set and well backgrounded with information from the files and general melee of catch-as-catch-can press conferences.

Some reporters, however, have reservations about his desire to move the press briefings to an East Block committee room, away from the cabinet room gallery. They are afraid the press briefings may become infrequent and they will have less opportunity to ask questions prompted by their journalist inquisitiveness or their editors.

One of Mr. Pearson's aides, however, said these fears were groundless. A state of emergency for the strike-bound Canadian Labor Congress.

Also standing by as submariners to help keep essential services going should the three-week-long general strike result in serious breakdowns.

Tribune Says Talks Will Be Fruitful

NE WYORK (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune says the most urgent task facing Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy at their meetings this weekend will be getting relations between Ottawa and Washington back to a basis of mutual trust and respect.

In an editorial, the newspaper says the plane carrying Pearson to the meeting at Hyannis Port, Mass., today "will not be borne on the same cold wind that recently chilled the U.S.-Canadian diplomatic border."

"In the period before the Canadian election, U.S. bumbling was matched by Canadian pettiness. Both nations had reason to be ashamed of relations between the two.

"But the new Canadian prime minister is a man, of forthrightness and finesse, a skilled diplomat who, in his first days in office, has also shown himself a calm and decisive national leader. He and the president have an opportunity to place the dialogue between Washington and Ottawa once more on a basis of easy mutual trust, of respect without recrimination."

Vice-President Of Telegram Fined $350

TORONTO (CP) — J. D. MacFarlane, vice-president and editor-in-chief of the Toronto Telegram, was fined $350 Thursday for publishing the results of an advance poll before voting officially ended in the April 8 federal election.

Defence counsel Charles Dubin had entered a plea of not guilty on behalf of Mr. MacFarlane on the charge, under the Canada Elections Act.

Earlier in the trial, Mr. Dubin said that, while premature publication of an advance poll was illegal under the Elections Act, it was not stipulated what penalty could be assessed nor whether trial should be by summary conviction in a magistrate's court or indictment in a higher court.

Magistrate T. S. Elmore ruled the charge against Mr. MacFarlane to be a summary conviction case — and therefore within a magistrate's jurisdiction.

The charge was laid for publication during the week prior to April 8 of an advance poll in the Quebec constituency of Terrebonne. The Election Act specifies that ballots cast in an advance poll shall not be counted until two hours after polls close the day of regular voting.

Election officials who made the count of advance ballots in Terrebonne riding were subsequently disciplined.

Two Voting Records Set In Recent Federal Election, More Voters and More Voted

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two voting records were set in the April 8 federal election — more Canadians than ever before went to the polls and by doing so set a mark for the percentage of eligible voters who cast ballots.

Unofficial returns from 50,008 of 50,010 polls showed a vote total of 7,900,838, about 200,000 above the previous record of 7,690,124 in June, 1962. The two unreported polls, in remote areas of Kenora-Rainy River that counted votes until the spring ice break-up, have fewer than 200 votes between them.

The total vote included 96,356 ballots cast by servicemen and their families and represented 80 per cent of 9,975,473 eligible voters. The best previous percentage was 79.8, set in 1958. Last year 79.3 per cent of the electorate voted.

Figures of votes cast and of eligible voters are unofficial. The official figures likely will not be available until late next summer or early fall when Nelson Castonguay, Chief Electoral Officer, completes his detailed poll-by-poll report for Parliament.

The Liberal party, winning 129 of 265 seats, received 2,284,- 825 votes, or 41.7 per cent of the total. Progressive Conservatives received 2,590,654 votes, or 47.3 per cent, for winning 95 seats.

Social Credit won 24 seats to 30 for the New Democratic Party, but NDP supporters outvoted Social Credit by 1,020,170 to 942,321. A total of 28,858 votes were cast for independent and Communist candidates.

In the 1962 election when the PCs won 116 seats and the Liberals 100, the Conservatives received 37.3 per cent of the vote to 37.2 for the Liberals. NDP received 13.3 per cent of the 1962 votes in winning 19 seats and Social Credit 11.6 in winning 30. Independents received less than one per cent of the vote both years.

Now Showing No Signs of Mental Illness

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (CP) — Melville Wilkie, who killed his wife and six-month-old baby in Owen Sound 30 years ago to collect an insurance policy, is said to be released from the Ontario Hospital here in a few days, Superintendent Dr. R. S. Hart said Thursday.

He said Wilkie, who has escaped from the hospital five times, "has shown no signs of mental illness for at least 25 years."

Wilkie was found not guilty by reason of insanity after he admitted in court to pouring gasoline around his sleeping wife and child in December, 1932, lighting it and running from the house.

Wilkie, 23 at the time, said he did it to collect her life insurance of $1,000 to save his foundering trucking business.

Dr. Boyd said Wilkie will be set free when accommodation and a job have been found for him. Wilkie has been released for several months on two previous occasions, finding a job and maintaining himself both times.

The last time he escaped from the hospital, in 1950, he remained free for two years, running a garage in Vancouver.

Three Student Witches Draw Death Sentences

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters) — Three Tanganyikan "student witches" were sentenced to death in high court Thursday on charges arising from the 1961 murder of a middle-aged woman in a secret midnight jungle ritual.

The dead woman, Fatima Nyangumbe, was drugged and then held down while her head was cut off, the court was told. Her body was then cut up for drying, before being turned into powdered "medicines."

Pope Accepts Peace Prize, Renews Plea

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John today received the Balzan Peace Prize with a renewed appeal for world harmony.

"Peace is a house," the Pope said, "a house for all."

He noted that it was the first time in history a Pope had been awarded a peace prize.

"The Pope also is speaking to you intends to persevere humbly in his action at the service of men and the peace of the world," he said.

"He would not depart from the teachings of the Gospel, which is equally removed from both harshness and indulgent weakness, which each harm souls."

He said it was the hour for mercy for all.

"No more the hour of vengeance, no more the hour of a new recourse to arms, which humanity refuses, which the Christian conscience rejects and condemns."

The Roman Catholic leader received the prize in the throne room of the Vatican from Italian President Antonio Segni.

German scientist Wernher Paul Gerin-Lajoie said in the legislature Wednesday that bilingualism and biculturalism must be examined "to its full extent and in all its aspects."

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie listed as further conditions respect of provincial autonomy in the scope of the inquiry and in its recommendations and equal French and English representation on the commission, including co-chairmen.

Mr. Pearson was asked whether the conditions could be met just before the cabinet started work on the terms of reference.

"On a royal commission on biculturalism, dealing with bilingualism, any member of that commission would naturally be familiar with both languages," he replied. "I think you can take that for granted."

Prime Minister President Maurice Lamontagne, the federal minister responsible for setting up the commission, indicated that the Quebec conditions won't affect current plans for it.

The commission was an election campaign promise of the Liberals and the government is hoping for full co-operation of the provinces in the study.

However, Mr. Lamontagne said that if all will not agree to participate the federal government is prepared to go ahead with only Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Manitoba participating.

Royal Commission Study Of Biculturalism Ready for Submission to Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has worked out its proposal to the provinces for a royal commission study of biculturalism but it may be a week or 10 days before they are made public.

Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday the commission's terms of reference and a letter to the provinces asking co-operation in the study were discussed by the federal cabinet at two sessions during the day.

However, before they are made public, "we'd want the premiers to see the letter first, so I will have nothing to say about it for a few days," Mr. Pearson said.

Since Premier League of Quebec will not return from a European trip until May 15, it was unlikely that the government's plans for the commission would be made public before then.

Thursday's cabinet study came on the heels of an announcement from Quebec that the Quebec government has four "fundamental demands" as a basis for its co-operation.

British Conservatives Plan New Way to Win Votes

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the whiff of electoral battle beginning in the air, Britain's Conservative party is busily engaged on a series of efforts to win back votes.

One proposal now receiving consideration at the highest level is that Prime Minister Macmillan should break with precedent and hold a press conference in the United States style.

Nothing tremendously revolutionary about that. The Canadian and American observer would say. In fact, it would be a novelty in Britain.

Under an old parliamentary convention, it isn't "the thing" for British prime ministers to submit themselves to the hazards of such forum.

SAVED FOR HOUSE

Sir Winston Churchill, Sir Anthony Eden and Harold Macmillan have, of course, all given press conferences abroad, but it is generally taken that policy statements by PMs should be reserved for the House of Commons.

Years ago, returning from a visit to President Truman, Churchill was reported to have told the liner Queen Mary but he put the skids under the occasion by giving a press party aboard. Of course, gentlemen, I will answer your policy questions. I must leave that for the House."

Now, however, there is a new bonus at the Conservative central office. Oliver Poole, Tory Baron of Aldgate and a man who knows his way around London's financial district, has been called to party headquarters to help up a few new ideas. The prime ministerial press conference is his first brainstorm.

The idea would be for Macmillan to use the meeting with the press as a device for publicizing the Conservative party in a time when opinion polls indicate the government is slowly winning back some of the popularity it lost during a catastrophic winter.

WILL CHECK ANGLES

But Macmillan is a parliamentarian to the core. He likes it and it is fairly certain he will not bypass Poole's proposal from all angles before calling in the reporters.

The opposition Labor party professes amusement, saying it seems odd that the Tories should need an "Americanize" Parliament at a time when all the talk is of ways to restore British prestige.

Nevertheless the plan is said to be receiving serious consideration from Macmillan's advisers.

If it comes to fruition, expect a stormy reaction from Parliament, which cherishes its privileges.

CALL OFF STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters) — London railway workers approved today by a majority of 2 to 1 a proposed nation-wide rail strike originally scheduled for next week.

Writer Barred From Meetings Of Commission

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Harry McNeil, correspondent for the Toronto Globe and Mail and author of radio radio station WINDSOR and editor of The Guardian, publication of Local 195 of the United Auto Workers (CLC), was barred from Ontario Public Utilities Commission meeting after commissioners decided he had reported past proceedings unfairly.

PUC Chairman Malcolm Brian moved that the commission "exclude the present person who presumably represents CBC, The Guardian and, I think, The Globe and Mail from our meetings."

He also moved "that we also exclude the editor of the society that this exclusion is for the individual only and not for their publication."

Windsor Mayor Michael Patrick said statements written by Mr. McNeil that appeared in The Globe and Mail were "half truths."

Referring to an article in The Globe and Mail of April 26, in which Mr. MacMillan and Fred Burr referred to Mr. Patrick's attendance at a convention in Quebec City, Mr. Patrick said:

I WAS HERE

"I was here at that meeting and . . . no reference was made to me while I was here.

The reporter distorted the situation for his own purposes."

The motion was passed by a vote of 4 to 1. Mr. Burr voted against it.

When the motion was passed, Larry McNeil's lawyer his brother lawyer Angus MacMillan, chairman of the Windsor Ratepayers Association, referred to statement him and advised him not to leave the room.

Mr. Brian adjourned the meeting and the commissioners started to retire to an inner office. MacMillan followed them to his way into the second room and a shoving match between he and Mr. Brian ensued.

Finally, the commission adjourned to a shoving match between he and Mr. Brian ensued.

Finally, the commission adjourned to a shoving match between he and Mr. Brian ensued. were admitted, Mr. MacMillan refused to give any information on expense money allegedly used by commissioners.

The commission repeated its former stand of not providing the information and the group headed by Mr. MacMillan pays $302 in expenses accrued in a proceeding it investigated and makes a deposit of $300 toward expenses of any future investigation.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

It seems like an odd name for a horse and an owner-dropper could be excused if he thought you were talking about the top man in the White House.

It is 'I. M. S.', a fleet-footed, seven-year-old bay gelding named after his breeder and owner, Mr. James M. Jeffrey of Hastings Drive.

The big bay pacer who tosses a disdainful nuzzle at the accident jinx is coming into his own this year after a season or two of setbacks that would have daunted any other horse and owner.

Up around Greenwood (the old Woodbine) they're still talking about the rangy horse from Belleville who showed clean pacing heels-to the best of his class before the pack moved on to the Mohawk track at Campbellville.

Under the expert guidance of Ken Galbraith, one of the province's better drivers, "I.M.I." finished under the wire a winner in six out of seven starts. And they had to bring out the cameras in the seventh race to prove he was beaten by a whisker.

At the moment the big bay has brought home $4,975 to the Jeffrey coffers in purses. "This money," says the proud owner, "will be invested in another horse."

The railbirds at Greenwood weren't too much impressed with "I.M.I." when he won his first race in 2.15... They blinked a little after his second and third straight wins and had their eyes wide open after the seventh race in which he set his own record of 2.09.

His 1962 record was not too impressive. At Montreal he won once out of five starts and at Ottawa he finished first three times in 21 starts, but raced in the money 18 times.

If you notice "I.M.I." runs a bit behind the starting gate at a race don't be surprised. He has a good reason. The fact is, he is a trifle "near shy." That automobile heeling the "gate" brings back memories.

It happened at Connaught, Ottawa, last year. They were bringing "I.M.I." from his stable to the track when a car driven by a teenager suddenly roared around a turn and crashed sideways into the horse.

"The impact opened a nasty gash in his left shoulder," Mr. Jeffrey said. "It was four inches deep and the bone was bared."

On another occasion I.M.I.'s harness broke, causing the horse to trip and turn a complete somersault opening a bad cut on the knee which laid him up for a long time.

Both times it was thought the horse's racing days were over, but they didn't reckon with his remarkable recuperative powers. Careful handling and training not only restored him physically but brought him to the peak of his racing career.

At the moment "I.M.I." is at Mohawk enjoying a well-deserved two-weeks' rest. He will start in his class in the near future, Mr. Jeffrey said.

It is hoped the horse will be seen on a Belleville track this summer. Plans call for him to race on the Ontario circuit. He will go from Mohawk to London, then back to Greenwood. After another meet at Mohawk he will finish the season at the Blue Bonnets track in Montreal.

One of his best "rooters" this season has been a full sister "Betty Abigail." Both are the get of Mac Abigail and Betty Mac. "Mister" has been racing at Greenwood and made a highly creditable showing. She, too, is at Mohawk.

The third member of the Jeffery harness stable is a brood mare, "Janice J." named after the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey.

The mare was bred to "Philly Frost," a trotting stallion who in his last five years of racing has yet to being home an annual purse under $16,000. She is a half-sister to "I.M.I." and has trotting blood in her veins.

"I would like to have a good trotter," Mr. Jeffrey said, "and I think with the breeding involved I might come up with a good colt."

Meanwhile keep your eye on "I.M.I." After his sensational start this year he could wind up the talk of his class on the Ontario circuit.

And I'm not going to bet him. Far be it from me to put the curse of the Carvers on a good horse.

Lose Second Player With Broken Leg ★★★★★

Flyers Plug Oil Flow With 5-2 Win

By BOB TIDBERT

EDMONTON (CP)—A threat to withdraw his club from the Memorial Cup junior hockey championship vanished today as coach Hap Emms of Niagara Falls Flyers said his club would be ready for the sixth game fac-ceday against Edmonton Oil Kings.

Flyers turned back Edmonton Oil Kings 5-2 in a stirring display, to cut Oil Kings' margin to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. It was by far the best game of the series and it finished on a wild, bitter note both on and off the ice.

If a seventh game is needed it will be played Monday.

A sellout crowd of 6,746 fans until the final gingue when the game was solidly in Flyers' pocket, saw a fast-paced contest sparcked by brilliant individual efforts and end - to - end dashes.

Terry Crisp was the offensive standout for Flyers with two goals, fed the eventual winner. Gary Harmer, who suffered a broken leg in the middle period, Bill Gilmour and defenseman Don Awrey added singles. Defencemen Jim Eagle and little Doug Fox tallied for Oil Kings, who never overcame a two-goal deficit built by Flyers in the opening period.

They trailed 3-1 after two periods.

TWO BREAK LEGS

Harmer was the second Flyer to suffer a broken leg in the series. In the third game Monday night Gary Dornhoefer broke a leg.

Emms said Harmer broke his left leg midway between the knee and ankle.

The stretcher on the ice started with less than two minutes of play when Greg Pilling of Edmonton and Rick Morin of Niagara Falls crashed against the boards in the Niagara Falls end as the play moved toward Oil Kings' zone.

After the collision Pilling's stick struck Morin on the head while Morin lay on the ice. The American-born defenseman was taken to the dressing room on a stretcher and 12 stitches were required to close the cut.

Emms and his assistant Bill Lon left the box to help Morin. Meanwhile, Flyer and Oil King players pushed and shoved in front of the Edmonton bench. Sticks were waved and gestures made.

Emms almost got into the act on the way back to the box and exchanged verbal taunts with Buster Brayahaw, Oil Kings' coach.

Brayahaw hipself was irate and shook his fist at a press box occupied by eastern sportswriters and sportscasters. Moments before a box of sugar cubes and plastic aprons was hurled into the Edmonton bench and fans shouted to Brayahaw it had come from the press box.

MAY BAN PRESS

Police investigated but could not determine whether the debris had been thrown from the box, but Art Potter of Edmonton, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president, said later all radio and newspaper personnel in the box faced expulsion from the facilities.

He said he received a report from the arena management and added the guilty party was ordered to appear at the exhibition association offices today or the entire group would be banned from the box.

Emms had harsh words for Potter, too.

He said the CAHA official was "strictly a homer" and his actions were dictatorial. "I don't care if they suspended me, but that's what I think."

The eastern coach said Potter failed to follow the rules in the CAHA manual on three occasions he had raised. On one, whether the goal lines should be 10 feet from the end boards instead of 13 as at Edmonton Gardens, Emms has protested the entire series.

Potter said any criticism of his actions would be taken before the semi-annual meeting of the CAHA. "I won't rule on them myself."

Potter said he thought the series so far had been cleanly played and had no thought about warning either coach.

WOULD BE SUSPENDED

He added if Flyers had carried out a threat to default the series to Oil Kings the club would have faced a lengthy suspension.

Emms said after the game his players would decide whether they wanted to continue the series or leave for home. "The players can't go on the way things are going now and risk the chance of being crippled for life."

The meeting later was cancelled.

Emms' son Paul became embroiled in a fracas with other fans after remarks made to his wife. He was handcuffed by three policemen and carried to the sanctuary of a dressing room corridor.

On the ice Awrey, rated by Lynn Patrick, Boston Bruins' general manager as good National League material, was a standout with his fine positional play, rushes and defensive work. George Gardner, who made 23 saves in the game, was spectacular in the opening session when he turned aside 15, including five point - blank drives.

Fox, Pilling with his booming drives, and Bourbonnais showed well for Oil Kings, who had a convincing territorial advantage, despite the shots on goal record in the last half.

Windsor, Too, May Quit OHA

Away They Go-Chatham Out?

GUELPH (CP)—Pat Patterson, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, confirmed Thursday night that Chatham Maroons may withdraw from the OHA senior A circuit to join a new section of the International Hockey League next season.

He said Windsor Bulldogs, Alan Cup champions, are also thinking of following Chatham if it pulls out of the OHA.

"Windsor hasn't definitely committed themselves, but it said it would be financially beneficial for it to be in the same league as Chatham," he said.

"However, all things being equal, they'd just as soon stay with the OHA."

Mr. Patterson said Maroons officials told a meeting of the OHA in London Tuesday they would make an official application to withdraw. He did not know whether the application has been received.

"The team has had financial problems for the last two years and feel they can draw bigger gates in the IHL," he said.

Mr. Patterson said that if Chatham enters its application by today it will probably be considered at an OHA meeting tonight.

The application would then have to be approved by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which meets in Brandon, Man., May 19-23, he said.

A tip to golfing "fathers". Don't look now but in case you haven't read the papers lately Sunday is Mother's Day".

In your particular case it includes "Golfing Mothers".

And don't think that breakfast in bed, washing the dishes, doing the housework and presenting her with the usual gift includes all your duties of appreciation.

Oh, you'll probably take her golfing — but you would do that anyway.

How about topping off that eighteen holes with a delectable post-game dinner in the club house? (Father's Day is coming up).

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hembrey, the new chefs d'cuisine at the club, are masters of the culinary art. They are ready to serve you a dinner that is banquet-like in presentation and variety.

They have a reputation that is second-to-none. Try them. You won't be disappointed.

And don't say you weren't told about it.

A tip is galling "mothers".

First, make sure "dad" reads the first half of this column. If he asks you if you have read it — play it safely.

Then go out on the links and let him beat you. Pat him on the back and tell him what a great golfer he is.

If he suggests a dinner after that eighteen holes be your own sweet feminine selves. Put on your best "demure" act, kiss him on the cheek and murmur, "it would be lovely".

If you're holding any weekend "complaints" keep them until after the dinner.

A final tip. Be sure this page of the newspaper is brought to his attention — you know how before Sunday morning.

And don't say YOU weren't told.

Will Visit Birmingham

Fight Definitely On-Floyd?

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson insisted Thursday that neither his injured finger nor his planned trip to stiffen Birmingham would alter the date of his July 22 rematch with heavyweight champion Sonny Liston at Las Vegas.

"The fight definitely will go on July 22," said the former champion who was knocked out in the first round last September. "Even if my hand hasn't healed, it will go on."

Patterson appeared at a press conference wearing a small bandage on his right hand. It covered a scar that remained when a doctor removed a callus near the knuckle of the right hand.

"There will be no more delay on my part," said Patterson. "The doctor says I'll be able to start boxing about June 1. I have been doing road work and at the camp. The hand feels fine. It will be all right."

The rematch, originally set for Miami Beach, Fla., in April, was postponed from April 4 to April 15 because of an injury to Liston's knee. After it was rescheduled for Las Vegas June 27, it was set back by Patterson's minor operation.

TO BE PARTNERS

At the conference called to announce that he and Jackie Robinson were going to be partners in a real estate venture, Patterson said he was going to visit Birmingham next Monday with the baseball Hall of Famer, first Negro to play major league baseball.

"I expect to be arrested. I expect to be handled roughly and put in jail."

Patterson said his trip would not seriously interrupt his pre-fight schedule.

"If they do put me in jail, I imagine there will be somebody to put up bail," he said.

Asked how long he expected to stay in Birmingham, Patterson replied: "Not any more than the time it takes to bail me out."

Patterson said he would not retaliate physically if he got in trouble in Birmingham.

"If they turn the hose on me, I'll turn my back," he said. "If they put the dogs on me, I'll protect myself. If anybody attacks me, I'll endure it."

Have A Hart, So Howe Does

Wins Trophy 6th Time

MONTREAL (CP) — Detroit's ageless Gordie Howe has won the Hart Trophy as the National Hockey League's most valuable player for an unprecedented sixth time.

The league announced today Howe polled 81 of a possible 90 points in voting for the second half of the season, giving him a season total of 111 points, more than double Chicago's Stan Mikita's total of 54.

Howe, an effortless - skating right winger who turned 35 at the season's end, was superb in the last half of the season.

He reared from behind with the league scoring title for the sixth time—also a record—with 86 points. His total of 38 goals was the league high. He has racked up a league record of 1,202 points in his 17 NHL seasons. Last season he drew near Maurice Richard's record of 544 goals in league play, finishing the season with 540.

SHOULD HIT MARK

Barring an accident, he should break the former Montreal Canadiens' star's record by early November.

Howe was only third in voting for the Hart Trophy at the half-way mark with 30 points. Mikita had 35 and Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk led with 37.

But Mikita received only 19 votes in second-half voting, and Sawchuk, sidelined for most of the second half with a hand injury, received seven votes.

After Sawchuk with 44 points in the over-all total were Chicago goalie Glenn Hall with 42 and Toronto's Frank Mahovlich with 23.

The only player near Howe's total of six Hart trophies is former Boston defenceman Eddie Shore, who won the award four times in the 1930s.

Howe won the award in 1951-52, 1953-53, 1956-57, 1957-58, 1959-60 and last season.

GETS CASH BONUS

Howe receives $1,500 with the award, $1,000 for leading in the over-all voting and $500 for leading in the second half.

This brings his bonus money for the season to $5,000. He pocketed $2,000 for being named to the first all-star team in both halves of the season and $1,500 for being the leading scorer in both the second half of the season and in the whole season.

Howe has been named to the first or second all-star teams in 14 of his 17 NHL seasons, and in the last eight seasons. He's made the first team eight times.

Two Homers, Double Mark 13-3 Debacle

Robinson Bat Helps Reds Clobber Colts

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's May, and suddenly Frank Robinson's bat is beginning to act like a divining rod for base hits.

A notoriously slow starter, Robinson went 5 - for - 3 and drove in seven runs on two homers, two singles and a double Thursday night as Cincinnati Reds erupted for its biggest offensive output of the season and trounced Houston Colts 13-3.

It was easily Robinson's best night and gave every indication that his bat, usually rather quiet in April, is beginning to point toward the ball like a divining rod points to water now that May is here. In nine days, he has doubled his home run and RBI production.

The 27-year-old right-handed swinger, key to Reds' National League pennant chances, now has six homers and 22 runs batted in. He has raised his batting average up to .301 and led Reds from ninth place to sixth.

Robinson drove in two runs with a third inning double, hit a two-run homer in the sixth and connected for a three-run shot in the eighth. The sixth inning homer came off Jim Umbricht, Colts pitcher returned to the active list only hours before the game after recovering from cancer surgery.

FEELS GOOD

Umbricht, who pitched only one inning, said: "I'm not throwing real well, but I felt real good."

While Reds were unleashing their attack against Colts, St. Louis Cardinals bombed Los Angeles Dodgers for 17 hits, including a grand slam home run by Bill White, in a 10-7 victory.

First-place San Francisco Giants defeated Milwaukee Braves 8-2 as Felipe Alou continued to pound the ball. Chicago's second-place Cubs ran their winning streak to six by beating Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 behind Dick Ellsworth's two-hitter and New York Mets made it four in a row with a 9-2 decision over Philadelphia Phils.

Robinson's chief assistant in the power department, Vada Pinson, joined in Reds' bombardment with four RBIs on two singles and a double.

HIT FIRST PITCH

White hit the first pitch by Dodger reliever Dick Scott for his grand slam as Cards exploded for seven runs in the fifth inning. Gene Oliver and Charlie James also homered for St. Louis. Cards turned the tables on Dodgers, who had scored 22 runs against them in two games.

Alou drove in three runs with his seventh homer and two doubles, scoring four runs and raised his league-leading batting average to .386 in Giants' victory at Milwaukee. Ed Bailey also drove in three runs while Billy O'Dell won his fourth without a loss in a battle with Warren Spahn. The victory was the Giants' ninth in 10 games on a current road trip and 13th in 15 away-from-home games over-all.

Cubs also won their ninth in 10 games as Ellsworth, who missed his last turn due to arm trouble, allowed only a second inning single by Don Clendenon and Dick Schofield's single in the ninth. Chicago put it away in the first. Ken Hubbs struck out but reached first when the third strike got past catcher Jim Pagliaroni, Billy Williams followed with a triple and Ernie Banks hit a sacrifice fly.

Tim Harkness of Lachine, Que., drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single and Jimmy Klippstein unscored a wild pitch that sent the winning run home in a three-run ninth inning uprising that gave Mets a sweep of the three-game series with Phillies.

OVERALL WINNER
EAST AFRICAN SAFARI RALLY
IN ITS CLASS
SHELL "4000" CROSS CANADA RALLY

Twice last month, the Peugeot 404 again proved its stamina and reliability. A Peugeot 404 won what is described as the "world's toughest rally", held in East Africa and was first in its class in the world's longest rally, staged here in Canada.

In the East African Safari Rally, 3,132 miles in length, 83 cars started but only 7 finished, 3 of them Peugeots. African jungle, torrential rains and other natural hazards peculiar to Africa finished the rest.

The Peugeot 404 that was first in the private entry class in the Shell "4000" Cross Canada Rally was the only Peugeot entered. The car itself, which was purchased second hand by owner-driver Frank Curran of Toronto, now has 50,000 miles on it.

The Peugeot 404, through its recent rally victories, again proves itself as "one of the 7 best made cars in the world". But the Peugeot is also a family car, designed and built for spaciousness and comfort as well as for rugged reliability. Test drive the Peugeot 404 and find out for yourself all its wonderful qualities.

Herbert's Fourth Shutout Blanks Yanks

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ray Herbert was just another good journeyman pitcher before he made his way to Chicago. But there, under White Sox manager Al Lopez, he found the magic touch.

Herbert hadn't caused many sensations in eight seasons at Detroit and Kansas City, although he won almost as many as he lost.

Then came the trade to Chicago. Last year, his first full season with White Sox, he had a 20-9 record.

This season his start is even better. He's 4-1 and all the victories have been shutouts, the last three in a row. The latest was a two-hit, 2-0 blanking of New York Yankees Thursday night that protected White Sox' one-game lead and dropped Yankees to fifth.

Baltimore Orioles climbed into a share of second with a 4-1 triumph over Boston Red Sox while Washington Senators finally got around to beating Minnesota Twins, whipping Cleveland Indians 8-0 behind Dave Stenhouse in the only other games chedulied.

ALLOWS THREE RUNNERS

Herbert, a 33-year-old righthander, allowed the tumbling Yankee only three baserunners in extending his scoreless inning string to 37. Clete Boyer singled in the third and Joe Pepitone in the fifth for Yankees' only hits. Bobby Richardson walked in the fourth.

A two-run double by shortstop Ron Hansen was all the hitting support Herbert needed. His four shutouts are only one off the league high of 1962. The others have come on three-hitters against Kansas City and Washington and a four-hitter against Baltimore.

Grant had won 13 straight in Washington before Senators finally got to him. He left in the fourth after Ed Brinkman unloaded a three-run homer, Stenhouse spaced seven hits in gaining his first shutout of the season.

Chuck Estrada and Stu Miller combined for a three-hitter in Orioles' victory over Boston. Estrada had a one - hitter through seven innings, but retired after allowing a lead-off double to Bob Tillman in the eighth. A bunt single and an infield out brought him in.

Boog Powell's sixth homer of the season and a two-run double by Brooks Robinson were the key blows for Baltimore.

Leafs Bow To Richmond Bisons Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Willie Smith taught one baseball manager a lesson Thursday night: it doesn't always pay to give out an intentional walk and then pitch to a hitter.

Smith, a left-handed hurler with Syracuse Chiefs, threw a shutout at Rochester Redwings and gave in the only run for Syracuse with one of his two singles.

After Syracuse shortstop Ray Oyler doubled in the seventh, Rochester manager Darrell Johnson ordered pitcher Nelson Chittum to walk Syracuse catcher John Sullivan and try to get Smith to hit into a double play.

Smith spoiled the strategy with a clean single that scored Oyler, then held Rochester scoreless the rest of the game.

Atlanta Crackers, southern division leaders, widened their lead over Arkansas Travelers by defeated Buffalo Bisons, the northern division leaders, 6-3, while Columbus Jets shutout Arkansas 5-0. In the other games, Richmond Virginians defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 7-4 and Indianapolis Indians shut out Jacksonville Suns 5-0.

Few Top Changes In Cut

Many Majors Back To Sticks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Shortstop Chico Fernandez was sold Thursday by the New York Mets and veteran catcher Hobie Landrith moved from Baltimore to Washington, but few many other players it was back to the minors as the major league clubs cut their rosters to the 28-man limit.

Casualties included Frank Lary and Gil Hodges. Lary, who only two years ago won 23 games for Detroit Tigers, was optioned to Knoxville of the Sally League. The veteran right-hander, fighting an ailing arm, hopes to return to the Tigers within a month.

Certain to be on the sidelines for at least a month is Hodges, the 39-year-old Met first baseman. The right-handed slugger, who has been recovering slowly from a knee operation, was placed on the disabled list to make room for Fernandez.

The Mets obtained the 23-year-old shortstop from the Cubs in a team deal that sent pitcher Larry Foss to Milwaukee, along with a bundle of cash. The Braves had purchased Fernandez from the Tigers.

The Mets get down to the 25-player limit, including optioned first-year pitcher Grover Powell, by sending infielders Marv Throneberry and Tec Schreiber to Buffalo Bisons of the International League. Both are subject to 24-hour recall.

Throneberry, regular first baseman last year, had appeared in only 14 games, nearly all as a pinch hitter, and was batting .115.

In other 11th-hour moves, Minnesota optioned a pair of relief pitchers to the minors, sending Lee Stange to Dallas - Fort Worth of the Pacific Coast League and Fred Lasher to Charlotte in the Sally League.

Baltimore, in addition to selling Landrith to Washington, gave Pete Burnside, veteran southpaw, his unconditional release and optioned pitcher Les Narum to Rochester of the International League.

The Tigers swapped players with Syracuse Chiefs, their farm club in the International League. They sent outfielder Purnal Goldy and pitcher Bob Dustal to the Chiefs in exchange for third baseman Don Wert and pitcher Mickey Lolich.

Cleveland sent outfielder Willie Tasby and pitcher Jackie Curtis to Jacksonville and returned catcher Bob Lipski to Little Rock.

SENT TO DENVER

No sooner had Milwaukee acquired Foss when they sent the right-handed pitcher to their Denver farm club of the Pacific Coast League. The Braves also optioned Fly Cline, outfielder obtained from the Indians, to Toronto Maple Leafs and sold Lou Johnson, another outfielder, to Syracuse. The Braves also sold pitcher Dan Schneider from the Chiefs.

Other club activities: St. Louis—Optioned outfielder Gary Kolb to Tulsa and infielder Phil Gagliano to Atlanta.

San Francisco — Optioned catcher Jim Coker to Toronto and sold pitcher Jim Constable to Tacoma.

Houston — Optioned pitcher Randy Cardinal to San Antonio.

Cincinnati — Released veteran catcher Hank Foiles.

Kansas City — Optioned catcher Joe Azcue to Portland.

New York Yankees — Optioned infielder Pedro Gonzales to Richmond.

Washington — Optioned pitcher Jim Hannan and sold catcher Bob Schmidt to Richmond.

Los Angeles Angels — Optioned Eli Grba and Tom Satriano to Hawaii and sold pitcher Roc Moeller to the same club.

Chicago White Sox — Sent pitcher Mike Joyce and infielder Charles Smith on option to Indianapolis and asked waivers on veteran infielder Sam Esposito, who was offered a job in the White Sox organization.

Three Bisons On AHL All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP)—The Calder Cup champion Buffalo Bisons placed three men—goaltender Denis DeJordy, centre Art Stratton and rightwinger John McKenzie—on the American Hockey League all - star team for 1963.

DeJordy and McKenzie were unanimous choices, each polling a maximum 45 points to be named, to the team announced by league headquarters Thursday.

Marc Reaume of Hershey and Al Arbour of Rochester were named to the defensive spots in the voting by sports writers and broadcasters from the nine league cities. John Ferguson of Cleveland was named to the left wing position, gaining 41 points in the voting.

Points in the voting were given on the basis of 5-3-1 for first, second and third selection. Stratton had 30 points and Rochester's Arbour 25 each.

The Bisons, who topped the league in regular season play before winning the Calder Cup, also placed the two men on the second team. They are defenceman Ian Cushenan and leftwinger Doug Robinson.

Rounding out the second team are goalie Charlie Hodge, Cleveland; defenceman Bob McCord, Springfield; centre Hank Ciesla, Cleveland, and rightwinger Bruce Cline, Springfield.

Big Three Find It Tough

Sanders Leads Colonial Golf

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Doug Sanders, without pain for the first time since the Masters Tournament and shot a three-under-par 67 for the opening-round lead in the $60,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament Thursday.

The big news of the opening day was the withdrawal of comperennial Lloyd Mangrum, who disqualified himself.

Mangrum, invited to the tournament as a threatened player revolt, had an 83 and took himself out for playing the wrong ball on the eighth hole.

Sanders, who has been suffering from a neck injury for three years, said the hot sun that flooded the course and a pill kept him from pain. He proceeded to put on a fine putting exhibition to lead the field of 156 into the second round.

Bill Collins, another extraordinary sufferer, was hampered by injury—he has a slipped disc in his back—came in wh a 68 for second place.

The Big Three—Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player—had difficulties with the course.

HAVE TROUBLE

Nicklaus managed a 71 that left him four strokes out of first place. Palmer shot a 74 and Player a 72.

Al Johnston of Montreal was tied for 11th spot with a 72 after the first round while Stan Leonard of Vancouver, blossomed to a 39 on the back nine after going out in 33, had a 74.

Al Balding of Toronto fired a 75.

Jr. Bowling Body Quits, No Funds

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Junior Bowling Council suspended operations Thursday because of a lack of funds.

Founded in suburban East York in 1948 to encourage young bowlers through volunteer coaching and leadership and by organizing competition, the council achieved a membership of 18,000 across Canada.

Council President Stan Wadlow said the group doesn't want to close, "and if any way of financing the operation shows, we will meet again."

The council, whose funds come from the Bowling Proprietors Association of Ontario and similar groups in other provinces as well as manufacturers of bowling equipment, has debts of about $4,000. The money is to be written off by the bowling industry.

Meanwhile, John Martin, president of the proprietors' association, said his group has had a junior league in mind for some time and the question will come up at the association's annual meeting at Honey Harbour, Ont., June 15-16. He felt sure it would be approved.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Royal Maple, owned by J. Louis Levesque of Montreal, easily justified his 6-5 odds in winning the featured Green Bay Purse before 7,156 fans at Greenwood Thursday.

The winner, second choice in the winter book for the Queen's Plate behind Russell Fireball kept close to Traffic, who held in last place in the eight-horse field for the first half of the one-mile journey, then rider Dick Armstrong started to wend Royal Maple through the field.

Through the 735-foot stretch run, Royal Maple took over and won by three lengths at Bosquiel, which was a half-length ahead of Kingsey.

The winner was bred by E. P. Taylor and was purchased for $12,500 by Levesque at Taylor's pre-priced yearling sale in September, 1961.

Canada's Best-Selling Author, Only Full Time Television Playwright Virtually Unknown

Whitby, ont. (CP)—Canada's best-selling author, and its only full-time television playwright, is virtually unknown by name to the millions who have read his books or watched his plays performed.

Perhaps it is because much of 60-year-old Leslie McFarlane's work has been distributed under so many aliase—Franklin W. Dixon, Roy Rockwood, Royal Cody Ferrish and even Carolyn Keene.

Mr. McFarlane, who has been writing original TV plays and polishing other scripts as a full-time occupation for the last seven years, used his many pennames by contract or merely to maintain anonymity while he was churning out children's books and magazine stories.

He was the first Franklin W. Dixon, author of the popular Hardy Boys erie. The 19 Hardy books he wrote over a period of 17 years have sold an estimated 12,000,000 copies and make him Canada's best-selling author.

Since word leaked out 10 years ago that Leslie McFarlane was Franklin Dixon, youngsters who love the adventures of the Hardy Boys have been coming to his home in this Lake Ontario town for autographs and chats.

BEGAN AS REPORTER

A school-teacher's son, born in Carleton Place, Ont., McFarlane started work as a reporter on the Cobalt Nugget in 1919 at age 17. In the following eight years he worked for newspapers in Welland, Sudbury, Ottawa, North Bay, Montreal, Springfield, Mass., and Madison, N.J.

He met a publisher of boys' books in New York during 1926 and agreed to a deal calling for him to write six one-year adventures in the Dave Fearless series.

As Roy Rockwood, he dashed off the six 40,000-word epics while at Springfield, never taking more than three weeks for any of them. He earned a flat $100 each for the Fearless books.

The Edward Stratemeyer Syndicate arranged his name to Dixon and assigned him to write the 30,000-word Hardy books. Mr. McFarlane rented a summer cottage near Sudbury and got to work.

He continued writing the Hardy adventures until 1944, being paid a flat rate for each book. While he recognizes that had he been paid a half-cent royalty on each copy sold he would retire today, Mr. McFarlane holds no resentment.

STRAIGHT BUSINESS

"It was a business," he says of the adventure-story writing. "I was able to it with my eyes open and royalties didn't enter into it."

Using the Hardy Boys as a source of basic income, Mr. McFarlane at the same time became other names in other publications.

He wrote mysteries and fiction for magazines which sometimes would carry three McFarlane stories under three different names, only occasionally his own.

He was Carolyn Keene for four books, writing about the Dana Girls, who were orphans and had a maiden aunt named Gertrude. But he didn't like writing for girls.

"I was always tempted to have one of the Hardy boys sneak into the Dana girls' dormitory just to see what would happen.

"I resisted the temptation," he adds, "but it was close."

STORIES DRIED UP

Suddenly about the middle of the Second World War, his ability to write magazine fiction dried up. Rejected for reserve service on medical grounds, Mr. McFarlane believes the fiction flow was stemmed by a feeling that writing fiction in wartime was incongruous.

In 1943, after a stint in the munitions and supply department, he joined the National Film Board. In 10 years he wrote, directed or produced—sometimes all three—more than 20 films for the NFB. Several were two prize winners—The Boy Who Stopped Niagara and Here's Hockey.

He started working for television in 1953 and was editor in chief of CBC's commercial drama from 1958 until he decided to become a fulltime TV writer in 1960.

He has 22 original plays behind him and 18 rewrites. Lately he has been working on a play for Playdate, revising a production for Festival, adapting Thomas Costain's Son of a Hundred Kings as a TV serial and polishing up his Don't Shake the Family Tree for U.S. television. The latest McFarlane original to be screened is The Man Who Cheered the Leafs.

Mr. McFarlane appears not to be fazed by the fact that none of his considerable works so far has hit the financial jackpot nor brought him popular acclaim.

"At the start I told myself: I am going to be a writer, but whatever happens I will not be bitter.

"Quite simply, no one asked me to become a writer and I have no use for whining writers who curse the public. All around, I'm a damn happy man."

Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons, who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Department

The Income Tax Act in referring to adopted children is quite liberal in the requirements necessary to allow claims under this section.

A child may either be adopted legally with all the necessary papers or just by oral agreement. If the taxpayer has full custody and control of the child and such child or children cannot be legally taken from him, then they would be considered for taxation purposes to be his adopted children.

When this is the case the taxpayer may claim them for the amount of exemption, allowable for children, which is $300 for those under 16 years and $550 for those who are 16 or over. In all cases such children must be wholly dependent on the taxpayer for their support.

When children are suddenly orphaned and an aunt and uncle take them to raise and educate, they become the adopted children of the taxpayer for income tax purposes. There is no provision in the Income Tax Act whereby a claim can be made for a niece or nephew.

Where such children have come in to the taxpayers care, custody and control in the middle of the year, the taxpayer can claim exemption for the entire year, regardless of the fact the deceased parents may have claimed the children up to the time they became deceased.

These circumstances as outlined above do not apply to children boarded in the home from the Childrens' Aid Society. See a following article dealing with this subject. All inquiries will be answered, if a self addressed and stamped (5 cent) envelope is enclosed.

Question 1 — We have taken two boys into our home for adoption. If there is mutual satisfaction. Can I claim them this year?

Answer — No. They are not legally adopted or adopted in fact.

Question 2 — I have taken my brothers' orphaned son into our home as there was no other relatives to care for him. He came in December 1962 and is 2 years of age. Can I claim exemption for him?

Answer — Yes. $300.

Youth Column

This 4-Year Love Affair Is Going as Hot as Ever

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The love affair between disc jockey Dean Hagopian and teen-agers now is in its fourth year, showing no signs of dying out.

Hagopian came to radio station CKOY in December, 1959, after a bumpy start in radio in Western Ontario. His choice of records and his between-music chatter soon won him a large following of youngsters.

"The kids even got me my job back after the station fired me," the 25-year-old native of Galt, Ont., recalls.

Now firmly established at CKOY, and leader and vocalist of a five-piece band, Hagopian admits to being cocky and overeager when he first began doing the all-night stint at the Ottawa station.

He encouraged "live" calls while doing the show, and soon was advising youngsters—over the air—on their problems.

When some of the callers aired some harsh words about the police department of neighboring Hull, Que., the station management was informed that a slander suit would be launched unless the young announcer was fired.

SAVED HIS JOB

"Let's face it, I was wrong—but petitions saving the station to take me back began coming in from high school students and others, and three weeks later I had my job back."

He says he had also been fired from a part-time announcing job in London, Ont., "for personal reasons." He first got into the business as an operator at Woodstock, Ont.

The stickily - built Hagopian was promoted to daytime shows at CKOY as master-of-ceremonies on a rush-hour program and also the hour-long Teen Beat.

His favorite targets on the program are barbers — "they're all butchers — and parents who don't speak frankly to their children.

Hagopian, of Armenian descent, says he wouldn't be caught dead in a barber shop. He says his practice of patronizing men's hair stylists instead is catching on in Ottawa.

"Teen-agers in Ottawa are getting fussy about the way they get their hair cut more so than adults."

FRANK ADVISER

Hagopian, who was married in early April, believes that parents shy away from talking about sex to their children. He bases this belief on the number of inquiries he receives from his listeners, and from talks with teen-agers at the dances staged by his band.

"Some of the basic things they want to know just break me up," he says.

A neat dresser whether in the casual garb in which he works at the station or in the semi-formal attire worn by the band, Hagopian is highly complimentary about the appearance of Ottawa's younger set.

He encourages the well-dressed look by joining clusters of youngsters at the dances and casually admiring the cut of a jacket or the style of a suit.

"The others catch on," he says.

Hagopian admits he tries to interest his listeners in semi-classical music, but he says he has found the ratings a disjockey has to go along with records that have become popular.

"You can try to plug this or that, but if it doesn't make the charts you give the kids what they want."

A recent Ottawa rating showed Hagopian's Teen Beat is heard by 48 per cent of the listening audience, the remainder being shared by four other stations.

CKOY's own contest to determine its most popular announcer has been won the last two years by Hagopian.

Matters now are going so well for him—a recording session is coming up for his band—that he has hired a manager to look after his affairs.

First Time Soccer Game Is Stopped

LONDON (CP)—An angry debate raged in the British press and soccer world Thursday over the calling of a tough international match at Glasgow Wednesday night with nine minutes to go.

Austria was reduced to seven players when injured and two ejected—and was trailing Scotland 4-1 when Referee Jim Finney called the match. It was the first time an international match had ever been stopped in Britain.

Finney came under attack by Karl Decker, Austria's team manager. The referee completely lost control," he said.

Royal Kell, chairman of the Scottish Football Association, said:

"The referee's decision to abandon it was ridiculous. But I've never seen anything like it and I hope I won't see it again."

Jack Mowat, chairman of the Scottish Referees Supervisors Committee, defended the referee.

"Mr. Finney was 100-per-cent correct in abandoning the game. I would have done exactly the same.

QUEBEC (CP)—Whether you call it ouananiche or landlocked salmon, it's still a whale of a fighting fish.

In Lac St. Jean, a sea-like expanse teaming with goldeye and dore, it is the unchallenged king.

Outfitters, hotel keepers and guides own much of their livelihood to the silvery ouananiche, which runs from six to eight pounds full-grown.

And when "wahn-sahn-seah" season rolls around, almost everybody in the region 135 miles northwest of Quebec seems to head for the lake with their heavy tackle.

Consequently, when anything threatens the ouananiche, it threatens the region. And fish and game associations believe they have found several threats to the sports fish.

First is the number of goldeye and dore competing for food in the lake, which is about 30 miles wide at any point. The associations suspect they may be squeezing the ouananiche out.

Another fish believed hurting the king is the burbot, a voracious eater accused of dining on ouananiche fry.

Fish and game associations also say the sawdust from mills along the shore is clogging the gills of the ouananiche and causing illness among the fish.

FISHED COMMERCIALLY

The uproar caused the department of game and fisheries to send in a biologist last summer, mainly to see if commercial fishing for goldeye and dore could ease the plight of the ouananiche.

"It worked out fairly well but it wasn't conclusive," says Dr. Louis Lemieux, director of Quebec's fish and wildlife management service. "We did manage to catch several thousand pounds of dore, which were sold in Montreal, without getting many ouananiche in the nets.

"This year we will resume the experiment under better conditions."

Lake St. John sports associations in the past have forced the government to ban commercial fishing on the lake. They claimed ouananiche were being caught as well as goldeye and dore.

They have asked the government to stock the lake with ouananiche. But biologists feel commercial fishing is a better solution.

They are also studying the effect that burbot and the sawdust on the ouananiche.

By next fall, the department hopes to know definitely whether there is an actual threat to the fish and whether it can be combatted by commercial fishing. The thought of restocking the lake shakes biologists.

"It isn't a pond," points out Dr. Lemieux.

New Concept of Production Supported by James Stewart

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A bold new concept of film production, announced this week by three studios, gets the support of James Stewart.

Columbia, MGM and 20th Century-Fox started Hollywood with the news that they are considering construction of a new studio to house all their movie-making enterprises.

"It sounds like a step in the right direction," commented Stewart. I think the only practical way to make pictures is the way they used to be made, with a big-studio operation. You've got to have a big nontrack list to choose from and you've got to make a lot of pictures to keep them and the studio busy.

That's what MCA is doing with Universal and Revue. And that's how the new setup could be for the three companies that are considering the new studio. I'm all for it."

Stewart confesses to join the crypo-hangers who declared that Hollywood is washed up.

CLAIMS POTENTIAL GOOD

"The potential for film is greater than it ever was," he declared. "There are more outlets than ever, and movie makers have to think in terms of color and wide screen.

"First, a film might be shown in Cinerama. Then it can be transferred to Todd-AO size film for a subsequent run, then to 35mm. Then it can be put on 16mm film and shown everywhere in the world. The quality of the image won't suffer; in fact, since you are starting with large film and blowing it down, the quality is better.

"After all the theatre possibilities have been exhausted, then the picture would move to television.

"Yes, I know some people in Hollywood think of television as the enemy. But we've come a long way from the days when we couldn't even show a television set in a living room in movies.

"We've all got to get married to television, whether we like it or not. It should be a part of our thinking. We've got to consider that every picture we make will ultimately be played on the home screen."

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — William Holden steps Nancy Kwan from a tower in a scene from the big 20th Century-Fox delight from Hong Kong, "The World of Suzie Wong", tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Sylvia Syms and Michael Wilding are also in the Technicolor film, which is based on the best-selling novel and Broadway stage hit. 2nd feature attraction, also in color, "The Trap", features Richard Widmark, Lee J. Cobb and Tina Louise.

Recreation Highlights

By BRUCE JARVAH
Assistant Director

A youngster can drop a ball on a Softball field and he can laugh about it. He can tumble shivery-legged while water skiing and actually derive a certain amount of pleasure from his mistakes. But, there is no room for mistakes in swimming.

The swimmers who make errors often don't live long enough to talk or laugh about them. All they do is add to the tragic list of drownings that shatter homes and bring heartbreak into families.

For many years there was a need for an outdoor pool in the City of Belleville. Here, it was hoped, young and old alike could learn and enjoy the wonderful joys of swimming. Persons who normally could not travel out of the City to enjoy this summer sport, would now be able to learn to swim safely and those already knowing how, could enjoy more fully the summer months.

MEMORIAL POOL

In 1950, the Kinsmen Club of Belleville was responsible for the construction of what has come to be known as the Kinsmen Memorial Swimming Pool.

This pool was a community effort with many outside organizations aiding in its final operation.

For the first three years, the Belleville recreation department hired the complete staff that was needed during the summer months.

After this time, the services offered by the Belleville recreation department consisted of mainly office assistance and the printing of bulletins and brochures.

Approximately two weeks ago, interviews were held here at the Recreation Department and pool manager, Jim Clelland, had a first-hand opportunity to meet the hopeful applicants for summer positions at the pool.

MUCH KNOWLEDGE NEEDED

A small knowledge of swimming isn't enough. Red Cross people, for example, insist that the greatest number of drownings don't occur among those who don't know how to swim. They happen to people who "swim a little".

There are all kinds of swimming classes available at Y.M.-C.A.'s, camps, and this summer will see an extensive swimming program made available at the Memorial Pool on Dundas Street East.

From 9.00 a.m. to 10.00 a.m. Monday through Friday, Red Cross junior and intermediate instruction classes will be held and from 10.00 a.m. to 11.00 a.m. each morning will see Red Cross beginner classes being held. In the afternoon, Red Cross intermediate and senior instruction classes will be held.

According to the manager, Jim Clelland, professional diving instruction will be given by Bart Ontario Junior Champion from the one meter and three meter boards available at the pool. Also Royal Life saving classes in Bronze Medallion, Award of Merit, and Award of Distinction will be held.

Knowing how to swim well is like learning to ride a person's life may depend -- yours or somebody's close to you.

Take lessons and then well and practise. Then keep on learning and swimming safely for a safe summer days alive."

Further information re: classes, phone recreation office WO 5-4563.

Big Al Hirt Makes Grade After Playing for 30 Years

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When Vincent Edwards, who had been around Hollywood a long time trying to get a foothold, finally found his ladder in Ben Casey, he delivered what has become the 25 most famous line:

"Sure," he commented, "I'm the 11-year-old overnight success."

Big Al Hirt, often called the No. 1 trumpet player of his generation, has a success story that makes Edwards' rise seem meteorse.

I've been playing for 30 years, and a professional musician for 18," said Al. "So how do you explain what happened to me about two years ago as anything but luck."

Hirt, a New Orleans boy, had a good musical education, chose the trumpet as his instrument and, for a while, played with some of the big bands — the Dorsey Brothers, Ray McKinley and Horace Heidt. Then as he quietly went back to New Orleans.

No one really paid much attention to him, though he was playing the same kind of music that has all the experts flipping.

"It started when an agent, Gerald Purcell, dropped in one night and heard me," he said. "He was interested and came back to offer me a job in Las Vegas. I'd had offers before, but never anything that paid enough."

In Las Vegas, Hirt and his horn were heard by Dinah Shore's producer, who booked him.

"And that was it," the 300-pound, bearded musician said. "We went from there to Ed Sullivan and then to all the shows."

Union Proposes Half Billion Cut in Defence

TORONTO (CP)—An entirely new tax structure, including a massive $450,000,000 reduction in military spending, was proposed for Canada yesterday by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America to the Carter royal commission on taxation.

The independent, 19,000-member union provided a detailed plan to ease the weight of the tax burden from the working man's shoulders. Total revenue would be increased by at least $64,000,000, said the huge brief.

In the provincial field, the left-wing union asked that all provincial retail taxes be reduced to a maximum of two per cent. At the federal level, excise taxes should be eliminated, and the standard income tax exemptions for single persons be increased to $2,500 from $1,000 and to $6,000 from $2,000 for a married man.

The graduated rate of the income tax scale should be revised so those earning more than $10,000 a year would bear a heavier load.

This would bring in an extra $85,000,000, help offset the loss of $967,000,000 through tax reductions.

HIT DEDUCTIONS

Also contributing to increased revenue would be the elimination of "corporate living"—widespread tax deductible accounts—which would bring in $125,000 ,000 to the treasury. The elimination of the 20% dividend tax credit would bring in another $83,000,000; taxing the undistributed profits of companies would mean an extra $250,000,000 and taxing the profits hidden in depreciation would mean $519,000,000.

This, along with the $450,000,- 000 cut in defence spending, would give the treasury an extra $64,000,000, said the union, and by taxing capital gains the margin would be even greater.

Astrological Forecast

FOR MAY 11

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Relaxation important. Take time to gather strength, energy, ideas. Spread influence, make new contacts. Excellent for social evening. But be moderate in actions, conduct.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Be direct, but discreet. Means go to source. But don't try to force way. Stress diplomacy, humor. Have frank talk concerning finances. Goal should be greater understanding.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Don't be too quick to judge. Do more listening than talking. Absorb information, knowledge. Area of partnership, including marriage, spotlighted.

Several hundred teenagers across Canada collected pennies and dimes all winter for an unusual purpose — to adopt children.

Few of them will ever see their adopted children. Or, even if they did, it's unlikely that they could talk together in the same language.

About 70 schools across Canada have raised money since last fall to help less-fortunate children in Korea, Greece, Italy, France, Africa and a number of other countries.

THE COST

In case you didn't know, it costs $60 to "sponsor" a child through the Canadian Save-The-Children Fund. This often means the difference between keeping the child in school or letting him drop out.

It sounds a little now because it could make an interesting and worthwhile project for any of you to join in, to channel part of your summer earnings into something that could be of benefit to you all next year.

A Western Canada school, for example, raised the sponsorship money needed by charging admission for a school play. The students suddenly developed an intense interest in Korea as they corresponded back and forth with their "adopted" friend.

Three teen-age girls in Toronto hiked their hosts for a winter, peeling potatoes, washing dishes, babysitting and doing any other chores that would get them closer to the goal of $60.

A Boy Scout troop on the east coast of Canada kept a container in its meeting hall all winter. And it was amazing to see how the small change piled up by spring.

The interesting thing about teen age contributions to the sponsorship program is that few of the teen-agers want public thanks. Yet fraternities, sororities, Girl Guide groups, Boy Scout troops are included in the supporters.

SACRIFICES

W. R. Marshall, national director for the CSTC, has real son to feel strongly about his work. He spent two years in Korea and saw mothers who were actually starving themselves to keep children in school.

"The average income of the families we help through this adoption program ranges from zero to $400," he said. "But add $60 to that, and you've made a significant difference."

Included over the applications from overseas this week and almost each case cried out for help. This included several applications from Basutoland, a country just included in the program.

Sixty dollars may sound like a large amount. But it gets smaller as more friends are involved. And it could spark an interest that would go for possibly a lifetime.

How much do you—or your friends—know about life in another country, a country where even three meals a day is considered a luxury? Maybe this is your chance to find out.

Three cheers for 16-year-old Maureen Westgate of Montreal who was bold enough to speak up the other day about something that has bothered many Guides.

"I get annoyed when I hear the comments from some of the people at school, 'Oh, you still in Guides?' as though it was some sort of disgrace," she said.

Maureen, the second person in her family to win the Gold Cord — the top award in the Guide movement — made her comments as she was given the honor.

"Most of the people in high school think our activities to be childish," she said, "but that's because they don't look into them very carefully."

What Maureen was courageous enough to say out loud is something that has bothered some Girl Guide leaders for the last few years — the number of teen-age girls who think they shouldn't be in Guides after a certain age.

One of the most important things a girl can learn in Guides is responsibility, and Maureen told a convincing story of when she first realize this.

"I was teaching two dozen Brownies to make a fire," she said. "They were all divided up into groups and each group was making its own fire. Then I realized that not only did I have to look after the Brownies — but six fires as well. That's responsibility."

Sunday School Lesson

Off to a Good Start

By ROY L. SMITH

As a small boy in Kansas I watched my father preparing, in the early spring, what he called a "hot-bed." It consisted of an enclosed parcel of soil which was maintained at a slightly higher temperature than the surrounding ground. Seeds planted therein could be depended upon to germinate and take root several days, or even a week or two, earlier than those that were planted in the outside soil.

It all seemed just a little like a miracle to me, a six-year-old. And it was even more of a miracle, when my father transplanted the seedings in the hotbed, to the garden row. But at least I could understand one thing: the plants that got a good start stood a better chance of surviving and producing.

MOST WONDERFUL THING HERE

Our family was entertaining, as a guest on one occasion, a young Chinese man who had been engaged in research work in one of the great American universities. He was a brilliant chap, and had made a profound impression on the faculty under which he did his researching.

He was about to return to China, and we were enjoying the delight of a farewell visit. In the course of it we developed a considerable friendship during the period of his post-graduate days, the occasion mingled delight and regret.

At an advantageous point in the conversation over the dinner plates, I asked him a very pointed question, and received from him a much more revealing reply than I had anticipated.

"Doctor," I said, "would you be willing to tell us what is, in your opinion, the most interesting, important, and significant thing you have seen in America?"

The Uniform Snday School lesson for May 12: "WORSHIP AND THE FAMILY," Psalms 78; 128.

Without even the semblance of a smile, but with an expression of profound seriousness, he drew back from the table ever so little, and then with an eloquent gesture that took in our entire family, he replied, in a single word — "This."

At first I thought he was merely trying to be polite or complimentary. Then I realized that he was saying something very significant. And he did not leave me long in doubt.

"This!" he repeated. "The most wonderful thing I have seen in America is the Christian family, in which the spirit and principle of democracy prevails. The rights of each member are respected, the responsibilities of all are assumed, and everyone works with all the others to produce a holy whole."

FAMILY AS A SCHOOL

This is the lesson today's psalmist was attempting to lay upon the conscience of the Hebrew people. Inside the home, he said, was where the great basics of faith and patriotism must be taught. If the child does not get those basics from his parents he is apt to miss them entirely.

Inside the ancient Hebrew home the father of the household was also the priest, the teacher, the law — maker, and the police court for all entire family.

It was inside the ancient Hebrew household there were responsibilities for every member of the household. That explains in considerable part the fact that there was no juvenile delinquency among the Hebrew youth.

One of our most trusted jovial workers is responsible for the assertion that a major part of our modern delinquency is due to the fact that the modern child has nothing to do. The modern electrically equipped home has done away with chores. And a boy without responsibility is a candidate for trouble.

As the child is trained to respond to the demands of the home, so he is also trained to respond to the demands of the adult society in the midst of which he must live. If the seed-bed of the home is not friendly to good citizenship, the seedlings it transplants will be outlaws.

ENDOWED WITH FAITH

One of the best friends I have in the newspaper business was telling me about his early experiences in his home. "My father was so good," he said, and there was an undertone of resentment in his voice as he spoke. "One of the most vivid memories I have is of my father beating me up while I was drunken rages. All my life I have had to unlearn the things my father taught me during those first few years."

And in contrast to that testimony there is the testimony of another friend, given me within 30 minutes of the first comment. "As a boy, my father taught me to trust certain things, and those things have never let me down. I could not have given me a fortune that would have been worth as much." That man endowed his son with faith.

Bd. Education Holds Special Meeting

DESERONTO — A special meeting of the Board of Education was held on Wednesday night of last week to receive the Inspector's report which was presented by R. W. Frostes, Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Schools.

In his report, Mr. Frostes stated that the teaching quality of the High School was good, but that the school needed some repairs and painting. He also stated that the chemistry laboratory had not been kept up to par during the past few years and needed new equipment for experiments. He inquired about the third floor and was advised that it had for safety and was well equipped with exits for fire hazard.

DISCUSSES ALTERATIONS

The problem of altering and enlarging the school and the possibility of a new school was discussed. The new school would require at least four classrooms, a science room and either a gymnasium or a combination gymnasium and auditorium. The meeting was told of the new school being erected at Cloyne for similar purposes.

There was discussion also on the possibility of purchasing education outright from and another school and the cost, based at even 100 pupils was set at some $200,000 with the cost to the town of approximately $60,000. This cost included transportation and tuition. The cost set on 100 was arrived at by taking the present attendance of 71 and the influx from grade 8 which would be some 28 next year.

Freak Storms Hit Quebec, Ontario

Record Amount Of Snow Fell In Some Areas

Chill Rain and Raw Winds Order of Day

By The Canadian Press

A mid-day blizzard smoked up on Quebec and Ontario Friday, catching both provinces with their woollies in mothballs and their suntan oil at the ready.

The freak storm brought record amounts of snow to large sections of both provinces as it moved from Manitoulin Island in the north, across the resort areas of the Muskoka Lakes, through southeastern Ontario and across southern Quebec.

Everywhere it went, it shattered May 11 weather history and caught residents unprepared.

Hundreds of tulips around the National War Memorial in Ottawa were buried to their wet-colored bulbs in snow.

Conquistors at the Canadian and Quebec skeet shooting championships at St. Jauvier, 30 miles north of Montreal, complained they couldn't see the clay birds through the snow.

HALT TRACK MEET

At Arnprior, 30 miles west of Ottawa, high school athletes braved the pungling temperatures but were finally forced to call off their track meet when the field was pelted by the blizzard.

On either side of the snow belt temperatures stayed just above the freezing mark but chill rain and raw winds were the order of the day.

Today's weather should gradually improve, say the forecasters. Most areas will be generally cloudy and cool, with the sun breaking through later in the day.

Police reported minor accidents and traffic snarls by the score. With snow tires packed away weeks ago, cars on many roads inched through the pelting snow, or skidded into ditches.

Montreal expected between four and six inches of the white stuff before the storm ended early today. Ottawa, with five inches fallen before midnight, was due for another inch before the fall stopped.

CANADA WARNS AIRLINES TO DROP PLANS

Against Raising European Fares

Ottawa (CP) — Canada has warned British and European airlines to drop their plans for an increase in transatlantic round-trip fares scheduled to take effect Sunday. A traffic tiemp could occur if neither side backs down.

The Air Transport Board advised eight international airlines Friday that it has suspended indefinitely their new tariffs which would raise the fares for economy round trips five per cent—roughly $25 on a Montreal-London return ticket.

Defiance of the order—its source here said, could lead to prosecutions in Canadian courts for violating air regulations.

The dispute was not expected to go that far, however, the source indicated. Airlines were expected to back down on their Sunday fare increase and try for a compromise of some sort at a special conference that has been called for next Thursday in Bermuda.

CANADA, U.S. OPPOSE

Canada and the United States are opposed to the increases, contending it isn't justified. Britain and European nations want it for their state-owned lines.

The dispute goes back to last October when International Air Transport Association (IATA) and its member airlines agreed to reduce the round-trip discount to five per cent from 10. The effect was to raise round-trip fares five per cent.

This proposal, however, was subject to the agreement of the various governments. Canada and the U.S. ordered their lines to ignore the rate-raising plan.

FATHER BURNS TWO CHILDREN, SHOOTS SELF

Locked Bedroom, Sets Fire to Room

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP) — A 38-year-old farmer locked himself into a bedroom with two sleeping infants today, set fire to the room and shot himself, leaving the two children to perish in the smoke.

Police identified the victims as William Chuchman, his 15-month-old son, George, and his daughter, Susan, 2. The girl died later in hospital, but father and son were dead when neighbors broke into the flaming bedroom.

Chuchman's wife, Tekla, 40, locked out of the house before the incident, pounded vainly on the doors when she heard the shot which killed her husband.

Then she summoned neighbors who broke in and smashed down the bedroom door.

The fire was extinguished without causing much damage

Police said Chuchman, after refusing to speak to his wife earlier in the day, locked all the doors and drew the blinds.

Then, police said, he apparently poured gasoline around the locked bedroom and set fire to it before killing himself with a 303-calibre rifle in the children's bed of asphyxiation.

The family's two other children, Ron, 16, and Annie, 6, were at school. They and their mother went to stay with neighbors afterward.

Mrs. Chuchman told police that she and her husband had quarrelled in the past, but there had been no fights recently. She could not explain her husband's behavior.

Chuchman farmed a partially cleared property four miles west of here in McIntyre township, working part time in the winter as a grain handler.

Warden and Two Guards Held Criminally Responsible

MONTREAL (CP)—A French war hero who bosses Canada's toughest penitentiary and two guards have been found criminally negligent by a coroner's jury in the death of a guard grabbed as a hostage May 2 by two prisoners. Both prisoners were also found criminally negligent.

Warden Michel LeCorre, 43, holder of the French Croix de Guerre, and two guards at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary were ruled criminally negligent Friday night by a five-man coroner's court jury.

Earlier this week statements supporting the warden's action in the crisis were issued by Allen J. MacLeod, federal commissioner of penitentiaries, and Roland LaFrancois, president of a Civil Service Association local representing 600 guards.

The jury — after deliberating 55 minutes — found, however, that the warden behaved "basically" and without "serious consideration" in ordering three guards armed with pistols to open a cell where guard Raymond Tellier, 35, was held, bound hand and foot.

Witnesses testified the interior of the cell was obscured because the bars were covered with blanketing and there were no lights when the guards attacked, two of them with pis-

RUSSIAN TO DIE, BRITISH COURIER GIVEN 8 YEARS

5-Day Spy Trial Ends at Moscow

MOSCOW—A Soviet military tribunal today sentenced former Soviet government official Oleg Penkovsky to death for spying and ordered his British accomplice, businessman Greville Wynne, confined for eight years.

The two men were convicted after a five-day trial. Verdict and sentences were read out in the final session by the court president, Lt-Gen. Viktor Borisoglebsky.

Wynne, 44, earlier admitted acting as a courier for official secrets between Penkovsky, a scientific worker, and British intelligence agents.

Wynne's sentence was broken down to three years in prison and the remainder in a corrective labor camp.

Penkovsky was stripped of all his medals, colonel's rank and Second World War decorations.

The crowd of Russians broke into 30 seconds of applause as the sentences were read.

Canada Suggests Possible UN Moves in Middle East

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has made suggestions to the United Nations concerning possible UN moves in the Middle East if the situation there deteriorates, it was learned Friday.

External Affairs minister Paul Martin has personally talked with UN headquarters on the subject, which arises from Jordan's difficulties with the United Arab Republic and the continued hostility between Israel and the Arab states.

The Canadian government is thinking along the lines of a UN presence in Jordan rather than any extension of the UN emergency forces' duties into Egypt, Israel, Syria, Lebanon and Jordan. UNEF operates only in Egypt.

About four inches of wet snow fell late in the day, creating a traffic jam in the park and causing a kennel keeper from nearby Stittsville, Ont., to be late with his six dogs in a sleigh. They were essential to the opening number and finale of the pageant.

Preparing Way For New Era In Diplomacy

Bomarcs and Voodoos May Get Warheads

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy have moved swiftly towards the decision-making stage on major Canada-U.S. issues, preparing the way for a new era in intensified personal diplomacy between the two leaders.

Saying he plans to see the president in the future "as often as possible," Pearson indicated at a press conference Friday night that the two leaders have reached an understanding on the question of providing Canada with nuclear warheads for its Bomarc anti - aircraft missiles and Voodoo jet fighters.

As Kennedy used by his side nodding agreement, Pearson also said that labor leaders on both sides will be called into a meeting in an attempt to resolve Great Lakes shipping strife involving the Seafarers International Union of Canada and the Canadian Maritime Union.

U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Labor Minister Starr, AFL-CIO president, will meet with Canadian Labor Minister Allan MacEachen and Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, in efforts to avoid future incidents affecting the Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto. The time and place is to be set later.

AGREE HANDILY

Officials who attended the first day of the two-day summit talks said more agreement was reached between Canada and the U.S. in nine hours of discussions than had been reached in the last 12 months.

Pearson did not give out details, saying he didn't want to "scoop" the joint communique to be issued about 1 p.m. EDT today. But he emphasized there was no waste of time in the discussions. He was extremely pleased with the warm, friendly reception he had received from Kennedy and the speed with which they were moving to eliminate the jarring period of disharmony that characterized relations in previous months.

Pearson told reporters at the impromptu press conference that the communique definitely would refer to the arming of Canada's Bomarcs and other air force units with nuclear warheads.

Kennedy, speaking warmly of his conversation with Pearson, said they had had "very good results" in discussing six broad items during the day. They would be the last meeting with a dinner table discussion on East-West relations and the

Nuclear Arms To Be Accepted Say Informants

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (CP) Well - informed sources said Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy have reached a firm understanding on the provision of nuclear warheads for Canada, opening the way for technical negotiations on custody - and control agreement.

These informants said the understanding was reached at Friday's talks and that the joint communique to be issued this afternoon will confirm the Canadian commitment to accept the warheads, an issue which bolted into a major political controversy during the last Canadian election campaign.

The warheads would be stored in Canada for use on the Bomarc anti - aircraft missiles based at La Macaza, Que., and North Bay, Ont., and for the Voodoo jet interceptors forming part of North American air defences. Custody would remain with the U.S., but a final decision as to whether to effect over would be fired would rest with the Canadian government.

NEED NEW CARRIER

There would be no Canadian costs for the warheads themselves. It was accepted as given will require a new kind of carrier for the Voodoo jets. Canada would have to buy these warhead carriers from the U.S. The cost is not expected to be extensive.

Pearson himself indicated Friday some understanding on the warhead issue had been reached with Kennedy but declined to spell out details, saying he did not want to "scoop" the communique.

An informant said the one stipulation Pearson indicated in his understanding with Kennedy was that the method chosen for discharging the warheads proved to be a commitment of acceptance that the warheads made by the previous administration be done in such a way that would not cause insuperable difficulties for his minority government.

Kennedy's team were reported satisfied with the Pearson view. An American informant said the Bomarc talks went ahead smoothly after a delay was cleaned up in the first part of the Friday afternoon talks.

Pearson and Kennedy Had Arms Issues With Lunchtime Chowder

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (CP) They had nuclear issues with their lunchtime chowder and world problems generally over the broiled lobster at dinner.

But in a sociable drive with a the press corps, interspersed between the discussions, Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy indicated by badinage Friday that their two-day talks had exceedingly well.

While aides from both sides used terms like "swimingly" and "very, very well," Pearson told reporters: "We made progress."

"We made good progress," said Kennedy.

The word came at a reception in the sun room of the summer home of the president's brother, Attorney - General Robert Kennedy, bright with a blue-green rug, oil paintings and china figurines.

What originally had been scheduled as a reception with Pearson for the 40-odd Canadian reporters developed into an event featuring both leaders at a halfway point in their first meeting since Pearson's elevation to prime minister.

With his advisers before a blazing fireplace, the two leaders ranged from the chance of a major disagreement to a tricky Great Lakes waterfront dispute that subjects some Canadian vessels to union harassment in American ports.

"Was there a rocking chair?" Conservative Press Secretary Andrew Hatcher of the White House was asked in a mid-afternoon briefing devoid of any hard news.

"The president does have a rocker."

"Was he in it?" he was asked.

"Not when I left," replied Hatcher.

Pearson and Kennedy—with the latter standing in the background while Pearson gave a resume of the afternoon talks—were more informative.

Pearson said talks had been conducted in a very informal way but seriously.

Then he called for a document

Belleville and District Men Attend Assessment Meeting, Hear Talk by W. J. Spooner

Municipal assessors from Belleville and the surrounding district early this week attended the 22nd annual meeting of the Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario, held in Toronto.

The annual conclave was held Monday to Wednesday, with over 600 in attendance from all parts of the province. Main speaker for the convention sessions, Hon. W. J. Spooner, Minister of Municipal Affairs, told what his department was doing to assist in fitting municipal assessors for their jobs.

Attending from Belleville were Assessment Commissioner G. L. Thompson and Clifford Matthews, Hastings county assessor Cecil Geen, Prince Edward county assessor Fred Jennings, and township assessors Clarence Bird of Thurlow and Wilmont Bailey of Sidney.

WELL ATTENDED

All sessions were well attended with members taking full advantage of question and answer periods to get answers to problems.

The meeting also saw presentation of the report of the Assessment Research Committee of which Belleville's assessment commissioner is a member.

Hon. Mr. Spooner told the convention his department was considering many petitions received covering all aspects of assessment. He said, however, that his department could not legislate sound assessment practice into law.

With this in mind his department was studying the many avenues available which by progressive implementation will improve the calibre of the assessor.

"This, I feel is the basic need," he said, "as without qualified and knowledgeable assessors, any program we undertake can have only limited success."

WILL OFFER COURSE

Mr. Spooner said the course offered by the Institute of Municipal Assessors through the facilities of the extension department at Queen's University would be extended.

This extended course will include basic economics, political science, urban geography, local government, public administration for the assessment officer and progress in chemistry and advanced appraisal.

Financial assistance would be provided for students taking course, while all possible would be done to ensure the financial stability of the Institute to enable it to carry out its purposes without financial sacrifice for its directors.

Equalized assessment throughout the province based on models approved by regional boards and techniques was hoped to be achieved by 1960 when a nucleus of well trained competent assessors was achieved, Mr. Spooner said.

ACT AMENDED

He noted the assessment act had been amended to facilitate the appointment of county assessment commissioners. To further encourage participation in this system the province would pay $2,500 toward the salary of any county assessment commissioner appointed.

In conclusion Mr. Spooner said the assessment function was basic to the financial stability of the municipality.

"It is the foundation behind many other jurisdictions in assessment practices and procedure.

"I am dedicated to not only pitching up this slack but in making sure that the assessor become the most competent, our goal is the most realistic, so as to ensure not only the financial health of the municipalities but to safeguard property owners against excessive and inequitable municipal taxes".

The previous Diefenbaker government refused to accept the warheads during peacetime, suggesting the U.S. store them near the border from where they could be shipped to Canadian military stations in time of war. Americans considered this unsatisfactory. The work will cost the town exactly half what it would have last year under the old provincial policy" says the engineer).

There's a hope that work on Sidney Street might come under the 75 per cent grant. It will if the town can convince province to recognize the street and adjacent streets as an access route from Highway 2 to Highway 2. Otherwise, re-construction work on Sidney will only be eligible for a grant of a third of the cost.

ELMWOOD ACRES WORK

Mr. Alderney said that the curbing program would be started to Elmwood Acres next week. He appeals this morning that there a good month. Elmwood Acres residents petitioned the town to have the curbs installed and are paying half the installation costs.

"They welcome the workmen with open arms," says the engineer.

On Campbell Street, the town will install storm sewers from the Broken Front Road to Princess Street. This will remove the "lake" from the street in rainy weather and also ensure water out of the sanitary sewers and out of the super-saturated sewage treatment plant.

One final word from Mr. Alderney:

"Response to Clean Up Week appeals has been good. Our men have picked up tons and tons of refuse from the curbs this week."

CITY BACKS POLICEMEN

MONTREAL (CP) — The bombing of terrorists' headquarters of the separatist Front de Liberation Quebecois have led the City of Montreal to increase its fire insurance benefits for policemen who might have to dismantle bombs or handle explosives. The administration announced the guarantee Friday at the request of Police Director J. Adrien Robert who said one of his men was informed recently by an insurance company that the policy does not cover fatal mishaps in such work.

Trenton Now Carrying Out Major Road Work Program

TRENTON — Town Engineer Eric Alderney is a busy man to get in touch with now-a-days. The reason is that Mr. Alderney is in charge of the long-awaiting Trenton's most ambitious road rehabilitation program to date.

Finally pinned down and asked to comment on progress to date, Mr. Alderney had this to say: "We've got 46 full-time employees in the public works' department this year — and that is the highest in the town's history. And every employee is in Trenton taxpayer, so we're doing our bit to solve the unemployment problem locally."

Since April 9, workmen have been swinging back and forth across the town, repairing curbs in east and west Trenton. In east Trenton, curbing and road work has been completed on George, Crown and Heber Sts. and the men are now working at the three Sts of Byron and Campbell Streets. A whole "block" in this area has been "torn up" and rehabilitated," says Mr. Alderney.

Next on the list, McLellan Ave. is almost complete. Curbs have been installed and roadwork started. The Dundas-Queen now is to rebuild sidewalk tops up to make way for the curbs.

WHERE NEXT

Victoria Ave.? What's going on there? Curbing. And the curbs are being into the boulevard in order to keep the road from 30 to 24 feet to a standard 30 feet. The new sidewalk faced and the type of surfacing used will depend on the state of the road when it's finished.

Wragge Street too (on the west side) will come in for its share of the work this year. And council has given the green light for the public utilities to relocate their mains from Wragge Street to Prince Charles School. As this will be done under local improvements, residents will have a chance to register objections, if any, and will be made aware of this chance through newspaper advertisements.

Dufferin Ave. is in for a whole new face-lifting. Besides the water mains, the street will receive the complete treatment. The base of the street will be taken up; storm sewers and sanitary sewers installed and renewed, other installations lowered to conform and the street hard-surfaced.

All work on Dufferin Ave. hinges, of course, on Municipal Board approval of the project, as does contemplated reconstruction work on Sidney Street from Creelman Ave. to the town limits.

Sidney, as part of Highway 33, is eligible for a 75 per cent grant of reconstruction costs from the province. The work will cost the town exactly half

Kenny is reported to be in satisfactory condition.

In his remarks to the cadets, WC Powell stressed the value of a good education in these days of large-scale unemployment.

ORDERS SUITS

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill — nearly half-through his 84th year—has ordered three natty new velvet "siren suits"—his favorite outfit for he was Britain's only leader, his tailor said Friday, the siren suit is an originally designed outfit similar to the British soldier's battle dress but made in one piece like a pair of coveralls.

Saskatchewan 'Refugee' M. D. Flays Medicare

TRENTON — "Everything smells slightly - - whatever they do."

These were the words used by Dr. H. R. DeGroot in sum up his opinion of Saskatchewan's socialist government in general, and medicare plan in particular, when he spoke at the weekly meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club Thursday night.

The doctor, now a surgeon at Trenton Memorial Hospital, said the plan was originally based on five principles - - - pre-payment, universal coverage, quality, government administration and acceptance by doctor and patient alike. The last principle was never fulfilled, he said, because the plan was never acceptable to both patients and doctors."

He said that Lord Taylor, a British peer invited by the government to mediate in the dispute, was upset because he had been told by Premier Lloyd he would be entering a politics conference. "Instead, he found that 68 percent of the population was already covered by some form of hospitalization, that the government had introduced the plan over the heads of everyone."

Lord Taylor finally worked out a plan that was acceptable to both the doctors and the government, but it was torpedoed by the government, he claimed.

Dr. DeGroot said he and other doctors in the province refused to work because they felt the plan was bad for the quality of medicine, and because it has shown that medicare legislation has been based not on what is good for the patient but on what is popular from a vote-getting point of view."

Dr. DeGroot said that doctors are trying to give good medical service without interference, although this also sometimes comes from private insurance. All insurance schemes, private and public, are tied to the profit margin," he said. "This is the only objectionable in itself, unless it begins to interfere with medical ethics. The profit margin spoils the doctor-patient relationship," he added.

Dr. DeGroot said he was also opposed to what is known in the profession as "pro-rating" — that is, closed shops giving a certain amount of dollars to insurance companies.

"Generally speaking, any insurance scheme should be based on pre-payment and universal coverage, without forcing people to join." And the insurance should be non-cancellable and also flexible, he added.

Answering a question follow ing his address, Dr. DeGroot said he believed the proposed medical insurance for Ontario was basically very sound, because if there were mutual confidence on all sides it would be possible to build an excellent service on the basis of a skeleton plan.

Dr. DeGroot was thanked on behalf of the Kiwanians by Frank Hyland, arrangements for which were made by club president Carl Weese.

Whether or not other features of equal merit will be presented next season will hinge on the public's response to an extension of the membership campaign. It is planned to carry on with the campaign all through May and association members will work towards providing sufficient funds to be assured top artists for the concert series.

CHILDREN AND POISONS DON'T MIX

Curiosity is both a blessing and a danger to young children. A blessing because it is a search for knowledge, but a danger because it can sometimes lead to an accidental poisoning. When you have very young children a special effort must made to keep anything that might be harmful safely out of reach.

When children are old enough to understand they should be strongly cautioned about harmful substances. Should an accidental poisoning occur, or if you should even suspect one, summon your physician at once.

Agreement Apparently Ends Racial Demonstrations

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Jubilant Negro integration leaders mapped plans today for a voter registration drive on the heels of what they considered an overwhelming victory in Birmingham's six-week-long integration effort.

City officials, however, scoffed at a biracial citizens' committee agreement on proposals to end the conflict, which has seen more than 2,000 Negroes arrested and fire hoses and police dogs brought into play to control seething throngs of Negro demonstrators.

Integration forces — led by Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., of Atlanta—had kept the city virtually under siege since April 2.

As the Negroes began gathering volunteers for a door-to-door registration campaign, city leaders were adamant in their statements that the agreement was not binding on them.

Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor, a staunch segregationist, who directed the arrests and repulsed the crowds said the agreement was "the biggest face-saving statement that ever was issued."

"We've licked them and licked them good," he declared.

WON'T INTERFERE

Connor, however, said he would not interfere if businessmen wished to integrate their lunch counters — one of the key points King said was agreed upon by the group.

Prime Minister Has Sympathy For the Mets

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson proudly claimed a National Leaguer from his constituency Friday night in talking baseball at a press reception held with President Kennedy.

Ken MacKenzie, from Gore Bay, Ont., in Pearson's Algoma East riding, is a pitcher with New York Mets. Pearson, a former semi-pro player himself, made it clear that he follows MacKenzie's record closely.

The prime minister also said he has a certain sympathy for the Mets, underdogs who have delighted their supporters this season with a five-game winning streak to their credit already.

"After all—I was in opposition for a decade," said Pearson.

But he confessed that he is really a fan of New York Yankees and noted that the American League club has not been doing so well this season.

MacKenzie, a six-foot left-hander, is leading the National League in earned run averages—a remarkable 0.62 in 29 innings pitched in three victories and no defeats for the season to date.

In 11 decisions he has struck out 11, given up seven hits and only one walk.

tols blazing.

Tellier died later and so did one of the prisoners, Marcel Marcoux, 34. The other prisoner, Marcoux' cousin Claude Marcoux, 31, was wounded.

Both prisoners were also found criminally negligent after a jury heard five hours of testimony.

The verdict delivered in Friday said in part:

"... Guard Raymond Tellier met a violent death following criminal negligence with the responsibilities attributable to:

"1. Prisoners Marcel and Claude Marcoux (cousins).

"2. Guards Alphonse Desormeaux and Jean Marcil who exhibited a negligence, possibly without thinking, but extremely serious in nature, before using their firearms.

"3. The senior official of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, Mr. Michel LeCorre, who gave hasty orders, not seriously considered the gravity and in a responsibility to save human life.

CROWN NOT OBLIGED

The finding means there is no obligation on the Crown to lay charges, but the jury found anyone "criminally responsible" for Tellier's death, he would face charges decided upon by the provincial attorney-general.

Ballistics showed the two dead men were struck by gunshots fired by Alphonse Desormeaux, one of the three guards the warden ordered to invade the cell.

Desormeaux has 29 years experience as a guard and was considered something of a sharpshooter.

An autopsy also showed Tellier suffered a number of stab wounds and testimony at the inquest indicated they were inflicted by the dead prisoner.

CONVINCED WOUNDS FATAL

Warden LeCorre said he was convinced when he gave the order to storm the cell, wounds Tellier suffered from the knife were "mortal."

Desormeaux, 56, and Aurele Marcil, 59, were the guards found criminally negligent. The third guard, Gilles Lecompte, 25, said he withheld his fire because he "couldn't see clearly inside the cell."

Dief Denies Report Was Kept Secret

SASKATOON (CP) — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker Friday denied that his Progressive Conservative government had kept secret a special tax report on corporation profits.

A report on corporation profits, which Finance Minister Walter Gordon said was kept secret by the Diefenbaker government, was made public Wednesday by the royal commission on taxation.

"There was no secret report and concealment," Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview during a stop-over on his way to Ottawa from his home town of Prince Albert.

The former prime minister was also miffed about a Washington report that said relations between Canada and the United States had "almost ground to a halt" in the last year of the Conservative administration.

"That story was simply the usual Liberal propaganda," he said. "I will deal with it in its proper place, the House of Commons."

Silex-Equipped Coffee Cart To Be Operated

The main floor coffee shop at Belleville General Hospital has been commandeered to make way for more bed space, but visitors to the hospital are not for long going to be without coffee service.

Members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, who for several years have operated the coffee shop as a fund raising venture, have come up with the idea of a silex-equipped coffee cart and the new service is expected to go into operation in the near future.

The coffee cart will be positioned in the general waiting room and during "operational" hours will be tended by a Hospital Auxiliary volunteer.

The idea of the coffee cart was decided upon after several alternatives were considered and eventually turned down.

"We want to get the coffee cart in operation as soon as possible," stated Auxiliary president Mrs. Fred Beeby, "after all the coffee shop meant considerable in the way of revenue for the Auxiliary."

Current project for the Auxiliary is raising funds for the purchase of a new linen folder to be used in the hospital laundry.

Fire Damages Home on Railway Terrace

A Belleville railroader, his wife and four young sons are seeking a home today after fire seriously damaged their Railway Terrace residence last night.

Homeless are Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Thrasher and their sons ranging in age from four to 15 years.

Mr. Thrasher, a machinist at the Toronto shops of the CNR had just returned to work yesterday morning after a two-day leave. Last night he hurried back to Belleville when phoned by his family as firefighters fought the blaze.

The fire started on the second floor as the younger children were preparing for bed. Cause of the blaze is unknown.

Firemen contained actual fire damage to the second storey but loss from smoke and water also was heavy in the rest of the house.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance estimated total damage about $3,000.

Also living in the house was Mrs. Thrasher's sister, Mavis Jones.

Today, while seeking a new home, the family is lodging across the street with Mrs. Thrasher's mother, Mrs. W. C. Jones.

FOUR MURDERED

LONDON (AP) — A woman and three children were found murdered, in a house at Stockbury, near Sittingbourne, today. Kent County police immediately launched a hunt for their killer. The dead woman was Mrs. Phyllis Waugh, 45, and three children were two of her daughters, aged 11 and 12, and a grandson aged five months.

'Conservation Drive' Will Be Laid Out by Kiwanians

The Belleville Kiwanis Club in co-operation with the Moira River Conservation Authority will mark out a route for a self guided "Conservation Drive" to include the major attractions of the Moira River watershed.

The suggested route around the Moira valley would be clearly marked by appropriate signs with motorists being able to use a guide booklet to decide which parts of the route they might wish to take in.

The drive would be so planned that it could be easily taken in during an afternoon's drive.

The idea is the brain child of Kiwanian Dick Lumbers and the service club's conservation committee. Mr. Lumbers is Kiwanis representative on the Authority Public Education and Conservation Extension committee.

"I have frequently been asked by people for directions on how to get to attractions within the watershed," Mr. Lumbers said, "and such a drive might also encourage tourists to stay longer in the area instead of driving through at 60 miles per hour."

GIVEN AUTHORITY

The Kiwanis club has been toying with the idea for several months and last night the "go ahead" was given by the Authority Public Education and Extension Committee.

The services of the Authority will share the cost of preparing the necessary signs and publishing of the guide booklets, which would be available at hotels and motels and other places in the area.

If possible the necessary signs will be prepared and erected this year but in any event it is expected the drive route will be clearly marked out in time for next year.

43 Workers Are Laid off At Northern

General lack of work resulting from the fact that new work orders have not materialized as quickly as expected, have resulted in temporary layoffs at Northern Electric.

Company official Saturday yesterday that 43 persons, 30 of whom are girls and women have been laid off.

All personnel affected are comparatively short service employees who were hired during 1962 then laid off last fall and recalled during January and February of this year.

"We are terming it a temporary layoff and we hope we will be in position to recall the workers in the near future," the official said.

Some of the laid off workers would be able to secure employment at the Northern factory at Bramalea in the Toronto district, if they wish to accept.

The layoffs did not come as a complete surprise to the workers as several weeks ago plant-association representatives were called in and informed that layoffs might be necessary.

According to contract any layoffs occurring are made on a seniority basis.

Authority Will Conduct Tour Of Moira Valley

Members of Belleville city council, together with members of municipal councils within the watershed will be guests of the Moira River Conservation Authority on June 12 for an all day bus trip around the Moira Valley.

The tour will start at the Authority headquarters at Canniffton and will take in Moira Lake, O'Hara's Mill, northwest of Madoc, the Queensboro area, reforestation projects in the Actinolite are and the Price and Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation areas.

Preliminary details of the proposed tour were agreed on last night by the Authority Public Education and Conservation Extension committee.

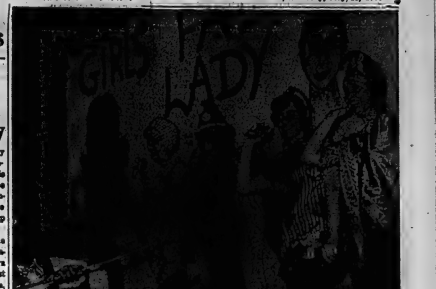
Efforts will be made to get Dr. G. Ross Reed, chairman of Metro-Toronto Region Conservation Authority as speaker for the noon luncheon.

School Teacher On the Reserve To Be Speaker

The Hastings County Historical Society is holding its annual meeting Monday evening, in the Corby Library Auditorium.

Guest speaker will be Leslie Claus. A school teacher on the Tyendinaga Reserve near Deseronto, Mr. Claus will describe "Past and Present Conditions on the Mohawk Indian Reserve". He will show slides of the Tyendinaga Reserve and will also display Indian articles.

The history of the Mohawk Indians is a most interesting and important one. Not only were they the first of the Loyalist groups to reach this area after the American Revolution, but they have also shown their loyalty to the Crown by their actions in the War of 1812, the Revolution of 1837 (when they provided protection for Fort Henry at Kingston) and the two World Wars.



This promises to be an excellent evening and the public is cordially invited.

Charge Is Laid After Accident

A Belleville man has been charged with careless driving after an early-morning accident at the intersection of Bridge and Charles streets.

Harry Douglas Burnell, 226 Pine Street, was charged after police say, his automobile clipped a hydro pole at the intersection.

Total property damage was estimated at $200.

Kiwanis Follies of 1963 Smart and Varied Program

By EUGENE LANG

In this day of automation the line of least resistance is the comfortable living room chair to the television set. Only or from the gas pedal to the closest drive-in for an evening's entertainment, but for those hardy souls who ventured out into the inclement atmosphere last night or on Thursday evening to the Collegiate Auditorium the means employed to get there were well rewarded by the attraction seen. This was the third consecutive presentation by the Belleville Kiwanis Club of the Rondeaunettes in their annual Follies.

With a cast of nineteen members the "Follies of '63" kept the stage alive and hopping for two and a half hours in a most sprightly and fast paced revue that featured talented amateurs in the realms of singing, dancing and comedy skits of vivacious variety from opening curtain to closing finale.

Produced and directed by William G. Long who also had the arduous and exacting role of accompanist both on the organ and piano the show practically bubbles from beginning to end in all its aspects. With original ideas developed by Mr. Long and Douglas Bannon a feeling of differentness crept into so many of the numbers that lent them a life poised by a laugh. Catchy tunes inveigled with cleverly composed lines added to the spiciness afford into a majority of the attractions presented. It is not necessary to direct or analyze any specific portion of the program, as to see it is to enjoy it, and to enjoy it is to savour it.

Leading roles were entrusted to Doug and Fran Bannon, Bob Burke, Judy Lynn Dianne Bell, Caljum and Lynne Brown with each of the above mentioned performers giving forth with their best. Bob Burke powdered his humorous skits with hilarity and dusted them laughs at all times. Dianne McCallum added immeasurably with her dancing abilities with laurels in this field being garnered around Judy Lynn for her successful achievements. Lynne Brown supplied with her fine voice outstanding performances and the Bannons can always be counted on for finely turned in appearances.

Costuming was colorful and eye appealing being tailored to each selection with care and completion to the betterment of the production. Scene changes were quick and of a non lagging type that pushed impetus to the show. Some of the choral offerings were of a style that could be improved upon with longer cadences and surer attacks. In retrospect however the cumulative result was one that could be classed as most enjoyable for the payers and a well rounded effect turned in by the players. See it tonight at 8.15 — you'll like it.

BOOSTS TAX

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner has signed into law the controversial boost in the city's sales tax to four per cent from three. The increase, to become effective June 1, is part of the program to close a $236,000,000 gap in the city's first $5,000,000,000 budget.

Keep Shore Road on Island

The initial phase of a half million dollar development program at Zwick's Island is to be undertaken this year.

The Belleville Parks Board is to be congratulated on that decision. Few such bodies ever have such a rich windfall as that provided the local board by the reclaiming of this large, magnificently-situated tract of land, through the city's land-fill method of garbage disposal. To permit such an area to remain undeveloped and unused for any longer period than is absolutely necessary would be akin to the heir of a fortune in cash stuffing it under his bed, instead of reaping the dividends available from wise investment.

When that is said, however, we feel impelled to advise the Board to pause long enough with its program to take a second hard look at its plans.

It is proposed to close off the road which leads off the Bay Bridge Road at the southerly end of the "island." This road now follows the shore, going in a westerly direction, turning north and then turning east again. Much of this road will be eliminated, although access to the neighborhood of the shore will be provided to the rear of the central hill, by a road coming in from the northeast.

We understand, and appreciate, the Board's thinking in approving such a plan. A sand beach is to be built along the shore and the whole area is to be kept free of cars, so that children may play there in safety and families may picnic, or otherwise while away the time, without any of the annoyances inherent in the proximity of automobile traffic.

This is a pretty picture—but is it a realistic one? The primary objective in the development of the park might well be the provision of some outlet for recreation for those residents of the city who lack the means to avail themselves of the many other beaches, lakes and play areas scattered throughout the district. But a moment's thought will convince anyone that the number of people without automobiles is relatively small, and the area to be developed relatively large. The public will never be utilized to the maximum if its patrons are limited to those who are car-less.

The greatest potential utilization will result if the park is made a convenient place for everybody to use when leisure time is too limited to permit trips to Presqu'ile, the Sand Banks, the Outlet, Moira Lake, Crows Lake and the like. People with only an hour or so to spend will want to drive to the park. They will want to drive as close as possible to where they are going to bathe and picnic. Harassed parents will not want to load themselves like beasts of burden with kiddies, rugs, playthings, baby bottles and picnic baskets and then stagger a quarter of a mile or so to the shore.

The road around the island should be retained. Probably it should be moved back from the shore in the vicinity of the planned bathing beach, on the south side of the island. Let the road run at the foot of the central knoll. But let it go all around the island, and let there be convenient parking spaces en route, instead of crowding cars into one central parking lot, far removed from the water.

Snooping, Huh?

Cpl. Garry G. Fraser of the RCMP, was wounded while disarming a bandit in Tersse, B.C. last year. His left leg was amputated above the knee as a result of the wound, and 30 blood transfusions were required to keep him alive. He was a constable at the time, but he has since been promoted, awarded the George Medal for "courage of a high order," and been the indirect beneficiary of more than $2,500 in awards.

Cpl. Fraser is not fit for active duty, with only one leg, but he has been retained on the force. As an RCMP non-com. he is taking a seven-year commerce and law degree at the University of British Columbia. This degree should be a decided asset to Cpl. Fraser, but one assumes he would rather have the leg back.

No mention of Cpl. Fraser, as a specific case, was made when the University students, and some professors, were complaining about RCMP. officers on their campuses. But, one presumes, Cpl. Fraser was not one of the men they were talking about.

I have worked voluntarily for several valuable societies that do an immense amount of good in suffering humanity. They were all constantly short of funds. I often used to think that if we transferred our attentions to dogs, we would get all the money we needed.—Claud Mullins, British magistrate.

Humor With Local Flavor Tickles Ottawa's Funny Bone

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — ... scion off the reportorial cuff ...

KNOCK KNOCK:

Remember ... way back when ... one of the jarrier bits of "hoop" living was the old "Knock, Knock, Who's There?" routine.

Well, the triumphant Liberals in their new and joyous mood of Sweet Victory have adapted it for a laugh on their old Conservative foes.

One sign these days, on Parliament Hill, of knowing the "in" language, is to be able to toss off a political joke about the Tories.

The latest, indicating the ... gleeful state of Liberal ecstasy not bad, although it does tend to "date" the jokesmith.

Goes like this:

Joker: Knok, Knock!
Straight-man: Who's there?
Joker: Diefenbaker.
Straight-man: Died who?
Joker: Don't tell me you've forgotten already?

There is something a little sad in the spate of political jokes currently making the Capital rounds. They are all one way, with the Liberals getting the laughs on the Conservatives ... and the Tories simply sitting there and being ... unfunny.

Ironically, it was an American, television and night club comic called Jack Benny who told the joke, harpooning Prime Minister Pearson in what the Conservatives consider to be their most vulnerable spot ... his supposed "pro-Americanism," as they call it.

(Matter of fact, some Conservatives are a bit further, suggesting that while the former Tory days Mike Pearson was said by some of his political enemies to be "soft" on Communism, he is now "softer" on Americans.)

But back to the Carter harpoon, over which the Tories hold the joke, harpooning Prime Minister Pearson in what the Conservatives consider to be their most vulnerable spot ... his supposed "pro-Americanism," as they call it.

Jack told a national TV audience that John Diefenbaker really had not minded so much losing the election ... (then what he thinks!) because he knew that the winner was going to get as the prize.

"An all-expense trip to Washington, Ottawa, and this week, Mike Pearson's at Hyannisport) for a short course on how to run the Canadian government."

This is cutting delicately close to the election bone, and there are some Liberals who, privately, are touchy about supposed American "influence" in Ottawa, are not amused by it.

CALL CUCUMBER

In the same sly way laugh at rain, listen to the tale of Mr. T. R. G. Fletcher, Chief of the Trade Commissioner Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

He had the misfortune of having Cucumber as his "local" office extension number ... the Federal Government's private CE-ntral 2-8211 telephone exchange.

There is really nothing that actually is wrong with the unlucky about having 2-8286 as your number ... just as long as everybody in Ottawa does not know that it happens to correspond on the dial to CU-cumber.

Remember ... way back when ... one of the jarrier bits of "hoop" living was the old "Knock, Knock, Who's There?" routine.

Well, the triumphant Liberals in their new and joyous mood of Sweet Victory have adapted it for a laugh on their old Conservative foes.

TEACHERS MEET—Close to 300 Eastern Ontario public school teachers are meeting in Belleville today to discuss professional issues. The assembly at Queen Elizabeth School, brings togeather members of Region 4 of the Federation of Women Teachers. Last minute details before discussions began this morning were talked over by organizers above: Mrs. Helen Calnan (seated), secretary hostess, Belleville; Mrs. Irene Phillips, president Belleville FWTO unit; Mrs. Cora Bailey, past president FWTO, Peterborough, and Lawrence Kells, superintendent Belleville's public schools.

Pearson

from an aide about Canadian-U.S. steps to pacify Great Lakes labor discord and cracked: "Wait a moment until I make a marginal note. We found this paper on the floor."

The president joined in the laughter, raised by the references to a Canadian pre-election report that the former Progressive Conservative government was irked by a U.S. memo in its possession, purported to bear a derogatory notation by the president.

"I do want to say we have been made to feel very much at home," Pearson said.

The two circulated, shaking hands, and the president signed autographs.

Kennedy was asked whether he would be making another trip soon to Ottawa—last visited in 1961.

"We'll see what develops," he said and just smiled when he was asked whether he would plant another tree there.

He wrenched his back, which still bothers him, wielding the shovel last time.

Pearson said he would see the president as often as possible but—with a look at Kennedy—"he's much busier than I am."

real said the previous record for a snowfall in May was about 1.3 inches. The present fall guaranteed a record "that might stand up for a long time," the forecaster said.

At Huntsville, a resort community in the Muskoka area, highway department officials trundled out several snowplows which had not been converted for summer trucking and put them to work clearing the roads of more than four inches of snow.

Gravenhurst, Bracebridge and Burks Falls in the same district reported a similar amount. Orillia, further south, had an inch of snow Friday night with more falling.

Cornwall, which got an estimated six inches, reported several power failures. One of them kept radio station CJSS off the air for 45 minutes.

RAIN HITS LAKE AREA

Stiff rain squalls fell steadily along the heavily populated north shore of Lake Ontario from Toronto to Kingston, with temperatures not far from freezing and streams climbing steadily higher.

The rainstorm was a factor in at least two deaths in Southern Ontario. At Brantford, lineman Edward Davidson, 44, was electrocuted when he touched a live overhead wire while working in the storm to restore hydro service after lightning blacked out much of the city.

In Toronto, nine-year-old Grace Cardiaco was struck by a car as she crossed the street toward school in a downpour.

HAD LOBSTERS, FINED

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Carl H. Thorby, 36, captain of the trawler Narragansett, was fined $220 Friday in district court after he was found guilty of possessing 44 egg-bearing female lobsters. The charges were brought by state fish and game officials.

Case History May Help You Decide on Early Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

Are you around the age of 60, and toying with the idea of retiring early? And do you want to move away and settle near one of your married children?

And are you afraid to risk it?

These three questions, about in that order, are posing one of the major retirement dilemmas of the 1960's . . . and following here is a case history that may help some people solve it:

"My husband is 61 years old this month," according to the wife, "and I am 57. We are thinking of moving to the California coast where our daughter — our only child — lives with her family.

"My husband has worked for a small Midwest firm for 22 years. Eight months ago the firm was sold, and the new owner didn't love him, it seems. They have made his working hours very difficult for him, and hold no hope for his future.

"Formerly, the firm had a small non - contributory pension plan. The new owners refused to accept it, but did agree to pay small pensions under certain conditions. Under these conditions my husband will get $68 a month at age 65, but nothing if he quits before then.

"We have lived frugally through the years. We bought a private annuity which will start paying my husband $95 a month as of now. We have accumulated $19,000 in a savings account; $15,500 in Government Bonds; $3,000 in stocks; and $1,100 in cash. We own our small home . . ."

Does this couple dare quit? Should they move near their daughter?

They can afford to quit, and since they can they should — rather than spend these next precious years at dead years that are bringing unhappiness and are going nowhere.

They have a combined take $35,000 of their money (they should hold the remaining $4,200 for moving and getting adjusted) and get an income of $140 a month for it as in California, savings and loan associations are paying up to 4.8 per cent return on insured savings accounts. The $140, plus $95 on the annuity, plus a home, would make this couple richer than most retired people in California.

If the husband should die, the wife still would get the $140 a month and have the home. It would be rough, but she could manage.

Moving half-way across the country to be near a married child can — and does—work. But the retired couple must recognize themselves in advance to roll with a couple of punches they are likely to get. The first one is economic, and the second is social. If the parents find the daughter's family living on a higher economic scale than they can afford, they must settle in a different neighborhood, not try to compete, and accept no favors. If they find the daughter's family living by a lower social and cultural scale — this frequently is the case — then the parents must not embarrass them. Few retired parents can understand that their married children, with better education than they had, often have to apologize for their parents to their friends. Brutal? Yes. But true.

FAMILY TREASURES

This couple, in moving, will be tempted to discard family treasures to cut moving costs. With their money, it would be foolish. They'll need furnishings anyway, and the new, second set, can never replace the old.

This couple, with $39,200, has wealth — an estate, in fact. Any heirs would like to get it. If their daughter and her husband are a couple of people — instead of two darling kittens as most parents think — they would like to get it someday. And with that in view will be nice. Very nice. Provided the parents hold firmly to every cent they have, and never let the daughter and her husband know for sure how much they have.

This couple must find something to do on the California coast, and figure on not more than about 10 per cent of their time, at most, being spent with the daughter's family. If the husband will hold his job through this summer, then spend as much as $1,000 on the vacation looking for a job on the California coast, it would be wise. It would mean more money, an interest of his own, and the best possible chance for him and his wife to make friends of their own.

situation in Laos. Canada is a member of the three-man International Control commission stationed there.

TO REVIVE CHANNELS

Pearson spoke specifically of the need for reviving and diversifying channels of communications between the two governments, including the various defence, economic and other committees which had been set up to resolve specific issues but which had not functioned to any extent in the last year of the Diefenbaker government.

But he stressed the need also of seeking channels of communications outside the "ordinary" courses of government channels — as in the case of recent personal exchanges between the two leaders. Pearson said he realized Kennedy was the busier man, suggesting thereby that he might have to call more often on it a new Canadian Premier would on Pearson.

But undoubtedly revived momentum of the ministerial meetings would remove some of the load of personal diplomacy. An indication is the Kennedy-Pearson agreement that Defence Secretary Robert McNamara meet soon with Canadian Defence Production Minister C. M. Drury for the purpose of reviewing the flow of defence contracts between the two countries.

Speculation followed that this meeting would lead to the placement in Canada of some orders for component parts of the $6,500,000,000 U.S. program for production of a new military jet fighter known as the TFX.

Little-Known Caribbean Isle Has Much to Offer Visitors

By Shirley and Bob Sloane

COZUMEL ISLAND, Mexico —This drop of an island in the Caribbean, off the east coast of the Yucatan peninsula, was the first place in Mexico Cortes landed. And until recently hardly anyone else bothered, with the exception of a few people like Jean Lafitte and Henry Morgan.

Like Yucatan, Cozumel is hot and brushy, and not a tropical paradise. But it seems like it. The image is projected more than a little by the most incredibly colored ocean water between here and wherever else you may find it.

As in other places where the ocean abandons bland blue and seaside gray in favor of the rainbow, colors mean reefs. Reefs mean shipwrecks, and shipwrecks mean legends of pirate booty and all that jazz. The odd part is that mostly it is true. Many a hulk lies beneath these waters, and many a serious diver has spent years here often profitably.

So have many a serious fisher of bonefish, tarpon, and tuna, not to mention lesser and less challenging lights such as conch, turtle and lobster, all of which seem to beg attracted or trapped by reefs.

ROSIEST OF WATERS

But to the esthetic tourists these reefs mean the blurred greenest, mauvest, and rosiest of waters, an incredible pattern of colors daubed by the day and the light in shifting streaks that run from the soft beaches to the horizon. They trick the eye by the hour and by the mile with endless change, and for this sheer novelty, there is likely no place quite so fascinating in the world.

Accommodations still are on the primitive side here. The best promises to be Barbachano's Cozumel Caribe Hotel, a high-opened beach-motel where there were still no upstairs railings and we felt sorry for anyone who came home from Dennis' Restaurant with too much tequila under his belt.

Also for anyone who escaped home from Dennis' with the much Xnipek under his belt, Dennis' is an excellent Yucatan restaurant in the island's only village, San Miguel, and Xnipek is a Mayan hot sauce which makes tobasco seem bland by comparison.

Cozumel has an informal, homey ambiance which no doubt will disappear as soon as it becomes fashionable. Presently, everyone gets acquainted before anyone else, even at neighboring hotels. "Downtown" San Miguel is closed most of the time and grass grows in the streets. At least one hotel has hammocks strung in the accommodations for those who would go "native."

Lolling on the beach and fishing are the prime pastimes here, but the adventurous do things like going for glass-bottomed boat rides. These are standard for most tropical resorts these days, but in this reef-bound island they are uniquely rewarding.

For one thing, they last a heck of a long time . . . up to three hours around the island . . . and include delightful sights of coral balls, tubes, anthozoons, spiny horns, rusted ship fittings and a profusion of iridescent tropical fish.

SMUGGLERS' COVE

Every ship includes a stop at a place inevitably named Smuggler's Cove and featuring an abandoned adobe shack painted with:

"Bucks, Boats, Beer, Bicycles, Bait, Barnes . . . credit." It seemed a likely spot for smugglers or pirates.

Other boat trips include the day's jaunt from the clustered little hotels of San Juan Beach to San Francisco Beach, where lobster is trapped and roasted for lunch.

But as Charles go, the cognoscenti prefer to ride over from Puerto Juares on the Yucatan peninsula. In the company of goats, pigs, and others in what appears to be a Spanish galleon.

Some never make it at all Cozumel, considering it spoiled in opposition to Isla Mujeres(the Isle of Women), an even smaller inlet just to the north where there is not only a predictable pirate's cove, but a pirate's home and park, not to mention a Mayan signal tower used for some ancient and forgotten purpose.

At the moment Cozumel is rustic, romantic, and probably not quite ready for tourists. But in a year or two it will be a fashionable Riviera with hotels, boats, sports cars and sports, and then we can say we knew it when.

The Moira W.I. held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. Milton Vandewater, with an attendance of eight members.

The president opened the meeting. Letters were read and business discussed. It was decided to hold a strawberry social in June at the school, it weather permits. The committee consists of Mrs. Elmer Thompson, Mrs. Angus Mumby, Mrs. Nelson McIver.

A "Decoration Day" is to be held at the cemetery, date to be set later.

Mrs. Elmer Thompson, convenor for the program is as follows: a reading by Mrs. W. Collins, "Among the Hills," a discussion was held on "Pattie and Margarine' many questions were asked, also a contest on dairy products.

After the meeting closed lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

Question: A relative drives me crazy every time we have dinner at her home, because she insists on removing plates from my lap as soon as my nerves WOULD you please use this letter? Maybe your opinion on what is correct would help her break this annoying habit.

Mrs. K. H., New Haven, Conn.

ONLY WHEN ALL FINISHED

Answer: This sounds more like a marathon than a dinner-party. Plates should be removed only when everyone is finished. As a matter of fact, a considerate hostess keeps a little food on her own plate and continues to make stabs at it until everyone has put down his knife and fork, even if it means picking at cold mashed potatoes until hearty eaters have had seconds. As long as the hostess at least appears to be eating, no one will be shy about eating slowly or having more. When dessert is finished, the hostess then puts down her own fork and begins to clear for the next course.

Question: A boy I can't stand asked me to dance at our school's Spring prom and I reluctantly accepted as possible. One of my girl friends said it was mean of me not to dance with him and his feelings were hurt. Even though I'm not very fond of him, I didn't mean to be rude. Is it ungracious to refuse a dance, regardless of what the reason is? — M. C., Boston, Mass.

Answer: A girl may refuse to dance, as long as she's graceful about it and offers a suitable reason or apology. When a dance is refused, though it's more polite to wait a bit before turning off with someone else — this to protect the feelings of the boy who's just been turned down.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I received your gracious letter advising me to detach myself from the ungrateful people I had befriended. Any time I start thinking about it I get your letter out and believe me it works.

This is the first time we have ever had such a brush-off, and I've helped lots of people. We aren't frumps; we travel; belong to a curling club; we are both musical and avid readers.

So many thanks, Doris, for your letter with its wonderful explanations and advice. If your other problem children get as much out of your letters as you're to be commended.—CONDEMNED WITHOUT TRIAL.

DEAR CONDEMNED—You had the good sense to follow through. Understanding what's behind people's actions helps us to cope, doesn't it?

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I had my daughter before I was married; my husband plans to adopt her. We've been married seven years and she is mine. I haven't told her anything yet. Do you think I should?—BETTINA.

* * *

DEAR BETTINA—Yes. Before anyone else does. Make it a dead secret between you; and carry out the adoption to give her the status which cannot be hers otherwise.

DEAR DORIS—Is it or is it not proper for a middle-aged widow to invite a married man, also middle-aged, from a distant town, to spend the night in her home?

I was confronted with this problem and did not issue the invitation. Now I am being criticized by some people close to me for being unfriendly and inhospitable.

This gentleman and his wife were friends of my husband and me for several years. We often frequently visited in each other's homes and had my husband been living I would most certainly have expected our friend to stay here while he was in town; but being alone, I did not think it proper.

Usually my twelve-year-old niece is with me. Would her presence in the house be considered sufficient insurance against gossip, should this situation arise again?—MODERN WIDOW.

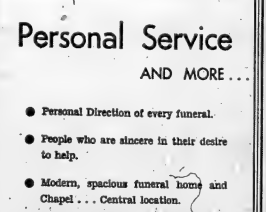
DEAR WIDOW—So tongues wag either way. But you are right to avoid any appearance of a compromising situation. Write him for dinner and send him back to his hotel with your blessing.

The presence of another adult in the home would change things, but not a young teenager.



* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO SORRY—Praise, yes; but not extravagant to the point that even he knew he didn't deserve it. Now he is shocked because the worm has turned. Is there no room for affection, and a gentler way of helping him face up to the facts?

VON Cannot Depend On Fund Raising Appeals

By PATRICIA RUSAK

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Joseph Jeffrey of London, Ont., president of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, told the organization's 61st annual meeting Friday the VON will not be able to expand its services by depending on fund-raising appeals.

He said the order must look at its financial situation "more realistically" and combine all possible sources—Federal, provincial and municipal—for regular financial support.

In the past, fund-raising appeals to provide revenue for general purposes have been held every five years and the next appeal will begin by January of 1964, he said.

Mr. Jeffrey said both the VON head office staff in Ottawa and the field staff must be expanded. He asked delegates for their "wholehearted support" of an increase in the professional service charge nor the head office to five cents from 3½ cents per visit made by the branches.

The increase was decided upon in closed sessions of the meeting earlier Friday.

NEW ROLE OFFERED

Jean Leask of Ottawa, VON director-in-chief, told the meeting "a new role—a new set of relationships" was offered to the order by the expansion of home care.

The order can either provide leadership in home care programs or can provide skills for plans coordinated by other agencies, she said in her annual report.

She reported that last year, 36 of the order's 117 branches had developed a referral or liaison program for home care with one or more hospitals in their area, making a total of about 50 branches providing this service.

Guest speaker Emilie G. Sargent, executive director of the Visiting Nurses' Association of Detroit, said her organization employs 40 women called "home aids", for housekeeping services which are in great demand.

Miss Sargent said her organization is also increasing its use of the practical nurse "not as an independent practitioner" but as part of a team, working with a professional nurse.

"It is the responsibility of the professional nurse to lead, guide and make use of the practical nurse and the home aid," she said.

The two-day meeting was attended by 185 VON workers and board members representing 85 branches in eight provinces.

Mr. Jeffrey announced the 1964 annual meeting will be held May 7-8 in Ottawa.

Dorothy Maclean opened the devotional period by reading, 'Breath of Spring'; Edna Davenport read the Scripture, Dorothy Maclean read a poem, "Mother's Love", closing the devotional. The president reminded all to keep in mind the meeting for Red Cross and help all they could by getting in touch with Mrs. G. Graham.

A motion was passed to make a donation of $10 to each of the following: Red Shield for the tarded Children and Cancer Society.

Each member had been asked to bring garden or house plants which were auctioned off and the sum of $15 was realized from same.

Sandwiches and tea were served by refreshment committee, Lena Reid, Marion Wallbridge and Olive Mayell.

Question: Can you send me a large quantity recipe for a good pastry that perhaps could be mixed one day and refrigerated and used the following day? . . — Gladys B.

SATURDAY
Dinner Menu

Fluffy Nuwes-Fall Herb Omelette (see Friday); Hot Biscuits; Crumbed Casserole of Tomatoes and Mild Onions; Green Beans with Cheese Sauce; Rhubard Cobbler with Vanille-Nutmeg Sauce; Tea.

FOOLPROOF ICEBOX FLAKY PASTRY (large quantity)

Answer: Ten cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 2 lbs. best quality lard, 1 tablespoon salt, 3 eggs beaten in a 16-oz. measuring cup with 2 tablespoons vinegar, then fill the 2 cup (16-oz.) measuring cup to top with cold water. Add salt to flour in very large bowl, cut lard in with knives or pastry blender until like chunks of meat. Add water-egg-vinegar mixture, sprinkling it evenly over top of dough mass, and mix just until dough will hold together. Wrap in double wax paper, then in tea towel and chill. (Or store in bowl that has a tight cover.) Break off amount of dough needed and keep remainder well wrapped and chilled. The beauty of this pastry is that it will roll out readily right after being taken from the refrigerator.

Question: Do you have a good recipe for fudge brownies made with cocoa? When I make ordinary brownies they seem to look gooey (or chewy) and uncooked, yet when I test them with a toothpick it comes out clean (after the proper baking time is up) — Mrs. I. McW.

Answer: I am glad you asked for these, although if you would like a standard brownie recipe that is not "gooey" please let me know and I will send it to you.

COCOA BROWNIES

¼ cup sifted cake flour; ½ teaspoon baking powder; ¾ teaspoon salt; ½ cup cocoa; 1 cup granulated sugar; ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons soft shortening (half butter and half shortening is good); 2 eggs; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 1 cup chopped walnuts, almonds, pecans, Brazil nuts or peanuts.

Sift together the sifted cake flour, baking powder, salt and cocoa. Cream sugar and shortening (or shortening and butter if you like). Beat in egg yolks and vanilla until smooth. Then stir in flour mixture and nuts until dough forms, and mix just until dough will hold together. Wrap in double wax paper, then in tea towel and chill. (Or store in bowl that has a tight cover.) Break off amount of dough needed and keep remainder well wrapped and chilled. The beauty of this pastry is that it will roll out readily right after being taken from the refrigerator.

Spread in a buttered 8 x 8 x 2" pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr, for 30 to 35 minutes or until done. Cool in pan. Sprinkle with powdered sugar if desired. Cut into squares in pan.—Note: Try all of the suggested nuts at different times. Almonds and Brazils are especially good.

WEDDING

BELL — WILKS

CAMPBELLFORD — A pretty spring wedding was solemnized at Christ Anglican Church, here, on Saturday, May 4th, when Carolyn Rose, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wilks of Campbellford, became the bride of Jack Grant Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Bell of 17 Burton St., Belleville. The Rev. Owen G. Barrow officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. A. Archer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a gown of nylon organza over taffeta featuring a hooped skirt and bustle of peau de soie. Her fingertip veil was caught to a petal-shaped headdress of peau de soie, trimmed with seed pearls. She carried red Sweetheart roses.

Miss Margaret Wilks, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Misses Mary Lou Bell, the bridegroom's sister, and Caroline Rosebeck were bridesmaids. They wore pink nylon organza over taffeta with belled skirts and matching headdresses and carried white mums.

Little Miss Denise Wilks, the bride's sister, was flower girl, wearing white organza with matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of pink and white mums.

Mr. C. Robetaille, of Cleveland, Ohio, was groomsman, and Messrs. George Wilks and Ed. Preis were ushers.

A reception was held in the parish hall, where the bride's mother received the guests in turquoise nylon chiffon over satin with rose colored accessories. The bridegroom's mother also received in navy crepe with matching duster and rose colored accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to the U.S.A., the bride chose a dress of coral shade with matching hat and coat of wheat shade with matching accessories. On their return, the couple will live in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Oshawa, Trenton, Brantford, Belleville, Ottawa and Cleveland, Ohio.

Prior to the wedding, the bride was entertained at showers by Mrs. Bell of Belleville, and Mrs. H. E. Cryderman of Campbellford.

MARIAN OBSERVANCE—Traditional Catholic ceremony took place at Our Lady of Fatima School in Belleville yesterday in honor of the Virgin Mary. Procession of school children who laid floral tributes before school shrine saw crowning of the Virgin by Judy Barriage.

HAVE A NICE WEEKEND!

With most Canadians working a five-day week, "have a nice weekend!", are words heard in office and factory each Friday about noon. There is a small percentage of the population, made up of those unfortunates who serve the holidaying community, such as retail store clerks, communications workers and the very necessary law enforcement and fire prevention crews.

Now that warm weather is in sight, the ideal weekend for most Canadians is one spent at a summer cottage, near the lake or the sea. In order to make the weekend last as long as possible, the exodus from city to town usually starts at 5 o'clock on Friday evening.

While blue jeans and old sweat shirt are suitable for some summer colonies, the move lately, is toward something called "a weekend wardrobe" This wardrobe is usually made up of co-ordinates of seersucker, linen, fine Egyptian cotton or denim. A three-piece suit, skirt, blouse and loose jacket is the backbone of the weekend wardrobe, making its appearance at the office Friday morning. With this suit, if the office is in a city, the owner of the weekend wardrobe wears a large Breton sailor hat of straw, or a soft casual beret, color-toned to the suit. Spectator pump shoes and a matching handbag are all that are needed to preserve the Career Look in the city.

To complete the weekend wardrobe, a pair of shorts and or slims, are packed with a couple of extra blouses, sweaters and shirts. A bathing suit and a terry cloth robe, which will serve both as a dressing gown and a beach robe, are also part of this magic wardrobe. If the skirt that goes with the suit is pretty, instead of straight it can go dancing at the country club, when topped by a shell blouse and belted with a chiffon scarf. At some country clubs, it is quite unusual to wear a dress.

The slim, cotton shift is also part of the weekend wardrobe, as it can be worn to the office, under a matching, loose jacket. When the jacket is removed, the dress, itself, serves as anything from a beach cover-all to a patio dress, depending on the accessories worn with it.

The rule for a nice weekend is the co-ordinated weekend wardrobe.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

PLACE VILLE MARIE

"Books civilize! - - - No one, anywhere need be denied intellectual freedom and fulfillment - - thanks to Paperbacks."— W. E. Hinchliff, Chief Librarian, Santa Barbara Public Library, California.

"Is the book world changing, especially for the bookstore browsers? I'd say — most drastically", says Miss Dorothy Matthews, gracious book department head at James Texts Ltd., 183 Front Street, in Belleville. "In what way, we ask.

"More and more, inveterate book lovers, who formerly lingered over hardbacks, to dip here and there a bit to see what their favorite author is up to, are spending more and more time among the paperback books. And who can blame them?

"Why do you say that?"

"Just look at the dazzling array of design and color schemes. How all join-in from the cheap fiction to even some university presses — with their supermarket come-on. Red, purples, smoky white, talmon color covers with curlique lettering and breath-taking quotes announcing that Shakespeare, Erasmus, Plato and Milton are every bit as amusing interesting and entertaining as a new Jack Paar, Bennet Cerf or a Jack Benny.

"Do you approve of this new method, new innovation?"

"At first, I must confess, I think everyone, had edgy, doubtful moments, which are lessening as the fact arises that there is a cultural revolution and paperbacks, because of it, are an impressive result."

"In what way, would you say?"

"For instance, consider the field of instruction. It's becoming commonplace to say many people realize how the paperbacks have cut impressive inroads in our schools. In the past there has been a dearth of education material regarding books, for the simple reason they were too costly. Now, thanks to paperbacks, expensive text books (as well as supplementary books) on all subjects are becoming available at prices from 35c to $2."

We were handed an impressive list of figures: More than 4,500 new titles were published in the last twelve months, increasing the number in print by one-third, to 19,500. Twenty-three more firms are doing business now than at this time last year, raising the total to 225. Of the leading book publishing houses, only a half dozen, most of them relatively small, still resist the lure of the soft-cover trade. Books are being sold in more than a thousand student-operated paperback shops in high schools in the States, begun in the past year or so.

"This is a great number of books", we exclaim.

"It is", agrees Miss Matthew, "and this means that books, the most priceless tool yet devised by man for learning, may be used to its fullest extent. It figures 'more than ever before, (and I've observed that the majority of today's students really want to learn), may study, use well stocked libraries and personally collect a private library, (including a good home reference library for the first time in history, thanks to the paperbacks, for from ten to $25.) It means that love for reading may be more readily developed concurrently with the ability to read".

"Have you a word of advise for those buying paper backs?"

"Well, perhaps to say that in so doing seems to be in two parts: the unabashed browsing amongst a sea of soft covers along with the churlish question: Ought I to buy this one, or this, or this? By keeping in mind that a good book, and I quote, "... is the most precious of all things; one human being reaching out to communicate with another", may help one to choose carefully the best.

"In summing up, what role, would you say, do paperback books fulfill in our society?"

"This I may answer best by repeating what some one has said: "Paperbacks have removed culture from the private preserves of urban wealth . . . . They bring the principle of equality of opportunity close to reality. Paper backs are removing the mystery from every branch of knowledge; encouraging comparison of claims and doctrines; helping each individual to satisfy his curiosity and to develop his private philosophy. They are spreading the languages, art, music and other cultural (as well as scientific) characteristics of all houses of the family of man. They are carrying concepts of freedom and democracy into every quarter of the earth".

GARDEN NOTES

NEW MEMBERS OF OLD FAMILIES

By FLORA M. BAVILLE

New members of old plant families often prove superior to their forebearers. Perennials, being the backbone of the garden should be selected for their best qualities. Attractive foliage, long season of bloom, outstanding color, beauty of form, interesting texture, good contrast in color, or form, any or all of these makes a plant valued.

Consider these five, they have much to recommend them.

Artemisia, also called Mugwort, Silver plume and Wormwood. Many members of this family are weeds but several are worthy of the border. The leaves are small, some almost needle-like and grey to silvery white. The dwarf forms are suitable for the rock garden or for edging; others make great spikes five feet tall. This family likes lime, and dry well drained soil but is quite tolerant and will stand light shade. A. albula Silver King is popular but Silver Queen has broader, more glistening foliage. A. lactiflora, White mugwort has green foliage but fine white blooms in August. A. pontica, Roman wormwood feathery grey-green used as a ground cover. There are several interesting members but the cultivar Silver Mound is the brightest and best.

LARGE COLONIES

Bergenia, often listed as Saxifraga B. cordifolia, has large cabbage-like leaves. In winter these turn purple-bronze. In late April or May dense panicles of rich rose, blooms appear. Plants will grow in almost any situation but prefer moist soil with light shade. Given this they establish large colonies. Dry sunny locations, partial growth and dense shade has the same effect.

Good for pool side, large rock gardens, specimen gardens and sometime in borders.

Dictamnus, Gas plant, Dittany, or Fraxinella. A volatile oil is exuded from the plant especially by the main stock just below the inflorescence and may be ignited on a still sultry evening. A small burst of blue flame will be produced, hence the name Gas plant.

The foliage and seed pods have an aromatic quality that reminds one of citrus which are members of the same family. These plants seem to live forever. They have handsome dark green, glossy, pinnate foliage and look well all summer. They are three feet tall and fine for back ground or accent plants. In June the racimes of white, pink or purple blooms are the attraction, later the seed pods add interest.

Rich soil in sun or part shade is necessary. Plants will withstand drought but not soggy soil. Allow about a yard square for each mature plant. They are difficult to transplant and slow to get started but once established they are trouble free. Seeds sown in the fall germinate in the spring but do not transplant until the second year. Gather seed as soon as pods begin to brown. Ripe pods scatter seeds far and wide. A true perennial, this plant is slow to appear in the spring but once growth begins it is a treasure all summer.

BEST FOR BORDER

Digitalis, Foxglove, there are perennial and biennial forms. The common D. purpurea is the best for the border where four or five foot spikes add color and dignity. The dark shades are a fine foil for Madonna lilies. Loose rich soil is preferred.

A Lift for Living
World Badly in Need of More Big Natures, Fewer Big Shots

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

"I want to be a big shot." So says the schoolboy as he looks ahead to desired leadership in business, politics, science, sport or stage. To see our names in headlines or in the blazing lights of Broadway! Our age of publicity puts dreams of the spotlight into the ambitions of youth.

"I want to be a big shot," also says the lad in the street gang.

He too wants to be talked about. Even if he lands behind bars he likes to see his name in the papers. Capone and Dillinger — they were big bosses.

Both the evil and the good are caught in the current craze to be conspicuous. But they forget that Henry Van Dyke once said, "Notoriety is to fame what a loud noise is to a noble symphony."

To be a big shot or to be a big nature — that is a basic question on which worthwhile living depends. A national news magazine reports that Sir Lancelot Olivier said to Richard Burton: "Make up your mind. Do you wish to be a household word or a great actor?"

I recall when I was a boy, both ministers of the gospel. One was the big boss of the Church. The last time I talked with him he was peeved and depressed. He had just spoken in a certain city. The crowd was small. He was complaining that he had not been sufficiently advertised. His pride was hurt. He was sore at his sponsors.

HE WAS BIG BY NATURE

His brother pastor of a small church. He was not known beyond his community. He was cheerful and contented in his inconspicuous post. I remember something he said to me: "A minister cannot be effective and happy in his work unless he is conscious of self just a channel for service." He was not a big shot but he was a big nature.

How heartening to find big natures in obscure places. They are "the salt of the earth." Here disillusioning and distressing to look up to a person as heroically big and clean-cut in being selfishly small.

Character not all tell of the bigness and nobility we have come across in inconspicuous persons. I think of a teacher who never wrote a book himself because he had been so busy helping his students get degrees and write their books; of a boy salesman who did not go to college because he looked after his family and sent to college his brothers, two of whom rose to distinction while he died unknown to the public.

Wherever God touches a person to bigness of nature, making him generous and magnanimous, sympathetic and noble, that place is holy ground, however small it is.

Some of us who may call ourselves Christians have to confess that we are not equally Christianized in all the compartments of our living. Some of us are big in some things, petty in others. Heinrich Heine, who was rated as the greatest lyric poet of modern Germany next to Goethe, was so emancipated from narrow nationalism that he retained his admiration for Napoleon even when his own country was fighting the French war lord. Heine deported that his countrymen were ceasing to be citizens of the world and becoming narrowly German. Yet he once confessed that his dream of happiness was to have a cottage in the country surrounded by flowers and trees and then he added, "If the dear God wants to make me supremely happy He will have a half-dozen of my enemies hanging from the trees!" Heine could be generously tolerant in his national outlook and yet narrowly jealous in some of his personal circles.

"GOD IN THE SLUMS"

About 36 years ago the Thames River overflowed its banks. Hundreds of tenement dwellers awoke to find a torrent rushing around their beds. Hugh Redwood, the night editor of a London paper, was aroused by the roar and saw the devastation for himself. There among the flood victims he found the Salvation Army at work. After what he saw he was moved to write a book under the title "God in the Slums." Writing from the viewpoint of the presstroom rather than the pulpit, Hugh Redwood told eloquently that the spirit of Christ was a factor which brought comfort into the midst of misery, cleanliness as well as food from dirt and sanity of hope as a cure for remorse-ing remorse.

If you want to be looked at by the merely curious, then try to be a big shot.

If you want to live with those who care, then be a big nature.

Ann Landers

Bowling League Messing Up Girls, Prom Plans

DEAR ANN—Our big Prom is coming up soon. Everything was all set. I already bought my gown and shoes. The trouble is my boy friend found out just yesterday that he has to bowl that night.

He said he would be glad to let a substitute take his place on the team but on that night they bowl for the trophy. He must be there because he's the best bowler on the team and they are depending on him.

ANN LANDERS

His offered to take me to the Prom after bowling but it would be 10:30 at the earliest. My parents say this is too late to go any place.

My boy friend said we could meet at the Prom if it was O.K. with me, but I think I'd feel out of place until he arrived since the Prom is for couples only. Please help me solve this one. It's bigger than both of us.—ALL DRESSED UP WITH NO PLACE TO GO.

• • •

DEAR DRESSED—It would be a shame to miss the Prom. Why not ask your closest girl friend if she and her date will pick you up? You could then wait for your boy friend there. Since almost everyone would know the circumstances you need not feel uncomfortable.

It's not an ideal solution but it beats staying home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—You hear a lot about extravagant wives and stingy husbands. In our marriage the situation is reversed. I am a firm believer in budgeting, living within one's means and saving for the future.

Since we married six years ago it's been a constant battle. My husband spends money freely, buys whatever he takes a fancy to, with no thought of price, need or anything else. He says he's going to enjoy life and he urges me to do the same. If I had as little respect for money as he did we'd be broke in no time.

Am I a fool for living this lop-sided existence? Should I spend and spend as he does? Perhaps if I did he'd wake up. I'll take your advice.—PINCH PENNY.

DEAR PINCH—I can't be of much help because I don't know how much your husband makes, how much it costs you to live, or how much he spends.

If he is totally irresponsible it would be disastrous for you to "spend spend spend as he does." In most marriages one partner is usually more practical about money than the other. It looks to me as if you're it. Toots.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Is it necessary to send a written thank-you note for gifts received at a bridal shower?

My daughter says yes. I don't agree. Belle is a busy girl. By the time she gets home from work and has dinner it's 7:30 p.m. She is so busy addressing invitations, making the church arrangements and having clothes fitted that the girl is exhausted trying to keep up.

I say it is not essential to write a note for every shower gift. Belle said your word would be final. I hope it is "No." Thank you.—EXHAUSTED TOO.

DEAR TOO—Relax, because the word is "No." A verbal "thank you" when the gift is unwrapped is sufficient.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I hate to admit that I work with people of such low calibre, but I need your help.

This is a large office and several dozen desks are placed side by side. I can't leave a stamp, a quarter, a package of gum, a sack of candy or even a tube of toothpaste in my desk drawer. Everything disappears.

I have a strong hunch who the guilty person is, but I have no proof. Of course he would deny and I'd have an enemy for life. What shall I do?—DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED—If you have a desk with no lock, go to the office manager and ask for a desk you can lock.

• • •

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

Pre-Civil War days brought a wave of evangelism to Philadelphia. The city was fired in 1858 by a far-reaching spiritual revival which men and women remembered for years afterward as "the work of God in Philadelphia."

One of the most zealous of the revivalists was the Rev. Dudley A. Tyng, a young preacher whose sermons won wide interest as the crusade progressed. Mr. Tyng made a great impression on a noon-day sermon which he preached one day in a two-town hall to more than 5,000 men. He took for his text the passage in Exodus 10:11 —"Go now, ye that are men, and serve the Lord." Nearly 1,000 of his hearers were converted.

Less than a week after that memorable service, the youthful evangelist was fatally injured when his arm was crushed in a corn shelling machine. As he lay dying, he asked a group of friends who had gathered at his bedside to join him in a farewell hymn. He himself led in the singing of the hymn, "Rock of Ages," and, when the song was done, his father asked him whether he did not have some message to leave with his comrades.

The young face on the pillow lighted up and the brave soldier of the cross whispered:

"Tell them to stand up for Jesus!"

Dr. George Duffield, a member of the bedside group, remembered that message. Before he left the room he took for his text the passage in Exodus 10:11 and on the following Sunday morning, as he finished a memorial sermon for his friend in the Presbyterian church of which he was pastor, he read the verses of "Stand Up, Stand Up For Jesus" to his congregation.

FOR JESUS
STAND UP, STAND UP

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
Ye soldiers of the cross;
Lift high His royal banner,
It must not suffer loss;
From victory unto victory
His army He shall lead,
Till every foe is vanquished,
And Christ is Lord indeed.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
The trumpet call obey;
Forth to the might conflict
In this His glorious day.
Ye that are men now serve Him
Against unnumbered foes;
Let courage rise with danger,
And strength to strength oppose.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
The strife will not be long;
This day the noise of battle,
The next the victor's song;
To Him that overcometh
A crown of life shall be;
He with the King of Glory,
Shall reign eternally.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

BANK SWALLOWS

When swallows are mentioned we instinctively think of barn swallows — but, of course, that is only because they are best known. It goes without saying that in order to survive all birds must have the right habitat, and for some species this is much more difficult than for others. Barn swallows are so called because they very frequently build on beams of barns — yet, naturally, the beams need not belong to a barn. But bank swallows must have a bank, which must be steep enough and made of material that is sufficiently soft for the swallow to dig out a nesting cavity.

These specialized nesting site requirements control the bank swallow's distribution.

RIDDLED WITH HOLES

If you come upon a steep bank riddled with holes you will know this is (or has been) the home of many bank swallows, for they live in colonies, sometimes numbering as many as 100 pairs. The burrows are dug fairly near the top by the birds themselves, and may be only a few inches apart. Often we find there are actually many holes not in use, because not every one started is completed.

The other necessity for this bird's survival is, naturally, food. It requires flying insects. Consequently, where the right type of food can be found and as far north as vegetation brings flying insects we can expect bank swallows — that is from northern Alaska right across to northern Labrador and southward to the Gulf of Mexico. When cold weather puts an end to Canada's flying insects all swallows must leave. Brazil is the winter home for most bank swallows.

FLUTTERS AFTER PREY

The careful observer can differentiate between the various kinds of swallows by their distinctive manner of flight. When sailing, the bank swallow generally holds its wings close to its body. When chasing flies its motion is often somewhat like that of the barn swallow as it twists, turns, and flutters after the prey.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WELLINGTON — I don't know whether this character is male or female. It hasn't laid an egg in 53 years, which is a vote for the masculine gender. On the other hand no self-respecting male would tell a minister's wife to go to hell.

Parrots have been known as Polly long before crackers were invented and Long John Silver lost his leg after a vicious attack by a gaggle of voracious cockatoos.

This Polly is owned by Godfrey and Helen Upton, long-time residents of this recently watered-down village.

'Tis a gay bird of plumage with sea-green wings covering a feathered rainbow of yellow, orange, turquoise and other shades of a parrot. It has a beak that would put Nero's to shame and yellowish-green eyes as big as ancient nickels look at you from a cracked head.

This South African jungle expatriate is a voracious eater with a yen for fruit. The only time it tasted meat was when it bit a healthy chunk out of the finger of an admirer rash enough to offer the digit as a temporary roost.

This well-reared Poll (it won't talk to strangers) has been in the Upton family, father and son, for upwards of 47 years. It was mature at time of entry although it has never admitted voting Liberal or Conservative.

It is not given to long speeches but when Poll talks it does so with an English accent. It is affable and polite.

For instance when Mr. Upton removes the cover from Poll's cage, it chatters a cheery "Good morning." And as the boss turns away it will mutter "He's a nice old fellow."

When the family leaves the house it will emit beak-clattering "Good-byes" until the folks are out of sight.

Left on its own, "Poll" will turn its attention to a neighboring buddy, a pure-white Thomas cat, who hangs out next door.

It will call "Kitty, Kitty, Kitty," in a beaky baritone. And if Thomas is not too busy drowning or seeking dates with teenage feline Fleurs he will saunter over to Poll's cage. After inspection Poll will enquire "What are you looking at?" Thomas blinks, says nothing.

And if it gets hungry it will announce to all and sundry "Polly wants an apple" or "Polly wants a raisin", depending on the fancy of the moment.

It thinks nuts are strictly for the birds, parrots, that is. It will crush a walnut or a pecan with its powerful beak as easy as a movie teenager crunches popcorn.

But his main diet is sunflower seeds demerited with choice chunks of fresh orange or grapefruit.

Breakfast is a special dish. After that cheery "Good Morning" Polly will wait a minute or so then set up a parrot symphony which will not be hushed until it is given toast dunked in coffee.

After that Polly is as friendly as a limelizer on rent day. When Mr. Upton proffers a finger it will solemnly lift a leg and "shake hands" and then incline its head to be scratched.

It has the run of the house. It likes nothing better than to climb the back of Mr. Upton's chair when dining and perch there inspecting the table decorations.

Polly's cage occupies a prominent spot in the enclosed verandah of the Upton home. It is carefully covered at night, and if the door to the living room is left open, Poll will voice its disapproval until it is closed.

It uses that four-letter word for Hades on occasions. Like the time the minister's wife called and approached Polly's cage to admire its plumage. It promptly told the good lady where to go.

'Dogs' Interested In IHL

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Sam Fox, president of the Windsor Bulldogs hockey club and manager of Windsor Arena, said Friday he is "definitely interested" in joining the International Hockey League in the 1963-64 season, but that he has not made a final decision yet.

Representatives of the Windsor club attended an IHL meeting at St. Paul, Minn., May 1 and 2 and discussed the possibility of the move by the recently - crowned Allan Cup champion Bulldogs to the circuit.

Fox said the Windsor Club's interest in joining the loop would be based on the makeup of the IHL.

"If the International League operates in two divisions, we would lean heavily to joining the circuit," he said. "That would mean Des Moines, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha would be in the western division and a proposed setup would leave Windsor, Chatham, Fort Huron, Muskegon and Fort Wayne as possible clubs in an eastern division."

"We would prefer remaining in the OHA senior A ranks but we must have a better league than the one we had last year," Fox said. "We found it difficult to provide a brand of hockey, over the regular season our club attended an IHL meeting at St. Paul, Minn., May 1 and 2 and discussed the possibility of the move by the recently - crowned Allan Cup champion Bulldogs to the circuit.

"That would mean Des Moines, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha would be in the western division and a proposed setup would leave Windsor, Chatham, Fort Huron, Muskegon and Fort Wayne as possible clubs in an eastern division."

"We would prefer remaining in the OHA senior A ranks but we must have a better league than the one we had last year," Fox said. "We found it difficult to provide a brand of hockey, over the regular season our club attended as well as the best crowds were when Chatham visited.

"If Chatham follows through on its plans to join the IHL it would appear feasible for us to follow them."

"Thursday evening Pat Patterson, president of the OHA, stated that Chatham Maroons may withdraw from the OHA senior A ranks to join a new section of the IHL."

Any application for withdrawal from either Chatham or Windsor will have to be approved by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that will meet at Brandon, Man., May 19-22.

It's great working for Chicago White Sox. You can't beat the hours.

Of course, if things keep up like this the boys will have to play an extra week in October. That would be for the World Series. But you can't beat the money, there.

Sox took only 112 minutes Friday night to polish off Los Angeles Angels 2-0, with Juan Pizarro pitching a three-hitter and driving in both runs, one with a homer.

At that, it was one minute longer than Sox took the night before to trim New York Yankees by the same score. They have now won five straight games, during which they have allowed the opposition five runs, and are a full game in front in the American League.

Baltimore Orioles kept pace in second place by whipping Yankees 8-3. It was the fourth straight loss for the world champions.

Phil Regan threw a three-hitter for Detroit Tigers, who bombed Cleveland Indians 14-5, and Camilo Pascual did the same job for Minnesota Twins over Kansas City Athletics, 2-0. Boston Red Sox dropped Washington Senators 6-3.

STRUCK OUT SIX

Pizarro, the 26-year-old southpaw, struck out six Angels and walked only one as he gained his second victory. He homered in the third inning and batted home the insurance run in the fifth with a single, after catcher J. C. Martin had tripled.

Ken McBride, who had never lost to his old Sox mates, was the loser.

Luis Aparicio and Al Smith slugged solo homers off Yankee starter Whitey Ford, and Baltimore starter Mike McCormick was nursing a two-run lead when his arm stiffened in the eighth inning. Relief pitcher Dick Hall came in just before rain had held up play for 35 minutes, and eventually gave up a two-run single to Chris Boyer that tied the score.

Orioles came right back with three runs off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff in the eighth, on two walks, Jackie Brandt's run-producing double and John Orsino's two-run single.

Dick McAuliffe drove in six runs for Tigers, four on a grand slam homer, and Rocky Colavito and Regan also homered. It was Regan's first in the majors. The Tiger right-hander, working in 36-degree weather, struck out eight and allowed only a single by Johnny Romano until the ninth. Then Willie Kirkland doubled and Romano singled, but Indians failed to score.

WINS FOURTH

Pascual, who is the only thing keeping the cellar Twins from dropping completely out of sight, pitched his fourth straight complete game for his fourth victory in a row. It was the AL fifth straight defeat, and only the third triumph for Twins in their last 10—all of them by Pascual.

Rookie Jay Ward doubled home both runs for Twins in the second inning, after Jimmie Hall doubled and Bernie Allen walked.

Frank Malzone, shifted to the cleanup spot in Red Sox' batting order, responded with three hits, including a two-run double that broke a 2-2 tie against Senators in the eighth. Washington's Tom Cheney suffered his second loss against four victories despite the fact he pitched a three-hitter and struck out 11 in the 7 1-3 innings he worked. Malzone's double came off reliever Ron Kline.

Larry Osborne's sixth homer and singles by Cheney and Chuck Hinton drove in the Washington runs.

Sixth Game Tonight

Battle-Scarred Flyers Confident

EDMONTON (CP) — Coach Hap Emms, his confidence slightly dampened by the sight of his battle-scarred players, still thinks his Niagara Falls Flyers have gained the momentum needed to win the Memorial Cup.

"Our boys have regained their strength and appear more accustomed to the climate and altitude," Emms said as he prepared his club for tonight's sixth game of a best-of-seven series with Edmonton Oil Kings for the Canadian junior hockey championship.

The optimism appeared unrealistic considering the heavy toll of injuries Flyers have suffered in the first five games of the series, which they trail 3-2.

Gary Dornhoefer and Gary Harmer are out for the series with broken legs. Eight other players will be playing with assorted cuts and bruises—Rich Morin with a 10-stitch head cut; Bill Goldsworth with torn stomach muscles; Terry Crisp with a charleyhorse; Bill Glashan with a 12-stitch chin laceration; Ron Hergott with a 10-stitch face cut; Don Awrey with a slight concussion, forehead contusions and two black eyes; goalie George Gardner with a mild concussion; and Wayne Maxner with stretched rib muscles.

Only one Oil King has a noticeable injury — defenceman Pat Quinn with a face cut that took four stitches.

Emms' confidence stems from his team's 5-2 victory in the fifth game Thursday night. "I said if Oil Kings lost the fifth game, they'd lose the series," he said.

'Now Here's The Way To Score'

PROUD YOUNGSTER — Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks star, takes time out to chat with a young friend, Vernon Silver, at the Y's Men's Father-and-Son banquet at the "Y" last night. Looking on is Y's Men's president Doug Trumble. The youngsters had a gala evening, firing questions at the hockey star's corp living a box home exhibition. General secretary Di Diamantides brought a special message.

Member of the Physical Education Committee Bill Holway with physical director John Peoples presented swimming and athletic awards to several of the youngsters who in turn shook hands with Bobby Hull.

Thanks to the Y's Men's Club were extended by Peter Milia.

'Y' Father and Son Banquet

Bobby Hull 'Boys' Target'

Never let it be said the youngsters of this city are not National Hockey League-minded.

The dining auditorium of the YMCA last night at times resembled one of President Kennedy's press conferences.

Upwards of 100 proud "poppas" and their sons attended the Father and Son banquet sponsored by the Y's Men's Club, an enjoyable success for all concerned.

The focal person, especially for the youngsters was Chicago Black Hawks' star Bobby Hull, guest speaker of the evening and a later target for a barrage of youthful questions.

Special guests were Jo-Anne Hull, attractive wife of the hockey luminary and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hull of Point Anne.

The Hawks' blonde winger gave the youngsters and their dads an interesting talk and then took the big moment for the younger fellows.

"Wow!" said Bobby "if any of you young fellows have any questions. . ."

That was enough. First a hand was held up. Then two, then three and then more until Hull "pulled a Kennedy" and designated the questioner.

The question were many, varied and colorful, asked as only shining-eyed curious sincere youngsters could ask them.

One young fellow cited "Who's the best player on your team?"

Bobby looked around bashfully, smiled and said "I am".

They asked about their favorite players, coaches and various plays.

They enquired about records, how to score goals and they learned that Bobby Hull thinks Gordie Howe is the greatest player the game ever produced.

"That might not go so well with Maurice Richard fans" Hull said with a smile, "but that's the way I feel about it".

"Do you think you will beat the Rocket's records", a youngster asked.

"I am not trying to break records" came the reply, "but as long as they don't, I'll play".

Questions elicited the information that Hull liked Plante as a goalie but preferred Gump Worsley and the Maple Leafs had the best defence in the league. He also likes Sid Abel as a coach.

The youngsters fired questions at Bobby for nearly an hour until time called a halt.

In his address, Hull said he thought the Hawks would have gone all the way if it had not been for the way I feel about it".

He recalled his minor hockey days here. "We shovelled snow to play on the ice and it and so I look back I realize it was worth it."

He urged the youngsters to play hockey" for it helps mold your character. And if you play be sure and play your best".

He paid tribute to his parents for the part they played in helping him shape his career." My father taught me an important thing — to play in unison. And that is important especially for you younger chaps".

The Hawks star was introduced by Y's Man Vern Weir with John Hayman, Jr. expressing the dads' and sons' appreciation.

Y's Men's president Doug Trumble chaired the dinner meeting. The Y board of directors sent greetings and the Rev. Ted Jolliffe was prayed ed by Geoffrey Roulet with response given by Jr. J. Veller.

Junior "Y" members staged a demonstration of square dancing with members of the leading "Y" square dance team and drove in six runs in 14-0 walloping of Cleveland.

D-Day For Dodgers, Shade Giants 2-1

Drysdale And Davis

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was D-Day at Los Angeles. The National League champion San Francisco Giants and the runner-up Dodgers met Friday night for the first time since last year's playoff and Los Angeles came away with a 2-1 victory on the exploits of Don Drysdale and Tommy Davis.

Drysdale, who had been unable to post a victory in almost a month, checked Giants on six hits and retired 13 batters in order at one stretch. The only hit he allowed after the fourth inning was a single by Willie McCovey in the ninth.

The 26-year-old right-hander was brilliant in the ninth as the Giants put men on first and third with no one out on an error and McCovey's hit. Drysdale finished with a flourish, striking out Orlando Cepeda and Tom Haller before getting pinch hitter Ed Bailey to hit a foul pop for the final out.

Davis, meanwhile, got his first look at the San Francisco pitching he tagged at a .453 clip last season and stroked two hits in three at-bats. The Dodger star, slowed by leg injuries, produced D-Day's decisive run with a third inning double off Jack Sanford.

The victory pulled Dodgers to within four games of the pacesetting Giants and kept Glants' edge to one game over the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, who edged Pittsburgh, Drysdale's 1-0 on Curt Simmons' pitching and George Altman's ninth inning homer.

STOP COLTS

Dick Farrell allowed only two hits as Houston Colts ended their season's winning streak at six, 4-1; New York Mets won their fifth in a row, defeating Cincinnati Reds 3-2 on Jim Hickman's homer, and Milwaukee Braves downed Philadelphia Phils 4-1 in a game called in the seventh inning due to rain.

A crowd of 50,407 turned out at Los Angeles for the first meeting between Dodgers and Giants since last Oct. 2, when San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 8-4 in the third and deciding game of the league playoff.

Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the first on Jim Gilliam's double and Willie Mcon's single, but Haller gave Giants a tie when he homered in the second. In the third, Felipe Alou reached base on a fielder's choice and came around on Davis' double.

Altman's homer with two out in the ninth ended a pitchers' duel between Card southpaw Simmons and Giant righthander Fred Sinmons scattered nine hits for his fifth victory against a loss while Friend absorbed his second defeat in five decisions after Dodgers had won nine. It was the first time Pirates had been shut out this season.

BUNCH ROUTS REDS

Farrell pitched perfect ball for six innings, but Cubs put both their hits together for a run in the seventh inning and Jack Brock's single and a triple by Billy Williams drove Reds' starter Jim O'Toole's five - game winning streak and handed Reds' southpaw his second defeat against six victories. Carl Pfiller, who touched for Johnny Edward's two-run homer, was the winner with a five-hitter that brought his record to 3-1.

Braves beat a left - hander for the first time in nine tries by shelling Phils' starter Chris Short and cut off their losing streak at four games. Lee Maye and Roy McMillan homered in support of Denver LeMaster, the winner with a three-hitter.

Bill Carter Wins Award In EPL

OTTAWA (CP) — Centre Bill Carter of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens has been named the most gentlemanly player in the Eastern Professional Hockey League in the 1962-63 season, it was announced Friday night.

It was the second time in the four-year history of the league that Carter has won the award. He was the first winner in the 1959-60 season. Other winners were Cliff Pennington, then with Hull-Ottawa, and Orville Mosher of Kingston Frontenacs.

Carter, 26, a native of Cornwall, Ont., drew only six minor penalties in the regular 72-game schedule.

Dick Cherry and Cliff Pennington, both of Kingston, also got heavy support from sportswriters and broadcasters in the four EPHL cities. No figures were revealed.

Hawks Fire Gottselig In Shake-up

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Norris, board chairman of Chicago Black Hawks, left for Europe today amid speculation of a shakeup in the club in the wake of the team's failure to win the National Hockey League playoffs last season.

Norris did confirm, however, the firing of publicity director Johnny Gottselig, former NHL great, for what he said Gottselig's "repeated failure to comply with policy instructions." He did not elaborate.

Colonial Golf

Nicklaus Stroke Behind Boros

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)— The massive shadow of Jack Nicklaus hovered over the field today as Julius Boros led the golfing elite into the third round of the Colonial national invitation tournament.

Boros, with a 6-under-par 66, held a two-shot lead over Doug Sanders as the field of 65 moved 18 steps closer to division of the $100,000 purse.

Three Canadians were far off the pace. Al Johnston of Montreal had 74, Al Balding of Toronto 146 and Stan Leonard of Vancouver 147.

Boros posted a 71-66—137 at the halfway point Friday while Sanders, the leader after the first round, drifted to a 72 for a 36-hole total of 139.

Trailing Sanders by one stroke were Dick Nichlaus, Bobby Nichols, Bruce Crampton and Tony Lema, who all carved one or more shots from the 7,081-yard par-70 Colinial course.

Nicklaus, 23, came to the Colonial with three current tournament titles, including the Masters, in his trophy case.

Palmer, the defending champion here, watched his championship aspirations dim Friday as he shot a five-over-par 75.

It gave him a total of 149, 12 strokes off Boros' pace.

Softball Meeting Sunday

Representatives of several Eastern Ontario softball leagues are expected to attend a special organization meeting of the proposed new loop at Belleville's Club Canara tomorrow afternoon at 2.30.

Bellevilla, Trenton, Picton, Cobourg, Peterborough, Oshawa and of course Kingston have been mentioned as possible entries.

Interest is said to be weak in such places as Oshawa, Peterborough and Belleville but Trenton's BCAF Flyers and a Cobourg team have appeared enthusiastic about the idea.

Tomorrow's meeting should decide if the league will get off the ground and if so, which teams will be participating.

Press Box Incident

Absolve Editor, 'Caster'

EDMONTON (CP)—An arena investigation absolved a Niagara Falls sports editor and radio announcer Friday from any part in a press box incident in the final minutes of a Memorial Cup junior hockey championship game in Edmonton Thursday night.

The investigation was launched after a box of sugar cubes and plastic coffee spoons was hurled from the vicinity of the press box into the Edmonton Oil Kings' players bench. The debris narrowly missed Oil Kings' coach Buster Brayshaw.

An arena official said, "We've completed our investigation and have uncovered the guilty party. The press representative and the broadcaster had no part whatsoever in the incident.

"They were not to blame for anything that took place and they will be extended every facility in the same box for Saturday's game.

"The guilty party (he was not identified by officials) has been banned from the rink for one game."

COULDN'T STOP IT

The official added that the two Niagara Falls men, Doug Austin, sports editor of the Niagara Falls Review, and Carman Brown, sports announcer for radio station CHVC, Niagara Falls, could do nothing to prevent the incident by the time it had been drawn to their attention.

The exhibition association ordered the press box, on the west side of the garden, above the players benches, closed "until the guilty men came forward or was reported to arena officials. They said the box would remain closed for the series final games if the investigation failed to uncover the person who threw the sugar and spoons.

The guilty party had come forward on his own, the official added.

"FIVE MILES TO MIDNIGHT"

Sophia Loren Combines Talent With Great Beauty

Sophia Loren is that rare combination—a stunningly beautiful woman, who is also a dedicated actress. Winner of an Academy Award for "Two Women," she is currently starred with Anthony Perkins and Gig Young in "Five Miles to Midnight," a high-tension thriller produced and directed by Anatole Litvak and opening Monday at the Park Theatre through United Artists release for a three day engagement only.

Born in Rome she went to live near Naples with her grandparents until she was 14. Sophia had a childhood and adolescence of real hardship, brought up as she was in war-time Italy. Later on Sophia, being an ambitious girl, decided that she wanted to become an actress.

Sophia's first step towards her goal was to come in second in a beauty contest. Then she started recitation and classic ballet classes in Naples and shortly afterwards got a part as an extra in a film.

It was in Vittorio De Sica's "The Gold of Naples" that she first got any real attention from the public, while directors discovered that this beautiful girl could also act.

After this she never looked back; it was one film after another: "The Key," "Houseboat," "It Started in Naples" and so on, until today she has nearly 40 films to her credit.

Her future plans include the film version of the stage success "A Shot in the Dark," a Mirisch Company project which Litvak also will produce and direct for United Artists release.

Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

Suns Whip Jets 9-2

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus outfielder Bob Burda must have felt awfully conspicuous with his name run in the midst of all that awesome Jacksonville power Friday night.

Burda's homer in the sixth inning stood out like a sore point to Columbus manager Larry Shepherd, whose International League Jets were the victims of seven extra - base blows and a 9-2 defeat by Jacksonville Suns.

Burda's hit was the only Jet blow that went for more than a single as right - hander Joe Schaffernoth restricted them to four hits.

Indianapolis whipped Atlanta's southern division leaders 5-3 in the only other game. Rain and cold weather forced three postponements and wiped out all northern division activity.

Schaffernoth, newcomer Willie Tasby, Ray Barker and Bill Williams hit home runs for Jacksonville, Barker added two doubles and rookie shortstop Gordon Lund contributed a two-run triple as the Suns jolted loser Phil Cunningham and two relievers for 14 hits.

A two-run single by Jerry McNertney and a pair of doubles by Jose Valdivielso sparked Indianapolis in its series opener with Atlanta.

Weekly Bob Hope Show To Offer Him Challenge

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I look at it this way," said Bob Hope over a 3:30 p.m. breakfast of bacon, toast and marmalade. "I've been on television for 13 years doing the same thing. It's time I had a change."

He was talking about his reasons for undertaking a weekly Bob Hope Show next season—six of his regular variety shows, two "book" shows (musicals or comedies with plot), and the rest an anthology which he would host.

During his 13 years of specials, Hope has been defeated in the ratings only once (this season by the upstart Beverly Hillbillies). So why would he want to venture into the weekly rat race?

The answer would seem to be connected with Hope's fondness for cash.

WANTS CHALLENGE

"No, it doesn't make that much difference," he said. "I'm doing it mainly for myself—to give me a new challenge, a new dimension. It puts me in a different field, and I think I can do some good there."

He already is wrestling with approaches to his hosting duties. Since he will be introducing serious dramas some weeks, it wouldn't do for him to come on with the usual Hopian moogogue.

"A lot of my introductions will be straight," he continued. "I am trying to get the right formula. I think the way Dick Powell introduced his show was about the best it has been done."

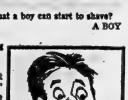
ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



"Oh, come now, you don't have to be so secretive!"

Dear Henry:
At what age do you think that a boy can start to shave?
A BOY

Dear Boy:
When there is something there to shave. . . . HENRY

Dear Henry:
We don't have a TV set but I enjoy watching it at friends' houses. My parents don't approve of it because they say if we have one I won't do my homework. But I am sure I will. How can I persuade them?
TV TROUBLE

Dear TV Trouble:
If Perry Mason was on the verge of loosing his case, if Ben Casey swallowed his stethoscope, if Rocky the Flying Squirrel crashed . . . could you switch off the TV set ? ? ? ? ?
Read a TV for a week and try to prove to your parents that you won't get delirious.
HENRY

Dear Henry:
We live on a farm, and I have two boys and three girls. When they have done something wrong they are sent out to the woodshed. The boys are given several whacks with the strap on the posterior. When they have been paddled they do not regret it and try to mend their ways.
Do you think that the woodshed is a good place to tan your children and do you think my method is a suitable one?
A PARENT

Dear Parent:
Is the woodshed a good place to spank children? I think it is a much better place for storing wood.
On a farm there are a hundred and one better punishments. For example let the guilty one, in addition to his regular duties, clean out the barn, milk the cows for a week or fix three miles of the pasture fence. This is better than to let them laugh right through one of your spanking sessions.
HENRY

Dear Henry:
My mother puts me in my pyjamas too early. What should I do?
AGE 8

Dear Age 6:
You sure are lucky that your mother puts you to bed so early. The next day you wake up all rested, you are strong as Popeye and smart as your father. You will be the brainy kid in grade one and the strongest and healthiest one too!
HENRY

Dear Henry:
Do you believe that a kid has to work for allowance if his parents have plenty of money to spare?
MONEYLESS

Dear Moneyless:
The reason that you are moneyless is because you are workless. Even if your parents have oft quid limousines to spare, you should still be scrubbing the floor for your allowance.

Cross-Canada Survey

Harness Racing Is Giving Thoroughbreds a Good Run In Popular Stakes in Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Judging by the amount of money being shovelled through pari-mutuel windows, harness racing is giving the thoroughbreds a good run in the popularity stakes in Canada.

With promoters scheduling in 1963 and talking excitedly about bigger and swankier harness racing tracks, it won't be surprising if standardbreds take the lead within a few years.

Figures for 1962 show that more than $133,000,000 was wagered at harness racing tracks in nine provinces, all but Newfoundland. This compares with $145,339,962 bet on the thoroughbreds. And it should put to rest once and for all the lingering view of harness racing as a poor country cousin.

Wagering on both kinds of racing is rising each year. But one reason for thinking the standardbreds will in time overtake the thoroughbreds is that harness racing facilities are expanding more quickly.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press finds optimism among promoters in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. Manitoba and Saskatchewan, where the sport is still on a small scale, are exceptions to this general feeling.

TWO NEW TRACKS

Expansion is most spectacular in Ontario where wagering jumped by more than $10,000,000 to a total of $86,330,828 last year and seems certain to rise sharply again this year.

One new track, Mohawk Raceway at Campbellville 40 miles west of Toronto, has already opened, and another is tentatively set to begin operations Sept. 7 at Windsor with 36 days of racing. Still another major track is due to start at St. Catharines next year.

Introduction of night racing a couple of years ago is the secret of the growth in Ontario which this year will give bettors a lot more chances to get even.

For, with major meets at London's Queens Park starting May 27, Toronto Greenwood Raceway (formerly Old Woodbine) open since March 26 and Ottawa's year-old Rideau Carleton Raceway open since May 1, plus those at Campbellville and Windsor, more than 100 nights of racing will be added to last year's 270.

But if Ontario is coming up fast on the outside, the lead is still securely held by Quebec which accounted for more than $66,000,000 — or almost three-quarters—of the money wagered on harness racing in this country in 1962.

MONTREAL IS CENTRE

The two Montreal tracks — Blue Bonnets and Richelieu — handled $76,210,923 which was considerably more than half the national total. Richelieu billed as Canada's fastest half-mile track because it holds two records, opened May 5.

And not only has Montreal the best track, it has the horses as well. Tic Silk, a $40,000 purchase that has earned more than $200,000 in purses for Miron Brothers of Montreal, was named Canadian harness horse of the year in 1962.

Country Don, top two-year-old pacer, Uncle Buck, best among three - year - old pacers, and Flemingdon's Song, best two-year-old trotter, are also property of Quebec owners.

Just how far Montreal has come in the last 19 years is evident from the wagering. In 1953 a total of $4,300,000 was bet in the city. Last year $76,210,923 passed through the windows in 206 days.

"Our growth here has been phenomenal," says Paul Desaraisan, president of both Montreal tracks. And the operators aren't standing still.

PLAN FOR 1967

Looking forward to 1967 when Montreal will be the site of the World's Fair, they are planning for facilities that will handle 25,000 people at each post. The $2,000,000 cost will include the price of grassed-in, all-weather grandstands.

Quebec has two other tracks—Quebec City which opened May 4 and where $12,300,000 was wagered during 100 racing days in 1962, and Connaught Park near Hull where 100 racing days saw 200,000 spectators bet $8,152,323.

In the Maritimes, where there was an over-all decline in attendance last year attributed to excessively rainy weather, hopes for this year are based largely on the assumption that the weather will be better.

The Moncton Speedway, which came under new management in February and has been renamed Brunswick Downs, leads the expansion with plans to run 58 racing days compared with 32 last year.

The season is tentatively set to run from May 30 to the end of October and promoters hope wagering will rise to $750,000 from $260,000 last year.

"If things are looking good we may go until about the middle of November," says track secretary Leghan Palmer.

NEW RATING SYSTEM

As in other parts of the country, a factor in the optimistic outlook in the new system of grading harness horses which replaces the old alphabetical listing that was practically undecipherable for the average bettor. With grading based on such things as sex, gait, performance, the age and with introduction of claiming races, the spectators will have more to go on in making up their minds about which horse to bet.

While rain hurt attendance at such Maritimes tracks as Saint John, Fredericton, Summerside, Charlottetown and Sydney, it made little difference at Moncton, Truro and Saville Downs. Betting in P.E.I. was down to $804,806 from $843,280, New Brunswick down to $2,961,142 from $2,313,253 and Nova Scotia up to $3,743,506 from $3,635,363.

Saclville Downs, near Halifax, the biggest sulky centre in the Maritimes, accounted for $2,221,502 of the betting total and, says general manager Jack Cruikshanks, had its "most successful season since opening in 1955."

The Cape Breton Sports Centre in Sydney, where wagering fell by $120,000 last year, hopes to recoup with plans for a 300-seat clubhouse and better wagering and canteen facilities.

ADD NEW ROOF

Charlottetown, where a 53-day season opens June 1, has four invitational races worth $2,500 each on the books for the summer. It rained practically every race night last year but a new roof on the grandstand should add to spectator comfort this year.

Manitoba, with 14 days of racing again this year, is one region where harness racing remains mostly a country-fair sport. The July 1-2 meet at the Manitoba Provincial Fair in Brandon is one of the few with pari-mutuel betting, accounting for the fact only $11,323 was wagered in the province in 1962.

Carman, which now has a one-day meet, is considering night racing and officials think it could attract spectators from Winnipeg, 50 miles away, and perhaps lead to a revival of interest in the provincial capital where the thoroughbreds are still king.

Saskatchewan, where betting fell to $250,979 from $293,317 last year, is moving ahead cautiously. Regina, where operators lost $2,800 last season, is planning six racing days compared with five in 1962.

PROMOTER HAS PLAN

This is the third year for top-flight harness racing in Alberta and the sport is making impressive strides. Betting last year was $3,944,940, up from $2,943,342. And while there will be 40 days of racing at Edmonton and Calgary as against 36 in 1962, purses will be bigger on the average. The season begins July 25 in Edmonton.

Bill Connelly of Edmonton, president and general manager of Western Harness Raceways which controls the two Alberta tracks, has big plans. Through Delta Raceways he also controls the operation at Ladner, B.C., and he's negotiating for a 13-day meet at Yakima, Wash. If successful it will mean owners won't have to go to Eastern Canada or California to find races during gaps in the western season.

Paterson Park at Ladner, which handled all of British Columbia's $525,053 in wagers last year, up from $337,086 in 1962, is adding six days this year, for a total of 20. There will be racing four nights a week from June 1 to July 20 and the track is taking a gamble by checking races on six Mondays, in direct conflict with thoroughbred racing at Vancouver's Exhibition Park 20 miles north.

HARNESS RACING BOOMS — The standardbreds charge around the turn at Montreal's Richelieu Raceway, ranked as Canada's fastest half-mile track. Montreal is the centre of harness racing in the country, bettors at the city's two tracks accounting for more than half the $133,000,000 wagered on standardbreds in 1962. (CP Photo)

JFK Sends Troops To Alabama

Thousands Riot As Negro Home, Motel Bombed

Virtual Martial Law Clamped on Section

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Federal troops were ordered today to move into this tension-charged city as 1,300 police officers clamped virtual martial law on a wide section, scarred by rioting and night bombings.

President Kennedy sent army troops to two Alabama bases with a grim warning that they would move into Birmingham if new violence erupts. Thousands of Negroes rioted early Sunday after bombs blasted a Negro minister's home and a motel.

Governor George C. Wallace, arch-segregationist who once defied federal authorities over voter registration records, challenged the president's right to send in federal troops. He insisted state and local officers can preserve law and order.

City officials and Negro leaders issued strong appeals for law and order.

Helmeted state troopers, city policemen and officers from numerous surrounding communities and towns patrolled the confined area in shifts today.

About 20 persons, including police officers, were injured in the rioting.

DEPLOYS ARMY UNITS

The president's action was three-pronged:

1. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara was ordered to alert riot-trained army units and to deploy them in Alabama. Troops moved into Maxwell Air Force Base at Montgomery, 80 miles to the south, and Ft. McClellan at Anniston, 60 miles to the east.

2. Preliminary steps were taken for bringing under federal control the Alabama National Guard. The papers have not been signed.

3. Assistant Attorney-General Burke Marshall was sent back to Birmingham to consult with citizens, officials and other justice department officials.

In other developments:

Shortly before Kennedy spoke, rifle bullets ripped into the home of two Negro families and a Negro church at Anniston, Ala.—where some of the troops were sent.

URGES RESTRAINT

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Negro civil rights, urged discipline, restraint and non - violence of Birmingham Negroes. He insisted a Negro biracial agreement to settle the BLAST BLOWS HOLE IN REAR OF RCAF BLDG.

Windows Broken But No Injuries

MONTREAL (CP)—A dynamite charge was planted or thrown at the rear of an RCAF building in northwest Montreal early today and drilled a hole through the building's wall but caused no injuries.

The bomb device tore a hole two feet in diameter at the rear of the four-storey brick RCAF 11th Technical Services Unit.

It also broke windows in the five-storey commercial building across the street and in apartment buildings in the area at Wilderton and Bates Road, in northwest Montreal, at the edge of the suburban town of Mount Royal.

Harry Hewson, night watchman in the air force building, said the bomb went off at 2:38 a.m. EDT while he was on the third floor.

ONE OF A SERIES

The explosion was the latest in a series that has occurred in the Montreal area in recent weeks.

Le Front de Liberation Quebecois, a self-styled terrorist organization which says it wants Quebec to secede from Canada, has claimed responsibility for all the others, including a $50,000 holdup of an army paymaster.

One death occurred two weeks ago when a bomb went off at the rear of an army recruiting centre on mid - town Sherbrooke Street.

Several armories have been bombed and a federal revenue building was damaged. How-

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Warm moist air flowing up the west side of the Maritimes valley is causing widespread area of showers and thunderstorms over Lake Superior. Some of these showers spread eastward into Michigan early today and will likely advance slowly eastward across Ontario, preceded by increasing cloudiness. Temperatures which have been quite low for the past two days will be held down by cloudiness today.

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio said today that the United States will announce a new series of atmospheric and high-altitude nuclear tests and "the Soviet Union is not going to stand by idly watching the U.S. perfect its nuclear weapons."

The radio was commenting in its English-language service on the recent Washington announcement that small nuclear devices would be exploded on the ground and underground in Nevada later this month.

SEVEN KILLED IN COLLISION NEAR CHATHAM

Three Nuns on Way To Kingston Die

CHATHAM (CP)—A head-on car collision killed seven persons near here during the weekend.

Included were three Chicago nuns, bound for a meeting in Kingston.

The dead:

Sister Julia Brace, 39, driver, and Sister Superior Winnifred Corcoran, 50, both of St. George's Hospital in Chicago; Sister Superior St. Joseph Kearns, 63, of St. Joseph's Hospital in Polson, Mont.; Peter Francis Fitzsimmons, 62, an employee at the Chicago hospital; Elmer Ryde, 42, and his 22-year-old wife, who was driving, of Glen Meyer, Ont.; and Walter Hamilton, 30, of Tillsonburg, Ont., who died in hospital.

Sister Cristina Donovan, 56, of Chicago was in satisfactory condition in hospital here with a broken ankle and other injuries.

Huisebaut's wife, Elizabeth, 27, was in serious condition with multiple face cuts and a fractured leg, while their four-year-old daughter, Sandra, was in fair condition with head injuries.

OPERATE TODAY

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Pal, 52, was to be operated on today for head and chest injuries.

The collision put a tragic end both to the Roman Catholic sisters' trip to a conference of their nursing order and to an Ontario family's gay journey to a wedding in Detroit.

The three Americans were to be beyond reproach at a three-day conference of the Religious Hospitaler of St. Joseph.

The order, founded in Kingston in 1845, operates hospitals in Wisconsin, Montana, Chicago, Chatham, N.B., Windsor, Ont., Cornwall and St. Catharines, as well as several schools.

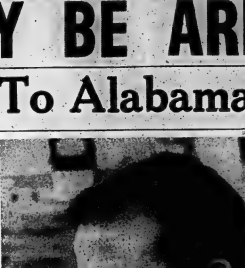
U.S. Airlines Risk 'Arrest' In Air Fare War

LONDON (Reuters) — Two American airlines continued to fly into London Airport today despite a British warning that their planes might be "arrested" if the companies fail to increase transatlantic fares.

Two planes operated by Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airways landed at London Airport overnight without incident and a second TWA airliner was due today. All were transatlantic flights bound for Frankfurt, West Germany.



Pan American announced Sunday it would not conform to an International Air Transport Association agreement to increase transatlantic roundtrip tickets by $67.

Trans-Canada Air Lines also refused to accept the proposed increases.

Meanwhile, all major European members of IATA, except Swissair Corporation, adopted the new fare scale at midnight.

But American companies were ordered to retain the old scale by the United States Civil Aeronautics Board, after the IATA ordered a reduction from 10 to five per cent in the discount for roundtrip fares on transatlantic routes.

The U.S. opposed the fare increase on the grounds that the airlines did not need it to operate North Atlantic flights.

STUDY OF AN ASTRONAUT — Here is a candid closeup of Astronaut Gordon Cooper taken at Cape Canaveral during final phases of his preparations for a flight into space this week. He is scheduled to make 22 orbits, well beyond Walter Schirra's six-orbit U.S. record. This photo was released by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at Cape Canaveral.

(NASA Photo via AP Wirephoto)

Astronaut Gordon Cooper Ready for 34 Hours in Sky

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)-Astronaut Gordon Cooper quietly entered a final pre-orbital day today, already caught up in the complex checkout of man and machine leading to his 22-orbit visit into space.

"I'm ready," he said. "All we have to do now is load, LOX and launch."

And everything appeared to be "go" for the scheduled blastoff Tuesday morning that is to put Cooper into orbit longer than any American—more than 34 hours if all works right.

A vast recovery network of ships and planes was spread out around the globe—the greatest such effort in history—ready to snatch up Cooper if it becomes necessary to stop the flight before 22 orbits are completed. If it goes the 600,000-mile route Cooper will land in the Pacific Wednesday near Midway Island.

A final medical checkout late Sunday was "go," as everyone expected. Cooper took it in stride, laughing and joshing with the doctors.

An observer at the medical session said he seemed perhaps a bit nervous, or at any rate preoccupied, as he shifted objects around on a desk while he spoke on a telephone.

Everything was going so well that high grade kerosene fuel was pumped into the big Atlas rocket today, a day ahead of time. It will power Cooper's Faith 7 Mercury capsule aloft. The early loading provided more time and leeway to check out other elements.

Hydrogen peroxide—which the astronaut uses to manoeuvre the capsule in space—also will be pumped into its reservoir and piping system and carefully observed for 12 hours in a final test for leaks.

But the LOX Cooper spoke of —the highly volatile liquid oxygen that combines with the kerosene to give the Atlas its kick—won't go in until 35 minutes before liftoff Tuesday morning. That is the last component to be loaded.

Caouette Says 6 Socreds Blocked 3-Party Coalition

QUEBEC (CP)—Real Caouette said Sunday six Social Credit members threw their support to a minority Liberal government last month to check another move within the party to establish a Diefenbaker government.

Mr. Caouette, leader of Social Credit forces in the national opposition agreement to increase transatlantic roundtrip tickets to $67.

Trans-Canada Air Lines also refused to accept the proposed increases.

Meanwhile, all major European members of IATA, except Swissair Corporation, adopted the new fare scale at midnight.

But American companies were ordered to retain the old scale by the United States Civil Aeronautics Board, after the IATA ordered a reduction from 10 to five per cent in the discount for roundtrip fares on transatlantic routes.

The U.S. opposed the fare increase on the grounds that the airlines did not need it to operate North Atlantic flights.

Negotiations To Pave Way For Shipment of Warheads To Canada To Start Soon

Pearson, Kennedy Talks Launch Speedup in Columbia R. Project

By HAROLD MORRISON

HYANNIS PORT (CP) — Canadian Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles may be armed with U.S.-controlled nuclear warheads by next September.

Canada-U.S.-defence negotiations to pave the way for shipment of the warheads to Canadian bases are being undertaken immediately following two-day summit talks between Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy at this Cape Cod resort where a chilly rain contrasted with the warmth and friendship between the two leaders.

Other steps being launched include a speedup in Columbia River power negotiations, preparations for new air transport talks that could increase Canadian traffic rights in the United States, a buddle by labor leaders in attempts to settle a Great Lakes labor tieup and a new look at the flow of U.S. production-sharing contracts to Canada.

U.S. newspapers which watched the Pearson - Kennedy talks with close attention hastened the results across the front pages, emphasizing the nuclear decision and hailing the meeting as the beginning of a thaw in cross-border relations.

Government advisers on both sides were relieved. Relations between Kennedy and former prime minister John Diefenbaker had almost ground to a standstill.

TO SEEK UNITY

The spirit of Kennedy accord with it was as ranged from North American defence to world affairs. In their Friday and Saturday talks before a roaring fire in the president's summer home, they agreed to cooperate in seeking greater North Atlantic unity and lower tariffs in the free world.

They spoke of their common dreams and common aspirations and they left friendship with an exchange of gifts and creation of a new pioneer rocking chair found in the Ottawa Valley. Kennedy hauled down the presidential colors from his home and presented them to Pearson, his guest of honor.

On behalf of their governments, they accepted the gift of an old summer home of the late president. Fredericton, N.B. — at "at once" about getting the Columbia River development program on the move.

Mr. Pearson left Ottawa Friday morning. He left the compound of the Kennedy family at Hyannis Port Saturday by helicopter for his RCAF transport at Otis Military Airfield 18 miles away.

Mr. Pearson messaged the president after his departure:

"The warmth of your welcome and the friendliness of our talks in the relaxed atmosphere . . . have made my visit a very happy one."

He referred to the lengthy communique issued after the talks and added:

"I think the most important thing accomplished was the re-

31 Are Killed In Plane Crash Near Cairo

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A United Arab Airlines twin-engined plane crashed near Cairo Sunday killing all 31 persons aboard.

The aircraft had just taken off on a regular 55-minute daily flight from Cairo to Alexandria on the Mediterranean.

A witness said the plane appeared to catch fire at about 1,000 feet and plunge to the ground.

Aboard were 27 passengers and a crew of four.

The plane fell in a private garden just outside the village of Zahwayed 17 miles south of Cairo. Twisted and torn wreckage and baggage and mutilated bodies littered a wide area.

PARACHUTIST KILLED

BELGRADE (AP) — Marica Baric, 21 - year - old Yugoslav woman parachuting champion, was killed at Zagreb airport Saturday when her parachute failed to open. She had jumped more than 200 times.

Sharp Warmly Endorses Drive To Cut Tariffs

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian government favors President Kennedy's proposals for drastic tariff reductions and is willing to make reciprocal concessions, Trade Minister Churchill Sharp said Sunday.

Addressing his first overseas press conference at Canada House, Sharp warmly endorsed President Kennedy's drive to negotiate tariff cuts of 50 per cent.

Today Sharp joins Frederick Erroll, president of the British board of trade, and 15 other Commonwealth ministers as they begin a two-day preparation for Thursday's opening of a 30-nation meeting in Geneva of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Sharp said Canada generally supports Kennedy's plan for a tariff attack on a linear or across-the-board basis, rather than

But Canada—as net exporter of agricultural and primary products — has peculiar problems of its own and might need to make concessions in a different way than such highly-industrialized countries as the United States and Britain.

"We are prepared to make concessions in the Canadian tariffs that will pay fully for concessions made to us by other countries," Sharp declared. "There will be reciprocity of benefit."

Sharp said the Commonwealth meeting — bringing together countries at practically every stage of development — would be extremely useful as a preparation for Geneva.

NDP Calls Tale Nonsense

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the New Democratic Party today branded "as sheer and utter nonsense" Social Credit claims of an attempted alliance between the two minority parties.

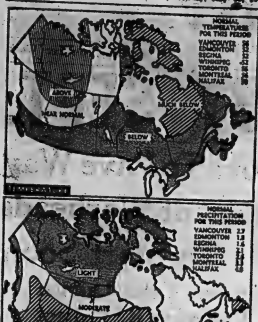
Stanley Knowles, MP for Winnipeg North Centre, said Socred Deputy Leader Real Caouette's statement on the alleged alliance "is the first I have heard of it."

Mr. Caouette is trying to cover up the troubles he is having in his own party and he isn't doing a very good job of it."

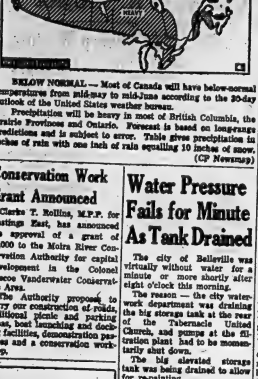
Surgeon and Stewardess Fight Losing Battle to Save Co-Pilot

NEW YORK (AP) — In a speeding jet airliner high over the Atlantic Saturday, a lead-ing Canadian surgeon and a stewardess fought a desperate, losing battle to save a stricken co-pilot's life.

With blankets shielding the scene from first-class passengers and using a knife from the plane's galley, the pair performed an emergency operation.



Then, assisted by other crew members, they gave the co-pilot oxygen and externally massaged his heart as the swift jet raced the clock.



Geraldo Segals, 29, the stricken second officer of Varig Airlines flight 854 from Buenos Aires to New York, still was breathing but unconscious, when taken from the plane at Idlewild Airport. He died before reaching hospital.

Dr. Clarence Watford, a professor of chest surgery at Karolinska Hospital in Stockholm, was a passenger on the jet. He worked with stewardess Yvonne Stapfer, a former operating room nurse.

The doctor decided on an emergency tracheotomy — cutting into the co-pilot's windpipe and inserting a tube to allow him to breathe. Using a knife from the galley—sterilized with alcohol—and the plane's first aid equipment, the doctor completed the surgery in 1¼ minutes.

Then for 1½ hours, the doctor and members of the 19-man crew took turns massaging Segala's heart — "even during the landing," the stewardess said.

Water Pressure Fails for Minute As Tank Drained

The city of Belleville was without water for a minute or more shortly after eight o'clock this morning.

The reason — the city waterwork department was draining the big storage tank at the rear of the Tabernacle United Church, and pumps at the filtration plant had to be momentarily shut down.

The big elevated storage tank was being drained to allow for re-painting.

A pumphouse official said the reduced water pressure this morning was only for a minute or so and that pressure was resumed as soon as the pumps were restarted.

It will take two or three days to paint the elevated storage tank and get it back into use but water customers in the meantime will notice no change in water pressure.

KINGSTON — Summer School sessions at Queen's University will attract a record 2,400 students this summer according to registration figures now almost complete. Study programs, most beginning July 8, will include regular credit courses, ballet and painting and executive training courses for Canadians.

This number will include some 1,200 men and women enrolled in credit courses that will be offered from July 3 until August 3. Many of these students are elementary school teachers from across Canada who are aiming towards a bachelor's degree, summer work and winter correspondence courses.

As well, there will be at least 420 Ontario College of Education students studying for their secondary school teaching certificates. Most first-year students of the two-summer course will be 1962 university graduates, while the second year group will have one session of high school teaching to their credit.

The Queen's School of Business will be operating three courses under the Summer Executive program. A seminar on a new subject, operations research, is offered to some 90 executives May 9 and 10. The annual Perspective for Management course will be held May 27-31 with 60 registrants, and 72 senior businessmen will take part in the Executive Seminar School running from June 10 to 28.

Three classes in painting and one in ballet during the Summer School of Fine Arts will bring more than 170 people to the campus ranging from public school age to adults.

TOURIST BENEFITS

The thirteenth annual summer school of English for French speaking students will complete the university's program. Running from July 2 to August 2, the training course in the speaking of English has attracted 160 applications.

Dr. H. W. Curren, director of extension at Queen's points out the great importance of these summer courses to the city of Kingston.

"Many of these people are married with children. They bring their whole families down here for the summer and the city and local tourist industry can't help but prosper from the annual influx."

Apples Escape Sunday Frost

TRENTON — Frost on Sunday and early today did not do any perceptible damage to apple crops in the Trenton area, says Mowbray Weaver, fruit and vegetable specialist with the Northumberland Agricultural office at Brighton. Tender plants would be affected. Early potatoes and cabbage plants can stand a bit of frost.

Ralph Banbury, agriculture representative for the county, says there are a couple of warm days area apple trees should burst into flower.

"What the farmers need is a week of good seeding weather," said Mr. Banbury.

KEEPING IN TOUCH with the Golden Hawks, RCAF aerobatic team, Wing Commander Frank Hatton, (right), commanding officer of the unit, directed an improvised show by portable radio at the Prince Edward Flying Club tenth anniversary display Saturday. The show presented by the Hawks had to be improvised on the spot, to keep it below the 1,900-foot ceiling.

SKYDIVERS who jumped Saturday at the Prince Edward Flying Club tenth anniversary celebration were mobbed by small boys after they landed. In the picture, Floyd Martineau, Bruce MacInnes and Bill Sheldon, of the St. Catharines' Skydiving Club, and

Paul Martineau and Louie Van Hecke of the Prince Edward Skydiving Club, wade through a sea of pint-sized admirers as they return to the clubhouse with Bob Blake of Belleville, who was ground assistant Saturday, and who jumped Sunday.

563 Airplane Rides Given As P. E. Flying Club Holds Celebration on Anniversary

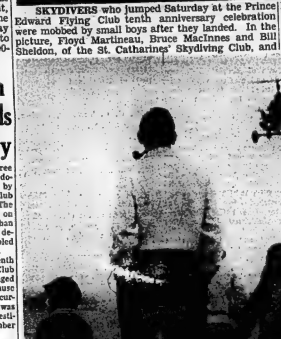
Five hundred and sixty-three free airplane rides were donated Saturday and Sunday by the Prince Edward Flying Club to the Picton Rotary Club. The Rotarians, selling tickets on the rides, cleared more than $325, all of which will be devoted to work with crippled children in the Picton area.

The occasion was the tenth anniversary of the Flying Club and the air-show they staged to celebrate the event. Because admission was free, no accurate count of the spectators was possible, but conservative estimates by club officials number them in thousands.

Cold weather and a low cloud ceiling Saturday interfered with, but did not prevent, some of the major attractions. The Golden Hawks, RCAF precision aerobatics team, improvised their show as they flew, to keep it below the 1,900 foot cloud ceiling. Clouds also restricted the sky diving demonstrations planned for the day.

FIVE JUMPS MADE

Five parachutists did jump though, Louie Van Hecke and Paul Martineau of the Prince Edward Skydiving Club, and Floyd Martineau, Bruce MacInnes and Bill Sheldon, of the St. Catharines Skydiving Club.



Floyd Martineau of St. Catharines, twice a representative of Canada in world championship skydiving meets, made his five hundred and first jump minutes after his brother Paul of Camp Picton made his third jump.

Also featured at the show Saturday was a gyrocopter, piloted by Bob Fisher of Trenton and owned by a pal driven by Albert Cudney, of Kingston. Unexpected excitement was provided when the machine flipped over during a landing, but damage was minor and the pilot was unhurt.

SKYDIVERS BACK

Sunday, under clear skies, everything went according to plan. The skydivers were back with jumps from as high as 12,000 feet and delays up to one minute before opening their chutes, and one local jumper, Bob Blake of Belleville, made his first jump during the day. The St. Catharines Club members jumped four times each.

But the main feature of the show was the airplane rides, most provided for people who had never been aloft before. About 400 children donated 25c or more to the club and more than 150 adults donated one dollar or more, to qualify themselves for the rides.

EVERYBODY, (WELL, ALMOST) everybody, watched the gyrocopter, flown by Bob Fisher of Trenton, as it circled the field. The small boy to the left in this picture appears to have been more interested in the car, driven by Albert Cudney of Kingston, which towed the machine.

Two Accidents Send Three To Hospital

Two accidents miles apart, but at almost the same time, sent three persons to district hospitals with minor injuries, Sunday.

Arthur Struyk, 41, Carrying Place, and 18-year-old Nancy Berry, Trenton, were treated for face and arm cuts after Struyk's car left Highway 33, near Carrying Place, and crashed on its side in the ditch. They were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital.

At Latchford's Corners, on Highway 14, just north of Belleville, Gail Westfall, age about 23, was treated for shock after a two-car accident. Miss Westfall was in a car driven by Richard Brant, 110 Station St., struck by an automobile driven by Andrew Vos, Halloway.

Provincial police said Brant was turning off the highway onto Thurlow township's third concession.

Both accidents occurred about 3.00 p.m.

No Fire At City Hall

The fire department arrived quickly on the scene this morning after receiving a call that City Hall was on fire.

However, upon arrival, it was found that thick, black smoke, pouring from the chimney, was rolling around on the roof of, but being caught by the wind.

Coal gas fumes from the furnace, spread through parts of the building. There was no fire.

Fire department officials reported an otherwise quiet weekend.

French Africans Ready to Leave Cuba for Haiti

NEW YORK (AP) — A. A. Berle, former assistant secretary of state, says in The Reporter magazine that thousands of French-speaking Africans are in Cuba presumably waiting to move into Haiti.

He said the plan is part of a Communist plot to infiltrate Haiti.

Berle, who headed a task force on Latin American affairs in the early days of the Kennedy administration, wrote that "the growing chaos clears the way for a seizure of Haiti by someone and the Africans in Cuba are obviously there to back a candidate."

In the article in the current issue of The Reporter, Berle says a number of the Africans often said to have come from Guinea, are reported concentrated in Santiago and some are said already to have crossed over from Cuba to Haiti in small boats.

He said the number of imported Africans in Cuba is estimated at from 2,500 to 10,000.

"Early in May," Berle wrote, "these French Africans were seen on the streets of Havana. The general assumption was that their desination was Haiti."

He said the current crisis in Haiti is more dangerous than the "already perilous Cuban situation."

Exiles Form Provisional Haiti Govt.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Haiti's two leading exiles have formed a provisional government in Puerto Rico, predicting President Francois Duvalier's dictatorship will fall "within a few weeks" and they will take over.

Louis Dejoie, 68, and Daniel Fignole, 46, both defeated by Duvalier in the 1957 presidential elections, told reporters Sunday they hope to win quick recognition of their government in exile from the United States and other countries.

"We will do everything in our power to have him (Duvalier) removed, including the use of force if need be," Dejoie and Fignole said.

Haitian underground leader Clemente Bardot has vowed to kill Duvalier before the week is out. A revolt has been threatened for Wednesday, the day the Negro president's constitutional term of office expires.

Russia Building Naval Base in Cuba Says Times

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Sunday News says new government intelligence reports show Russia is building a naval base in Cuba in the area of Banes, 60miles northeast of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay.

The News says "these reports —not from refugees — indicate that there may be substantially more than 17,500 Russian combat troops reported in Cuba by the (U.S. Senate preparedness) subcommittee (last) week."

"The new intelligence reports, complete with names of ships and numbers of personnel aboard, trace the flow of Russians in and out of Cuba from last summer through April," the newspaper says in a dispatch from Washington.

"U.S. officials have denied repeatedly that the Russians have established a submarine base in Cuba and have indicated that they have seen no evidence of more than efforts to improve fishing ports," the story says, adding:

"The new reports contradict these contentions flatly."

The newspaper says the new reports estimate Russian naval personnel in Cuba numbers 1,600 with an additional 1,360 radar technicians and 2,400 coast-defence missile men.

Argentina's President Wins Another Battle

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine President Jose Maria Guido appeared today to have survived the ninth crisis of his year-old regime after manoeuvring controversial Gen. Enrique Rauch out of the key post of interior minister.

All other cabinet members resigned Sunday, following Rauch's charge that the administration was riddled with corruption and supporters of former dictator Juan Peron and former president Arturo Frondizi. Rauch finally handed in his resignation also after apparently getting assurance that some of those he wanted out would be removed.

Guido withheld action on the other minister, but he snapped up Rauch's resignation. He named Gen. Osiris Villegas, former army operations officer, to be interior minister. The post ranks next to the presidency.

Rauch said he was quitting "to permit reconstruction of a national cabinet with men capable of acting in harmony."

Government sources expected Guido to name four civilian ministers whom Rauch had attacked and War Secretary Benjamin Rattenbach to be announced the interior minister for causing the cabinet rift and demanded his resignation.

Rauch touched off the crisis last week by demanding replacement of most civilians in the cabinet by military men, sweeping arrests and drastic overhaul of Argentina's penal laws to weed out disciple of Frondizi and Peron.

O. L. Bill Bell Dies Suddenly At His Home

Former manager of The Big "A" Company in Belleville and well known in the business and social life of the city, Orville Lawrence "Bill" Bell, 231 Bridge Street, East, died suddenly at his home on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Bell had been watching a baseball game on TV and was found beside his chair an hour or so later. Death was said due to a heart attack.

Born in Virden, Manitoba, 68 years ago, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cephas Bell, but had lived in the Belleville area for the past 45 years.

He attended public and high school at Belleville and for a time worked in a bank, then was employed with British American Oil in Kitchener before returning to Belleville in 1940 to become associated with The Big "A" Company.

C OF C DIRECTOR

A director of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for many years, Mr. Bell was the current vice president and was the Chamber representative on the Belleville Industrial Commission.

He was a member of The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 123, the Belleville Shrine Club and the Belleville Club.

He took a keen interest in sports, although was never an active participant. He was a former commodore of the Belleville Yacht Club and had given financial assistance to many local teams.

Mr. Bell is survived by his wife, the former Florence Brown, one brother Jack of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Lorne (Alpha) Williams and Mrs. Elton (Mabel) Johnston, both of Oshawa.

The funeral will be held Tuesday from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home with Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

More Are Prepared

The National Council of the Boy Scouts of Canada held its annual meeting at Ottawa on Friday.

Amongst the business was the presentation of an annual report.

Included in this report were some interesting figures on membership. These showed that the number of Cubs and Scouts had risen each year for a decade. In 1952 there were 81,700 Cubs, in 1962 171,500; in 1952 Scouts numbered 48,600, in 1962 105,300.

This looks like a gratifying picture. But those responsible for the report realized that statistics can be deceiving unless they are analyzed. Besides presenting the yearly figures, they also presented a table showing the percentage change in membership each year over the preceding year. Because of a change in the age of "going up" from Cubs to Scouts in 1958, separate figures for the two groups could be misleading. The combined total showed a sharp, a startling change in the rate of increase. Rising from 8.2 per cent in 1953 to 12 per cent in 1958, the rate has since dropped steadily, reaching 2.4 per cent in 1962.

But these figures, too, can be deceiving. Another table shows the number of Cubs and Scouts as a percentage of the total male membership, the number of boys in Canada in the Cub and Scout age groups. Here we find that the percentage for Cubs rose steadily, from 15.2 per cent in 1952 to 24.2 per cent in 1960, and has since dropped slightly. The same is true for the Scouts, except that there is no "recession" of one-tenth of one per cent in 1958, the year which the age of "going up" changed. Scouts were 7.3 per cent of the potential membership in 1952, rose to 9.7 per cent in 1960 and have since fallen to 9.1 per cent.

Just what this all means, beyond the fact that these figures been expansion and that there is room for more growth, we are not sure. Nor do we think that further figures would necessarily provide any insight. For instance, from much that we have read we suspect that there may have been a rise in the rates of juvenile delinquency during the past ten years but any coupling of these statistics with those on Scout membership would obviously be an unwarranted assumption.

Figures as we remarked earlier are confusing, and sometimes the more there are around, the more confusing the situation becomes. This is as true of annual reports as of the bathing beach.

A Censor's Confession

The Ontario Board of Censors—Theatres Branch, in its annual report for the year ending March 31, 1962, "notes with regret" the use of "brutality, sex and violence beyond the point necessary for dramatic realism" by certain (film) writers, directors and producers.

"Such perversion of art for sensational purposes is difficult to deal with, for it frequently runs through the fabric of the plot," the report says. "In such cases the Board makes eliminations rather than rejections, as banning any film today arouses controversy over the individual's freedom of choice and brings the film in question a publicity value it does not deserve."

Any urge to applaud the Board"s sentiments and actions is somewhat dampened by observations contained in the three paragraphs in the report immediately preceding the one quoted.

"The motion picture has now moved into a period of freedom of expression previously denied it by various forms of censorship. We must now recognize the fact that public opinion has changed considerably over the past years. Audiences now expect that those movies which attempt to deal truthfully with the realities of life shall have the same freedom of expression as that granted to the theatre, literature and other forms of art . . . . Stories which a few years ago we would have called most definitely 'questionable' are not now found 'objectionable' by the public at large in light of changing tastes and conditions.

"It is a well-known fact that many films we banned some years ago, or cut quite drastically, are now shown on television without protest . . . . We no longer place emphasis on the cutting of films to make them acceptable to all audiences but on classifying them."

The Board having thus confessed that, in the past, it let public opinion, and not artistic merits, decide what should and should not be permitted, and that it once tried to make "every film . . . . suitable for all ages," one may be forgiven for wondering now whether the Board is properly qualified to judge when scenes of brutality, violence and sex are carried "beyond the point necessary for dramatic realism."

Depth Race Is On

By Don Dooley, in The Milwaukee Journal

Imagine, if you can, the startling announcement that Russia had discovered the secret of exploring the ocean depths and soon would be mining the seas of their vast treasures of food and minerals.

The reaction in the United States could be something like that which occurred in 1957, when the USSR sent up its first earth satellite. Americans were shocked, angry and embarrassed that a country with an ideology so alien could have made such a great scientific leap forward. The entire American education system was questioned, and in some cases, overhauled; billions were appropriated for space exploration.

Now, five and one-half years later, it is fair that the U.S. might have caught up with the Russians in some areas of space exploration. There are scientific men who feel that it might take another shock, of the magnitude of sputnik, to the bottom of the Atlantic, to the potential of "inner space" — the ocean depths.

This year the United States government will spend four billion dollars for space research and only 100 million dollars for oceanic studies.

* * *

"Russia understands the broad sweep of this wet war far better than any other power," said Dr. Roger Revelle, professor of oceanography at the Scripps Institute of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif. "She is out to dominate the sea — both economically and militarily."

It is becoming more apparent every year that this is the world might very well hold the key to man's survival. The deep seas not only offer a way to attack, but can provide the life blood of civilization — the food and minerals, and even the oil, exploding, earth-bound population.

As a source of food, the oceans are virtually unexplored. Almost limitless quantities of fish and plant life. New electronic equipment is capable of guiding fishermen to schools of fish. There will be fish farms, where fish could be fed nutrients pumped into "hives," or sea pens, built out of air bubbles would fence off schools of fish so they could be easily netted, and electrical devices to stun fish so they could be piped from canning factory ships. Seaweed, algae and plankton would be harvested.

For years, oil has been pumped from the continental shelf. It is felt, though, that huge deposits of oil lie beneath much deeper water.

Off Nome, Alaska, the Shell Oil Co. is drilling in 120 feet of water. As a result, other persons have rushed to stake off thousands of wet acres in the hope that gold veins extend into the water.

Diamonds are being mined under water off South Africa, and tin is being taken from the ocean floor in southeast Asia. The Japanese are using huge dredging pumps to rock up iron ore.

The Institute of Marine Resources says that 2,000 tons of nodules could be dredged from the ocean floor at only 50 to 75 per cent of the cost of land mining.

The big interest is in nodules, which are potato-shaped lumps of metals of almost pure metal. The University of California has estimated that just in the Pacific there are 17 trillion tons of nodules, and that 15 million more are being formed each year. The trick of course, is to find sufficient concentrations of this rant recovery. For that reason underwater exploration vehicles are vitally needed.

One of these is the United States navy's Trieste a bratwurst - shaped vessel that in 1960 went down 35,800 feet into the Marianas trench in the Pacific, the deepest depth known in the world. This is nearly seven miles down, where the Trieste had to withstand pressures of nearly eight tons per square inch.

The Trieste will investigate the fate of the Thresher, the nuclear submarine that plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic, with 129 men aboard.

Late this summer, the navy's research department is expected to launch a two-man submarine made of a recently developed steel to withstand many times the depth pressure the Thresher could take.

The Thresher's depth limit was a secret, but it probably could not dive much more than 1,000 feet safely, while the new research sub will go down 6,000 feet. The new submarine tentatively named the Seapup will be 20 feet long, weigh about 28 tons and have HY-100, a high-yield steel with an estimated strength of 100,000 pounds (50 tons) per square inch.

The Seapup will have sonar, underwater TV cameras and lights, and a mechanical arm to scrape the ocean's floor and pick up objects. It is designed to stay down 24 hours at a one-mile depth.

Such vessels as the Trieste and the Seapup will help the United States reach the level of Russian exploration. The USSR reportedly has the largest and most modern marine laboratory fleet afloat — 100-plus research ships as against about 60 that the government and private organizations in the United States operate.

Communism Bred Poison Reaction

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Not long ago, I discussed the perversion of the word "sentimental," in regard to the people who oppose capital punishment—pointing out that the real sentimentalists are those today who insist on retaining this outmoded and ineffectual form of vengeance.

Today I'd like to examine another word which has nearly another very much abused term, "Utopian." This is a word often applied to reasonable, or even middle-of-the-roaders, to those who seem to favor a left-wing philosophy, or who appear to be tinged with a "communistic" leaning.

Actually, it is one of the ironies of language and politics that the thought that Karl Marx, the founder of communism reserved his most withering scorn for the "Utopians." They were the socialists of his day who felt that social reform must come from the people themselves.

The widespread communist movement in the world today is practically the opposite of "Utopian." It is pragmatic, dogmatic, imposed from the top, wedded to violence, the enemy of all voluntary movements, and totally repressive beneath its thin layer of humanitarian verbiage.

Communism has not moved toward "the withering away of the state," as Marx predicted it would, but in the opposite direction—toward the total state. Its equally poisonous reaction of fascism.

The Utopians may have been right or wrong — and, in my opinion, they were a little of both — but it is unjust to equate them (now or then) with the Marxists. For communism, the interest foes of the communists were not the capitalists but the non-Marxian socialists who saw all too well, and all too clearly, where Marxism was headed — and they were silenced by assassination or exile.

If Marxism had been able to become—instead of—Stalinism, or Maoism, it would, but in the opposite direction. Marx and Engels were "mere sentimentalists," the Marxists abdicated their humanism and intellectual integrity, they so nobly proclaimed in their speeches and manifestoes.

We cannot understand the nature of modern communism unless we comprehend its historical roots. It is a movement with a good idea (some eminent theologians have even called it a "Christian idea") which in every great appeal is based on the fact that it appears to offer the only way to overthrow a corrupt, underprivileged society and create social justice and economic equality.

It cannot do so, of course. But to dismiss these goals as "Utopian" is to misunderstand the communist revolution and to misread history. The American idea is indeed a Utopian one, and we should bring the word back to respectability and recognition, on our side.

Inhabitants of the Pentagon, busy as they must be with the problems of our defence, still have time to fight the battle of the war with the English language.

The latest new "word" to find its way into a press release — so help us Webster — "deprojectmanagerize."

There is a custom of appointing a project manager for study of a new rifle or tank. When it is far enough along, the project manager is assigned other duty. Hence, the job is "deprojectmanagerized."

Isn't it reasonable to ask the Defence Department's official tongue be depentagonized?

The idea is prevalent that the U.S.A. is pouring out millions of dollars worth of supplies, arms and food to British, Russia and the other United Nations, and that she is getting nothing in return. In truth, the British Empire is footing a great and constant stream of food, clothing, weapons and medical supplies for United States troops without charge — Lend/Lease in Reverse.

After Pearl Harbor, British arms were rushed directly to the U.S.A. Thousands of barrage balloons and A.A. guns, predictors and other protective appliances were shipped across the Atlantic. The British radio tools were stripped from British factories and dispatched to the United States. One radio valve making plant, one of the most modern in the world, was dismantled, packed and a gunmaking factory went the same way. No charge was made.

According to the U.K. Information Office, during the North African landings the United States forces were provided by Britain with 160 Spitfires, more than 300,000 anti-tank mines and grenades, 130 reconnaissance boats, medical supplies for 100,000 men and one U.S. division was completely equipped with the famous British 25-pounder guns. Half Women Workers Wed

Aims of Industry

More than one-third of the workers in British factories and offices today are women, and half of them are married. And the number of married women taking up jobs is still increasing. In ten years to 1961 the number of single women in jobs fell by six per cent, but the number of married women rose by 39 per cent.

One of the reasons for the housewives' industrial revolution, according to Miss I. F. Hilton, organising secretary of the Women's Employment Federation, is that work in the home, thanks to time-saving initiative, has been reduced greatly by labor-saving devices. These include vacuum cleaners, washing machines, dishwashers and similar aids. Shopping is also easier with the growth of the "everything-under-one-roof" supermarkets, while the man about the house is a feature of Britain's part-time housewives, a more domesticated "animal" than he was ten years ago.

The Women's Employment Federation in Britain was founded in 1933 by a group of women interested in all aspects of women in industry, to encourage and suitable trainings for girls and women. The founders were representatives of University Appointments Board, women's societies, professional organizations, colleges and schools.

"It becomes obvious, therefore," said Miss Hilton, "that a woman seeks an outlet somewhere, and it is in industry and commerce generally that she may find it, as well as in the professions."

"She wants to see more than the four walls of her home, and she wants to hear more than the idle chatter of neighbors. The money itself is not necessarily her main concern but it does enable her to give her family a better standard of living, and to keep abreast of the latest developments in labor-saving devices for the home. It also broadens her outlook because she can move into the category of those who holiday abroad, while until recent years was confined to the more leisured classes."

That woman is taking her part seriously in the "white blouse and blue overall" revolution is shown by recent heated debates in Britain's House of Commons on the report of the Employment of Women Bill when it was stated that the Minister was seeking power to make decisions on behalf of women.

So it is not likely that women are to give up their growing stake in running the world, or

Life Stream Nourishes All Parts of Human Body

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What effect does blood received by transfusion have on the physical and mental make-up of the recipient?

Are the effects on children more marked than on adults?

Would the use of plasma have any effects not found in the use of whole blood? — F. P. M., Jr.

Effects on mental or physical make-up? None. Blood is a vital material in the intricate but completely logical mechanism of the body.

Blood nourishes all parts of the body. It carries away wastes. It fights off infections. It heals wounds.

It's like gasoline and a car. You can use 97 different kinds of gasoline but it won't change a sports car into a truck.

If you happen to buy some "bargain" gas, you may not get as much power. You may get too much carbon in the engine or gum up the carburetor. But the regular, good brands of gas won't do that.

It's the same with blood. A blood bank won't accept donations from anyone whose health isn't good — sometimes for their own sakes, and in the case of some rare diseases, for the sake of being sure that the blood is of normal quality.

The blood received is kept the requisite volume of fluid in the circulatory system. The mineral content is of value. So is the protein content. (If all we need is blood sugar, we can transfuse glucose.)

When a person has lost a lot of blood, such as from an accident, he will go into "shock" and die unless we give a transfusion. For him, the use of liquid value because of its fluid volume and the protein it contains. Plasma, roughly speaking, is the liquid part of the blood, with the cells (such as red and white) removed.

It is possible to give larger transfusions of plasma than of whole blood.

However, whole blood may be preferable when the recipient has severe and needs more red cells. Sometimes a special concentrate, with more than the usual number of red cells, may be given.

Children and even babies respond nicely to transfusions. In cases of babies born with jaundice and some other conditions, it may be necessary to withdraw their own blood and replace it completely. This is also done with small children who are endangered by massive infections. Replacing their blood with that of people who have acquired at least partial immunity against such germs can give this immunity to the recipient.

After a month or two or three, all the transfused blood will have been cast aside by the body and replaced by new blood it has created. But by then the emergency is past.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A strict rule in practically all big corporations is that groups of executives must never travel in the same aircraft. In some companies there are tables worked out, like the mortality tables of consanguinity with respect to marriage, showing which executives may travel with what other executives. And I have heard of companies that make this rule apply not only to aircraft but to travel by car.

An interesting variation of this rule turned up when a welcoming party went out to the airport to greet a distinguished visitor coming from the States to attend an annual dinner. His wife had accompanied him, but got off the plane alone, the welcoming delegation cried:

"Where's your wife?"

"Oh, she's coming by another plane," said the guest of honor. "We never travel in the same plane. We have four children, you know."

So another welcoming delegation was hastily organized, and dispatched to the airport at the next plane and in fact it was a charming and highly intelligent woman.

Cause of Cancer May Be Discovered in Near Future

NEW YORK — Dr. Gerald Collyer, medical director of the London Life Insurance Company says increasing hope that the cause of cancer may be discovered in the not-too distant future. Dr. Collyer predicts "that a solution is near to the question of how to control the behaviour of body cells and in this way to effect a cure for cancer."

Besides cancer, he said that progress may be expected during the next ten years in preventing deaths due to high blood pressure and heart deformities.

But he said, it is difficult to predict any great improvement in the near future in the treatment of coronary artery disease.

Dr. Collyer addressed the three-day annual meeting of the Home Office Life Underwriters Association, which ended May 8. The H.O.L.U.A. is a professional organization of life insurance company executives who transact life risks involved in each application for a new policy. More than 400 members and guests from throughout the United States and Canada attended the meeting.

Dr. Collyer cited several developments that are giving hope to cancer researchers, including: great strides in the field of molecular biology; improved techniques in surgery and anesthesiology that have resulted in the removal of cancerous growths previously thought to be inoperable; chemical treatment with refined drugs, such as nitrogen mustard, which formerly were too toxic to be used except in extreme cases; the use of radioactive isotopes with increasing understanding and effectiveness in certain types of malignancy.

Also by using chemical agents, "there would seem an improved question that we are getting closer each year to the effective control of blood pressure," Dr. Collyer said. "Undoubtedly within ten years it will be possible to bring this condition under effective control under most circumstances. If this be so, then there would be an improvement in mortability in the various cardiovescular problems resulting from the prolonged persistent increase in blood pressure, including hypertensive heart disease and cerebral vascular accidents."

He said improved surgical techniques and safer use of anesthetics, which allow surgeons "to perform unbelievable repairs of deformed hearts," are making it possible for many persons with congenital heart deformities, rheumatic heart damage and other heart defects to lead normal lives.

But, despite extensive research in coronary artery disease, "and although much has been learned of the physiology and pathology of this condition, we would suspect that the incidence is increasing." Dr. Collyer said. "Family history, the prolonged nervous strain, as well as the presence of arteriosclerotic changes in the coronary arteries all enter into the cause of this disease."

'Gardening for Pleasure' Fine Booklet by Bank of Commerce

A sense of personal satisfaction and increased property value can both be achieved through good gardening practices, advises "Gardening for Pleasure," an illustrated booklet recently published by Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Many good garden ideas and practical recommendations are contained in the booklet which was developed by the Bank's Agricultural Department in consultation with horticultural authorities across Canada.

"The average citizen, on buying or renting property, sets out to improve its appearance," the booklet says. "Well planned, attractive, foundation planting, and the most effective use of flowers.

"The Aimey Flowering Crabapple, chosen as Canada's centennial tree by the Canadian Association of Nurserymen, is both a colorful tree in all seasons and can be grown from coast to coast," states the booklet. Many other useful suggestions on selecting trees and shrubs, evergreens, foundation plantings are also outlined.

"You will be amply rewarded" says the booklet for a little special care taken in the selection of plantings and for learning how and when to plant and tend your garden properly.

The booklet is being distributed through the branches of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce across Canada, and it can also be obtained by writing to the Agricultural Department of the Bank's Head Office, 25 King Street West, Toronto 1.

Heat, Traffic Can Create Headaches

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

On the first hot Sunday of the season, traffic jams up and over-heating troubles erupt on every highway. The angry puzzled motorist staring at his steaming engine becomes a familiar sight.

Few such cases are the result of rust and scale blockage in the radiator. More likely are conditions such as a sticking or restricted thermostat, a slipping fan belt, late ignition timing, a collapsed or clogged radiator hose. Other troubles which may not show up until the engine is fighting heat and heavy traffic include a too-lean fuel mixture, a loose or faulty radiator pressure cap, a clogged muffler or exhaust pipe.

The trouble is usually minor but it can create big headaches when you're on the road — which is reason enough for a thorough preseason checkup.

From P.T.: "Can engine knock be the result of low oil pressure?"

Yes — since it can result in an inadequate oil cushion, or oil starvation at bearings. Low oil supply can be a cause of low pressure.

V.C. writes: "Even though a car is designed primarily for economy, must styling be as weird as some of the small foreign models shown at the last auto show?"

Small-car styling often fails to come off when the maker strains to imitate distinctive features of bigger cars. One particular model you mentioned — a really superior economy car and a good buy — will undoubtedly lose sales because of this mistake.

G.L. asks: "After more than 30 years of owning and driving cars, I had my first case of ignition coil trouble. What will normally cause this?"

Shorted or grounded windings, a loose, corroded or moisture-laden coil socket connection, excessive heat, abnormally high voltage. Coil trouble can also be the result of defective ignition switch contacts.

From N.D.: "You recently mentioned that good compression is needed for positive starting. Does that mean that worn piston rings might be the reason why the engine is hard to start?"

Right. You'll usually find that an 'oil burner' is a bit balky about starting, especially when cold.

Freighter Ties Up, Pickets Warned Off

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Canadian freighter James Norris tied up in Milwaukee Saturday after police warned off a boat carrying pickets. The freighter arrived from Cleveland where she had been involved in a shooting incident.

Police ignored a launch carrying 18 women and 10 children into service to warn off the pickets.

The Norris, owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto, also was involved in a dispute with the Seafarers International Union (Ind.) and the Canadian Maritime Union.

Capt. Arthur Rouse said the vessel was struck by three shots from a high-powered rifle about 2:30 a.m. Thursday in Cleveland. He said five men had picketed the ship in Cleveland but authorities did not know if they had fired the shots or whether they had anything to do with the labor dispute.

Two men in a small outboard motorcraft approached the Norris as she docked Saturday, Rouse said, and said they were "Protest use of labor spies by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited" posters against S.S. James Norris only."

Sheriff's deputies, who had been told of the shooting incident, used their own boat and pressed the labor launch into service, asking the launch skipper to help them stop the picket boat. The launch was carrying members of the Milwaukee Press Club 'auxiliary and the pickets' craft and the officers read them a court order restraining picketing of Upper Lakes ships.

The pickets obeyed and pulled away.

Sask. Doctors Said Against Govt. Clinics

SASKATOON (CP) — Organized medicine in Saskatchewan is going to drive about 30 doctors working in Saskatchewan community clinics from the province, Dr. Sam Wolfe, medical consultant to the Saskatchewan Community Health Services Association, said Friday.

He told a press conference the professional committee of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, also is attempting to keep other doctors from joining the clinics.

He said the college had not lived up to terms of an agreement it signed with the provincial government last summer which ended a 23-day boycott by doctors of a compulsory, prepaid medical care insurance plan inaugurated by the government.

Dr. Wolfe said:

"A charge that an attempt is being made to drive out of Saskatchewan almost 30 doctors who have come to provide services in community clinics.

"I further charge that an attempt is being made to keep other doctors, including almost two dozen graduates of public community clinics in the next few months, from coming to Saskatchewan."

CALLED CONFERENCE

Both Dr. Wolfe and Maynard Woolard, executive assistant to the association, have called the conference to "put the facts about community health clinics before the people of the province."

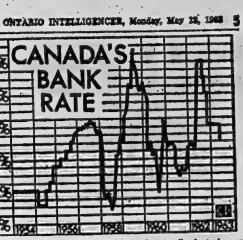
Dr. Wolfe said the college had hindered a recruitment program by the community clinics and the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

An application for advertising a subsidized drug plan in the clinics, was rejected by The Journal after a report was received from the college it conflicted with the college views.

In Winnipeg, Dr. Harry Portnuff, president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, said he was surprised that Dr. Wolfe was not more cognizant of the legislative agreement and of regulations under the Saskatchewan Hospital Standards Act. The college has nothing whatever to do with applications for hospital appointments, he said.

"Naturally, we hope that the autonomy of hospital boards is not to be usurped by any pressure groups."

Two Advertising Agencies Merge



MONTREAL — Merging of all facilities of two well-known advertising agencies, Cromble Advertising Company Limited and Stevenson & Scott Limited, was announced here Saturday.

Executive and personnel of both agencies will be integrated into the combined organization, to be known as Cromble Advertising Company Limited.

The merger will provide the firm with consolidated offices in Montreal and Toronto, as well as branches in Halifax and Vancouver.

From the Stevenson & Scott group, Harry J. Smith will become senior vice-president and a director of Cromble Advertising, while Ian Scott will be S. C. Young vice-presidents.

The main objective of the amalgamation is to expand and increase services offered to Canadian advertisers. It is also felt that by combining their services into a single enlarged operation, an important step forward will be taken in anticipating the requirements of business in a growing Canadian economy.

BANK RATE CUT — Canada's bank rate, fixed at six per cent June 24, 1963, as part of the government's austerity program, has been lowered for the fourth time.

The rate was reduced to 5½ per cent Sept. 7, to five per cent Oct. 12, to four per cent Nov. 13 and to 3½ per cent May 6.

The bank rate sets the interest for loans from the Bank of Canada to chartered banks and others. (CP Newsmap)

India Plans Yoga Drive In Combat Against Drugs

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The Indian government has confirmed official recognition on yoga, the 3,000-year-old Hindu physical culture system originated by ascetics in the Himalayan Mountains.

State-run hospitals and dispensaries have been asked to prescribe yoga exercises instead of drugs. There's no compulsion but the idea is to help the public to reduce the drug bill, which is said to cause tension and morbidity.

Yoga has invaded New Dulhi, the national capital, on a large scale. When a government clerk goes to one of the 46 government health dispensaries he will find not only a Western-educated doctor but a long-robed yoga consultant whose treatments cost nothing.

The Hindu exercises are simple enough even for an unlettered person or child of six. They range from deep breathing to "sitting in a lotus-pose."

Alma Ram Bakhi, one of the yoga consultants, says that there is a steady swing away from the Western and Oriental "drug systems" of medical therapy to yoga. Among his regular patients are 200 government officials. Many members of Parliament are also his students.

Girls of 'Y' Entertain Mothers at Banquet

By GLADYS WARD

This year the girls of the Y.M.C.A. changed their usual procedure and invited their mothers instead of their fathers to their annual banquet on Saturday evening. Someday with a larger banquet room it was hoped that this might be a family affair with both parents present, according to Y Secretary D. Diamentides.

Mr. Gerald Boyce, a teacher at Moira Secondary School, was the guest speaker. Mr. Boyce has been actively engaged in promoting interest in the Belleville Historical Society, he has written a series of articles on the history of Belleville for the Ontario Intelligencer, and is in the process of writing a book on the subject.

Mr. Boyce asked his listeners to imagine a little girl with the fictional name of Louise Smith who lived in Belleville 100 years ago. Then by means of slides the speaker showed what the little girl would see in her daily life. Since she was the minister's daughter, he showed her father's study, their kitchen, dining room, bedrooms, and the exterior of the house. The pictures followed her progress to school with the view from the West hill, the bridge over the river, Pinnacle Street with cattle wandering on it, the school and churches. The courthouse which was only recently replaced was shown. The sheriff was a bewhiskered old man, whose house still stands at the corner of Bridge west and Sinclair streets, and whose wife Susanna Moody was one of the early biographers of the district.

The old Intelligencer building was shown with the first publisher Sir MacKenzie Bell. The interior of the Griffin Opera House, the old Albert College, an early Ontario Business College, and the old arena were all of historical interest.

Introduction of the speaker was made by Mrs. D. Wadley, and appreciation for the interesting slides and the research and study that had gone into the presentation of them was expressed by Miss Mildred Gray.

GIVEN WARM WELCOME

Mrs. R. Clarke presided for the evening, giving the guests a warm welcome and saying grace. A toast to the mothers was proposed by Miss Joanne Wiggins, and was responded to by Mrs. R. Alloro who said the mothers were proud to be there, and were grateful to the Y for fostering good character. She hoped the girls would "increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

The dinner was sponsored by the Y's Mennette Club, and was planned with grace spoken by Cathy Cresswell.

Miss Norma Hunter-Duvar presented the awards with acknowledgment to the Intermediate leaders who had ably assisted them during the year. Assisting with the presentations and in favor with God and man."

'Changing Role of Women' Skit Presented by Tabernacle UCW

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle United Church Women was held in the church parlors. The president, Mrs. Jack Aitchison, gave a warm welcome and conducted the business. Mrs. A. E. Cornish announced the "VON Tea" and asked the women to attend. Mrs. William Daugherty had some information about the bazaar to be held the first Wednesday in November. The nominating committee reported that Mrs. Fred Rodgers consented to act as chairman of the membership committee.

"The Life of Dorcas" was the theme of the devotional given by members of Unit 3 namely, Mesdames Ronald Atkins, Jack Winstanley, Martin LeRue and Edwin Lott.

SKIT PRESENTED

"The Changing Role of Women" was the name of a most interesting skit presented by members of Unit 8. Two young business women breathlessly catch a city bus. Tired out from their day's duties in person dressed in old fashioned garb tell them how they worked in past years.

For some the day started at 4 a.m. with washing, ironing, scrubbing and cleaning house all day long for 25 cents a day and when they married their mothers had only gotten 15 cents. Others had been fortunate in having a hired maid, spinning yarn and weaving cloth from five in the morning till midnight.

WAR YEARS WORKERS

In contrast to these exceedingly long days came the women of the war years in their overalls and slacks — theirs had been days when women were badly needed in the labor forced and they responded to industry's call. Some had worked on the land, tilled the ground and reaped the harvest. Women in factories learned about machinery and motors and since World War II one-third of all women 14 years old and over in each country have been employed, compared with one-sixth of the women in the labor force in each of every ten women working are married. Even more striking is the fact that about two out of five mothers whose children are of school age are in the labor force.

There are many and varied reasons for women work outside the home today. The continued high level of production has been one of the chief causes the war years and as a result, industries and businesses offer women more opportunities to take employment. Also the men between the ages of 18 and 65 could not possibly provide a sufficient labor force. Too, the cost of living today has so increased that a man is hard put to earn enough to support and educate his family. Undoubtedly grandma's luxuries are essential needs of today's housekeeper because of the rising standard of living.

CERTAIN DISADVANTAGES

Out of all the argumentive thoughts and beautiful conclusions that it is good for women to work outside the home today there are certain disadvantages —one most noticeable is the fact that it has become most difficult to find leadership for our women's church groups.

At the end of the bus ride the young women decided that they are a lot better off than their grandmothers and believe their life is more interesting and satisfying.

Unit 7 served the refreshments at the close of the meeting.

STEEL TOUGHER

Today's steels are tougher with less weight and today the Empire State building could be made 33 stories higher using same tonnage of steel.

300 Delegates Attend FWTAO Spring Meet

Miss Cora Bailey, director and past president of FWTAO was in charge of the spring regional assembly held in Belleville at the Queen Elizabeth school on Saturday. Approximately 300 delegates and visitors from Region 4 attended.

Greetings were brought by the group by Mr. L. N. Kells, superintendent and chief inspector of Belleville Public Schools; deputy mayor J. B. Cook, and from Mrs. Irene Phillips, president of Belleville FWTAO Association.

The Reverend C. W. Coleman, president of the Ontario Tarial Association, conducted devotional exercises.

In the chairman's address, Miss Bailey challenged the teachers by saying "Never before has there been so much concern; pressure on the profession — more need for perfection and professional growth than at the present time."

She urged that each teacher grow professionally; work for the profession; support it and in so doing become fully prepared and ready to meet every responsibility.

REGIONAL DIRECTORS ELECTED

The business part of the meeting consisted of the election of four regional directors and the discussing of resolutions.

At noon the teachers proceeded to the Masonic Temple where they partook of an appetizing meal prepared by the ladies of Melrose United Church.

After the chairman's remarks, greetings from the Operetta Jamboree were brought by Mr. E. Sandercock, MLA, and from the chairman of the Public School board, Mr. M. Lovekin.

The soloist, Miss Margaret Hillis, accompanied by Mrs. Carolyn Reynolds, favored with three delightful numbers.

Another highlight of this assembly was the presentation to Mrs. Eva Rankin by Mrs. Dorothy Blakely.

Mrs. Rankin, now retired, taught 44 years in Ottawa; was a director for Region 4; a member of the board of governors; president of FWTAO 1956-7; convener of the benevolent fund and has given the FWT the federation prayer."

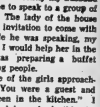
Following this, Miss Bailey concluded the business of the day, namely, reports, discussions and announcements.

Arrangements for the next regional conference were made by Mrs. Helen Calnan, hostess secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Blakely, director, and Mrs. Irene Phillips, president.

The 1963-64 meeting will be held in the Kingston district.

Successful Living

By DORIS CLARK



(A Canadian-Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Should Hostess Ask for Help?

DEAR DORIS — Recently my husband was asked to come to speak to a group of our young people. The lady of the house gave me a personal invitation to come with my husband. While he was speaking, my hostess asked me if I would help her in the kitchen, as she was preparing a buffet supper for the young people.

Afterwards, one of the girls approached me and said, "You were a guest and should not have been in the kitchen." I said I didn't mind helping. Again this girl said, "But you were a guest and should not have been in the kitchen!"

Was this girl's conduct proper and had she any right to say this, since she had nothing to do with my being there? She may have been on the lunch committee, as I saw her helping afterwards. — JUST WONDERING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR JUST WONDERING — Unless she was on the luncheon committee, she was just a busybody. Even so, it must have been guilt-feelings which prompted her remark. Where was she when the cake was being cut?

DEAR DORIS — I have three things to ask you:

1. Not too far back I had a mixed party. My parents made me pay for most of the food which was needed for the party. Do you think this was unfair since I am 13 and do not work?

2. My parents are both in very good positions as far as money goes, but when I ask for something new, which isn't very often, I get the reply, "We're not made of money, you know." What do you think of this?

3. Do you have any suggestions on how I can stop biting my nails? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING —

1. Not a bit of it. Lucky girl to have parents who let you put on your own party and share the cost! Like to read my mail?

2. Oh, come now. Don't tell me you never get anything new. You'll thank them later for teaching you now that money doesn't grow on trees.

3. Paint your nails with tincture of quassia, which you can buy from your druggist. Tastes terrible; a bitter reminder not to nibble your nails. Then manicure and polish to the hilt — so that even you won't want to spoil the pretty picture.

(Putting your worry on paper can help. Write to Doris in the care of this paper, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Poorest Families Seem to Own Biggest Cars

QUEBEC (CP)—Two sociologists asked a number of Quebec families what they would buy if they had more money. Not one replied that it would go toward a better balanced diet.

Most said they would give priority to furniture or an automobile and added that they would have to borrow to buy them.

"We go from surprise to surprise in reading the report of the two sociologists," says the Federation of Credit Unions.

It says they found that priority for family spending in Quebec runs in this order: Furniture, automobile, lodging, clothing, medical needs, food, recreation, clothing.

In some cases they settled for a cheaper home, if necessary, in order to buy furniture or a car. And it was found that the poorest families seemed to own the biggest and newest cars.

Ann Landers

Tattooed Sister Ashamed To Show Arms At Wedding

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My youngest brother is being married this fall to a girl who comes from a fine family. I have never met her or her people. They live several thousand miles away.

Last week I received a letter from the bride-to-be and she has asked me to be her matron of honor. I would like to accept but something is holding me back.

ANN LANDERS

During World War II I ran around with a pretty fast crowd. A bunch of us girls who worked in the PX went out one night and had our arms tattooed. I especially admired Skinny Wainwright at the time so his name is tattooed on my left arm. On my right arm is an eagle carrying a streamer which says, "Buy War Bonds."

All these years I've been wearing long-sleeved dresses because I am ashamed of the tatoos. A matron of honor has to wear the gown selected by the bride, and such gowns are usually sleeveless. Shall I tell her I can't accept and give no reason? —SPINNING HEAD.

DEAR HEAD — A tatoo can be removed. See a dermatologist about details. If you are unable or unwilling to afford the time and expense, ask your future sister-in-law for the privilege of selecting your own gown — inviting her suggestions about color and fabric, of course. Then select a dress with long sleeves or wear long gloves.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Why do people think that just because we have eight children we need their worn out, faded, discarded clothing? I've made floor rags out of better clothing than friends and neighbors have brought...over here for my children to wear.

We aren't wealthy people, Ann, but my husband has a steady job and we can afford to dress our children fairly well. Every time I see a neighbor or a friend coming onto the porch with a box under her arm I want to scream.

My temper has just about run its string and I'm afraid that the next time I get a "contribution" I'm going to tell somebody off.

Can you suggest how to put a stop to this insulting practice? — NOT PAUPERS.

DEAR NOT — These people aren't consciously insulting you. They don't know any better, and it's time you told them.

Simply let them know you appreciate their kindness but you don't need any clothing for your children. Suggest that they call one of the local welfare agencies.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last night my parents were discussing our summer plans. We have a cottage in northern Illinois and for the past five years my folks have let me invite a boy friend up for a couple of weeks in July. This year I told them I'd like to invite a girl and they almost hit my head off. By the way, I ought to tell you that I am a boy, 17.

We have two bedrooms in our cottage with twin beds in each room. The girl could sleep with my mother and my dad would bunk with me.

We are well-behaved kids and wouldn't think of doing anything wrong. Besides, Ann, my folks would be with us every minute. I'm pretty disappointed to think my folks don't trust me. How can kids behave best when their parents expect the worst? Please help me plead this, Annie. You were young once. — B. WILDERED.

DEAR B. — Sorry Buster, you rattled the wrong cage. I am not about to suggest that parents of teenagers provide a set up as cozy as this.

I'm sure your good kids and have no intention of doing anything wrong. But I was indeed young once, and I know that night and day exposure is pretty strong stuff. Under such conditions chemistry might prove to be a more powerful force than judgment.

And for your information, Buddy Boy, maybe your parents have some notions about spending two weeks in separate bedrooms.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

SLACKS AND SUBURBIA

Psychologists can stop worrying about who wears the pants in the family. The answer is obvious — everyone does.

Mother, teener and baby sister are now bona-fide slackers. But while the younger females in the family may be able to get away with it gracefully, mother often isn't quite ship-shape — or maybe that's the trouble: she is.

Since the great migration to suburbia, shorts, slacks, Capris and clam diggers have become almost a uniform. Of course, they have their practical purpose. It's certainly more comfortable to shovel snow in a pair of wool lined trousers, and Bermudas do give more leg room when pushing a lawn mower. Since women have taken over so many of the commuter's chores, it's only natural that they should wear the pants in the family on occasion.

But it's the "on occasion" that should be emphasized. Many women have become so fond of pants that they prefer to wear them on the streets and to some social functions where they're completely inappropriate.

We've had so many letters from men, complaining about the way women parade around in masculine attire, that we thought it might be well to tick off times and places when it's correct to wear shorts and slacks and when it isn't.

TIME AND PLACE

Shorts, for instance, are appropriate at resorts, on the beach, and anywhere active sports are engaged in. In some rural areas, it's permissible to wear them for shopping in outlying supermarkets and even along Main Street, providing they're a decent length and not cut extra short. Some municipalities have taken such a dim view of too - revealing sportswear that ordinances have been passed limiting the length shorts may be worn above the knee within town limits. Good taste, it seems, has now been legalized.

Slacks, as well as shorts are the usual costumes at cookouts and other very formal social functions. A patio dress or a simple sports dress is in better taste for late afternoon parties that lap over into the dinner hour. Even in suburbia, evening parties still require a dress. And isn't it a relief to look like a woman again after a long, hectic day in blue jeans?

WORN BY WHOM?

Even more important, however, than when to wear pants is who should wear them. A well - proportioned figure, where the hips are no more than ten or twelve inches wider than the waist, offers no problem. It's when hips and thighs are on the full side that shorts and slacks should be banned from the wardrobe.

When selecting this type of sportswear, it's well to remember the sun's the thing . . . invest a little more in good tailoring. If the figure is less than perfect, well-designed shorts and slacks help to camouflage defects.

First Woman To Fly Solo To Australia

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)— A petite American wife who quit the kitchen for the air 10 years ago landed in Brisbane in a light plane Sunday, becoming the first woman to fly alone across the Pacific from California.

Mrs. Betty Miller, 37, of Santa Monica, Calif., stepped out of a twin-engine - Piper Apache at 5:30 p.m. EDT after a 7,100-mile, 13 - day journey, marred in its last hours by the threat of a cyclone.

She said she plans to fly home in about a week but "in the back seat of an airliner."

Mrs. Miller's chief purpose in flying from Oakland, Calif., was to deliver the plane to Bob Goss, a charter aircraft operator in Cunnamulla, a town in remote western Queensland.

Her total air time from Oakland to Brisbane was logged at 94 hours, eight minutes.

She left Oakland April 30 and set a record by being the first woman to fly solo from the United States mainland to Honolulu.

Coming Bazaar Discussed by Alpha Group

The May meeting of the Alpha Group of St. Columba Presbyterian Church was held, recently, at the home of Mrs. J. Burke.

The meeting was opened with a short devotional given by Mrs. R. G. McKay, followed by the Mission Study conducted by Mrs. Burke who gave an informative talk on "Formosa".

During the business meeting, several selling projects were discussed in detail, but it was decided that the group would not commit itself to anything at present.

A recently held rummage sale, and a catered dinner were reported on, and both ventures were successful.

The fall bazaar was discussed and conclusion of the Alpha group will be taken to the next meeting of the Women's Association.

Before adjournment, the president, Mrs. N. Hutchinson, made a presentation to Mrs. R. G. McKay on behalf of the group. Mrs. McKay is to be married in June and will be living in Chicago afterwards. She will be greatly missed by the Alpha group.

Refreshments, including a beautifully decorated cake in Mrs. McKay's honor, were served by Mrs. Burke and Mrs. K. D. Taylor.

30 Members Of VOM Stand Six Hours

TORONTO (CP)—About 30 members of Voice of Women, a women's organization that opposes nuclear arms, observed Mother's Day Sunday by standing six hours in front of the Royal Ontario Museum in central Toronto carrying placards and distributing leaflets.

The placards explained that the demonstration was for peace and the leaflets told how Julia Ward Howe founded Mother's Day in 1873 and ended her day saying that she wished it to be a festival devoted to the advocacy of peace doctrines.

Later, the women sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson expressing sorrow that this year's Mother's Day was clouded by the prospect of Canada acquiring nuclear arms "thereby weakening her international peace - making capacity."

Cream Pie For Home Freezer

by Mary Moore

A request came to me for a talk on frozen foods. By coincidence, some personal researchers finished their experiments on frozen cream pies at about the same time.

It takes a special recipe and special handling to make a good frozen pie that can be frozen and stored successfully.

So I decided to feature this idea when I answered the request and it turned out to be popular. Cream pies — called soft pies by the baking trade — are popular with housewives, it seems, for there were several girls who questioned me afterwards about the trouble they were having with their chocolate and banana cream and lemon meringue pies.

The following is a special way as you will see. It produced a filling that is not grainy, or lumpy or spongy and that does not separate.

(Incidentally you do not have to freeze this pie. It is fine to make and eat as soon as it is cooked.)

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Loaf with Mushroom Gravy; Oven Fresh Fries; Whipped Turnip; Mixed Greens Vinaigrette; Vanilla Ice Cream with Tutti Frutti Sauce; Coffee.

CREAM PIE (designed for freezing):

3 cups milk, 3/3 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, beaten, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¾ teaspoon gelatine, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Heat all but 1 tablespoon of the milk to scalding in heavy pan. Soak gelatine in remaining 1 tablespoon cold milk. Mix well together the sugar, cornstarch and salt and add to scalded milk, stirring rapidly until boiling. Remove from heat. Stir about ½ cup of the hot mixture into the beaten yolks, pour back into the saucepan and cook an additional 5 minutes, over low heat, stirring. Remove from heat. Stir in the soaked gelatine. Add the butter or margarine and vanilla. Beat with rotary beater to make smooth. Pour into a buttered 8" pie pan (I used enamel), freeze, remove from pan, wrap in moisture-resistant paper and store in freezer.

Freeze the 2 leftover egg whites in airtight container.

Make a pastry shell of same size and wrap and freeze, unbaked.

When mealtime is near, bake the shell. When it is cool, stir frozen cream filling into it. Thaw the frozen egg whites and beat with ¼ cup sugar until very stiff. Spread over filling. Bake meringue until golden at 325 degrees to 350 deg. Fahr. To give it an even gold tinge turn on top burner at the last minute or so and watch it. When meringue is done, filling has thawed.

This basic recipe may be used to make several other kinds of pies: 1) Banana Cream Pie: Arrange 2 sliced ripe bananas over frozen filling and sprinkle 1 tablespoon icing sugar. Cover with meringue and bake. 2) Strawberry or Peach Cream Pie: Arrange 1½ cups sliced peaches or strawberries over frozen filling, sprinkle with 3 tablespoons icing sugar. Cover with meringue and bake. 3) Coconut Cream Pie: Sprinkle ½ cup flaked coconut over frozen filling, cover with meringue and bake.

Albert College W.G. Hears Fine Report

A beautiful sunny day favored the May meeting of the Albert College Guild. A moment of silence was observed for a former member, Mrs. Florence Countryman, whose funeral was held Mrs. Fred Wilson quoted two or three very fitting and comforting lines. She also expressed the sympathy of the Guild to a number of bereaved members.

There were brief reports of the annual "Dessert Bridge," remarking on splendid executive work and full co-operation of members, resulting in a happy occasion.

The program was convened by Mrs. N. Brown, Mrs. F. Townsend conducted a worship service in keeping with the "Family Day" marked by the Guild at this time.

Mrs. C. W. Smith read the Scripture, Mrs. Barbara Anderson of the College staff, accompanied by Mrs. Winnifred Graham, sang Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer".

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. K. Bird introduced the 16 years ago and at present Pass guest speaker, Mrs. Fred Beeby, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary who organized that Auxiliary.

A membership of 200. Of these 155 give voluntary service. This service is so varied that it would require the most modest talents may find a place.

"Many serve in the Opportunity Shop, perhaps the best known of the Auxiliary's projects. Over the years it has made the surprising profit of $45,000. The city gives assistance, providing space, heat and light.

"Only once in the year does the Auxiliary appeal to the public. This is the "Fashion Fiesta" in October.

SERVICES TO PATIENTS

The kind services of these voluntary workers provide bursaries for student nurses, but perhaps the kindest is the direct service to patients. Flower pots and plants at Easter, Christmas gifts and charming tray favors for the many special seasons".

Miss Helen Sulman and Mrs. Harold Swann expressed the appreciation of the Guild to Mrs. Beeby, Mrs. Townsend and Miss Anderson.

During the social hour, Mrs. H. E. Martin and Mrs. M. Weese presided at the tea table.

VOTE SETS RECORD —

More Canadians than ever before went to the polls and in doing so set a mark for the percentage of eligible voters in the April 8 federal election who cast ballots.

Unofficial returns from all except two of the 50,010 polls shown a vote total of 7,900,838 —more than 200,000 above the previous record of 7,700,134 in June, 1962.

The total vote represented 80 per cent of the 9,878,473 eligible voters. Best previous percentage was 79.7 in 1958.

tablishment of good friendly foundations for further relations between the two governments. As far as the individual items of the communique are concerned, I wouldn't like to single out one as being more important than the others.

ASKS CHANGES

Regarding the Columbia, Mr. Pearson said Canada asked for "certain clarifications and adjustments in the treaty signed with the United States in January, 1961, and speedily ratified by Congress although not yet by Parliament.

"We wished to have the president agree to the fact that there had to be some adjustments and clarifications."

But he was not prepared to say yet what these involved.

"He (the president) thought they were of a nature that would not prevent further discussions and negotiations and of course we will wish to get in touch with the government of British Columbia at once on this."

That would be "in a day or two—we work pretty fast. . ."

He couldn't say who the negotiator would be.

There has been no contact about the Columbia between the new Pearson government and B.C.'s Premier Bennett.

NDP TAKES STAND

One reaction to the warhead issue came Sunday when the executive of the New Democratic Party said in a statement that the Liberal government should not make any further commitment on nuclear weapons for Canada until Parliament has decided the country's policy.

"This is Mr. Pearson's clear constitutional duty," the statement said.

The statement said that the NDP executive "condemns the decision taken by Mr. Pearson at Hyannis Port to commit Canada to accepting by executive order."

"The prime minister has no right to make this kind of agreement only days before Parliament is due to meet."

The statement said the NDP "condemns" the prime minister for "his attempt to sidetrack Parliament on so vital an issue."

"For him to ignore Parliament when his government represents only 41 per cent of the electorate is particularly arrogant."

Negotiations

three - mile Canadian coastal sovereignty to 12 miles for fishing purposes. Kennedy said he would still support the three-mile limit and asked that historic U.S. fishing rights along the Canadian coast be observed. Pearson promised to give this consideration.

TALK AIR ROUTES

The Canadian government also wants to boost Canadian air carrier business in the U.S. so that more Canadians, making long trips to the U.S., might be able to travel more on Canadian rather than U.S. carriers. The Diefenbaker government had tried to bargain on this philosophy but the U.S. showed no interest. Now Kennedy suddenly has shown readiness to hold such talks.

Pearson persuaded Kennedy to endorse a meeting of Canada-U.S. labor leaders to end violence on the Great Lakes and attempt to restrain the labor battle between the Seafarers International Union and the Canadian Maritime Union.

Kennedy also agreed to have Defence Secretary Robert McNamara meet with Canadian Production Minister C. M. Drury to review the flow of U.S. defence contracts to Canada.

Two big issues that Kennedy wanted settled were readily tackled by Pearson. The prime minister agreed to send his defence officials into talks with the U.S. to work out immediately a custody - and - control agreement so that American warheads can be shipped to Canadian forces at home and in Europe.

A high U.S. authority estimated the negotiations should be completed by early June at the latest. Another three months might be required to build the Canadian storage facilities and then warheads would be on their way—perhaps by September.

STILL WILL MEET

But the future of the Bomarcs still is insecure. A Canada-U.S. ministerial meeting on defence will be held before the end of 1963 to take another hard look at defence arrangements. The joint communique spoke of the need of continual improvement and adapting defence "to suit changing circumstances and changing roles."

McNamara has stated he plans to keep the U.S. Bomarc base in operation only for the next several years. If the U.S. Bomarcs go, it is likely the Canadian Bomarcs also would be eliminated.

A test of how the new Canada-U.S. co-operation will work out will be displayed soon in two places. One is the General ministerial meeting on world trade opening Thursday. The U.S. is seeking support for major tariff - cutting negotiations and Pearson has promised to co-operate closely.

The North Atlantic council opens its meeting at Ottawa May 22-24. The big issue will be creation of an inter-allied nuclear force, made up of strategic and tactical weapons. Again the U.S. will be watching to see what support it gets from Canada on this proposal.

The two leaders said the NATO meeting "would give both countries an opportunity to demonstrate their belief in the Atlantic concept."

EXERTS NO PRESSURE

Kennedy had long harbored hopes Canada would join the Organization of American States and share responsibilities in Latin America. But he exerted no pressure on Pearson and the Canadian leader in turn indicated readiness to explore with other countries the provision of greater aid for new and developing countries in the Caribbean, such as Jamaica and Trinidad.

Canada-U.S. ministerial committees which previously languished now will be reactivated. There will be new meetings in the latter part of the year of the defence and economic committees. One possibility is that discussions could lead to the eventual elimination of the Canadian Bomarcs. Pearson and Kennedy spoke of the need of continually improving bilateral defences and adapting them "to changing circumstances and changing roles."

Kennedy has been under pressure to restrict imports of Canadian lumber and oil but again he was reported to have refrained from exerting any pressure on Pearson. The two merely agreed there should be "rational" co-operation in the sharing of defence contracts and marketing of resources, including oil, gas, electricity, strategic minerals and metals.

Kennedy has been concerned with the heavy Canadian borrowings in the New York financial market and the impact of these borrowings on U.S. international payments deficit. Both leaders agreed their governments should always deal with trade and payments developments "in a positive and co-operative manner."

The border was described as a symbol of sovereignty and independence but it "should not be a barrier to co-operation." Where differences occur, there has to be a healthy respect on both sides from the opinions of each leader, the communique suggested.

Seven Killed

from distant points the conference will be postponed indefinitely.

TRIED TO PASS

Police said Sister Brace apparently pulled out to pass another car on the two-lane highway and collided with the car driven by Mrs. Ryde. The force of the collision drove the engine blocks of both cars against the front seats and the two vehicles were thrown from the highway and left facing into a ditch.

Wedding presents from the trunk of the Ryde car were scattered about the highway. A long rosary carried by one of the nuns was crushed on the pavement.

Police said it was the worst traffic accident in the history of Kent County.

The accident's fatality toll was not fully realized until doors of the mangled vehicles were pried off and seats removed.

"It was terrible," said Hec Lycke of RR 3, Bothwell, who was working in a field near the scene.

He did not hear the crash, but investigated when notified of it by his wife.

segregation dispute remained in effect.

Mayor Albert Boutwell took a look at the damage and pledged, "retribution there will be—swift, stern and in full measure . . ." Every resource, he said, was bent to apprehend those who planted the bombs.

At a mass church meeting of about 2,000 Negroes, Dr. King said he considered Kennedy's statement a strong one which "shows the administration is and is willing to take forthright action to preserve the citizenship rights of Birmingham Negroes."

He added: "I have not requested federal troops."

Of the bitterly contested agreement announced only Friday, Dr. King said: "I have faith in the persons who did the negotiating. I believe these agreements will be carried out."

He urged Negroes to pass the word against rock-throwing and any other type of violent behavior.

SAYS MINISTER BEATEN

Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, an associate of Dr. King, said state troopers had beaten Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, top aide to Dr. King, and Mrs. Walker. State Public Safety Director Al Lingo denied it.

The Negro leaders spoke at a church which for the first time was guarded by police officers with carbines, shotguns and sidearms.

About a one mile away, smoke rose from the rubble of two stores and a house either destroyed or ruined by fire yet during Saturday night's melees.

The night's terror began when two blasts wrecked the home of Rev. A. D. King, a brother of Dr. King. He and his wife and five children escaped injury. A large crowd of Negroes formed but was dispersed by Mr. King. Then two bombs damaged the Baston Motel in the Negro business section. Three women were injured.

STAB POLICEMAN

Thousands of Negroes gathered in the streets. They shelled police and fire vehicles with rocks and other missiles. A policeman was stabbed twice in the back.

A white taxi driver was dragged from his cab and stabbed. Negroes overturned his cab and set fire to it in front of a store from which desegregation marches originated a week before.

Tires were slashed, fires set and knives flashed. Negro civil rights workers and integration leaders helped restore some semblance of order by dawn.

Tear gas and fire hoses disperse Negro and white persons in the motel area.

Witnesses said four men, their faces smeared, were seen in a car that made the bombing run on the motel. An arrest or-ever, this was the first bomb-blast at an RCAF unit. /The technical unit is a regular air force organization.

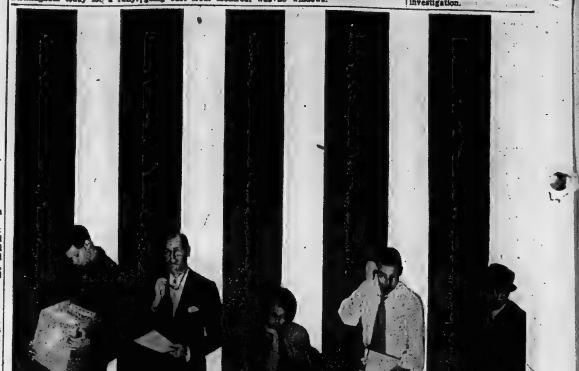
A Royal Canadian Legion building in St. Johns, Que., 20 miles south of Montreal, was damaged when a bomb exploded there two weeks ago. A section of track on the CNR main line going east from Montreal was blasted during the federal election campaign early in April. It was repaired shortly before a train carrying former prime minister Diefenbaker, was due to pass.



RCMP headquarters in suburban Westmount also was a target.

AS A SYMBOL?

A police official said today's bombing appeared to be "a symbolic gesture" because the bomb was set off against the only side of the building where there are no windows.

The bombing device, again apparently timed according to police, dug a hole 18 inches deep into the ground and appeared to have been set off at ground level. The brick wall around the gaping hole made by the explosion was charred for a distance of 10 feet in all directions.

Sgt. - Det. Leo Flouffe, the Montreal police's bomb disposal expert, was there within minutes of the explosion, and placed rubble in a bag for later investigation.

'Maverick' New York Fair Is Expecting 70 Million

By BOB HOLTON

NEW YORK (AP)—Flushing Meadow Park is pocked and lacerated, littered with huge steel skeletons, as building gets underway for the New York fair opening April 22, 1964.

Some 70,000,000 visitors from all over the world are expected during a two-year period.

Fifty pavilions already are under construction and ground has been broken for a score more on the site. Operators of the exposition hope to have 200 pavilions ready when the fair opens on a 646-acre tract in Queens Borough, a 20-minute drive eastward from downtown Manhattan.

Exhibitors from 45 countries, the federal U.S. government and 33 states have signed contracts to display their achievements and cultures at the fair.

The Soviet Union, Britain and Canada turned down invitations to participate.

LACKS SANCTION

Canada is a member of the 30-country International Exhibition Bureau which has not given its sanction to the New York fair. The bureau has prohibited its members from participating here.

"The fair will get along without them," said Robert Moses, the $100,000-a-year fair president and one of the main driving forces behind the $500,000,000 enterprise.

Well past the preliminary construction stages to date are the more massive of the buildings which, because of their weight, required time-consuming pile driving to support them in the marshy acreage.

The thick, three-pronged cradle for the fair's symbol—the unisphere—is in place, waiting to support the huge stainless steel representation of the earth. That will be one of the few structures to remain after the fair closes.

HAS PEACE THEME

The sphere will rise 140 feet above a 210-foot-long pool on the exact spot where the trylon and perisphere, symbol of the last New York fair, stood in 1939 and 1940. The unisphere will set the theme of the fair—"Peace through understanding."

Under the terms of a $1 lease of the fair site from the city of New York, all except a few of the buildings and the many fountains and ponds to be installed must be torn down when the fair closes.

The $20,000,000 surplus, which the non-profit fair corporation hopes to realize on the venture, must be used to restore the site to a public park which it had been before construction began. Any further funds will go toward educational projects.

The exposition will be open until Oct. 18, 1964, when it will close for the winter and open again April 21, 1965, closing finally the following Oct. 17.

The grounds will be accessible by land, sea, air and subway. A multi-million-dollar marina in Flushing Bay is nearing completion.

Plans call for a circus, amusement rides, science exhibits, exotic restaurants, those lavish religious displays and exhibits of art treasures including Michelangelo's marble statue of the dead Jesus in the arms of His mother. It will be on loan from the Vatican, where it has stood in St. Peter's Basilica since its completion in 1499.

Caouette

the Social Credit party said Sunday it has accepted Dr. Marcoux' resignation "with regret."

Dr. Marcoux said he disagreed with a caucus decision last month on the action of the six members and could no longer remain in the party. A statement released after a caucus of Quebec Social Crediters in Ottawa April 17 and 18 said the six members have repudiated the pledge of support to the Liberals and therefore "the incident is closed."

Mr. Caouette's remarks at a midnight press conference followed a series of closed meetings during the weekend, during which he spoke for two hours and 15 minutes at one point to the 18 remaining federal members from Quebec and about 250 riding delegates.

ORGANIZER EXPELLED

He expelled organizer Fernand Ouellet from the party—Ouellet had earlier announced he would quit politics — and threatened other "troublemakers" with the same fate.

He said Mr. Ouellet had been involved in "vote juggling" at the convention of Le Ralliement des Creditistes, Quebec wing of the Social Credit party, last September in Trois-Rivieres. He said Mr. Ouellet had resigned as vice-president of Le Ralliement last September after a recount of votes at the convention showed "125 counted in his favor had gone in fact to Marcel Rioux of Trois-Pistoles."

He said the same "intriguers" who had changed the convention votes had been trying since last October to persuade Dr. Marcoux to resign as a federal member and lead a new provincial party. Mr. Ouellet was the "bad influence" who had caused Dr. Marcoux' resignation.

Mr. Ouellet brushed off the criticism, saying:

"Caouette wants servants who will lick his hands. All I said out loud was what other people thought underneath."

Dr. Marcoux said he could think for himself and his decisions weren't based on anybody's influence.

Mr. Caouette announced that Jean-Paul Cook, defeated party candidate in Montmagny-L'Islet April 8, and possibly other party members, will go before a disciplinary committee shortly on charges he didn't specify.

Mr. Cook was called before the executive committee of Le Ralliement early Sunday to explain himself, was voted support for Dr. Marcoux Friday night.

Mr. Caouette denied published reports that he had attacked Mr. Thompson as "Manning's straw man" and Premier Manning of Alberta as an exponent of socialism rather than Social Credit.

"This story was invented by some destructive element . . . probably the one we expelled from the party Saturday."

He and Mr. Thompson would meet in Ottawa Wednesday to choose a new whip to replace Dr. Marcoux.

ON THE WAY UP?

MOSCOW (AP)—A brief news item touched off speculation Sunday that Soviet economic boss Dimitry Fedorovich Ustinov may be stepping up in the Soviet Communist hierarchy. The item, in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, reported that Ustinov attended a party central committee luncheon Saturday for a visiting delegation of Uruguayan Communists. Veteran Moscow diplomats said they could not recall Ustinov ever having been included in such a function before.

FIRST CLASS SCOUTS Rodney Law, (left), and Ronald Rappel, (right), of the 5th Belleville Troop, and their Scoutmaster, Basil Kirby, (centre), took a short tour of The Ontario Intelligencer plant Saturday. When the picture was taken, Ronald was asking a question about a "page" of type. The two Scouts will be presented their First Class badges, the first issued in the 5th Belleville Troop, tomorrow.

First Class Scouts Will Get Badges

The first two First Class Scouts of the 5th Belleville troop will be presented their Ladges tomorrow at Belleville Armories, by District Commissioner Murray May, of Belleville. The boys, 13-year-old Ron. aid Rappel, of North Park St., and 14½-year-old Rodney Law of Glendale Ave., were among the first four members of the troop which was formed about two years ago.

To qualify as First Class Scouts, the boys completed a two-day "journey," on foot following with map and compass a 14-mile course laid out by staff members of the scouting organization. They selected, prepared and carried their own equipment for the night they spent camping and they prepared a detailed report of the trip, on their return.

Negro Struggle for Higher Status Receiving Significant Moderate Whites' Support

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The Negro's struggle for higher status is historically segregated southern United States'is receiving significant support from white persons of moderate views.

Moderate whites usually shun the limelight in which the south's more articulate segregationists bathe. But a number of them came forward to participate last week in a bi-racial citizens' committee which sought to end a desegregation struggle thundering in downtown Birmingham.

The bi - racial committee agreed on these proposals to end the conflict:

1. Desegregation of lunch counters, rest rooms, fitting rooms in the stores, and drinking fountains in integrated stages within the next 90 days.

2. Upgrading and hiring of Negroes on a non-discriminatory basis. This will include hiring Negroes as clerks and salesmen within 60 days.

ARRANGE RELEASE

3. Arrangement for the release of all persons arrested during racial demonstrations on bond or on their personal recognizance.

4. Re-establishment of communications between Negroes and whites, publicly, through a senior citizens committee.

"We would hope this channel of communications between the white and Negro communities will prevent the necessity for further demonstrations," said Rev. Earl Stallor King, one of the, leaders of the Negro movement.

The agreement has no official status.

City officials, in fact, have issued strongly worded statements saying they will not be bound by any agreement reached by the bi-racial committee.

For weeks there had been building up potentially the most dangerous crisis in the history of the struggle over civil rights.

CLASHED WITH POLICE

In the downtown business district thousands of Negroes clashed with police, wildly dramatizing the demand among others listed—for the right to eat a sandwich at a department store lunch counter.

After the Negro demonstrations were broken up, crowded jails and emergency detention halls held some 2,400 Negroes.

The citizens committee of whites and Negroes, working patiently to map out the details of an agreement to head off further explosions confronted an immensely difficult task.

Briefly, the background of the crisis was this:

Birmingham law enforcement officers say that Negro leaders were planning to make the city of 350,000 population the battleground of an intensive desegregation drive.

Sheriff Melvin Bailey, a tall, square - jawed, curly-haired man, said:

"From the first, we worked through civic clubs and other groups. We quietly passed the word that it was important that the whites stay away from the scene of any trouble. Time and again, I, Jay Leverette and other officers in our job. Don't try to take it into your own hands."

There were no race riots in Birmingham, even at the height of the Negro demonstrations, when ordered to "move back," the whites moved.

Meanwhile, a political smart was taking shape.

Last November, the city voted on a referendum to change its form of government. The result was challenged in court.

The State Supreme Court ruled that the outcome was legal, but split on the question of the date when the new officials might be seated. Three judges said they could take office April 15. Four others withheld decisions.

ELECTIONS HELD

On April 2, elections for mayor in the new government was held. Two opponents were for a lieutenant-governor Albert Boutwell and Public Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor. Both are segregationists, but Boutwell is considered the more moderate.

He won by a margin of 8,000 in a total of 87,000 votes.

Boutwell and the new city council were inaugurated April 15. Connor and the other members of the regime refused to leave office. A suit has been filed to force them out, and the State Supreme Court is scheduled to hold hearings May 20.

The Negro demonstrations, which began April 3 and reached a crescendo last Tuesday, were unique.

The Negroes gathered in the basement of churches. Then they passed through a park on their way to the heart of the business district. There were sit-ins and "kneel-ins" as they said prayers.

TRAFFIC DISRUPTED

Traffic was disrupted. Business suffered. The city grew tense when police had to use fire-truck hoses and police dogs to disperse the crowds.

The marchers were arrested under an ordinance that forbade parading without a permit.

The jails filled rapidly. Negroes were placed in detention cells built for the 4-H clubs on the fair Grounds.

Sleepers stirred away from the business district.

In the churches, Negroes gathered at night. There, sang spirituals and applauded speakers who exhorted them to continue their struggle to achieve their goals.

On both sides, there were many who prayed for peace in the streets. After several false starts, the agreement was reached Friday.

37 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

Ontario and Quebec were heavy contributors to the record accidental death toll of 37 during the weekend. Thirty of the deaths were in highway accidents.

In Ontario, seven persons, three of them American tourists, died in a two-car collision near Chatham Saturday. The nuns and an elderly man were in a car which was in collision with another car carrying a married couple and another man.

In Quebec, a two-car collision on a rural road near Val-D'Or Saturday killed four people and seriously injured three.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 a.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed that 14 persons died on roads highways and 23 in Quebec.

Quebec and Ontario each had five drownings.

The survey does not include known suicides or slayings, industrial accidents or natural deaths.

Former Judge Says People Wed Too Young

TORONTO (CP) — A retired juvenile court judge suggested Sunday that the law should require both bride and groom to be 21 years old if they want to marry without parental consent.

He was one of a number of measures suggested by Dr. Richard Hosking, former judge of Toronto's family and juvenile court, to curb a breakdown in family life.

He told more than 250 child welfare workers attending the conference of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies that in cases where parental consent cannot be obtained, brides should be no younger than 17 and grooms no younger than 18.

Dr. Hosking was outlining the findings of a six-year study by the Church of Canada which investigated family problems and the causes of divorce in Canada. He was chairman of the church's study committee, which concluded its work in 1961.

Dr. Hosking said teen - age marriages show a disturbingly high rate of failure. Canadian statistics were inadequate on the subject, he said, but figures in the United States indicated that half of all divorces involved couples who married before the age of 20.

He also urged parents to curb the trend toward early dating and passion among some teenagers for professional half-nelson and adult partying.

And he warned: "Romantic love is not a sound basis for marriage, especially at 17 years of age. Romantic love causes youth to see the future through rose-tinted glasses, magnifying their virtues and overlooking the weaknesses."

Sort of Revolution Going On in Haiti Says Teacher

MONTREAL (CP)—"There's a sort of revolution going on down there."

This description of Haiti was given Sunday night by a young French-speaking Canadian girl serving as a lay teacher at a Roman Catholic mission in the tension - ridden Caribbean island.

She was one of the first 19 Canadians to return since the Canadian government advised the 600 Canadians in Haiti to leave.

On the same plane from New York were about eight French-speaking Canadian girls serving as lay teachers, a Roman Catholic nun, a male lay teacher at the mission and two families coming home for their annual vacation holidays in Canada.

The girls, all from Quebec, were closely questioned by excited relatives and friends.

All 19 Canadians were extremely reluctant to discuss the political situation in Haiti.

A priest from Montreal superintended the girls' arrival. He told reporters they all wished to stay as little as possible about their experiences because they feared for the remaining people at the mission at Cap Haitien, about 100 miles north of Port au Prince.

He would not identify himself. However, it was learned the mission is operated by the Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, with headquarters in Montreal.

She said the eight teachers had only had about an hour to get their belongings together when the nuns told them they were being flown home.

The priest said the order had left the mission open "because it felt responsible for the safety of those at the mission."

Vince MacIntyre, of Port Credunto, mine captain at the Consolidated Halliwell Limited copper mine, said he had seen no trouble.. The company has headquarters in Toronto.

The MacIntyres were met by Mrs. MacIntyre's father, Dr. R. J. Dolan of Montreal, Mrs. Claude Elie of St. Pie de Bagot, Que., wife of the mine's superintendent, and a group of about 40 more Canadians at the mine in Terre Neuve Valley.

North Viet Nam Assails Indian, Canadian Acts

LONDON (Reuters) — Communist North Viet Nam's foreign ministry today demanded the three-nation International Control Commission for Vietnam be immediately abolished because of the "illegal" behavior of the Canadian and Indian members.

In a statement quoted by Tass news agency from Hanoi, the government of North Viet Nam found no fault with the Polish member of the commission.

But it declared the Indian and Canadian members at the Plaine Jarres in Laos "openly were "prejudiced," "acting contrary to the Geneva agreements" on Laos.

The North Vienamese foreign ministry said: "The one-sided findings of the Indian and Canadian members of the commission are contradictory to the Geneva agreement."

North Viet Nam urged the co-chairmen of the 1962 Geneva agreement on Laos — Britain and Russia — to advise the international commission to quickly abolish the commission in Laos.

Baby Goes Home After Operation On Heart

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP)—An infant boy returned home with his parents Saturday, healthy and growing after an operation which may get him into the medical history books.

Robert Grimbly, five-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grimbly, was operated on three weeks ago to enlarge a blocked valve in his tiny heart.

The operation performed by three surgeons and nine assistants at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, is believed to be the first of its kind on one so young.

The infant almost died during the five-hour operation. A heart-lung machine used for the child-dren was used for 45 minutes to purify his blood stream while doctors worked on the "dry" surface of the heart.

"We were resigned to losing him and we are equally believe we're taking him home," said Bobby's father, a 220-pound policeman in Ancaster-Hamilton. "We can never thank the doctors enough."

OPENING SALVE

The surgical team headed by Dr. George A. Trusler had to open a slit more than half the size of a dime and should have been the size of a nickel. During the operation, another malformation of the aortic artery—which could have caused grave heart-failure—was found and also corrected.

Robert weighed 8½ pounds when he left the Ancaster hospital. Within two days of birth, he had turned blue and doctors said that probably their son would probably die.

The heart blockage caused by the baby's heart valve defect left the baby's lungs, leaving him prey to pneumonia. The condition is invariably fatal within a year of birth.

Newest U.S. Astronauts Face Newspapermen

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The newest U.S. astronauts were cross-examined Sunday in a press conference on everything from their life insurance policies to the ethics of negotiating contracts for their life stories.

The nine new space pilots handled the questions with ease in the steady drum of fire of questions from more than 300 reporters. Among them was Paul Haney, aerial for Gordon Cooper's 22-orbit flight Tuesday.

Would any of you care to comment on the ethics of negotiating contracts for your life stories?" Haney asked.

Air Force Maj. Frank Borman replied "if it's all right with the president of the United States, then it's all right with us." He added "we work for him, you know."

Borman's answer was in reference to a presidential directive giving government officials the option to sell their personal experiences as well as family stories at a price.

The rule the $100,000 life insurance policies on the new astronauts, Slayton, spokesman for the group, said the agent for the policies was Robert DrOrsey, son of Gen. Leo DeOrsey, now retired legal counsel for the Mercury astronauts.

Borman contidled that whether "the old man would go to the moon"—that is whether they would get to fly in the Gemini and Apollo programs — has been a "joking point between the old and the new astronauts.

"Old" astronaut Slayton said he preferred the term "original" to describe the first Mercury astronauts. "We have nine new astronauts but no old ones."

Assails Experiment

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Bernard Lovell today criticized a new United States "space needles" experiment.

"The damage lies not with this experiment alone, but with the attitude of mind which makes it possible without international agreement and safeguards," said Lovell, director of the giant radio telescope at Jodrell Bank.

Project Mercury Men Want World Chart to Do Job for Astronaut Gordon Cooper

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Project Mercury men who make the astronaut road maps already are planning for the moon and Mars.

But first, they want their accordion-shaped world chart to do its job for astronaut Gordon Cooper on his scheduled 22-orbit flight this month. It will show him where he is, how he got there and where he's going.

The U.S. Air Force's Aeronautical Chart and Information Center here flees deeply into detail on the maps. It utilizes months of high-altitude photography, pinpoints characteristics of the earth's surface and delves into imaginative devices.

Its astronaut map is similar to battlefield maps. But this one encompasses the whole world and can be compactly reduced from its one-yard size into a nine-inch rotating folder which can be handled easily. The detail is amazing.

Each of the map's four folds is good for about 7,200 miles—about 30 minutes of flight.

Joseph McKinney, Project Mercury's chart manager, explained how they work out.

SPOTTED CITY

On our first three-orbit mission—John Glenn's mission—the city of Perth, Australia, for blinking their lights. It is an accomplishment to have such detail that he knew the city was Perth and not Kansas City."

He said the navigation charts are based primarily on shore line and topographical features. Boundaries, however, are used. Only those cities which could be seen from orbital height are marked.

The mapmakers try to anticipate everything from the astronaut's orbital view of the earth.

Nothing is left in doubt. Although astronauts will be provided on the map for Cooper's flight, just as they were on the astronauts' charts before him. They are designed in case of rocket malfunction and hourly thereafter to show his fix on the spot where he might be forced to land.

Every 120 orbit, the decision will be made if the flight is to continue," McKinney said of Cooper's mission. "We'll know at all times where he is and, if necessary, where he'll come down."

Other things could go wrong that would make the map invaluable.

"If there is a communications failure with the capsule, Cooper can see by his location on the map certain areas where he should attempt to land. This is where we look first."

GOING FOR 22

If all goes well, Cooper will fire his retrorockets for re-entry into the earth's atmosphere at what will be about 22 orbits of the earth. The space capsule then would land somewhere near Midway Island in the Pacific Ocean.

McKinney said Cooper's space chart allows for one more orbit if it is needed because of unforseen difficulties.

The space-age cartographers are already working on maps for the next giant steps—control of the moon and Mars.

Col. Stebbins Griffith, cigar-chewing commander of the chart center, declares on his office will large charts of Mars, the moon and the world.

"Mars presents a big problem for us and the navigational experts," he said. "Every lunar probe is a problem—but to a lesser degree."

He motioned to the wall map. "Out there in space there is no north, south, east or west. How do you navigate?"

To get detailed information for space maps, the centre has a staff member at the Lowell Observatory in Berkley, Calif. They take photographs and visual notes from the observatory through 24-inch telescopes.

Other details come from the British University of Manchester's observatory in the Pyrenees Mountains in southwest France. Exceptionally clear air there permits excellent celestial photography.

Col. Griffith said most of the lunar mapping has been done by the equatorial area where the United States plans to land astronauts.

Clean Getaway With Savings Of $50,000

YAMACHICHE, Que. (CP)—Neighbors of 47-year-old farmer Germain Ferron are scratching their heads in wonderment today after robbers made a clean getaway with his savings of $50,000 Sunday.

Three men were seen in a black car driving on the back roads near Ferron's large farm near Yamachiche, 100 miles northeast of Montreal. Police suspect it was they who entered Ferron's house by the back door while he and his brother Lucien were at mass and took Germain Ferron's strong-box.

Police said the box contained $50,000 in bonds and $800 in cash. Each brother had $400 in cash, but the bonds were all Germain's.

Police said the robbery is the biggest in the history of this small town on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

One neighbor said:

"We always knew Germain kept his money but we had no money saved up—maybe two or three thousand.

"But $50,000—I don't know whether I believe it."

Charles Bruce, General Supt. Of CP, Retires

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Bruce, general superintendent of The Canadian Press since 1945, retired Saturday after 33 years with the national newsgathering co-operative.

At a testimonial dinner, the staff of CP presented Mr. Bruce with a Frederick Varley water color.

Mr. Bruce, whose retirement date coincided with his 57th birthday, has earned recognition not only as a newspaper man, but as a poet and novelist. He plans to devote his time to writing.

Twenty Boats Burned or Sunk In $75,000 Fire

ST. WILLIAMS, Ont. (CP)—Twenty boats, ranging from large cruisers down to small outboards, burned and sank at their moorings here early Sunday in a $75,000 fire.

Two fully clothed teen-agers plunged into chilly Herb's Harbor to put out the blaze safely.

Stewart Kline, 16, and Gerry Ferris, 18, both of St. Williams, were awakened by 30 feet of blazing marina structure in water eight feet deep.

An investigation has been ordered by Fire Chief Sandy Hammond of St. Williams and the nearby Simcoe detachment of the provincial police. A representative of the Ontario fire marshal's office visited the scene Sunday.

The fire marshal's office also has been asked to investigate fires which destroyed two barns and farm homes in the area.

Sixteen firemen from St. Williams and 12 from nearby Port Rowan were called to fight the three fires within a three hour period.

The houses were located 2½ miles apart and not more than six miles from the marina. Both house alarms were received within minutes of each other.

C. V. Ferris, boat builder and volunteer fireman, said the marina fire may have started from a battery used to start boats. He said there was no hydro power in the danger area where the fire started.

The marina is operated by Herbert Lipsit of St. Williams.

Ban-Bombers Sell Airport In Mock Auction

MARHAM, England (Reuters)—Police and RAF security officers clashed Saturday with a crowd of "ban-the-bombers" who tried to claim an air base here after buying it lock, stock and missiles at a mock auction.

Before the demonstrators gave up and went to a local tavern, about a dozen of them were arrested.

The clash came after the group led by the anti-nuclear Committee of 100 held their auction in the nearby village market town of Swaffham.

The RAF bomber base was sold piece by piece — even planes worth hundreds of thousands of pounds going for £1 (S3) each.

The demonstrators then came in waves trying to break into the base. At one point they threw one of their number over the base fence. He was thrown back. For a while he was passed back and forth like a tennis ball.

In court, the ban-the-bombers booed throughout the hearing at which four persons were released on bail and seven others remanded.

SAYS IMPRACTICAL

VANCOUVER (CP) — General I. J. Rikhye, military advisor to United Nations Secretary-General U Thant, Saturday described a permanent UN police force as impractical. The Indian general said that, despite long - standing arguments in favor of a single international force to keep the peace, experience has shown a force constructed out of a "block pattern" was the most effective.

SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It is going to be a drab, uneventful summer for addicts of water polo, polo and cricket. But buffs of practically every other sport on the calendar won't have much trouble finding afterwork enjoyment.

There will be baseball of practically every age vintage from the squirts to the seniors. The South Hastings League is operating a five-club circuit while the Lakeshore Baseball League has a six-team loop. Minor baseball appears headed for the greatest year in its history.

The Belleville and District Softball League has come up with a four-team group while the minor soft ballers, the their baseball counterparts, also seem headed for a gala year.

Efforts to form a Central Ontario Softball League were made here yesterday at a meeting. The story appears elsewhere on the sports pages. "At this writing the only clubs which appeared to be interested were the originating Kingston team, Cobourg, which hasn't a local league to play in, and the Trenton RCAF.

Arena manager Bob Burrows has not received word yet as to when the grunt-and-groaners will start operations, but no doubt the big boys will show up some of these fish-day evenings if Old Sol ever decides to toss a little spring warmth in this direction.

The Bay of Quinte Football Association is already under way with four teams operating in the circuit. These are Parsons Cleaners, the Canadian Guards of Picton, Trenton Ambers and the Trenton RCAF. The Flyers are away to a good start with two wins under their belts while the city squad has bowed twice unless they dropped yesterday's game to the soldier laddies.

With the organization of the new Hydroplane Club the bay will be the scene of plenty of activity this summer. The speed boys will round out a full card of nautical enjoyment with the power squadron and the yacht club.

And there won't be any lack of action for the buffs of harness racing. The Quinte Riding and Driving Club with an all-time season record of sixteen meets gives the old men an excuse to get out on Saturday nights. The local harness horsefrich in the district will be on parade every Saturday this summer starting May 25th. The pari-mutuels will be operating and there will be a special clothesline for sportswriters' shirts.

Bay of Quinte Country Club president George O'Brien tells me the golfing boys and girls anticipate the best season in the history of the club. A number of new members will be chasing the little white ball over the links and new dining and lounge facilities take care of the social side.

Northern streams and lakes with the Bay of Quinte and its waters should offer plenty to the Isaak Walton. No record-breaking hauls have been reported this early in the season, in fact the finny tribe have shown little desire to co-operate to any great extent. But Lands and Forests people tell me that the situation should change with the warming of the weather and water.

Members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club are readying for another busy season with a full slate of local and district tournaments on the agenda. Tops, of course, is the Civic Holiday Classic open event that usually attracts lawn keglers from all parts of the province.

And the guns will be blazing at the clay targets on the property of the Quinte Trap and Gun Club. Some of the boys are developing into crack shots and the word has it that some are as good as any in the province.

The Quinte Tennis Club will see plenty of action and some of the junior members should be heard from this summer. The club's representatives did extremely well in district and metropolitan tournaments last year —and they should be better this year.

The sports staff here is thinking of organizing a Sunday Morning Pinochle Club. That's about the only spare time it will have.

Turns Back Player Threat

Boros Coasts To Colonial Win

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Julius Boros ignored the big three of golf Sunday and waltzed to the championship of the $60,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament by a four-shot margin.

The big Mid Pines, N.C., veteran shuttled down the home stretch with a one-over-par 71 to post a 279 total and douse a tournament victory drought that stretched back to 1960.

The former U.S. national Open champion picked up his last title check here three years ago but since then had been relegated to the sidelines. He earned $12,000 for his victory march, threatened by a gallant challenge from little Gary Player blazing down the home stretch.

The little South African, trailing by eight shots after 54 holes, raced through the front nine in 32 strokes, dipped four under par at the 14th and pulled at that point within two strokes of the leader.

But a one over par at the 15th coupled with a Boros birdie erased the threat. Both parred on in, which enabled Player to snatch the second prize of $7,000 from favorite Jack Nicklaus. Nicklaus had a par 70 for a 284 total and third place good for $3,500.

PALMER SLIPS

Arnold Palmer, who along with Player and Nicklaus composes the golfing monopoly known as the Big Three, was threatened to successfully defend his title here and wound up 20 strokes off the pace at 299. He declared plans to rest awhile.

Player's $6,000 check launched him from fourth to second on the official PGA money list with $36,765. Nicklaus leads with $56,215, Tony Lema is third with $35,295 and Palmer is fourth at $31,545.

HAS FASTEST LAP

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones, already owner of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway qualifying record, drove a lap at 152.077 miles an hour Saturday, the fastest ever recorded at the track. Jones drove the same Agajanian Special in which he took the pole for the 500-mile Memorial Day race last year at 150.729 m.p.h. He was the first man to pass 150 here.

Squeeze Out Final 4-3 Triumph ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Kings Turn Faucet On Falls; Win Cup

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP)—This city which had never won a junior team championship outside high school curling until last fall today boasts three as Edmonton Oil Kings edged Niagara Falls Flyers 4-3 for the Memorial Cup junior hockey championship Saturday night.

Oil Kings' victory gave them the best-of-seven series 4-2 before another sellout crowd of more than 6,700.

It was Edmonton's first junior hockey title in seven trips to the national final. It followed victories by Edmonton Huskies last fall in the Canadian Junior football final and Wayne Saboe's triumph earlier this year in the Canadian high school curling championships.

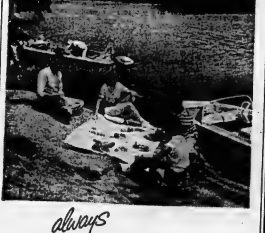
It was the first time since 1930, when Regina Pats won, that a club west of Manitoba has taken the crown.

Doug Fox, Glen Sather, Butch Paul and Gregg Pilling gave Oil Kings a 4-0 margin in the first 49 minutes of play but Flyers, crippled by the loss of two front-line wingers through injuries, stormed back on goals by Bill Clashan, Ron Schock and Terry Crisp to make it close.

SAVED THE GAME

In the final 90 seconds goalie Russ Kirk was forced to make three sprawling saves on close-in bouncing shots. Two other hard drives whistled by unguarded goal posts and missed the netsby inches.

Kirk, 17, a Burnaby, B.C., native is this first year as a junior, stopped Wayne Mazzer, Flyers' top scorer in the regular season and playoffs, on a breakaway before the scoring started.



In the third he again robbed Mazzer from close in after Niagara Falls had counted twice to cut Edmonton's margin to 4-2.

Owner-coach Hap Emms of Flyers said, "if we had scored that first goal the entire pattern of the game would have changed." He said it was the turning point of the game.

The closing minutes of the game had fans on their feet as Edmonton desperately held on and Flyers' made their spirited bid for the tying marker. Goalie George Gardner was pulled in favor of a sixth attacker but Flyers were unable to get the puck out to their men at the blue line.

KIDD WINS

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto's Bruce Kidd won the National Steel Car Six-Mile race annual 2½-mile road race Saturday for a unprecedented fifth time. The University of Toronto sophomore, running under the colors of Eric Tweedale Limited, ran the three-lap course in 11 minutes 47 seconds — 8½ seconds off the race record he set last year. He had also set records for the event in his 1959, 1960 and 1961 wins.

Barely Misses Perfect Game

Sandy Koufax Pitches No-Hitter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Left-hander Sandy Koufax, who has had a ton of thrills in his major league baseball career, said he got the biggest one by far Saturday night when he pitched a no - hitter against National League champions San Francisco Giants. He also pitched a no-hitter last year.

The Dodgers southpaw had a perfect game until Ed Bailey drew a walk on a full count with one out in eighth inning. The only other Giant to reach base was pinch-hitter Willie McCovey, who walked in the ninth.

"To pitch a perfect game would have been the greatest thrill," Koufax said. "It's too bad I walked those two guys. But it still is my greatest thrill."

Koufax said he expected to get a good bawling-out from his parents.

"I was supposed to leave them tickets for (Saturday night's) game," he said. "But I forgot."

Sandy's achievements, before this one, included two 18-strikeout performances, one against the Giants in 1959 and the other against Chicago Cubs last year. He is the only man in major league history to fan 18 in a game on two occasions.

FIRST SANE METS

And, here last June 3, he pitched his first no - hitter against New York Mets.

"But," he said, "pitching a no-hitter against the Giants is the finest thing that can happen to you."

The last San Francisco batter to face Koufax was Harvey Kuenn. He hit a bouncer back to the mound. For a moment it looked as though Koufax was going to run the ball all the way to first base. He finally tossed it to first baseman Ron Fairly when he was only a few feet from the bag.

"I just wanted to make sure I didn't throw it away," Sandy said later.

Oddly, all three no - hitters pitched at Dodgers Stadium have occurred on Saturday night.

Bo Belinsky of Los Angeles Angels of the American League pitched the first no-hitter at Baltimore Orioles last May.

HAD TO WIN

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Ottawa Sooners sent two teams to a one-day rugger tournament here Saturday and took all the glory. Both made the final event, Sooners A defeating Sooners B 18-0. The 10-team competition included three clubs from Deep River, three from Toronto, one from Petawawa, one rough and a third Ottawa squad, the Beavers.

Once World's Fastest Human

Bobby Kerr Dies At 81

HAMILTON (CP) — Bobby Kerr, track star, Olympic Games competitor and a member of the Canadian Hall of Fame, died at his home here Sunday at the age of 81.

Known as the world's fastest human at one point in his 21-year track career, Kerr ran the 100-yard dash in 9.4 seconds and the 220-yard dash in 21 seconds in a day when starting blocks were unknown.

He competed in two Olympics, was captain of the Canadian team at a third and manager of the track and field team at a fourth.

During his lifetime, he won more than 400 awards and trophies and held six separate Canadian records simultaneously.

Born in Knaisbalin, Ireland, Kerr came to Canada at an early age, lived in Kemptville, Ont., for a year and a half, then moved to Hamilton where he lived for the rest of his life.

Schoolboy successes were soon followed by triumphs in tough competition and in 1908 he won the 100, 400 and 880-yard events at the Hamilton Coronation Games.

GOES TO OLYMPICS

In 1904 he was crowned Canadian sprint champion and selected to represent Canada at the Olympic Games in St. Louis, Mo. The blonde-haired youth had to scrape $75 to make the trip and was eliminated in the 100-yard semi-final.

After several years of barnstorming competition, he wound up in 1905 at the Montreal Caledonia Games and the Canadian YMCA Championships, where he captured all the sprinting events.

He led the Canadian track team into the 1908 Olympics in England, ran third in the 200 metres, won a gold medal in the 200 metres, and went on to sweep all the sprints in the British championships.

He returned from the Games to travel across Canada, giving exhibitions. In 1909 he set an Irish record in Dublin.

In 1910, he swept the card at the Canadian championships in Winnipeg, running the century in 9.4 seconds, creating a world's record of 14.3 for the 150 yards and running the 220 in 21.4 seconds.

He continued in competition until 1919.

Dodgers Giant-Killers In Comeback

Win Three Straight

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It may have been the vote of confidence club president Walter O'Malley gave manager Walter Alston last week.

Or it may have been the mere sight of the hated Giants who heaped so much humiliation upon them last October.

Whatever it was, it worked wonders on Los Angeles Dodgers.

From a dispirited, bungling crew of second divisioners, Dodgers became an aroused team over the weekend, capped Sunday by their third straight triumph over Giants.

Sunday's 6-5 victory was an even sweeter triumph than Friday night's 2-1 squeaker or even Saturday night's 8-0 shoutout in which Sandy Koufax pitched his majestic no-hitter.

Dodgers didn't trail in the first two games, but found themselves on the short end of a 5-2 score when they came to bat in the eighth inning Sunday.

Jack Fisher, pitching his fourth straight victory, hadn't let a runner beyond first base since the second inning. But Fisher didn't last the inning as Dodgers erupted for four runs to sweep the three-game series and edge into fourth place, only two games behind the leading Giants.

CARDINALS SPLIT

St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within a half game of the top, despite a doubleheader split with Pittsburgh Pirates. Cardinals won the opener 2-1 in 11 innings and Pirates took the second 4-3.

Houston Colts nipped Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings for a sweep of the four-game series. Philadelphia Phillies swept both ends of a doubleheader from Milwaukee Braves 4-3 in 11 innings and 6-5 in 12. New York Mets gained a split with Cincinnati Reds, winning the second game 13-12 after Reds had taken the opener 3-0.

Saturday, in addition to Koufax' 8-0 no-hitter over Giants, Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 3-2, Philadelphia defeated Milwaukee 8-5, Cincinnati defeated New York 4-2 and Houston took two from Chicago, the first 3-3 and the second 1-0.

A single by pinch hitter Lee Walls opened the gates for Dodgers Sunday. Hits by Maury Wills, Jim Gilliam, Ron Fairly and Wally Moon followed and Dodgers had three runs to tie the score. The winning run crossed on John Roseboro's sacrifice fly. Dick Calmus, a 19-year-old rookie, pitched three innings in relief and picked up his first major league triumph.

DELIVER KEY HITS

Ken Boyer and Ted Savage delivered the key hits in the Cards - Pirates split. Boyer's single in the 11th drove in the winning run for St. Louis in the opener. Savage's home run snapped a 3-3 tie in the eight of the nightcap for Pirates.

Frank Torre's two-out single scored Johnny Callison with the winning run in the 11th inning of Phils' opener. A double error by Brave pitcher Lew Burdette led to Philadelphia's winning run in the 12th inning of the nightcap, which took a record seven hours and 40 minutes to play.

Choo Choo Coleman's run-scoring single snapped a 12-12 tie in the eighth for Mets' nightcap victory. Veda Pinson drove in five Cincinnati runs with a homer, double and two singles. Le Cardenal threw-run homer backed Bob Purkey's seven-hit pitching in the opener.

Bob Aspromonte's homer in the bottom of the 10th snapped a 1-1 tie for Houston against Cubs.

Seven Quinte COSSA Records Broken

BCI Girls Take Track Crown

Shattering four of seven records, Belleville Collegiate Institute girl athletes swept to an easy COSSA Senior Girls' Track and Field championship at the OSD Saturday.

Led by senior co-champions Sheryl Drysdale and Heather Orr and junior champion Linda House, the 1963 title-winners amassed 119 points in a field of eleven district schools.

Trenton High School finished second in the points standing with 55; Moira S.S. was next with 47; OSD finished fourth with 35 and Quinte Secondary, fifth with 13 points.

Other schools participating were Norwood, Prince Edward, Brighton, Napanee, Marmora and Tweed.

BCI took eleven of the twenty scheduled events, six in the senior division. Moira S.S. was three, Trenton two, OSD two and Tweed and Napanee one each.

The winners swept the senior dashes with Miss Drysdale winning the 50 yds in 7.4 seconds and Miss Orr taking the 100 and 220 yards in 12;00 and 29;7 seconds.

Miss Drysdale also won the standing broad jump with 7.8 inches and Miss Teeestra taking the high jump with a 4;1 high jump. BCI won the relay in 61;4 seconds with Miss Drysdale, Miss Orr, Judy Ingram and Patsy Clapp participating.

In the other senior events Trenton's Barbara Cromwell won the running broad jump with a record 15;2 inches; OSD's Margaret Morgan took the shot put with a 26;11 throw. Dorothy Lesage of Tweed won the discus throw with 78;3 feet and Trenton's Nancy McCullum won the softball throw with a toss of 199.1 feet.

In the junior divisions BCI's Linda House, the new champion won the 100 yard dash in 12;7 seconds and the running broad jump with a 15;0.

Lynn Neill, MSS won the 60 yards in 7.2 seconds with Marilyn Harris, BCI took the 220 in a record 31.1 seconds. Charlotte Kerr and Judy Davidson both of BCI won the shotput, 25 feet and the softball throw, 155;4 feet.

Pam Paul, Napanee took the high jump with 4;1 feet, Leslie Dunning, Moira had a 7;8 record for the standing broad jump and Anne Thompson, MSS, won the discus throw with 76 feet. OSD won the relay with Carol Cleary, Linda Graham, Margaret Bessence and Marilyn Fisher.

Meet records were set by Heather Orr, Linda House, Sheryl Drysdale and Margaret Lewis of BCI; Leslie Dunning, Moira; Barbara Cromwell, Trenton and Nancy McCullum, Trenton.

After the meet the Misses Drysdale and Orr were named co-senior champions with Miss Susan Cooper of OSD, the runner-up. Miss House was given the over-all junior crown with the Misses Lynn Neill, Moira S.S. and Margaret Lewis, BCI named co-runners up.

Participating athletes from the eleven schools also set a record for the Bay of Quinte girls meet, 225 athletes taking part.

The meet was well organized by the convener Miss Betty Lonsdale, OSD physical education teacher ably assisted by Miss Jeanne Rose of the BCI physical education teaching staff.

"The meet was a success and accomplished much" commented Miss Lalone. "despite weather that was more conducive to football."

Final Event Decides Championship

Trenton Shades Moira For Track Title

Trenton High School won the COSSA Bay of Quinte annual track and field championship Saturday nosing out Belleville's Moira S.S., 1962 champions, by a five-point margin.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way to the wire for the two schools. The score was tied several times during the meet and the lead changed hands on not a few occasions.

With one event to go, Trenton led Moira by a half-point the totals being THS 153½ and Moira 153.

Barr of Trenton became the hero of the day for the winners when he sailed over the meet title with a record 10 foot six inches jump in the intermediate pole vault.

The point toals for all schools competing were: Trenton 153½, Moira 153, BCIVS 94½, Norwood 70, Prince Edward 56, Quinte S.S. 54, Ontario School for the Deaf 19, Campbellford 11½, Napanee 8½, Tweed 7, Stirling 1, Marmora 0.

Doug Brewer, of Picton's Prince Edward Collegiate, edged out top men from Moira and Trenton to capture the individual Senior championship. Pettigrew had two first and one fourth, good for 11 points, one more than his nearest competitor — Stan Woodcock of Moira, had one first, one second and one third, while Trenton's Doug MacDonald picked up two firsts, tied for ten points each.

Moira's Ron Faulkner ran away with the Intermediate championship, chalking up three firsts for a 15-point total. Quinte's Richard Eves came in second with 12 points, on two firsts and one third.

In the Junior individual point race, Grant Vandervoort of Quinte Secondary and Pat Elmhurst of Norwood, tied for the championship with 13 points apiece. Each had two firsts and one second.

Brian Smith of BCIVS took juvenile honors with 15 points, gained from three firsts. Moira's Johnny Hayman came in second with 12 points, the result of two firsts and one third.

Records went by the boards in all phases of the meet.

Eleven schools sent an all-time high of 433 athletes for the four age groupings. Despite the cool weather the meet set a mark for spectator interest.

On the field eleven standing records were smashed, another tied and records set in two events, the juvenile 880 and the juvenile mile. Johnny Hayman of Moira won both events in 2;31.3 and 5;36.06.

Sherwin of Norwood tied the juvenile 440 in 1;06.0 while Smith, BCI set a new mark in the 100 and 220 with 11;9 and 25;9. Thibaue, BCI set a record of 98.7½ feet in the juvenile discus throw. The BCI juvenile relay team set a record with 5;36.05.

Other records set were junior hurdles, Watson, Moira, 16;2; intermediate mile, Van Will, Norwood 5;03.2; intermediate hurdles, Eves, Quinte 16;5; intermediate pole vault, Barr, Trenton, 10.6; intermediate relay, Moira, 1;42.06; senior hurdles, McMartin, Moira, 18.5 and senior discus, Kaufman, Trenton, 143.9.

The meet was capably handicaped by COSSA Bay of Quinte convener Dave Bell of Moira Secondary School.

The new champions will seat COSSA honors in Trenton next Saturday when they meet champions from the Peterborough and Oshawa districts. The winners of this meet go on to Anaheim, Ont., for the OFSAA championships on May 25th.

Central Ontario Softball League Groundwork Laid

The groundwork for a Central Ontario Softball League was laid at a meeting here yesterday but for this season at least it will operate on an exhibition basis.

Clubs from Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg, Trenton RCAF and Picton attended the meeting at Club Canada, chaired by Kingston's Harold Langabeer.

Langabeer was named president of the organization and Don Boswell, also of Kingston, accepted the secretary-treasurer's job.

The RCAF, Picton, Cobourg and Kingston representatives were quite eager to form the league and according to Langabeer, Brockville is also anxious to participate.

Joyce Real Estate, of Belleville, is undecided, while two other Belleville clubs, Bobcats and Trudeau Motors said they were not interested.

Langabeer said he had been notified by Oshawa and Peterborough teams that they thought it was too late to get anything going this season but that they would be very much interested next spring.

So, with a eye to the future, Cobourg, RCAF, Picton, Kingston, Brockville and possibly Joyces, will play home and home exhibition games this season.

No schedule will be followed, the teams making arrangements among themselves for dates.

Harold West, of Kingston, donated a trophy yesterday which will be presented to the club with the best record next fall.

Angels Clip Chisox Win Skein At Seven

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Something over two decades ago, Boston Red Sox had a good-looking young rookie out of San Diego's Herbert Hoover High School named Ted Williams. He became quite a hitter.

Today, Red Sox have a handsome young rookie out of Herbert Hoover High who shapes up as quite a pitcher—Dave Morehead.

The hard-throwing 19-year-old right-hander kept his perfect record intact Sunday, winning his third straight with a 4-1 decision over Washington Senators. He allowed just one hit—a home run with two out in the first inning to Chuck Hinton.

The victory gave Boston a split of the Fenway Park doubleheader. Washington took the opener 3-2 on Don Lock's 14th homer.

Elsewhere in the American League—Los Angeles Angels ended the first-place Chicago White Sox' winning string at seven, winning 7-6 in 12 innings after being bombed by Sox 14-2 in the first game of their doubleheader; Jim Bouton fired a two-hitter as New York Yankees beat Baltimore Orioles 2-0 with two unearned runs; Cleveland Indians whipped Detroit Tigers 9-3; and Kansas City Athletics slipped Minnesota Twins 3-1 before the second game of their doubleheader was rained out.

In Saturday games, New York whipped Baltimore 13-1, Cleveland defeated Detroit 3-2, Kansas City defeated Minnesota 5-1 and Chicago defeated Los Angeles 4-2. Washington at Boston was rained out.

ONE SPOT TOUGH

Morehead, who shut out Senators 3-0 in his big league debut this season, now has an earned run average of 1.13. After yielding Hinton's homer, the young pitcher had one tough jam—walking the bases loaded with one out in the fourth. But that threat ended when Chuck Cottier liner lined into a double play. Red Sox got two unearned runs—without a hit off loser Claude Osteen in the first, and Frank Malzone homered in the third.

Hinton also homered in the opener, tying the game at 2-2 in the eighth, and Lock settled it with his homer off Dick Rudolph in the 14th.

Leon Wagner's leadoff triple followed by Lou Thomas' double gave Angels their overtime victory against the streaking White Sox. Los Angeles drew even at 6-6 in the seventh with three unearned runs, helped by losing reliever Hoyt Wilhelm's error.

Floyd Robinson's three hits and three runs batted in paced Chicago in the opener, won by right-hander John Buzhardt.

SINGLES IN SEVENTH

Boston, making his first start of the year, rattled the first five Orioles in order before Jerry Adair singled in the seventh. Brooks Robinson got the other Baltimore hit, in the eighth. Orioles lefty Steve Barber, seeking his seventh victory, turned back three Yankee threats but was done in in the ninth. The two runs were unearned runs crossed on Luis Aparacio's error, Elston Howard's double, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly.

Indians clinched things against Detroit with a five-run outburst in the eighth. Woody Held hit a double and triple good for three RBIs and Rilis Burton added a homer for Cleveland. Sam McDowall, 20-year-old Indian southpaw, went the distance. He gave up six hits, including a homer by Gus Triandos, six walks and will pitched a run home but was aided by three double plays.

Jim Piersall's two-run double in the second-piece As pushed to within 1½ games of Chicago by beating out Minnesota with an unearned run in the eighth.

Jose Tartabull carried it across the plate Sherm's fly after hitting a bunt single then moving to third base on Vic Power's error. John Wyatt saved the pitching victory for Dave Wickman, coming on in the last of the ninth following Bob Allison's one-out triple and nailing down the final two outs.

Three Outs From No-Hitter

Bowsfield Almost Had It

By LEW FERGUSON

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Canadian-born Ted Bowsfield, who came within three outs of pitching a no-hitter Saturday, was in a jovial mood afterward and just happy that he had hurled a victory.

Bowsfield's biggest regret was the fact that Minnesota first baseman Vic Power was the ninth to become the first batter to hit a no-hitter in the majors this season.

"If it had been anybody else I wouldn't have minded so much," said Bowsfield, a native of Penticton, B.C. "It was just that I wanted to make but I guess it was wrong.

Bowsfield stressed that he wasn't the dispenser of power in saying he hated to give up the first hit to Vic.

"I'm just saying I hated it because of the type of hitter he is."

HAD NO CHANCE

Bowsfield said he had no chance to field Power's hot grounder that skipped past the mound and into centrefield in the ninth inning.

Bowsfield, purchased from Los Angeles Angels last winter, had permitted only four batters to reach base, all on walks, and needed only three more outs in the ninth to become the first pitcher to hurl a no-hitter in the majors this season.

Zollo Versalles, the first batter to face him in the ninth, walked. Power followed with a single to crash Bowsfield's dream. Versalles took third on the hit, a ground single through the middle. He scored as Bill Tuttle hit into a double play.

Bob Allison followed with a single but was forced by Earl Battey to end the game.

Until the ninth, Bowsfield had walked four and struck out four in the others. He allowed no walker and hadn't allowed a runner past first base.

Leafs Split With Wings, Crackers Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlanta seldom steals a base, rarely hits a home run and almost never plays an errorless baseball game, but the Crackers hit the road today with the best winning percentage in the International League in spite of those handicaps.

They finished their southern division lead to two games Sunday by winning a doubleheader from Indianapolis Indians 4-2 and 5-1. Jacksonville Suns swept Columbus Jets 6-5 in 11 innings and 6-4, and the other teams divided their Sunday games.

Buffalo Bisons downed Arkansas Travelers 9-6 in the first game but lost 5-1 in the nightcap. Syracuse Chiefs edged Richmond Virginians 5-4 after the Vees took the opener 3-1. Rochester Red Wings trounced Toronto Maple Leafs 8-2 in the first game, but Maple Leafs rallied for a 4-3 victory in the second.

In Saturday games, Atlanta lost a 9-4 decision to Indianapolis and Rochester defeated Toronto 2-1. The other three games were postponed because of rain.

Bowling Tourneys Winners

Leonard Rumleskie captured the Men's "B" bowling tournament and Helen Desjardins walked off with top honors in the annual women's tournament, both held over the weekend.

Rumleskie rolled 2254 for ten games to top the field for bowlers with an under 210 average. He received a cash award plus the Stephen Licence Trophy and miniature.

Jim St. Louis was in second spot with 2065, while Bill Grimason, who led at the half-way mark, was third with 2067. Grimason had the only 300 game of the tournament. Bill in his fifth game to shove him into the lead. Bob Pearce finished fourth with 1952.

Helen Desjardins turned in a top score of 2186 over ten games to take the women's championship.

King of the Hill

Horace Ormshaw of Trenton will be King of the Hill and with the exception of Ron Saylor, who came within 23 pins of tying him, he had everything his own way. Horace's five games of 216, 302, 309, 300 and 223 made up a total of 1350.

This is the fifth week Horace has had the title and the fourth that he has been unchallenged.

In third position was Leo St. Louis with 1217, fourth Eric Wilson with 1211 and fifth Carl Barrowclift 1111. There were three 300 games and Horace had all of them.

King of the Hill will be postponed for one week because of the holiday weekend and will continue again on May 25.

The pot of gold for 8 strikes in a row now stands at $33.75. The closest contender for the money was Horace Ormshaw with six on Saturday.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Main Chance Farm's Get Around came from 12th place with, a rush in the Aqueduct home stretch Saturday and Derby - winning jockey Braulio Baeza just got him up in the final strides to win the $61,000 Withers Mile.

The victory, worth $32,650, certainly qualified Mrs. Eliza beth Arden Graham's speedy colt for a shot at the $150,000 Preakness Stakes next Saturday at Pimlico.

Get Around, a chestnut son of Citation-Lotopep by Menow, finished one-half length in front of Mr. Charles D. Morgan's Sky Wonder, with George D. Widener's Top Gallant third in a field of 14 three-year-olds. The time for the mile on a muddy track was one minute, 36 3-5 seconds.

The winner paid $8.80, $3.70 and $3.50. Sky Wonder returned $11.40 and $5 and Top Gallant, who also closed from far back under Larry Adams, paid $2.60 to show. Get Around was coupled in the betting with Sum Dum Kid.

At Baltimore, Country Squire also became a sure starter in the Preakness by winning the Preakness Prep at Pimlico, defeating Rural Retreat by three lengths.

Country Squire paid $5.40, $3.40 and $2.80; Rural Retreat $6.20 and $4.20 and Reap The Wind $3.60.

Hitchcock Gives the Bird To Hollywood's Females

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's quite easy to make a kitchen-sink housewife out of a lady," said Alfred Hitchcock positively, "but you can't make a lady out of a kitchen-sink housewife."

So "you can always take a thing down, but you can't take it up."

Filmdom's chubby master of suspense was off on one of his favorite topics—the shortage of real ladies in Hollywood.

"I don't think there are any ladies left on the screen," Hitch said, flingering a cool glass of luncheon champagne as he looked with glowing appreciation at the dish before him—hot chicken pie.

"In its bey-day we had nothing but ladies. I have in mind ladies like Norma Shearer, Carole Lombard, Irene Dunne, Myrna Loy, Garbo, Ingrid Bergman.

"An artist to be a real artist has to have range."

GRACE KELLY LIKE

Sitting at the film director's side was his latest discovery, Tippi Hedren, a fair model who is featured in his latest thriller, The Birds.

Tippi is slender, blondly beautiful, and looks like a younger sister of Grace Kelly, now princess of Monaco. Hitch is hopeful that her association with Hitchcock will prove an escalator to stardom as it proved for several other actresses, including Princess Grace and Vera Miles.

Although the mystery master has turned out some 50 films, the tendency among the directing fra has always eluded him—a fear which doesn't seem to grieve his jaunty spirit much. He doesn't regard the winning of Oscars as his real task in life.

Hitchcock is quite satisfied going on with his real goal in life—to entertain people by scaring them.

"Why do I scare them?" he asked. "Because they demand it. They want to be scared. They love it."

HUNGRY TO BED

Hitch turned then to the subject that is dearest to his heart next to himself. This director's dieter ranges in weight from 185 pounds to a soaring 207. Right he's around 205 pounds to 210, depending on the time of day.

Here's his advice for taking it off:

"Eat a normal breakfast and lunch. Give up your evening meal and go to bed hungry. Cut out your social activities at night completely. The hardest thing for me to give up is a glass or two of wine at night."

Asked to name his favorite meal, Hitch began:

"Two roast chickens with ham . . . any fresh vegetables available . . . stuffing made of ground veal and ham and bread crumbs . . . mixed chicken and beef gravy, only slightly thickened, and . . ."

The look of cherubic joy suddenly faded. Hitch paused, unwilling to go on with the end of self-torture.

"I'm trying to take off 15 pounds right now," he explained.

WINS THIRD TITLE

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Mickey Wright shot a three-over-par 75 Sunday for a 54-hole total of 219—the score she predicted would win — and captured the Alexandria Civitan Women's Open golf tournament by a stroke. Miss Wright, who now has won three of the six tournaments on the women's circuit, shaded Jo Ann Prentice by a stroke.

Canadian Wins Open Skeet Shoot

By RUSSELL FEDEN

ST. JANVIER, Que. (CP)—A 46 - year - old RCAF squadron leader and a United States sailor less than half his age fought it out right to the end before the Canadian officer won the Canadian Open all-around skeet-shooting championship.

Ottawa's Barney Hartman, the RCAF officer, took the title with a shoot-off Sunday against Ken Selecky of Baldwin, Mich. The two marksmen finished the three - day shoot knotted with identical scores of 496 out of a possible 500.

Selecky, a 22-year-old seaman who plans to retire from the sport, won the Canadian Open 12 times, title in another shoot-off Sunday.

Turo, as runner-up, won the Canadian and Quebec closed 12-gauge titles that Hartman has held for the last seven years.

The 496 scores registered by Hartman and Selecky reflected their mastery of all four shotgun gauges.

AT THE PARK — The usually sultry Sophia Loren is caught in a girlish pose with Anatole Litvak, producer-director of her latest film, "Five Miles to Midnight." The high-tension drama which opens tonight at the Park Theatre for a three-day engagement only, co-stars Anthony Perkins and Gig Young. On the same program a tempestuous film "Drop Dead Time", starring Tom Laughlin and Mira Monsaur. Both features are first Belleville showings. Complete shows are at 7.00 p.m. and 8.40 p.m.

At the Park

"Five Miles To Midnight"

Big Secret

During the filming of the high-tension thriller "Five Miles to Midnight," the Sophia Loren - Anthony Perkins - Gig Young starrer opening tonight at the Park Theatre, through United Artists release, producer-director Anatole Litvak created suspense on the set as well as on celluloid.

The climactic scenes were kept a secret from even the cast and crew. Litvak termed this his "iron wall." The crucial sequences were deleted from all scripts and when the time came to photograph them, only the characters involved and the necessary crew were let in on the secret conference.

On the same program a tempestuous drama "The Proper Time" stars Tom Laughlin and Mira Monsour. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

At the Belle

"Dangerous Love Affairs"

Witty and Provocative

Roger Vadim's "Dangerous Love Affairs" (Les Liaisons Dangereuses), opening today at the Belle Theatre, is a highly subjective and typically French look at events, and is rapidly closing in on the all-time box office in France, and was seen by more than one million people in its first-run engagement in Paris alone.

The popularity of the film closely parallels the success of the novel by Choderlos de Laclos, upon which it is based. The book was published 180 years ago, was the sensation of France and became the first daring best seller in French literature.

Jean Seaberg in "Breathless"

Jean Seaberg has the feminine lead in "Breathless", the 2nd feature on the same program today at the Belle Theatre.

The matinee performance begins at 1.30. The complete show will be presented tonight, beginning at 7.30, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — "Dangerous Love Affairs", Jeanne Moreau, Gerard Philipe, 7.30 — 2nd feature, "Breathless", Jean Seberg: 3.40; 9.30.

AT THE PARK — First Showings— "The Proper Time", Tom Laughlin, 7.00-10.30 "Five Miles to Midnight", Sophia Loren, Anthony Perkins, Gig Young, 8.40.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN— Show starts at dusk. "The Proud Ones", Robert Ryan, Virginia Mayo, Jeffrey Hunter—"The Scarface Mob", Robert Stack, Keenan Wynn, Neville Brand.

RECOGNIZE TIGER

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts state boxing commission Saturday night announced recognition of Dick Tiger as world middleweight champion, making it unanimous for the slugging Nigerian. Previously Massachusetts had been the lone state which did not rate Tiger the king of the 160 pounders. The decision ended Paul Pender until the former Brookline, Mass., fireman announced his retirement from the ring last Tuesday.

Dinah Shore Show Is Best For Colored TV Viewers

By CYNTHIA LOWERY

NEW YORK (AP)—Day in and day out, the most gratifying programs to the owner of a color set are the variety programs where color abounds and sharp contrast show up most effectively.

"It's fun to observe Perry Como in his lavender or tangerine sweaters and to see Lawrence Spivak looking pink and earnest against a dark blue background. But for the feminine viewer the Dinah Shore Show has been the most fun of all.

Miss Shore wears beautiful, chic and subtly colorful clothes and, seen to it that her feminine guest stars do, too. Sometimes, in fact, we women become so bemused by the rich red fatfetes, or the sand-colored chiffon, or the artful bosom and the bodices, that we really don't pay as much attention as we should to the rest of the program.

Therefore, we're going to miss the Dinah Shore Show next season when the star enjoys a sabbatical from television and its limelight. We're going to miss the color, the clothes and, of course, the music.

Sunday night's show, her last for a while, was a good example of them all. Miss Shore presented three young new singers and a trio.

The Dinah Shore Show has been a musical treat, a fine showcase of talent and a special joy to watch in color.

Recommended tonight: David Brinkley's Journal, NBC, 10-10:30 EDT—Part II of the series on conditions in Haiti.

TO STRENGTHEN

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The American Football League has adopted a plan Saturday to strengthen the Oakland and New York teams by allowing them to pick players from the other six teams in the league, Buffalo owner Ralph C. Wilson announced. Wilson said in a telephone interview from New York, where the meeting was held, that the plan calls for the other six teams to designate 25 veterans and half of their rookies and free agents as unavailable. Oakland and New York then would have their pick of one unprotected veteran from each of the other six teams, Wilson said.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)—Cycle changing means you change with it. Include friends in daily activity. Confide, share, listen. Project grows large. May require additional funds, brains, effort. Be Practical.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Be prepared to back up statements. Those in position to help are listening. Make no idle threats, claims. Be observant and conservative. Avoid those who "cry wolf."

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Fine for communicating, expressing thoughts. Not so good for keeping secrets. Key is clear communication. Excellent day for contacts, but maintain sense of direction.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21)—What might have been is one story, but you must "write" your own chapter. Be self-reliant. Prove your worth. Not only to others — but to yourself. Take time to think, to be alone with thoughts.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Not wise to put off "tough" decisions. Come to understanding. Achieve inner harmony by deciding on course of action. Please — born person may have correct answer, investigate!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Key is adjustment. Means there are apt to be radical changes around you. Don't be caught off guard. Act with confidence, dignity. Others look to you for example. Live up to potential.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21)—Key is independence, originality. Now is time to take the lead. Avoid those who tend to complain, warn of perils. Combine common sense with adventure. Stress sense of daring.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be willing to discard the old in order to emphasize modern methods. Take courage. But let your Sagittarian qualities are brought to light . . . you succeed. Read Concise message.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Sense of balance important. Weigh decisions. Be self-reliant. Lunar cycle high. You can win your way with sense of humor. Express opinions. You attract "special person".

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Recent "pumies" fall into place. You see with greater clarity. Confusion clears. Take positive action. No time for delay based on uncertainty. Be dynamic, positive.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Read Gemini message. Do what you "feel" is right. Get around, including contacts with those who "keep to themselves". Take steps to enlarge horizons. Give friendship. Enable others to "know" you.

If today is your birthday . . . you are sympathetic where underdog is concerned, but you should discriminate between sympathy and extravagance.

General Tendencies: Conditions breaks from tradition. Glancer highlighted. Public takes interest in fields considered restricted or sophisticated.

Mining Industry Could Reap Rich Reward From Survey Being Undertaken in B.C.

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Geological Survey of Canada this summer tackles one of its toughest jobs, and the mining industry could reap a rich reward from the survey.

In the first stage of a survey that is expected to occupy at least five years.

It's a tough job, covering the area from Bella Coola, 300 miles north of Vancouver, to the Alaska border, another 300 miles north. But in that stretch the jagged coastline and numerous islands include, perhaps, preliminary aerial survey will be made of the whole region.

This is one of the last tasks to be completed by the survey of 3,000 miles of shoreline. In addition, about 400 miles of lake shore will be tackled and a before a complete geological map of Canada is completed in the early 1970s.

LONG-TIME TASK

The survey of the vast northern B.C. coastal country—the mapping of its rock structure—has been in progress almost 100 years. Dr. Jack Souther, geologist in charge of the coastal party, says the strip has not been completely surveyed in the past because of lack of proper equipment such as boats that can be used close to shore, and of helicopters.

The unsurveyed strip, about 40 miles in depth, has tremendous economic potential, he believes.

It has "a favorable environment for the appearance of minerals," said Dr. Souther.

"Industry follows us in as soon as it is apparent that we're in there," he said of the surveys.

The object of the survey however is not to discover minerals, but simply to map the rock structure of the area.

He says the whole area is crystalline rock with patches of metamorphic or intrusive or other rock in it is these—that simply referred to as old and young rock—that could contain minerals.

THOROUGH SURVEY

When the entire area is surveyed industry and other interested groups will have a picture of the rock structure.

Besides that there will be subsidiary reports on such things as flora and fauna accessibility, established industry and other developments and possible power sites.

Mining companies impatient to go into the area will have a preliminary report on the first year's work after next winter.

The surveying job is tough because the Coast Range mountains dip sharply into the sea making large areas inaccessible except by boat or air. Specially modified collapsible rubber boats must be used in order to approach sheer rock faces in surfs of six to eight feet and to land on isolated beaches. The weather can be so rough that surveying may be halted for days. A heavy forest cover hampers surveying by air.

Dr. Souther, a quiet man in a crisp white shirt, outlined in an interview the difficulties of the job—and in passing, the dangers.

BEARS AMONG HAZARDS

These included handling a small boat in a heavy surf, bears — psychological danger" although he does carry rifles—falls from cliffs, and appreciating unscheduled nights in the bush after missing a rendezvous with a plane.

"I'm sure a life insurance man would call it a hazardous job," he says.

The survey will be conducted in four stages:

This summer, operating from a 57-foot chartered boat and using five small boats and chartered aircraft, 3,000 miles of jagged coast between Bella Coola and the Alaska border will be surveyed.

Next year, the interior of this strip will be surveyed, with heavy use of helicopters.

The following summer the coastal survey of the strip from Bella Coola to the Alaska border will be done with the interior of this strip being completed the following year.

RADAR TROUBLE BLOCKS SPACE FLIGHT

Racial Strife Continues As Troops Stand By

Governor Says Action Of President Illegal

JACKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Negro students, demanding desegregation of all public accommodations, clashed with police and rock-throwing whites in a noisy two-hour demonstration in downtown Nashville Monday night.

A few hours later police rushed to the home of a Negro leader who said a shotgun blast fired from a speeding car smashed through the window of his home and narrowly missed his wife.

As Mayor Beverly Briley continued his efforts to reach a biracial accord and "preserve the peace," Negro leaders scheduled another meeting for late today to press these demands:

1. Desegregation of all public accommodations such as hotels, motels, restaurants and lunch counters. Some eating places, all downtown theatres, the baseball park and the auditorium are integrated.

2. Better employment opportunities for qualified Negroes.

3. Dropping of all charges now pending against students arrested while demonstrating against segregation dating back to the start of the sit-in movement in 1960.

HUNDREDS GATHER

The downtown demonstration came during the height of the dinner hour and was marked by frequent outbreaks of violence as hundreds of white persons gathered. Some were hecklers, others just spectators.

Police arrested five persons, one of them white. Two others were admitted to hospital.

Rocks and glass showered the demonstrators as they approached two segregated restaurants, the scenes of protests last week.

Several fights broke out as the Negroes then marched through the city's financial district to the city jail. At one point, the Negroes wheeled in a counter-attack that sent rock-throwing whites scattering.

FIVE DIE

RAQUETTE [illegible]-N.Y. (AP)—Five men, all school-teachers, were found dead Monday in an Adirondack mountain cabin where they had gone for the weekend. State police said they apparently were asphyxiated by gas leaking from a refrigerator. Four of the men taught in Manchester school about 20 miles east of Rochester, in northern New York state. The fifth taught in an elementary school in the Rochester suburb of Penfield.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Uncertainty and apprehension continued to grip this racially troubled city today as 2,000 combat-ready troops stood within striking distance in the event of new outbreaks of mass violence.

Scattered violence was reported in the city the night. Two persons were hurt. Automobile windshields were smashed and telephone wires broken in about a dozen buildings.

A white youth was slashed on his right elbow with a knife. He said he was attacked by a group of Negroes. A Negro man was admitted to hospital after he was struck in the face by a large object. A ball fired from a slingshot, apparently wielded by a white youth.

Police arrested two Negroes early today in connection with attacks on officers during the Sunday riot. Carl Ivory, 53, was charged with two counts of assault with intent to murder-police. Lee Lewing, 26, was charged with one count of assault with a deadly weapon—a rock.

President Kennedy ordered the troops into the state, but Governor George Wallace said the action was illegal. He hinted that he may seek a federal injunction to keep federal forces out of the city.

Kennedy replied Wallace that he acted under a section of the U.S code giving the president the power to determine whether forces are needed, and in cases of domestic violence, and whether state authorities are providing adequate protection to citizens.

TWO MAY MEET

Wallace and Kennedy may meet Saturday at Mussel Shoals, Ala. The president is scheduled to attend an observance by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Wallace has not decided whether he plans to greet the president.

"I will cross that bridge later in the day," he said.

Kennedy said members of a

WHERE ARE WORKERS?

OTTAWA (CP) — Less than one-quarter of all federal government employees work in the national capital area, the bureau of statistics reported Monday. This metropolitan area, with a population approaching 600,000, had 47,484 employees last September. This is 22.5 per cent of the total. Their payroll ran to $11 million or $21,600 or 26.8 per cent of all earnings.

Impressive Array of Spectators Ready to Watch Cooper in Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Across the world — and even above it—an impressive array of spectators gathered hoping to watch astronaut Gordon Cooper go spinning 22 times around the earth.

In addition to millions of people tuned in on television and radio, the most ambitious U.S. space project to date required the services of more than 19,000 professional bird-watchers spotted around the globe. Most were deployed on ships and planes in likely recovery areas in case the automatic pilot required by circumstances to end his 34-hour trip ahead of schedule.

Europe hoped to get an unprecedented peek at the air force major in his Faith 7 capsule via Telstar II and a special camera in the cockpit. Another camera aimed at Cooper, the sky is the weather satellite Tyros, which makes six passes a day over the Atlantic coast during the daylight hours of his mission, one over the Pacific area crossed by his flight and a quick pass over the sea of Arabia.

Even when Gordon Cooper is taking his eight-hour snooze, between the ninth and the 15th orbits, someone up there as well as down there in Mercury con-

HOUSE LIKELY TO TAKE CLOSE DEFENCE LOOK

Nuclear Arms Will Be Biggest Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberals apparently aren't spending any sleepless nights worrying about how the new Parliament will receive their nuclear policy.

Their minority position in the Commons doesn't particularly trouble them, on this issue at least, because they feel they can count on some support among the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties.

It looks as if the 17-member New Democratic Party is the only group which may be willing to raise the nuclear issue as a non-confidence motion.

Prime Minister Pearson has said Parliament will have a chance to deal with defence policies within a month of opening day, Thursday.

Mr. Pearson has said there will be plenty of opportunities before then to debate nuclear weapons, before any nuclear warheads are made available to Canadian forces. It is likely that at least one debate will take place before Canada signs a nuclear custody-and - control agreement with the United States.

FIRST SINCE 1961

Parliament probably will want to take a pretty close look at defence, since there has been no defence white paper since May 1, 1961, and the 1962-63 fiscal year's budget of $1,580,000,000 was never approved by Parliament.

The Conservatives had prepared a 1963-64 defence budget of about $1,850,000,000 but it was never presented to Parliament. The Liberals' defence budget is not likely to vary much from this amount.

The opposition may have a chance to wrangle with the political sport by dredging up statements made in opposition by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer and Defence Production Minister Charles M. Drury in their days in the cellars.

Mr. Hellyer often made unflattering remarks about naval construction programs. In his last speech as Liberal defence critic Feb. 4, Mr. Hellyer urged stockpiling of conventional weapons in Europe for reserve Canadian army brigades.

Mr. Drury last Dec. 14 suggested that Canada get out of any nuclear interception role at home.

Chicago Negroes Stone Police As Youth Hurt

CHICAGO (AP)—Hundreds of Negroes, said to have been angered by the wounding of a Negro youth during an attempted burglary, stoned police here Sunday in what police termed an "anti-police demonstration" here Monday night.

Twenty-five persons, police and civilian, and several police dogs were injured in the rock-throwing, jeering crowd of a predominantly Negro section of the west side after 1,000 persons had milled around for two hours.

Merlin Nygren, deputy police superintendent, said the disturbance began after a Negro youth was wounded in the attempted burglary of a warehouse. Conley Dillon, 14, was in serious condition in a hospital with a bullet wound in the head.

Nygren said six other Negro youths were arrested in the attempted burglary.

Three men and several juveniles, said Nygren, were sought for questioning to disperse, Nygren said. The men were charged with disorderly conduct and the youths were released to the custody of their parents.

One policeman suffered minor injuries when struck by a rock.

Canada to Seek Better Deal On Air Routes Into U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister George McIlraith will likely head a high-powered team of aviation experts in a new bid to get a better deal for Canada on air routes into the United States, a reliable source said Monday.

A general program to prepare for a new round of bilateral air talks with the U.S. was drafted several weeks ago by senior officials in the transport department and the air transport board.

The opportunity to move on this program has been set by the Hyannis Port, Mass., agreement of President Kennedy and Prime Minister Pearson to reopen trans-border air talks.

The two leaders agreed that preliminary discussions would be started on the suitability of present trans-border air travel arrangements "from the point of view of the travelling public and of the airlines of the two countries."

The expectation here is that the talks will start fairly soon.

Indications are the Canadians will seek first to clarify the present U.S.-Canada air bilateral agreement. After that, Canada would like to see the bilateral agreement broadened to enshrine Canada-U.S. air relations in a set of principles reflecting the unique position of the two neighboring countries.

Under present rules, two countries pair off major centres and grant routes between them to their respective airlines. Fed in into a string of cities stretched across the northern part of the U.S.—but not any deep penetration into some of the bigger and more lucrative southern markets.

The result has been that a Canadian traveller can fly on a Canadian airline only on the first leg of a trip to a southern city.

In contrast, an American airline with the matching right

Day May Come When Govts Will Dictate Conceptions

- - Fotheringham

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto psychiatrist theorizes the day when governments, confronted by growing numbers of mental defectives, will dictate marriages and conceptions to fit people.

Dr. John Fotheringham, a member of the mental retardation unit of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, raised the possibility Monday because of what he said is the increase in both apparent and real cases of mental retardation.

With automation already displacing large numbers of unskilled and uneducated workers, and the situation likely to become more serious in future, the mentally handicapped will have fewer and fewer opportunities of finding work.

He told the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies that authorities forces may resort to such measures as large-scale birth control or approved mating among the mentally medical science comes up with an answer to the-factors which breed mental handicap.

Increasing numbers of people who could cope with their handicap in a less complex world now are unable to adapt, Dr. Fotheringham said. In addition, doctors now prolong the life of many—mongoloids, premature infants, brain-damaged and other mental incompetents —who formerly did not survive. All posed a problem to society.

TELLS OF DANGERS

Possible physical dangers to the child or the foster parents were outlined by Dr. A. B. King, director of the York Psychiatric Hospital.

It is dangerous to place infants for adoption in rural areas where the water supply has a high nitrate content, he said, because heavy concentrations of nitric acid in a mother's milk system can seriously impair the amount of oxygen carried in the blood.

He also urged welfare workers to have potential foster parents examined to insure they would not suffer physically from taking on a child nor that the child would contract impairment. In York County, x-rays had been required prospective foster families to be tuberculosis carriers.

Mrs. Hazel Coburn, child care supervisor with the children's aid society in Windsor, Ont., reported on difficulties in placing certain children—older or mentally retarded youngsters, or those with behavior problems or mixed blood.

The society had received 80 replies to one of its campaigns for foster homes. Only 49 proved acceptable. The parents of these only 16 would take teenaged children. After one year, only four were continuing as potential foster homes.

Nine Charged After Death Of Indian

GLASLYN, Sask (CP)—Nine district Residents have been charged with non-capital murder in the death of a 20-year-old Indian following an incident in a nearby Indian encampment last weekend.

Allen Thomas of the Saulteaux Indian reserve died en route to hospital Sunday after a group of men allegedly raided the encampment, upset two tents and drove the occupants away.

Charged in North Battleford police court Monday with non-capital murder were: "Laurence Donald Michnik, 25; Harold Douglas Michnik, 21; Daniel Wm. Willmann, 20; George Wm. Ian Battery, 22; Allan Dale Hobbs, 21; Alfred Erwin Lobe, 47; William Joseph Cardain, 31; Donald Tracy Hobbs, 21; and Howard Joseph McConnell, 40.

They were remanded to Monday to May 22 for preliminary hearing.

Police said Thomas suffered head injuries but the cause of death has not been determined. A coroner's inquest opened Monday but the pathologist's report has not been completed.

RCMP in North Battleford said the raid apparently followed an "some bad feeling between the townspeople and the Indians."

The Indian reservations are near Glaslyn. Many Indian families move from their winter camps on the reservations in the spring, living a wandering life in tents. Glaslyn is a frequent stopping place.

Glaslyn residents have expressed concern during the last year because Indians often visit the town to drink.

Five or Six Aid Societies Doing Poor Job

TORONTO (CP)—A children's aid society official says about 10 per cent of Ontario's 55 children's aid societies are doing a poor job.

Although H. H. Dymond, executive secretary of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies, did not name any of the 10 per cent he indicated that most of them are in Northern Ontario.

He told the Ontario association's annual conference Monday that criticism of the societies is based on the ineffective five or six. Mr. Dymond is a member of Ontario Health Minister Dr. Matthew Dymond.

TWO ELECTION PROMISES MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

Tax Incentives May Aid Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the toughest decisions for the new Liberal government is to strike a balance between two election promises — tax incentives to stimulate business and a move towards a balanced budget.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon will unveil the decision in his first budget speech expected around mid-June. From what has been said publicly, it appears likely he'll put most of his emphasis on tax incentives with some juicy carrots to urge industry onward.

That would seem to leave little or nothing in the way of tax cuts for individual taxpayers, and this kind of cut wasn't among the Liberal election promises.

In one campaign speech, Prime Minister Pearson said tax decisions might have to be made, with a view to putting dollars in people's hands, "but not make a government very popular in the short term."

The biggest fact of life in government finances is the budgetary deficit for last fiscal year, ended March 31, and the last Oct. 22 by Conservative Finance Minister George Nowlan at $570,000,000.

ESTIMATE DEFICIT

The independent Canadian Tax Foundation has estimated the current year's deficit at between $600,000,000 and $800,000,000 on the basis of existing taxes.

In a recent interview, the St. Lawrence Seaway chief — government's most important task is to solve the twin problems of unemployment and too-slow economic growth.

Mr. Gordon's other-key decision involves spending policy—the other side of the coin to tax policy.

When the last Parliament was dissolved Feb. 6, the Conservatives' spending hadn't yet presented the blue book of spending estimates for the 1963-64

Peace Mission Arrives at Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—A peace mission of the Organization of American States arrived Monday night in the Dominican Republic at the Haitian-Dominican crisis, eased further by the Dominican Republic's announcement that it is withdrawing its troops from the Haitian border.

The six of the OAS fact-finding team was to fly on today to Port-au-Prince for talks with presidents of President Francois Duvalier have vowed to assassinate him by Wednesday.

The Dominican government's announcement gave no reason for the troop withdrawal. The main consideration apparently was Haiti's gradual release of opponents of Duvalier who had taken refuge in Latin American embassies in Port au Prince.

Dominican troops and a tank Bosch rushed troops to the border last week-end after Haitian militiamen invaded the Dominican Embassy in search of refugees there.

The Dominican Army hierarchy also was known to be resistant to the idea of an attack against Haiti. There also has been some criticism here of Bosch's decision to call out and exalt the Dominican Congress before putting the army on a war footing.

Balky Gantry Engine Earlier Delayed Count

Gordon Cooper's Trip Postponed for Day

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Gordon Cooper's scheduled 22-orbit space flight was postponed today because of trouble with a tracking radar at Bermuda.

The launching was rescheduled for tomorrow.

The effort was called off for the day at 10:57 a.m. EDT as Cooper, 36-year-old U.S. Air Force major, tensely waited out the countdown while sealed in his tiny Faith 7 spacecraft atop the full-fuelled Atlas space craft.

At the time, the countdown had progressed to within 12 minutes of launching.

The postponement came as an anti-climax after earlier troubles not connected with the Bermuda radar had held up the scheduled launching for two hours, nine minutes.

That trouble was caused by a balky diesel engine designed to move the giant service tower away from the launch pad. It was necessary to replace a fuel pump and purge foreign matter from the fuel line before the engine could operate.

Indications of the radar trouble came only about 15 minutes before the launching was called off. The tracking station at Bermuda said it was experiencing intermittent difficulty, but Mercury control officials decided to continue the countdown in case the radar could be repaired.

COULDN'T FIX TODAY

But technicians at Bermuda reported minutes later that it would be impossible to replace the equipment today and the shot was called off.

The radar, described as FPS-16, is a 12-foot-diameter dish designed to send radio signals to the spacecraft as it rises over Bermuda about five minutes after launching.

The signals trigger a device called a radio transponder in the spacecraft. By measuring the time it takes a signal to travel from the Bermuda station to the spacecraft and then back to Bermuda, computers can determine precise velocity and the altitude of the astronaut's vehicle.

This information would be essential for determining whether Cooper had achieved the proper initial course. If the desired path is not achieved, Bermuda then sends a signal to bring Cooper out of orbit immediately.

At the time the shot was called off, Cooper had been sitting in his cramped capsule for four hours, 21 minutes. He had entered the capsule at 6:36 a.m. EDT after breakfast and a final physical examination.

The countdown was taken down from his Faith 7 capsule and returned to his special service quarters in hangar S, about three miles from the launching pad.

WAS READY, EAGER

There was no immediate comment from the astronaut on the postponement. He was reported in good spirits and anxious to go as the countdown moved on, only to stumble over the technical roadblock.

Astronauts Virgil Grissom and Walter Schirra experienced similar frustrations in having their launchings called off at one time after they were ready to

His Last Visit to Commons? Winston Gets Warm Welcome

LONDON (Reuters) — Members of the House of Commons stood and waved their agenda papers in a warm welcome to Sir Winston Churchill when he paid what they sensed could be one of his last visits to Parliament today.

On May 2, Britain's wartime leader announced that he would not be running as a candidate at the next general election because of his increasing immobility since he broke a thighbone last summer.

As he entered the building, he doffed his hat, waved and smiled to the crowd.

His son-in-law, Agriculture Minister Christopher Soames, helped him as he went into the debating chamber. There, at the entrance, he smiled acknowledgment of the members' welcome.

There was complete silence as Churchill, with Soames' arm, walked to his place.

Trade Ministers Of 20 Countries Hold Parley

LONDON (CP)—Trade ministers from 20 British Commonwealth countries met here Monday to decide on the international trade negotiations opening in Geneva Thursday when members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade meet.

Officials who attended the secret meeting said the ministers, including Canada's Mitchell Sharp, didn't attempt to align their policies towards President Kennedy's plan for freer and easier world trade.

A welter of conflicting aims and interests which emerged in preparatory talks among officials led the ministers to give up the bid for Commonwealth unity as hopeless, a source said.

As a result, Britain and her fellow-members of the Commonwealth partnership will enter the GATT negotiations prepared to confer over strategy and consult over principles. The Geneva negotiations will be among the 44 full and seven associate members of GATT.

The main topic there will be Kennedy's scheme for a 50-per-cent across-the-board cut in tariffs which represent charges levied on imports by countries with home industries to protect

Police say his clothes had been burned.

A post-mortem was expected to be held in Kingston later today. Tucker, son of Mrs. Ella Tucker, Kingston, was described as "something of a transient."

Provincial police from Napanee are investigating.

START VISIT

LONDON (Reuters) — Belgium's King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola arrive here today for a three-day state visit, the first by Belgian monarch since 1937.

CAS Director At Belleville Wants Action

TORONTO (CP)—More than 350 child welfare workers, shocked by stories of long waiting periods before deformed or retarded children are admitted to provincial treatment centres, voted unanimously Monday to press the Ontario government for a speed-up in its construction program for such centres.

Delegates at the annual conference of the Ontario Health Association of Children's Aid Societies agreed to ask Health Minister Matthew Dymond to transfer the matter as urgent.

Bruce Kerr, president of the Belleville Children's Aid Society, told the conference that his agency had been asked by the court to care for two children until they could be transferred to the Ontario Hospital School at Smiths Falls.

He said one, a severely deformed and mentally retarded child, was put on a waiting list that would have involved a two-year delay in admission because the Smiths Falls institution was over-crowded.

Another mentally defective teen-ager was admitted to the institution 3½ months after a court had committed her there, and then only because of pressure by the Belleville agency, Mr. Kerr said.

MADE WARDS

In both cases, he added, the society was compelled to make the children permanent wards after finding it impossible to locate adequate treatment services immediately.

Yet Mr. Dymond had sent him a letter, Mr. Kerr said, saying he does not consider the situation acute and that there is no serious overcrowding in these institutions.

"If you and I can't arrange an admission for a ward to an Ontario hospital school, how would a private citizen be able to arrange for his child?" Mr. Kerr asked.

The conference also adopted a resolution urging Welfare Minister Louis Cecile to seek legislative changes that would provide children in court cases under the Child Welfare Act with the same anonymity as children under the Juvenile Delinquents Act. Delegates agreed parents and children should not be identified publicly while involved in court action under the Welfare Act.

BAS CHANCE

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit still has a "fighting chance" to get the 1964 Republican national convention, Governor George Romney said Monday as he escorted three members of the seven-member inspection site team on a tour of Cobo Hall.

Youth Called At Wrong Party, Gets 7 Days

A call at the wrong party indirectly brought seven days in jail for a young Brighton man in Belleville today.

Norman Batch, age 20, pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. V. Wills to driving while his licence was suspended.

Detective Harold Reid said Batch was charged May 5th, when police had been called to a house on South George St., where he had appeared as a party member.

"He got the house mixed up. He was looking for someone in the same 'pad' said the officer.

The simple incident led to these discoveries by police:

Batch's licence had been suspended following a police raid under the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund;

A licence plate on his car had been stolen from a Port Hope garage.

However, said Detective Reid, Batch told officers he had taken the car out some time before and had put plates on it and he found this licence plate lying along the road in the Wooler district.

Batch, already serving seven days for having liquor in the automobile on South George Street, was given a sharp reprimand by the magistrate on the licence charge.

"As I have said many times, this court will not have over these engines of destruction on the highway is a licence to drive," Magistrate Wills told him.

Breaking licencing regulations is a defiance of our whole law and it has got to be punished in some way people will understand so they will not fool with it."

Council Puts Official Okay On Agreement

City council yesterday put its official okay on amendments to the city's sub-division agreement which have been a bone of contention between local builders and council for the past several weeks.

Amendments to the agreement approved in council minutes more than a week ago were ratified yesterday in open council session.

The agreement spells out in detail who shall pay for services required and the percentage to be paid by the city in cases where perimeter streets are involved.

Special requirements in the Eastview Heights subdivision, and in the King George Square sub-division are covered in the amended agreement.

Alderman Les Digby wanted iron clad assurances for home purchasers that local improvement charges were not actually paid by the subdivider when this was called for under the agreement.

NOT ALWAYS CASE

He agreed that any unpaid charges should show up at the registry office, but said that in both the Eastview and Bella-ville this had not been the case.

He said certain buyers had been told local improvement charges were paid and then later had discovered they had not been paid.

Mayor Haig agreed that this had been the case. "It was most embarrassing for the owners," he said.

Council agreed that special assurance covering pre-payment of local improvement costs should be included in the amended sub-dividers' agreement.

Will Officially Open Sewage Plant June 5

Although it has been in operation since late last year, Belleville's two-and-a-half million dollar sewage disposal plant will be officially opened on June 5th.

Details of the official opening program will be ironed out at a special meeting of the city council special sewage committee on May 22nd at which a representative of the Ontario Water Resources Commission will attend.

A. E. Berry, former general manager of the OWRC will officially open the plant.

Preliminary plans, still to be worked out in detail by Alderman Jack Wills and his committee, call for a luncheon for participating officials at noon, followed by the official opening at 2.30 and an "open house" at which time residents will be invited to inspect the plan.

Special Session Of UN to Deal With Finances

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A June session has been hung over the United Nations General Assembly as it opens a special session on financing.

Current authorization for expenditures on the UN's two major peacekeeping operations—the Congo force and the Emergency Force in the Middle East expires June 30.

The special session is charged with working out a method of paying for them for the second half of the year.

In the background is the larger UN financial dilemma, brought on by chronic indebtedness of a U.S.-led minority and the refusal of a number, including the Soviet bloc, to pay costs of the peacekeeping assembly.

While a long-term solution is not expected to be taken up before the UN's regular assembly session opens in the fall, a UN source said Monday that Secretary-General U Thant is working on an austerity budget for next year.

The budget was described as one of consolidation and contraction with no increase in staff despite increased demands for services.

GET SOME ARREARS

The informant also reported encouraging results in a drive to collect arrears. Since the start of the year about 40 members have paid up between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000, leaving a balance outstanding of about $106,000,, due mostly to the unpaid assessments for the Congo and Middle East forces.

For these two groups, the special assembly will be asked to approve spending of $43,500,000 in the last six months of this year—$23,000,000 for the Congo force and $9,500,000 for the UNEF.

The Congo operation, now being reduced, is expected to cost $51,000,000 in the first six months of this year. Much of this has been met by the bond issue floated by the UN last year and by voluntary contributions of the United States.

The Middle East force has 311 men on the 12,500-man Congo force, has been paying approximately $3,000 a month as its share of Congo budget.

AGREE ON PLAN

LISBON (Reuters) — The seven - nation European Free Trade Association reached agreement Friday on a plan to set up a free trade area in industrial exports by the end of 1966. Council Will Not Purchase Salvation Army Property

The city is in no position either this year or in 1963 to purchase the Salvation Army property on Pinnacle Street as its officers' parking area.

This was indicated in council yesterday when members passed a recommendation to inform the Salvation Army to this effect.

Earlier in the year the Salvation Army had asked council for a firm commitment on the matter.

But the city intends to go ahead with development of the property and Don Mac properties for off-street parking, and will make application to the Ontario Municipal Board for the amount of $70,000 for this purpose and for the acquisition of the Thompson and Doyle approval to issue debentures properties on Pinnacle Street.

The Municipal Board earlier this year in approving the city's five-year capital works program budget included the $70,000 for parking purposes this year but money for 1963.

There is an amount of $60,000 in the capital works budget for 1963 for parking purposes, but this may or may not be approved by the Municipal Board or council at that time.

So, with the city not being in the financial position to purchase the Salvation Army property, council has directed that the Salvation Army be advised the city does not intend to purchase their property.

Boys Discover Arrowheads, Stone Tools

TRENTON — Two Marmora Street boys — Arthur Marchese and Ronald Creelman — think that they've unearthed the remnants of an Indian village on Bunker's Hill, north Marmora Street. The boys have dug up literally sackfuls of what appear to be arrowheads and rough digging or chopping tools made of stone. Now, Arthur and Ronnie are looking for someone who's an expert in such matters to get an opinion on their find.

Make Summer Program Plans

TRENTON — An exciting summer season is promised at the Community Gardens, provided the Gardens' board can carry through with ideas brought back from a conference in Guelph by Gardens' manager Ron Thornton.

For one thing, there may be roller skating to rock'n'roll music, for another, square dancing sessions.

A suggestion that the Boston Bruins' Juniors could take over the Gardens for a one-week training session in August was stopped in its tracks when the board considered the expense of providing ice for the week. Other commitments for rentals during the month would kill the idea, anyhow.

Howard Weese's perennial plea to be given a Sunday night and permission to charge for Junior "C" games met with a similar fate as U Thant was by no way of allowing Mr. Weese to charge admission for the games.

Will Meet Council

TRENTON — Ontario Minister of Highways, Hon. C. S. McNaughton will meet Trenton council tomorrow after-noon to discuss Trenton area highways and, council hopes, a second bridge for the town. The meeting will be held in council chambers and will start at 1.30 p.m.

Trenton Boat Opens Trent Canal Season

TRENTON — Two Trenton men — Robert Brown and Donald Fagg — took their fishing boat through Lock No. 1 at 9 a.m. Monday — heralding the start of another navigation season on the Trent waterway.

Meanwhile, workmen are proceeding rapidly with two new buildings — one at Lock No. 1 and the other at the Brighton road bridge on the Murray Canal — which will house two washrooms and an office apiece for the convenience of water tourists.

Firemen to Get New Pumper

Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons, who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervisor Ancaster Income Tax Department

One allowable exemption that is often missed by the taxpayer, is the additional $500 for persons who have reached the age of 65 years. The taxpayer could become 65 on December 31st and be entitled to this additional exemption for that year. The Income Tax Act states: it is applicable to taxpayers who attain that age at any time in the taxation year. This added exemption applies only to a taxpayer who is paying income tax. Persons who are 65 years of age and are being claimed as dependents, are only eligible for the ordinary dependants allowance which is $550 or if the person claiming them is entitled to the equivalent of married status on such a dependant, the allowance is $600 is allowed each such person who reaches 65 and is himself a taxpayer.

If a taxpayer making such a claim fails to show on the return the year of his birth, the income tax office will not process the return until this information is available. It is not necessary to submit a birth certificate unless one is specifically requested by the income tax office. The year of birth is required to determine whether the taxpayer is eligible for old age pension as such pensions are taxable income and should be reported.

CONTACT OFFICE

If the taxpayer has failed to claim the additional $500 exemption to which he is eligible, he should contact his local income tax office and ask that his returns for the years it was omitted, be adjusted.

All inquiries will be answered, if a self addressed stamped (8c) envelope is enclosed.

Question 1: Can I claim my parents who reside with us as dependants. Both are over 65. Do I claim $500 each or $1000 for them?

Answer: You may claim only $500 each. The additional $500 applies only to persons over 65 who are paying Income Taxes.

Question 2: I become 65 years of age in July. Do I claim the full $500 extra exemption for all year or just a portion of it for the period I was that age?

Answer: Claim the full $500.

Action of Council on Road Draws an Objection From Ratepayer Through Counsel

The action of city council some weeks ago in approving for the cost of an access road to an industrial property in the north end of the city to be paid out of the general rate has drawn objection from a local ratepayer.

Bellerville lawyer Douglas Boyle yesterday appearing before council on behalf of an unnamed client said council's action was in effect subsidization of private industry.

He said his client would take his objection to the Ontario Municipal Board.

The access road in question was discussed in full by council some weeks ago before it was agreed that the estimated $57,000 cost should be paid by the city.

The proposed roadway leads from Highway 37 to Tice Crescent in industrial property owned by the city, part of which has been sold to a transport firm as site for a new warehouse.

ASKS FULL DISCLOSURE

One of the conditions of the sale was that the city provide a paved access roadway.

Mr. Boyle said council's action was in direct reversal to the mayor's earlier opinion and asked full disclosure of the entire cost of the project, including expropriation. He said the entire cost of the access roadway should be apportioned and recovered from the land sale.

Alderman Jack Ellis in reply said Mr. Boyle's statements were not entirely based on fact and said the answers to his questions were quite simple.

Mayor Haig took exception to Mr. Boyle's statements and said before any reply was given there should be a declaration of his client's name.

Without action on the matter in an open book, there has been nothing hidden and nothing to be ashamed of," the mayor said.

ONE-FIFTH OF AREA

Alderman Ellis said some of the roadway cost was included in the land sale cost and that actually the acreage sold to the transport firm was less than one-fifth of the entire area.

He said that the roadway to the warehouse site had to be paved or the company was not interested.

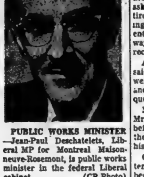
It was agreed that a reply for Mr. Boyle's client would be given at the next council meeting.

Alderman Jack Ireland, council representative on the industrial commission, said later in council that it was regrettable that the objection had been raised at a time when the commission was striving to interest an industry which would mean considerable employment in the city.

NOW BEFORE BOARD

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said today that the council request to file the proposed roadway out of the general rate was now before the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

He said an application by the city to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of the project and for an order to dispense with a vote by the ratepayers, was already being advertised as required by the Municipal Act.



Whether there would be a hearing in connection with the matter was up to the Municipal Board, he said.

Haiti Situation Said Critical By Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders show mounting concern over the possibility of a Communist coup in Haiti.

Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), chairman of the foreign relations committee, Monday called the situation extremely dangerous and said the United States should take military action if necessary to prevent the Haitian government from falling into Communist hands.

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, senior Republican on the foreign relations committee, joined Fulbright in criticizing the Organization of American States for not taking more action.

"It is disheartening to see the lack of vigor and determination on the part of the OAS in meeting this manifest threat and danger to all the American nations," Hickenlooper told a reporter.

"The time to put out a fire is before it gets too widespread."

Fulbright said the OAS had shown "a considerable amount of apathy" in the crisis between Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

"I don't like to see it (the OAS) stand off and take the attitude it is all our problem."

Fulbright and Hickenlooper talked with reporters after the foreign relations committee received a briefing by State Department officials. They said the committee the department's latest assessment of developments in the Caribbean area.

New Zealand Making New Bid to Check Visiting Costs Of 'Free' Medical Services

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINGTON (CP) — New Zealand is making still another bid to check the ever-rising cost of its "free" medical services.

The latest report is from a committee set up last year to investigate the cost of "free" pharmaceutical services, under which drugs and medicines prescribed by a doctor are supplied without cost to the patient.

The report of this scheme has been the most rapidly rising part of the entire social security system. Last year the bill was $23,000,000 for a population of less than 2,500,000, for the pharmaceutical service alone.

The committee reported that on the whole the pharmaceutical scheme has adequately met the needs of the community, but it says that criticisms can not be ignored.

It quotes the evidence of a doctor who said that services "can be too good, so that many a patient does not value the medical agents or realize the dangers of their casual acceptance."

WON'T DO ANYTHING

Another doctor said that a great many patients had ceased to treat the simplest condition at home, but relied on free medical services. He said a number of patients went from doctor to doctor, at public expense. One patient said he was the 19th doctor he had consulted.

Despite improvements in public health, the committee found, the average New Zealander is visiting his doctor more often and taking more drugs than other people. It blames the rising cost of the scheme on increased prescriptions and on more expensive medicines replacing cheaper ones.

However, the major economy measure recommended by the committee is most unlikely to be adopted. The committee says the scheme would be fairer if an immediate effort on rising costs would be made by introduction of percentage charge on prescriptions, payable by the public.

This proposal has been frequently suggested as a means of impressing on the public the need for economy in use of medicines, but has been rejected by successive governments. The present government refused to impose a small charge on prescriptions as recently as last year. The action would be highly unpopular politically and is hardly conceivable in the present election year.

LIMIT AMOUNTS

Failing such action, the committee gives main weight to changes in economics in prescribing. It recommends the reinstation of existing restraints on quantity and frequency of drugs issued to patients, and arrangements for advising doctors on avoidance of wasteful practice.

It also calls for greater propaganda to counter the impression with the general public that a prescription should be issued after every consultation with a doctor. It emphasizes: "A doctor's advice is often more useful than a drug."

The proposals have been duly hailed by the government as valuable and calculated to improve the efficiency of the scheme.

Yet it will be running contrary to all past experience if the proposals impose more than a drive checkline.

Picton Engineer's Suit Against Town Heard

PICTON—The only witnesses heard in the first day of hearing of the suit for damages for wrongful dismissal brought against the municipality of Picton by Herbert L. Gray, said yesterday no cause was given at the time the engineer was dismissed.

"I felt the council was wrong," said Andrew M. Jarvis, the only member of council to vote against the bylaw to dismiss Mr. Gray.

Mr. Jarvis, a member of the roads and streets committee, said he had known Mr. Gray since 1960 and had always found him competent. The case is being heard by Mr. Justice S. N. Schatz, at Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

L. H. Tepper of Kingston, counsel for the plaintiff, outlined the case for the court. He said Mr. Gray had been asked by council in the last year to prepare forms to be sent to the Provincial Government requesting a grant, to be used as part of the cost of work done on Spencer St. extension, a sidewalk and bridge project.

Previously he said, Mr. Gray had been asked to apply for the grant and had told the roads and streets committee the rebate would not be approved.

The property was annexed by Picton or March 1, 1962.

Mr. Gray, his lawyer said, had been asked to produce the forms at a meeting early in June last year, and at a later meeting, was dismissed because he refused to produce them.

Mr. Tepper referred to property served by the extension, and was warned by Mr. Justice Schatz to keep to the question of dismissal "and the right of council to do so. There is no question he refused a direct order . . ."

He said the engineer could have resigned, but did not and was now holding the town liable.

The case is continuing.

SUGGESTS VOTE

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Donald Summerville Monday suggested that the question of municipal sweepstakes be placed before the people of Toronto by means of a plebiscite at the next municipal election in 1964. He also proposed that an independent committee be set up by the three levels of government to allot sweepstake profits

Pastor Makes Plea for Non-Violence

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)— Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., the Negro integration leader, became a door-to-door pastor Monday. He sold his doctrine of non-violence to anyone who would listen and he took pocket knives to payments.

In pool halls, on street corners, a doorways he exhorted members of Birmingham's sprawling Negro community to throw aside any thought of retaliation for the weekend's bombing that brought bloodshed and rioting in its wake.

"Get rid of your knives and clubs," King shouted. "Don't throw any rocks."

"If the streets of Birmingham are going to flow with blood, let it be our blood and not the blood of our white brothers."

As he made his appeal, a young woman passed through the crowds and collected pocket knives of many kinds — penknives, switch blades, home-made cutting weapons of one kind and another.

"We don't need to fight with weapons," the 34-year-old King cried.

FIGHT WITH LOVE

An aide, Rov. Ralph D. Abernathy, echoed the plea: "No, brothers, we don't need to fight with weapons. We need to fight with love."

At one pool hall, players at the establishment's six playing tables stopped their games to listen.

"I'm a pool player, too," King said. "I can play a mean game of pool myself and I know right where that eight ball should go."

"Yeah, man!" cried several of the spectators.

"Spread the word of non-violence," King pleaded.

"Yeah, man " the cry came back.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clergy from the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches will meet here this month in what is the first large-scale dialogue between the two communions ever held in Western Canada. The conversations, first suggested at a refresher course for Anglican courses here last summer, will be held at St. Mark's Roman Catholic College, University of British Columbia, May 20-22.

Harris Crescent Residents Win Temporary Victory

Residents of Harris Crescent, in the North Front Street district have won at least temporary victory in their campaign to prevent opening of their street for potential commercial traffic in the north end of the city.

Yesterday a strong delegation from the crescent appeared before city council objecting to their street being tied in with a proposed roadway connecting with the commercial area being developed in the former Bleecker Woods area to the north.

Residents claimed the opening of such a roadway would funnel commercial traffic through their street and make it dangerous for their children.

So council deleted two parts of a four-part recommendation to take steps to acquire a 66-foot road allowance in the area.

TAKE NO ACTION

For the time being council will take no action to extend Fahey Street north from College Street following a proposed sewer easement. Neither will there be present action to acquire property for a north and south road between Tracey and the corner of Mary and Lemoine Streets.

Council did approve for the connecting of the east and west ends of Tracey Street, and the projection of a roadway from No. 14 highway westerly to the line of Mary and Lemoine Streets.

Mr. R. Nix, spokesman for the Harris Crescent delegation appearing at council for the second time in two weeks said owners had purchased in the area on the understanding the street would be strictly residential.

Alderman Jack Ellis asked the suspension of the rules to allow the introduction of a recommendation allowing the city to purchase a building for the end of Harris Crescent for a future road allowance, if and when required.

QUESTION VALIDITY

Mayor A. M. Haig questioned the validity of the action, however. He noted that 97 per cent of the owners in Harris Crescent supported the petition.

He said these people had bought in good faith on the understanding their street would have only residential traffic.

The final outcome of council action drew an angry comment from Alderman Walter Elliott who is interested in the commercial development of the Bleecker Woods area.

"I wish they (Harris Crescent residents) would take over development in the area," he said. "Apparently they don't want industrial assessment."

Alderman Elliott said the planned development would result in assessment of more than half a million dollars.

Mr. Nix took objection to the alderman's remarks.

"We are concerned first with the safety of our children," he said.

Council Accepts Resignation of Welfare Officer

City Council yesterday accepted the resignation of welfare administrator George A. Whitman, effective at the end of this month.

In accepting the resignation council moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Whitman for his services to the city during the past 16 years.

Mr. Whitman became associated with the city welfare department in June 1947 and in addition to his services in that department has been active in other municipal organizations.

Following his retirement as welfare administrator with the city, he will join the Department of Welfare in Ottawa.

City's Share Of Suburban Roads $20,460

The city of Belleville will contribute $20,460 as its share of the cost of suburban roads this year.

The above amount is $4,525 more than the half mill it is required to contribute according to municipal regulations.

Council yesterday authorized the by-law authorizing the additional appropriation.

The reason for the extra suburban roads cost this year is that plans call for a new bridge over the Moira River at Canniffton.

Under municipal regulations the city and the county of Hastings each pay one quarter of the cost of suburban roads, the Ontario Department of Highways paying the balance. Normally, however, the city's contribution is limited to one half mill on its assessment.

Cost of the bridge will be subsidized 80 per cent by the province.

The Evils of Cramming

The recent Ontario Home and Schools Associations annual convention, in Toronto, was told by a drama teacher that cramming children with art, music and drama lessons may give them artistic indigestion.

The Niagara Falls Evening Review takes issue with this suggestion.

"Would she say the same about too many lessons in reading, writing and arithmetic?" the Review asks. "After all, children get daily doses of the three R's and seem to be able to stomach such medicine without developing mental disorders."

The Review appears to have missed the main point.

Reading, writing and arithmetic are skills which we teach our children in order that they may use them. In large measure, whether they utilize these skills is immaterial. They need them; therefore they must be taught them.

Skills in art, music and drama are not essential. There is no reason why every child should acquire such skills, and indeed, except at the higher levels of education, courses are not designed to make the children into artists, musicians and actors. Instead the aim of these courses is to teach the children to enjoy these arts. This aim will be defeated if the children have to "cram."

Adults who received little or no instruction in art, music and drama at school may perhaps best grasp the difference if they will recall their English literature studies. Because these were bound up with acquiring the ability to read and write with adequate skill, this course was considered a necessity—and still is. But the better teachers of English also try to impart to their pupils a love of the language, of its literature and its poetry. To do this properly, this portion of the teaching of English should be considered the study of an art form and not a cramming ordeal. That only some students acquire a love of the language is only to be expected. We wonder, though, whether more students might not learn to appreciate English literature and poetry if the pace at which it is taught could be more leisurely.

A case in point is Shakespeare, almost universally taught in any course on English literature and almost universaly ignored by students in their future reading habits. Could it be that the reason why this writer shuns Dickens as the plague is the fact that "The Tale of Two Cities" is a high school compulsory? Ontario schools have widened their horizons in the study of literature, but is it possible that the inclusion of Hardy, Steinback, Conrad, Hemingway and the like may be more an obstacle than an aid to future enjoyment of their works? We know one student who finds the incomparable Thomas Hardy a bore, as we would have, too, had we been force-fed him at the same age. We suspect that the drama teacher who advised the Home and Schools Associations' convention against cramming children with lessons on the arts knew what she was talking about.

A Simple Solution

Nancy Phillips, columnist in the Toronto Telegram, the other day sang the praises of an article in Vogue by Marya Mannes. In it Miss Mannes dealt with "the dilemma of the professionally creative woman." Nancy Phillips agrees with Miss Mannes that "the intellectually and artistically creative woman—who demands more than a home and children—has a very hard row to hoe." Society, they agree, accepts such a woman only on certain conditions, "if at the same time she manages to be a good wife, a good mother, good looking, well dressed, well groomed and unaggressive."

Miss Mannes and Nancy Phillips, between them, make out a good case. A mere man could quibble. He may ask, with some reason, what makes these career women think that career men are entirely freed by society from the necessity of being good husbands, fathers, reasonably well groomed and aggressive—which is just as hard for some men as being unaggressive is for some women.

But we did not intrude into this problem to argue—merely to point out to Nancy Phillips that she has already found the simple solution. In closing her article she quotes "the immortal words of Bernard DeVoto who once said 'What every career woman needs is a good wife'."

Well, why not? Few husbands of career women would object—providing they were given an equal voice in the choice.

"I had no ambition to become a writer. I was not even particularly pleased when I won a school prize for the set essay on 'The Evils of Drink.' I didn't want to become anything. I wanted to keep on sucking minioes for ever."—Welsh poet and novelist Dannie Abse.

Hees Says His Farewells But Adds' Not for Keeps'

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Don't look now . . . but former Conservative Trade Minister George Hees has been back, briefly, in his old Capital stamping grounds.

Handsome and happy as ever, he was dispensing those breezy "Hya kid, 'way to go in there Boy!" greetings in the old familiar offhand way.

Matter of fact, he was back at the same old stand, lavishing his special brand of "open house" hospitality with well-stocked bar and a supermarket-full of party-type groceries on the buffet.

It was, he said, farewell, but added with a wide smile, trilling his eyes, "not for keeps."

He'd be back.

Of that make no mistake.

Ant while he didn't actually come right out and say it - - he didn't have to - - when he did return, it would be as a contender, and perhaps the favorite, for the Conservative leadership.

Like when?

"How does a year or so sound?" they're quoting him as guessing.

AUSTERITY:

For the "So-long-for-now" party, he had only the one big bash, which, for open-handed-and-hearted hospitality, Indian Hees, was practically austerity.

For over the years, George Hees has partied the party-loving Capital in a fabulous style to which Ottawa has long come to become accustomed - - hiring the Country Club, installing a good, solid, no-nonsense brass band, setting up three bars and a 300-foot-long buffet, and inviting the whole Tory hoopla horde in relays, with a new wave of guests enthusiastically hitting his "good-bye" line on each of three or four successive nights.

This one, as befits a "farewell but not goodbye" soiree, was more discriminating and discreet.

As the evening wore gaily on, word was circulating that after a European holiday this second since the Conservative Leadership Convention and of the Diefenbaker Government- he would be conveniently "available" for the party leadership.

While the Prairie MPs - - and they form the big majority of the Conservative caucus in the Commons - - will be in no hurry to part with John Diefenbaker as leader, there are others in more of a hurry.

In fact, some of them - - and this doesn't exclude some in the elder-statesman ranks of the Tory MPs - - can hardly wait.

"THAT'S OUR BOY!"

They don't want — and won't take another leader from West of Lake Lakehead — that is, from Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin and that able, ambitious Conservative Wonder Boy," Alvin Hamilton.

And since Nova Scotia's Premier Stanfield seems to have shown little interest, that leaves George Hees.

Like John Diefenbaker's Prairie contingent they swore, only a few weeks ago, that they "never, never, never" would be unforgiveness of such party "disloyalty" as Hees' leaving the cabinet in leading that unsuccessful but crippling Cabinet revolt.

But . . .

He it was, on whose head John Diefenbaker had laid handy, politically-speaking, all the party summit of the Crown Princes in the line of leadership succession.

He it was who had been the party's liaison agent with the money-men of the country's financial community in the collection of campaign funds.

He it was, who through a year of intensive coast-to-coast, constituency-to-constituency travel as party president, had come to know the workers at the poll level in every riding.

Finally, he it was who had the magic of personal magnetism in such measure that he could keep Conservative the country over would call him friend on an individual "George, boy" basis and mean it.

This they now remember.

This George Hees well knows.

And so, he is suddenly "available," and the drive for the Conservative leadership is "on." It may take, as he put it, "a year or so," or perhaps even longer, but George Hees, confident, can wait.

On Cleaning Statutes

Hamilton Spectator

Conservative party members in Weymouth, England, are up in arms. They are furious because city council refused to clean the statue of Queen Victoria which dominates the main section of the city. Sixty years of exposure to the weather, and birds, have given the bronze statue a coat of many colors.

"It is disrespectful and ungallant to let such a great lady go to pot," thundered a Tory spokesman.

Amen to that, sir.

Strictly Personal

Our Language Is at Times Very Confusing

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A young woman of my acquaintance who is learning English during her first year in this country asked me the other day, "If 'was' is a singular verb, and 'were' is a plural verb, why do we say 'you were' when talking about only one person? Shouldn't it be 'you was'?"

This is one of the troubles in learning so flexible so sprawling and so illogical a language as English. "You was" is today considered the depth of ignorance and literacy, an outrageous breach of grammar. And yet originally "you were" was used to learn it was not always so.

"You were" is a matter of custom, not of grammar at all. The inflection "you was" can be found in many of the best 18th century writers. Fielding's classic "Tom Jones" has all its characters — lords, lawyers, preachers and tradesmen — saying "you was." None of them ever says "you were."

Cowper, 1785, begins one of his letters, "I am thankfully obliged to you for the letter with which you was so kind as to favor me." And Byron, as late as the composition of "Don Juan," used the line: "You was not last year at the fair of Lugo."

Most of the "purest" writers of the 18th century followed this practice — Addison, Pope, Swift and Horace Walpole. What happened, however, was that in subsequent editions the editors altered "you was" to "you were" in accordance with modern usage. All editions of "Tom Jones" published in the 19th century made these changes.

When the pronoun "thou" began to be displaced by the form of "you," the word "you" was considered as singular where only one person was addressed (following "thou wast"). "Was you" referred to one person: "were you" to more than one.

Before the 17th century, "thou" was the singular pronoun, and "you" the plural only. When the former was dropped, "you" as the plural and "you-all" sounds ridiculous and affected in the North, but it is psychologically understandable as a means of distinguishing between the singular and the plural "you."

If English grammar were logical, for instance, singular verbs would end in "s" ("he looks"), while the plural would not be without the "s" ("they look"). English will never be amenable to logic because, as someone has said, people keep talking before they began thinking.

Canadians eating in restaurants, hotels and institutions have had their first experience of "meatless Tuesday," but they dined on macaroni, eggs, chicken, fish and a wide range of vegetables. The time passed without incident and almost without comment, for good cooks, ample food and other dishes took the place of meat that otherwise might have been used.

What with fish, eggs, fowl, fruits, vegetables and the use of liver, heart, kidneys and other unrationed portions of pork, veal and beef, the advent of meat rationing will not make many changes except to give greater incentive to cooking. It is estimated that 400,000 pounds of meat will be the average saving each Tuesday in public eating places across Canada.

A celebration will be in order for Hastings County early in June when at the spring session of the county council the municipality's last debenture will be paid off and the county will stand clear of debt. Hastings County was organized in 1850 with Edward Fidlar of Rawdon township as first warden.

Prior to that time the area now comprising Hastings had been known as the District of Columbia with its warden appointed by the provincial government. Several other districts in the province will also be free of debt this summer when their last debentures are retired.

To Your Good Health

Some Youngsters Have After-School Headaches

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 16, can't take vitamin pills. She comes home from school with a terrific headache that extends into the neck.

I've tried different brands and she gets the same reactions from all of them. What's your opinion? — Mrs. G.

Most frequent cause is irritation the conclusion that vitamin pills are to blame, but you can test that theory yourself. Just stop giving them. If the headaches continue, and I dare say they will, you'll know you have to look elsewhere for the trouble. (Be sure the girl has a well-balanced diet, and she'll get all the vitamins she needs.)

Then explore a number of the commoner causes for youngsters having these after-school headaches.

1 — Have her eyes been checked? It may be that she can't see well enough and the tension from trying brings the headaches.

2 — Is she under some other form of emotional tension? Disturbed about something at school? Are conditions peaceful at home, or is there frequent conflict that makes her dread being there?

3 — What about her posture? If it is poor, the head pain may undue strain on muscles and nerves of the neck. This is not to be confused with "stiff neck" aches, especially when the ache extends into the neck.

4 — Does she eat an adequate lunch? (And a substantial one?) If she skimps on breakfast and then eats only a these pop-and-candy-bar "lunches," she could be having a "hungry headache."

The hungry headaches occur, physiologically, when the blood sugar level falls too low. In such cases, adequate breakfasts and lunches are the cure.

Vitamins don't cause headaches. Vitamins are the natural content of proper food in the diet, and the pills are only a mixture of these same materials.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife has gastritis, so there a cure for it? — D. H.

Gastritis is inflammation of the stomach and a cure depends on the cause. Most gastritis is temporary. It is caused by spoiled food or somebody's nerve or irritating, such as a highly spiced diet or alcohol.

If the trouble continues, the most frequent cause is irritation from overeating. Moderation in eating helps, along with a bland, non-irritating diet. Some people have a special sensitivity to irritation. Aspirin and certain antibiotics, for instance, are better avoided when with food or a glass of milk.

Dear Dr. Molner: For many years I have had an odor which comes from my nose, and have been told to use salt solution with a syringe. I come through ordinary physical checkups with flying colors. My doctor has X-rayed my teeth and finds nothing wrong. My wife and friends tell me the odor is worse just before I eat. — J. S.

My suggestion is a thorough examination by an ear-nose-throat specialist, in search of a chronic infection somewhere in that area. A condition called ozena will cause this. It is a matter of retained secretions resulting from infection in the nose or sinuses.

Letter to The Editor

Applauds Plans For Zwick's Island

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

I have just finished reading the second in your paper pertaining to the development of Zwick's Island. I have thought for some time what a lovely park this would make with a little work and money.

It sounds wonderful if the work is carried out as planned and is something this city needs badly. Belleville needs what is a must in any city, especially one with plenty of parking space available. Here's hoping the committee for its long range planning.

Just one thing rankles me — why buildons out the most beautiful part of the island — those weeping willow trees? No amount of money can replace trees of this size. It has become down the bay in a boat and looked at them I think you would hesitate before destroying them.

Why can't your sand beach be shaded by these same trees or does it have to be sunbaked and too hot for the 20 per cent of the non-swimmers to enjoy. Stop and think of the beaches from 30 miles of Belleville where they are trying to grow shade trees and we have them fully grown and you want to do away with them.

I am only a taxpayer and do not know much about making sand beaches but I do know trees enhance the beauty and comfort of any picnic spot. Please stop and think before destroying the tree things you have to start from scratch you for this space in your paper.

(Mrs. J.) Reta Winstanley,
364 Bleecker St.

Editor's Note: The great majority of weeping willow trees along the shores of the island will not be disturbed. Even some in the immediate vicinity of the sand beach will remain. However, it would be impractical to build the beach without removing some trees, because of their roots and the earth they retain.

Hypersonic Jets Coming

Vancouver Province

"Hypersonic" is a new word being used in airline planning departments to denote the beginning of an age of awesome speed.

Merely "supersonic" doesn't adequately describe a plane that will fly at 4,000 miles per hour — six times the speed of sound.

Elaborate wind-tunnels and other plane-testing equipment at the Royal Aircraft Establishment at Farnborough, England, have been built by scientists looking 20 years into the future.

Canada's largest airlines expect the present jet-liner models to remain in service for at least a decade — but then the speeds will start to climb.

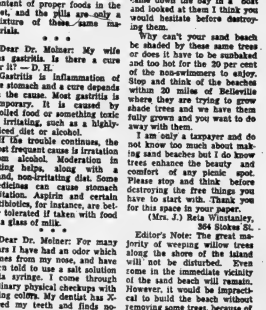
Once 2,000 m.p.m. has been passed, say some experts, then the big problems of heat and multiple sound barriers will have been solved.

A spokesman for Canadian Pacific Airlines said planners expect the supersonic jet liner will cort 25 percent less to operate than present aircraft. Hats grate that means.

Around the world in six hours? It's in the hypersonic future — and already on the drawing-board.

Wants Canada To Expand

The Prince Ward



Letter from a friend in Cape Dorset suggests that Canada try to make a deal with some warm area such as Iran where he could go on his next leave and still not be taking money out of Canada, impairing this country's balance-of-payment position. His idea is that the islanders might be offered inducements to get them to emigrate from the frozen north to the warmer climes.

Trouble is that the Russians might hear of it. They could complain that the Eskimos is not so warm as they have been told and that would foul the whole deal.

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

An amateur of astronomy is an unhandy thing to have about the house. He is always stunning us with some of the shocking statistics about space.

The nearest star to us, he says, for example, "is Alpha Centauri, which is a little over four light years from us. A light year is the time it takes light to travel in one year, which is 5,880,000,000,000 miles."

He usually writes this figure out on a slip of paper and passes it around for us to see our horrified inspection.

"Alpha Centauri," he goes on, "is four times that many miles away from us. And it was four years ago that the light we see, when we look at that star, left it. And that star is one of the millions or even billions of times further away than that. The light we see from the stars is where they were millions of years ago, not now. In fact, maybe they've been gone a million years, but the light will still keep on coming to other suns.

In fact, maybe all the stars are gone, ages ago. Maybe Alpha Centauri went out four years ago and we won't know until next month. Maybe there is nobody left but us."

British Parliament Ready To Give Loophole to Peers

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — The words that have put many a reluctant peer in the House of Lords are found in the letters patent creating the title.

The document, in Ye Olde English and signed by the Monarch, assigns the honor not only to the newly created peer but also to "the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten and to be begotten."

For years various peers with hopes of a career in the House of Commons have sought a way out of that one, to give up "the said name, state, degree, style, dignity, title and honor" and become commoners.

Now, it seems, Parliament is about ready to provide a loophole.

Ian Macleod, Conservative leader of the House of Commons, said recently the government proposes to draft a series of committee reports over the last 50 years. The major recommendation: that peers be permitted to renounce their titles and seek election to the Commons.

The Labor opposition has said it will not oppose this but although most of the party feel it doesn't go far enough and there is a second reading on the editary basis should be abolished altogether.

LORD BATTLE

Anthony Wedgwood Benn, the most famous of recent "reluctant peers" who won a byelection but was refused his seat, keep his Labor seat after his succeeded to the title, said in recent television interview that Britain should have a second House instead of an American Senate with appointed rather than hereditary members.

There are currently 900 peers but average attendance is about 140. About 80 have applied to sit in the Commons, many others went once, to sign the papers and take their seats briefly before their retirement.

Defenders of the Lords call it "the house of experts" and include 100 life peers, sought as leisure, refine and clarify bills that come to them from the Commons and, they say that there are many cases where lords have improved bills even the praise of the Commons.

One peer described it recently as "institution."

"We would not have had the sense to create if we had not inherited it."

Except for the high "degree, dignity and honor" of the title, the lords have few privileges from their rank. Those who attend the Lords regularly get a small expense allowance. The others get nothing. But, should the occasion arise, they can demand to be tried by a silk cord instead of a rope.

NOT FOR GIRLS

On state occasions, they are seated in order of precedence according to rank just after ambassadors and Commoners. Dukes, marquisses and just ahead of the chancellor of the exchequer—the finance minister.

One of the ironies of the upper house is that if a peer's wife "begets" a child carefully begotten" is a girl she cannot sit in the Lords. Also barred are the several hundred among the 42 lifetime, as opposed to hereditary, peers appointed in recent years.

It is expected the new bill will permit women to possess life their own right to be seated in the Lords.

Any peer who hopes to quit the Lords can expect opposition from relatives who enjoy so-called courtesy titles — wives, children and grandchildren. There are some 4,000 of them, including the man that took the life of the man who, as chief statistician of the U.S. national Institutes of Health, prepared a 1958 survey which led the Public Health Service to search for links between lung cancer and smoking. Associates described Dorn as "an avid non-smoker."

General Thurlow Millrate 48.6 Farm, 55.48 Industry

Thurlow township ratepayers this year will be asked to shell out $410,061.03 in municipal taxes according to 1963 estimates approved last week by council.

This general rates for the year, not including elementary schools, or special area rates, has been set at 48.6 mills for residential and farm properties, and 55.48 mills for commercial and industrial properties.

These rates represent increases over last year of 3.33 mills for residential and farm property owners, and 3.44 mills for commercial and industrial.

The overall increase is brought about by a rise of 1.81 mills in the county rate, an increase of .88 mill for residential and farm, and 1.06 mill commercial and industrial, in the township rate, while the high schools rate is also up this year — .83 mill for residential and farm properties, and 2.83 mills for commercial and industrial over last year's rate of 17.17 mills.

SEPARATE RATES

This year for the first time, there are separate high school rates for farm and residential properties, and commercial and industrial. In past years there has been but one general rate for high school purposes.

Most of the elementary school rates in the township are reduced this year with substantial reductions for the Centre Thurlow School Area, the North Thurlow School Areas, and for S.S. No. 22 at Point Anne.

The 19.98 county rate will raise $123,467.83, while the general township rate of 10.62 mills, residential and farm, and 15.5, commercial and industrial, will raise $82,332.27.

High schools will cost the ratepayers $119,453.22 with farm and residential owners paying 18 mills and commercial and industrial owners paying 28 mills.

Public school rates will cost ratepayers $76,345 for and special area rates (street lights in Plainfield, Foxboro and Canniffton, Point Anne constable and Federation of Agriculture) $3,768.13.

Rotary Club Speaker Tells Why Nuclear Power Needed

On Monday, June 4th, 1962, electricity, produced by nuclear power, flowed into the homes and industries of Canada for the first time, said Rotarian Dave Gale, who addressed the Rotary Club of Belleville on Monday.

One may ask why nuclear power is needed in Canada, especially when there is an apparent abundance of coal, oil, natural gas and water power, he said.

We find our answer, said Mr. Gale, in the spectacular rise in the consumption of electricity which has occurred throughout the world during the past 10 years.

In Canada, Mr. Gale said, the demand has almost doubled in this period, jumping from 60 billion kilowatt hours in 1951 to 115 billion kilowatt hours in 1960.

The speaker said that in Ontario alone, the growth during this period, actually more than doubled, from 17.5 billion to 37 billion kilowatt hours, and this growth rate is expected to continue for many years to come.

WILL HELP CANADA

Mr. Gale went on to say that the use of nuclear power would help Canada, with its world's largest proved reserve of uranium, to reduce the serious penalties imposed by its defield situation.

This is why the NPD project, (Nuclear Power Demonstration), is such a vital concern to Canada, he said. Its main purpose is the building of a large working demonstration of Canada's approach to economic nuclear power, through the use of heavy water as a moderator and by the use of natural uranium as fuel.

Many countries are watching nuclear power developments in Canada with great interest, with the United Kingdom giving serious attention to the role of the Canadian reactor type in its future programs.

In closing, Mr. Gale said that 1970 will be the year when water power reactors will generate electricity at lower costs than those which will be in use at the more industrialized areas of the country.

Following Mr. Gale's address, a film was shown telling the story behind this achievement and how Canada's hydro-electric power station was designed, built and commissioned as part of Ontario Hydro's power system.

The film also showed how three organizations, the Crown-owned company of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, Ontario Hydro and Canadian General Electric, formed a unique partnership to combine their skills and resources to turn the theory of A.N.P.D. into reality.

Among the highlights of the film were cartoons which gave a short explanation of nuclear energy and the working principles of the NPD reactor, located near the Chalk River Research Centre.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Glen Reynolds and thanked by Walter Elliott.

President H. Burns announced there would be no meeting next Monday. Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Don McKinnon.

Rotarian Bill McCormick announced that $4,000 had been collected from the Easter Seal campaign, $385 ahead of last year's campaign total.

Approximately 65 members attended the meeting.

Study Plans To Save Old Nubian Temples

PARIS (Reuters)—Two plans on how to save Egypt's age-old Nubian temples from being discussed here by officials of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

On "archeological" grounds the experts favor a $34,000,000 French plan to float the ancient Nubian temples to high ground.

The temples are threatened with flooding by the Nile when Egypt's Aswan Dam is completed.

But on "technical" grounds the experts favor an alternative Swedish plan, costing $2,000,000 more, to cut up the temples and rebuild them on the mountain overlooking their present site.

The UNESCO executive is expected to go along with the experts' recommendation that the plans be referred to the temple project's board of consultants, meeting soon in Cairo.

A group of Tabernacle United Church ladies played host to the White Cane Club at the Quinte Canteen Centre Monday evening.

A welcome from president Pat Baverstock, was extended to all.

The members celebrating birthdays for May are: Mike O'Malley, Ray Latta, Bessie Wood, Helen Warshaugh and Vi Waite.

Mrs. Esther Clarke, from the County Home, will be celebrating her 98th birthday on May 27th. Mrs. Clarke has been blind for many years.

Glad Seldon read about William Jermyn of Whitby who became blind overnight at the age of 28. After three months of battlement and despair he summoned the effort to the try to finish a house which was in progress. He also learned to make many things such as an early Canadian cobblers' bench, cabinets and many other articles including a lovely bed for his new daughter.

WEDDING

REID — WOOD

PICTON — The United Church at Cherry Valley was the scene of a lovely wedding Saturday afternoon, May 11, 1963, when Donna June Wood became the bride of Mr. Laverne Reid. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gered Wood, R. R. 3, Picton, (Woodcroft). The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Pearn, Toronto, and the late Mr. Leslie Reid. The ceremony was performed by a former minister, the Rev. M. Fleming of Georgetown, assisted by Mr. Donald Harvey, student pastor. Baskets of white mums and snapdragons decorated the altar.

Traditional wedding music was played by Miss Evelyn Moore and Mrs. Ian Fleming sang "Be Thou Our Guide" and "Oh Father, Keep Thee True."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a lovely picture in a floor-length gown of white peau de soie, featuring a bell shaped skirt with pleats and accented in the back by a large peau de soie sash and rosette. The fitted bodice featured a Chantilly lace trimmed neckline and the long lily-point sleeves came to the wrists. A pearl tiara held the bouffant shoulder-length veil. Best Regulator In Business Is Housewife

VANCOUVER (CP) — A St. Louis credit executive said Monday that the best regulator in the business is the housewife and right now she feels confident about the economy.

William Blake, executive vice-president of the International Consumer Credit Association, said the housewife can take a great deal of the credit for the fact the United States is entering an economic boom with no pitfalls in sight.

In an interview—Mr. Blake is here for the association's Pacific northwest conference—he said he was against artificial controls of credit.

"Families are pretty smart. They know if they are overspending or over-saving. The best regulator of the family budget is the housewife. She is undoubtedly the controlling factor in consumer purchasing."

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The 104th synod of the Anglican diocese of Huron voted Monday night in favor of women attending synods as lay delegates.

In a 158-67 vote, synod delegates approved a resolution deleting the word "male" from the constitutional regulation that "lay representatives shall be male communicants."

"We are concerned with the right of women to sit in synod," said Ven. Archdeacon Alford Abraham of St. George's Church, Sarnia. "It doesn't follow that half the delegates will be women."

Fred Sheldon, lay delegate from St. Alban's Church, Delhi, protested that admitting women would mean fewer men will have an interest in church affairs. Compared with women, few men attended church as it is.

Bread
Whole Wheat

by Mary Moore

My lovely little niece Barbara tells me she stretches 1 pound ages of yeast to make 6 loaves of whole wheat bread. She says this way the yeast costs 1c per loaf! She and Brian have a family of 4 children and homemade bread is an important item for their 3 meals each day. She thinks that a 25-lb. bag of whole wheat flour is the best buy. A 100-lb. bag just might come to some harm and is awkward to handle.

For those of you who have the conviction and drive to make your own bread for the sake of good nutrition, careful budgeting and unsoiled fibers, I am giving you again my recipe for homemade whole wheat bread with some slight additions. I have tried to reduce the number of bowls used.

Near a loaf of fresh homemade bread is a welcome gift to an invalid.
